The redoubtable Tom Goodeve, reeve of Adjala for many years and victor in many a stirring municipal fight, met his Waterloo on Monday, when he was beaten by Thos. Walsh, by a majority of 72. Walsh tried to oust Goodeve a year ago, but was unsuccessful. This year perseverance brought its reward. Milligan, a new man who lives in the north end, headed the poll for the Council. Miller Hamilton ran second, and Wm. Campbell and Lawler, of the old council, captured the other two places. The figures are :—

WHITE IS REEVE

Won From Fairbairn by 91 in Monday's Contest.

Arnott Had a Large Majority in Deputy-Reeveship Race

Orangeville was the scene of a keen municipal contest on Monday. Interest centred in the race between J. J. White and Walter Fairbairn for the reeveship. The candidates are both popular, they have both had considerable municipal experience and they were admittedly capable and efficient in their public service. Each man had a strong following and both sides made a determined effort to score a victory. At the outset it looked like a very close fight, with the odds slightly in favor of Fairbairn, but as election day drew near it became evident that White, who conducted a strong, aggressive campaign, was gaining steadily and the best informed of his supporters were sanguine that he would win. At that most of them thought the majority would not be over 50, and there was general surprise when the returns showed that he had rolled up a majority of 91. Most of this was contributed by the winner's home Ward—the North—where he polled 116 votes to 48 for his opponent. White also ran well in the East—Fairbairn's division—where he was only one vote behind. Fairbairn did best in the West, where he secured a lead of 8 votes. Thos. Arnott, a veteran and skilful municipal campaigner,

J. J. WHITE

won the deputy-reeveship with the handsome majority of 134. His opponent, Mr. T. Hepton, ran four ahead in the West, but Arnott had substantial majorities in the other three divisions. Alex. Holmes, of the 1913 council, received a flattering vote, heading the poll for Councillors. His nomination speech and his work in connection with the renovation of the Town Hall were the main factors that contributed to his large vote. Thos. Henderson, who has been out of the Council for some years, finished in second place and was closely followed by Darraugh, Johnston and Matthews, of the old Council, in the order named. B. McGuire captured the sixth place, leading John Patterson by 17 votes. Allison, the other candidate, was 7 votes behind Patterson.

A large crowd gathered on Broadway to learn the results. As soon as the returns began to arrive from the Wards the crowd centred at The Banner office, where the results were tabulated. Shortly after 8 o'clock a small extra was issued giving the Orangeville and Caledon results and also the results everywhere in Dufferin except Mulmur township. It is interesting to note that outside returns were all in and ready for the press, before the South Ward count was announced. The Orangeville results were as follows :—

MARSHALL CARRIED MONO

Won Reeveship Race With 70 Majority.

Parks Had Walkover in Contest for Deputy-Reeve.

Reeve Marshall, of Mono, was re-elected on Monday by a majority of 70. His opponent, Mr. T. H. Moffitt, last year's deputy-reeve, obtained substantial majorities at Perry's School and Hockley, his home division. Marshall led in the other five divisions. The reeve-elect did unexpectedly well in the Rosemont ward, where he polled 70 out of the 84 votes that were cast. T. J. Parks, who was defeated by Moffitt for deputy-reeve a year ago, had an easy time of it in the deputy-reeveship contest. He ran ahead in six of the seven wards, and had very heavy majorities at Mono College and Camilla. His opponent, Mr. W. J. Henry, would probably have made a somewhat better showing had he not been prevented by the death of his mother-in-law on Monday from doing any campaigning on election day. Parks' home division, Mono College, gave him a flattering vote, rolling up a majority of 77. The figures by wards are :—

A CLOSE RUN

Williams Had 9 Majority Over Spence in Amaranth

West Defeated Leader for Deputy-Reeve—Ritchie and Hepton at Top of Poll for Councillors.

The unexpected happened in the Amaranth reeveship fight on Monday. A large majority of the ratepayers were strongly opposed to Mr. A. E. Williams stand on the House of Refuge question and for that reason it was thought in the early stages of the contest that his opponent, Mr. Jno. S. Spence, would score an easy victory. Williams shifted ground in his nomination speech, in which he virtually committed himself to the plan of remodelling the present county buildings. This doubtless made him many votes, particularly in the Laurel division, which was at the outset very strongly opposed to his candidature. The fact that he had been in the council several years and was therefore in a measure entitled to the reeveship also gained him sympathy and support. Mr. Spence, who has been out of municipal affairs for a number of years, made a creditable run and, while he is undoubtedly disappointed, has no reason to feel ashamed of the showing he made. He wanted only ten more votes to win and a little more energy on the part of his supporters would easily have put him on top. Mr. Williams is young and energetic and waged a vigorous campaign, which brought him an unlocked for victory. Reuben West landed the deputy-reeveship, although his opponent, W. T. Leader, gave him a hard run for the coveted honor. Jos. Ritchie, Geo. Hepton and John Pratt were the successful Councillors, running in the order named. The details follow :—

EAST LUTHER

Re-Elected Howard Hilborn With a Comfortable Majority.

James Platt Headed the Poll for Councillor.

Howard Hilborn, last year's reeve, defeated ex-reeve P. J. Cunningham by 58 votes in Monday's contest for the East Luther reeveship. Cunningham had a small lead in the Colbeck division, but Hilborn carried the other wards by comfortable majorities. James Platt and Wm. Beattie were elected to the Council, and O. Crewson and Wm. Martin are apparently a tie for third place. The details are : —

REBURN AND KIDD.

Reeve and Deputy-Reeve Returned With Large Majorities.

Last Year's Council Re-elected in Mulmur.

Jos. Rutledge met disaster in his effort to oust John Reburn from the Mulmur reeveship. It is evident from the vote he polled that sympathy was strongly with Reburn, who has only had one term as reeve. Rutledge had majorities at Mansfield and Earnscliffe, but ran badly behind in the other divisions. The fight for deputy-reeve was closer, but E. Kidd, the old deputy, won out with the comfortable majority of 79. His opponent, Mr. J. M. Moodie, polled a good vote everywhere except in the Randwick division. The old councillors, Messrs. Jas. Barber, Thos. Stirling and Seymour Newell, were re-elected. The details follow :—

ERIN TOWNSHIP.

McKinnon Wins Reeveship in Triangular Contest.

Erin township had a three cornered fight for the reeveship this year. The candidates were Alex. McKinnon, last year's reeve, E. T. Barbour, last year's deputy-reeve, and Ed. Marshall. McKinnon won out, Marshall finishing a good second. The vote was :—

DRYDEN WON

Last Year's Reeve Victor in Stirring Four-Cornered Fight.

Melancthon has a New Deputy-Reeve and Three New Councillors.

No less than four candidates allowed their names to go on the ballot papers for reeve in Melancthon this year. T. C. Dryden, last year's reeve, emerged from the uncertain contest with a lead of 77 votes over R. J. Cornett, last year's deputy. Cornett led Wm. McGhee by 16 and McGhee was 69 ahead of Robt. Fawcett. Five candidates were in the field for deputy-reeve. Jas. R. Clarke, the winner, polled 189 votes. W. E. Reid, his nearest opponent, had 185. Prentice ran third with 169 and Jas. Higgins finished fourth with 138. Wm. Stone, an old-timer, made a poor fifth. W. G. Dynes, R. H. Halbert and R. B. Oldfield were the successful candidates for Councillors. Dynes has had considerable municipal experience, although he was not in last year's Council. The others are new men. The results by divisions are :—

QUINN IN CALEDON

Had 35 Majority Over Ex-Reeve Limebeer.

Jas. R. Hillyard Headed the Poll for Councillors.

The Banner and other local newspapers were in error last week when they stated that Caledon Council for 1914 had been returned without opposition. Arrangements had been made for an acclamation, but it appears that some of the candidates neglected to hand in their resignations within the required time. Mr. D. Armstrong, who intended to stand for reeve, was nominated for reeve and deputy-reeve. He resigned as deputy-reeve but it seems the resignation was not properly attested and as he was first nominated for deputy-reeve, the Clerk was obliged to consider him a candidate for that office In the same way the name of Mr. Quinn, who was also nominated for both offices, was put on the ballot for the reeveship as he happened to be first nominated for that position. A light vote was polled and Quinn won the reeveship fight by 35 majority. Jas. R. Hillyard led in the race for council with S. Kennawin a good second. Wm. Hawkins, of Alton, defeated Wrigglesworth for last place. The results are :—

GRAND VALLEY IN D... COLUMN.

Local Option By-Law Carried on Monday.

Results of Elections for Councillors and P. S. Trustees.

Grand Valley carried local option on Monday and as a consequence Dufferin has the distinction of becoming one of the first dry counties in the Province. The campaign was carried on very quietly on both sides. No public meetings were held and there was little or no newspaper discussion. Neither side seems to have put the same energy into the contest as three years ago when not nearly so large a vote was polled. The difference in the size of the vote is, however, attributable largely to the change in the law, which prohibits non-resident property owners from voting. Monday's vote was 117 for and 69 against making a total vote of 186. Three-fifths of this is 111 3-5, so that the local option forces had 5 2-5 votes to spare. One ballot was rejected and there were four that were not marked either way. The vote three years ago was 146 for and 112 against local option.

Reeve Menary was re-elected without opposition. Councillors and P. S. Trustees were returned as follows :—

STAR.

(Intended for last week.)

A very interesting programme was given by the children of St. Andrew's S. S., 4th line, east, Caledon, on December 23rd, and much praise is due to our minister's wife, Mrs. Wallace, for the efforts she put forth to make the affair a success. The church was beautifully decorated with cedars, which seemed to speak of peace and good-will toward men. A very nice effect was rendered by Messrs Seal & Watts and some other selections by everyone of the scholars. Great thanks are due to Santa Claus for he brought every child a present. He reports cold weather in the north.

The latest way to take girls to the concert is in the "Jumper" for that is the way some of our young men took the girls to the 4th line concert.

Mr. Meredith McKim was the guest of Mr Murray Speers on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Speers were the guests of Mrs. Geo. Hillyard.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. Jackson expect to leave our midst the end of this week. We wish them every success in the new field.

We would like to know when J. R. intends to have a permanent housekeeper.

Miss Lena Speers was home spending Christmas with her parents.

Messrs. [illegible] and James Speers and families spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cammington, of Kilmanagh.

Mr. Arch. Campbell is visiting friends at the Star.

CAMILLA.

Miss Edith [illegible], of Toronto, is spending a few days at her home here.

Mrs. Wm. [illegible] of Corbetton, visited a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stevens.

Mr. Ray [illegible] of the Queen City, spent a few days at Miss Frame's.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Lundy, of Shelburne, were the guests of Mr. Alex. Lundy's over the 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] McFadden, of Orangeville, are visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Galbraith were in Toronto a few days.

(Late correspondent.)

The Dramatic Club have had several meetings to rehearse their play, but the [illegible] in procuring the required [illegible] prevented them from complying with the solicitations. The Club feels indebted and very grateful to [illegible] Orangeville and Shelburne [illegible] for their kindness in [illegible] them with the scenery [illegible] here on Christmas night.

Who says [illegible] behind the times? It may be in some ways, but not all. Consider the business abilities [illegible] of our men, and the numerous [illegible] they control. Alex Main, postmaster and general merchant [illegible] Simpson's greatest rival; [illegible] Banks, blacksmith, proprietor of the King Edward, and assistant manager of the baseball team; Herb. Christian, carpenter, farmer and agent for the Frost Wire Fence; James Hand, farmer and township pound keeper; Joe. Howard, thresher, farmer, and manager of the cheese factory; Fred Thompson, pathmaster, manager and treasurer of the church, school trustee, treasurer of The Dramatic Club, and poll clerk at the municipal elections; Gersh Canning, farmer, thresher and captain of the baseball team; Rolly Buchanan, hunter, trapper, ditcher, and constable.

LAUREL.

Now since the elections are safely over we can settle down feeling that our municipality is quite safe under the management of Reeve Williams and his sturdy colleagues.

We are pleased to know that Jennie Richardson was so successful at the Model School at Hanover. We understand her name stood at the head of the list of those who passed the examinations.

Miss L. Nicholls, of Dundalk, is the new teacher for Klondike. She comes highly recommended and we welcome her to our community.

The eleventh annual social evening of the Women's Institute will be held in the Methodist school room at Laurel on Monday evening, Jan. 12th, commencing at 7.30 o'clock. The committee is sparing no pains in preparing a good programme and of course the lunch will be all that could be desired. Members only are entitled to bring one friend with them.

We were pleased to hear our school bell send out its silvery tones over our village last Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Trimble and family, of Saskatchewan, are visiting friends in this vicinity.

The young people of the Presbyterian Church, who took part in a play here, were requested to repeat it at Waldemar Tea-Meeting, which they did very successfully.

A number of young people here purpose going to Grand Valley skating rink on Thursday evening.

Mr. Harold Woodgate, of the O.A.C., Guelph, has been visiting Laurel friends. We are pleased to report his standing to be thirtieth in a class of two hundred and nine.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bryan attended the funeral of Mr. Welsh, his uncle, at Palgrave last Saturday.

We would like to have a poem from Poet Bumble Bee next week.

MONO MILLS.

The Amateur Dramatic Club presented their Play "The Country Squire" to a large audience on Friday evening of last week. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity and long before the programme commenced many were unable to obtain an entrance. The different parts of the Play were well presented and well received. Orangeville orchestra supplied the music. A highly appreciated solo was rendered by Mr. Tom Huston, the well-known Orangeville vocalist, and addresses were delivered by Rev. J. A. Black, Rev. R. J. W. Perry and Messrs. Kannawin and Wrigglesworth, candidates for Caledon council. Proceeds, $74.30.

Miss Breeze, of Toronto, is holidaying with friends in the village.

Mr. Calvin Lewis spent the holiday week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lewis.

Mr. J. E. Jessop, of Orangeville, has organized a class in vocal music, which is being well patronized by the young people of the vicinity.

The Amateur Dramatic Club has been engaged to present its Play "The Country Squire" in Orangeville Town Hall, under the auspices of St. Mark's A.Y.P.A., on Friday evening, the 16th inst.

We regret to learn that both Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Potter are seriously ill at their home on the 5th line.

Miss Ethel Mason is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. W. Perry left for their new home in the Parish of Innisfil on Wednesday.

Mr. Wm. Marshall, who taught in the school here two years ago, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dowling.

CALEDON.

Rev. Dr. Cleaver's lecture on "The Life of Jean Val Jean," which was given on Xmas night in the Methodist church here, was listened to by a large and appreciative audience. If the Dr. should ever come this way again he will be sure of another bumper house.

The Presbyterian church held a very successful Old-Time Tea-Meeting on New Year's Night. After a sumptuous repast had been served by the ladies an illustrated lecture was given in the church, when a number of very pretty views were shown, including many scenes from the life of David Livingstone.

There was a large gathering of the ratepayers at the nomination meeting here a week ago Monday, and on Wednesday the report was circulated that an acclamation had been effected but the Clerk became aware of the fact that the resignations were not put in before nine o'clock nor attested by a witness and an election was called, which resulted as follows:

Reeve, Thos. Quinn; deputy-reeve, David Armstrong (accl.); councillors, Jas. R. Hillyard, Samuel Kannawin, and Wm. Hawkins.

Mr. Quinn and Mr. Hawkins are new men in this year's council, but Mr. Quinn has had a long municipal experience which well qualifies him for his high and important position. We have no doubt the electors have made a wise selection of their township fathers and that everything will go along smoothly is the hope of everyone concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McKinnon, of Winnipeg, are visiting Caledon friends.

Our Dramatic Club journeyed to Credit Forks on New Year's Eve and presented their popular play "The Old New Hampshire Home" to a crowded house. We understand they have had several calls lately and may present this very entertaining and wholesome melodrama at some outside points during the winter.

Mr. John A. Rayburn has secured the services of the now famous John Gilpin with his sawmill and has decided to cut down the splendid grove known as "The Pines," consisting of over 1000 pine trees, which will average four twelve foot logs to the tree, some of which are two and a half feet across the stump. Mr. Rayburn proposes to have this all cut into lumber and will dispose of it at reasonable prices. We wish him success in his new enterprise.

Quite a number from here intend taking in the grand opening of the new skating rink at Bolton on Thursday night. A special train will be run from Orangeville and will leave here at 7 p.m.

Mr. Richard McGillivray, of Weston, is spending a few days in this vicinity and reports good business in Toronto's leading suburb.

Cards of Thanks

To the Electors of Mono:

I wish to tender you my hearty thanks for the splendid manner in which you supported me in the recent contest for the reeveship. I am very grateful for the confidence you have reposed in me and shall do my best to conserve your interests throughout the year.

Yours Sincerely
J. A. MARSHALL.

Electors of Caledon:

I desire to publicly express my hearty thanks for the excellent vote you gave me for Councillor on Monday. I appreciate the honor you have done me by placing me at the head of the poll and shall serve your interests to the very best of my ability during the year.

Yours Sincerely
JAS. R. HILLYARD.

Electors of Amaranth:

I wish to tender you my sincere thanks for the honor you have conferred upon me by choosing me to represent you as deputy-reeve. It will be my constant endeavor to look after your affairs to the best of my ability in township and also county council work.

Yours Faithfully,
REUBEN WEST.

Electors of Orangeville:

I desire to return my hearty thanks for the splendid support you gave me during the recent campaign and at the polls on Monday. I greatly appreciate the confidence you have shown in me and shall do my best to represent you faithfully in the Town and County Councils.

Yours Sincerely,
J. J. WHITE.

Electors of Orangeville:

I thank you very heartily for re-electing me to the office of deputy-reeve on Monday. I will show my appreciation of the confidence placed in me by continuing to represent you and look after your affairs to the best of my ability.

Yours Faithfully,
THOS. ARNOTT.

Electors of Orangeville:

Permit me to express my gratitude and sincere thanks for the hearty support you gave me at the polls on Monday. I am greatly pleased at this renewed expression of your good will and shall do what I can to show that your confidence in me has not been misplaced.

Yours Sincerely,
JOS. DARRAUGH.

Electors of Orangeville:

I desire to publicly express my gratitude for the handsome manner in which you supported me at the polls on Monday. I realize that you have done me a great honor and shall continue my municipal duties with the determination to look after your interests to the best of my ability.

Yours Faithfully,
L. K. JOHNSTON.

Electors of Orangeville:

It seems almost unnecessary to tell you how much I appreciate the great honor you have conferred upon me by electing me at the head of the poll on Monday. I worked hard during 1913 in what I conceived to be the best interests of the town and can only promise to do the same during the present year. Again sincerely thanking you I am,

Yours Faithfully,
A. B. HOLMES.

Electors of Orangeville:

Permit me to return my hearty thanks for the confidence you have shown in me by electing me as one of your representatives in the Town Council. I trust that my municipal experience in the past will enable me to serve your interests to your advantage and my own credit.

Yours sincerely,
B. McGUIRE.

BORN IN ORANGEVILLE.

Interesting Letter From One of Town's Early Settlers.

Mr. W. H. Dawson, of Lexington, Mich., writes The Banner as follows:

"Some of your people sent me a copy of the illustrated number of The Banner for which I must say I was more than grateful. I recognized the faces of Orange Lawrence, Mr. Ketchum and Blaney McGuire. The last named was almost a weekly visitor to my father's when I was a boy. Allow me to say that I was a young pioneer of your town. I played on its hillsides and fished in its streams, was educated in its schools, went to its Sunday School and while there learned truths that have stood me good ever since. I was born and lived within a half mile of what used to be called Cruikshank's Bush, lot 31, con. 2, west. I lived here until almost 21 years of age and then moved to my present home. I am now a citizen of this country and am proud of the fact, but that does not change my love for the home of my birth. About 14 years ago I was over to my home town to visit my nephews, James and Samuel Barber, of Alton, and while there visited the beautiful residence of Mr. Wm. Algie. Last but not least I appreciate the interesting picture of his grandchildren, but I must say that I can outnumber him in the matter of grandchildren. My wife and I claim twenty-two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren."

Christmas Greetings.

Lack of space was responsible for the non-appearance of the following letter in last week's issue:—

353 Pepper St., North,
Pasadena, Cal.,
Dec. 17th, 1913.

Messrs. McGuire & McKitrick.

Dear Friends:

Here is another Christmas and we can't let it pass without writing you a few lines to wish you and The Banner continued success and the prosperity it has had in the past. We also wish to extend through its columns our best wishes for a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year to our many friends and we wish to extend our heartfelt sympathy to all those who have lost their dear ones this past year.

Enclosed you will find a money order for another year's subscription to The Banner. We are having delightful weather so far this winter. Everything looks so nice and green and the flowers in bloom. Pasadena is preparing for its annual Tournament of Roses to bring the old year to a close and commence the new one. We always work to have each tournament surpass the one before and if the weather continues as it is at present there is every likelihood that the expectations of those interested will be realized. We wish you were here to enjoy it for it surely is a wonderful sight to see in winter. We are expecting our youngest daughter down from San Francisco to spend Christmas with us, so we are looking forward with great pleasure to her coming visit. Now, we will bring our letter to a close by wishing you and Mrs. McGuire and family a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year and many more to come.

Your Sincere Friends
Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson.

A Fort William Opinion.

Fort William, Jan. 1st, 1914.

Dear Sirs:

A few days ago I received a copy of The Banner and it certainly made me feel a little homesick when I saw all the old familiar faces and places.

Allow me to congratulate you on your publication. Never have the citizens of Orangeville received such a splendid advertisement and so much publicity as they received in that issue of The Banner.

I feel a little sorry to-day that I am no longer a citizen of Orangeville. There is no prettier or better town to live in, for its size, on the map. It pays to boost and your publication did it.

Wishing You the Compliments of the Season.

I remain your friend,
J. R. GILLESPIE.

RADIUM FOR CANCER

Remarkable Operation on Member of United States Congress.

$100,000 Worth of Radium Used in Effort to Destroy Malignant Growth.

$100,000 Worth of Radium Used in Effort to Destroy Malignant Growth.

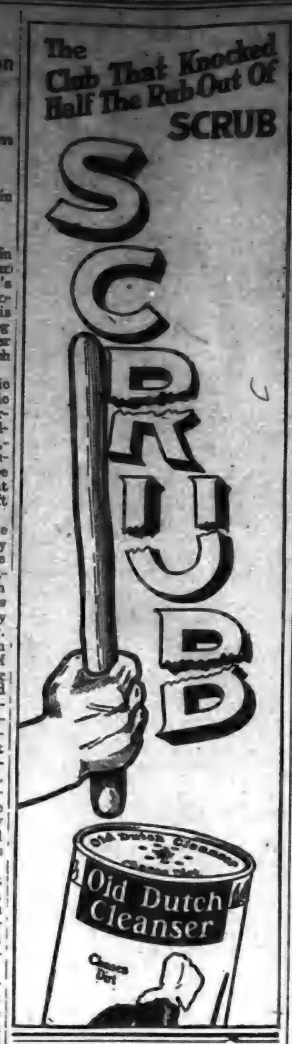
Banner readers will be interested in the following special despatch from Washington, D.C., in last Saturday's Toronto Globe. Robert Gunn Bremner, the Congressman referred to, is a native of Mono township, being the oldest son of the late Alexander Bremner, of Camilla. The despatch reads :—

Robert Gunn Bremner, Democratic member of Congress from the Passaic Congressional district of New Jersey, spent his Christmas in a Baltimore hospital yesterday with $100,000 worth of radium temporarily imbedded in his shoulder in the hope that it would destroy the malignant growth of a bad cancer on his left shoulder.

The radium was imbedded in the growth in Mr. Bremner's shoulder by Dr. Howard Atwood Kelly, in the latter's private sanatorium, on Baton Place, and left there long enough to send its radio-active properties in a cross fire that penetrated every part of the cancerous growth. Dr. Kelly placed the radium in eleven tubes, coated with a covering of rubber, and these tubes, measuring each about 2½ inches in length and about one-third of an inch in diameter, were planted in as many incisions that were made in the can-shoulder. The tubes were inserted at 11 o'clock Christmas morning, several hours after the arrival of Mr. Bremner in Baltimore, and were removed at 11 o'clock last night. The result was very carefully observed by Dr. Kelly to-day, and the tubes will again be imbedded in Mr. Bremner's cancer to-morrow.

The operation is one of the most important that has been performed in this country, and if successful in producing either improvement or cure, will mark a decisive step in the treatment of cancer by radio-active therapeutic agents.

The cancer on Congressman Bremner's shoulder is one of the most malignant recently brought to the attention of the medical scientists in the eastern section of the United States. He suffered from it for some time but in the past year it has grown to such proportions that it extends over the left shoulder and now almost meets under the arm. Its character is such that Mr. Bremner has been compelled to carry his left arm in a strap, which holds it constantly in an elevated position. The extension of the cancer over the front portion of the shoulder ends just over his heart, while the extension over the back of the shoulder covers the left shoulder blade.



Mr. Bremner is one of the most popular of the newer members of the House, a man of splendid talents, and has borne his pain without a murmur while mingling among his colleagues in the House. His fortitude and cheerfulness have brought many expressions of admiration in addition to the sympathy over his condition. When the special session of Congress met in April of this year and Mr. Bremner was sworn in as a member of the House, the growth in his shoulder had become so serious that the chances of his living a year were almost despaired of by those who knew his condition. About seven months ago he engaged the services of Dr. A. W. Horwitz, an eminent specialist in cancer treatment, who came to America from Budapest. In the past six months Dr. Horwitz has been applying to the cancer the treatment that gained him distinction as a cancer specialist in Hungarian medical circles. Under this treatment the case has shown improvement, but it has been necessarily slow.

With the hope that the application of the radium treatment by Dr. Kelly would greatly hasten the treatment or possibly cure the growth entirely, arrangements were made for the operation, the first stage of which was performed yesterday in Dr. Kelly's hospital.

Dr. Kelly is a famous specialist of the Johns Hopkins University group. He is one of the philanthropists who recently bought twenty-seven claims in the Paradox Valley Carnotite mines, which are now considered the greatest radium ore deposits in the world. Announcement of the purchase of these mines and the purpose to use the radium for humanitarian purposes was made October 23 last by Dr. Charles L. Parsons, of the United States Bureau of Mines, to the American Mining Congress, in session at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, in Philadelphia.

New Regulations re. Entrance

Under new regulations issued by the Department of Education pupils can now be admitted to High Schools without passing an entrance examination. While this has been the practice for some time, the wording of the regulation was not clear to a great many teachers. The clause in the revised rules states that the certificate of the Principal of a school shall state that the candidate whom he recommends for admission shall have completed satisfactorily the course of study in the subjects to which the recommendation refers, and shall be accepted by the entrance board. This change is not intended to do away with written examinations, and where any candidates are admitted to High School without a Principal's certificate they shall be required to take the examination as the Entrance Board may direct.

HE MADE NORA BLUSH.

There was standing room only in the subway car, and the two young women peered in vain for a seat.

"Just watch me get one," the prettier of the two whispered. She approached a "tired business man," whose nose was in his paper. "Why, Mr. Smith, how do you do? You are quite a stranger. Will I accept your seat? Oh, thank you so much."

"With a malicious smile the man doffed his hat. "Sit down, Nora my girl," he said. "Have you been ill? I hear you didn't call for our washing this week!" And "Nora" crimsoned while the car tittered.

PAIN NEARLY DROVE HIM MAD

Suffered Horribly Until He Turned To "Fruit-a-tives"

J. A. CORRIVEAU

DEVEDALE, ONT., June 15th, 1913

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address, and on account of the great good I have experienced from using "Fruit-a-tives", I recommend them strongly to my customers. They were a great boon to me, I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up in bed with vomiting and a terrific pain at the base of my skull. The pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to inflammation of the brain but I took "Fruit-a-tives" steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives" and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness."

J. A. CORRIVEAU.

For Headaches, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and other diseases arising from an impure condition of the blood, "Fruit-a-tives" is invaluable and infallible.

PICKED UP REAL MONEY ON STREETS OF PERTH

Ten Dollar Bills Carried Around by the Wind Collected by Citizens—Had Fallen From Pocket Of Paymaster.

Perth Dec. 31.—James Montgomery, hardware clerk, experienced the fleeting feeling of richness suddenly thrust upon him Friday night when about half-past seven he picked up a big wad of ten dollar bills. He was passing along Gore street at the time in front of a grocery store and seeing a number of bills rustling on the ice-covered walk, he at first thought it was imitation money such as business colleges use. Satisfying himself that it was the real stuff, Mr. Montgomery scooped as many as he could in his arms and soon attracted a number of people who helped him chase the ten spots which were being blown about by the wind.

When all the bills in sight were recovered Montgomery found he had 34 tens. The news soon spread and a number of people searched for hours for other bills. Some found as high as seventy dollars others thirty and forty, and some ten and twenty, in out of the way places and some distance from where Montgomery first saw them.

The wind carried the bills in all directions, and the next morning several crisp tens were seen frozen in the little river nearby.

Montgomery deposited his find in the Merchants Bank over night, while others left what they found with J. E. Mackey of Hotel Cecil and some took the money home with them.

Who lost the money? was the question on all were asking. Later it was learned that it belonged to Harry Wright, who is not a resident of Perth, but is paymaster for the contractor who is building stations on the new G. P. R. line from Glen Ray to Toronto.

Yesterday Mr. Wright was busy recovering what he lost the night before, and is understood to have it all now but $260. The day before Christmas he cashed at the Merchants Bank and on Friday carried a roll of 2,700 or $2,800 on his person in ones, twos, fives, and tens tied with a string. It is alleged that he had been drinking in the evening and had pulled the roll of money out of his hip pocket and in putting it back again half of it hung on the outside of his pocket so that as he was walking about it worked loose under his overcoat. The small bills remained in his pocket, and totalled between $800 and $1,00. Considering all circumstances he is lucky in recoverihg as much of the roll as he did.

A rather peculiar incident occurred on Christmas morning, at the outskirts of Dundalk village. A large well-antlered deer appeared in F. V. Bellamy's orchard, coming across the Carson and Johnson farms. After leisurely surveying the outlook, the animal started off by Gordon's corner, in the direction of the swamps, back of Proton station. Mr. Sam Bellamy's little son was struck with a bright idea and was seen following the animal's back tracks. When called to return, he replied that he was sure the deer was one of Santa Claus' runaway drivers and he was bound to go back and find the cutter with its load of toys.—Dundalk Herald.

The Port Arthur Chronicle is the authority for saying that six and a half million bushels more of grain could have been stored in the elevators at the head of the lakes. This is due to the fact that the grain was set in motion at an early date. Apparently there will be no more grain blockades.

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 77, Pentwater, Mich.

Read What Another Woman says:

Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, yet I could not sleep at night.

"After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured.

"You may publish this if you wish."—Miss CLARA L. GAUWITZ, R.R. No. 4, Box 62, Peoria, Ill.

Such letters prove the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for woman's ills. Why don't you try it?

GAVE HER FINE CABINET OF SILVER

On Tuesday evening last the fine residence of Mrs. Foley, east Broadway, was the scene of a very pleasant event. It was the presentation of an address and a beautiful cabinet of silver to Mrs. George McIntyre by the congregation of St. Peter's church. Members of the congregation to the number of fifty were present. Mrs. McIntyre has been organist and choir leader of St. Peter's for many years and she has always taken an active interest in promoting and advancing the interest of the church and the movement to fittingly recognize her unselfish labors was quite spontaneous. So well was the secret guarded that Mrs. McIntyre was taken completely by surprise when Mr. J. Foley who acted as chairman, opened the proceedings by escorting the guest of the evening to the seat of honor. After eulogizing Mrs. McIntyre and praising her excellent musical talents and her great work for the benefit of the church, the chairman requested Mrs. W. Davidson and Mr. Arthur Shain to read the address and make the presentation, which they did in a pleasing manner. The following is the address:

MRS. GEORGE McINTYRE
ORANGEVILLE, ONT.

Dear Mrs. McIntyre:

We, the members of the congregation of St. Peter's Church desire to convey to you our graditude for the long and unselfish service that you have rendered us. We cannot hope to recompense you for the many good works that you have promoted since you became a resident of our town. As organist and choir leader you have faithfully discharged your duty without any, expectation or hope of reward. In presenting you with this little token of our high regard for you, we ask you to accept it not for its material worth but rather for the motive and the love that prompts us in giving it.

It is our earnest prayer that you may long be spared to continue the good work in which you have been engaged, and we trust you fully realize the great debt which we owe you for the invaluable services you have rendered our congregation on so many occassions.

We wish further to assure you that we will always remember with gratitude the keen interest that you have taken in the children of the Sunday School and we may add every member of the church.

You have always been ready to further the interests of our Church both financially and with the brilliant talents with which you are endowed. St. Peter's has indeed been fortunate to have such a talented member as you, and you have never spared your beautiful voice in singing the praises of our loving Creator.

It is our earnest wish and prayer that you will have many happy and prosperous New Years,

Signed on Behalf of the Congregation
John Foley.
Mrs. Davisdon,
Mrs. Mungovan.

At the conclusion of the reading of the address those present sang, "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mrs. McIntyre had scarcely recovered from the suprise and emotion that overcame her, but in clear tones she gratefully thanked the members for their generosity and good will toward her.

Happy speeches were made by Rev. Father Egan, Messrs. W. Moore, W. Davidson, G. St. Croix, J. E. Booth A. Shain, E. Schurr, Mrs. Mungovan and others. Vocal and instrumental musical numbers were rendered by Miss Irene Davidson, Miss Mary McIntyre and Mrs. McIntyre.

After refreshments the remainder of the evening was spent in games, cards etc., and it was after midnight before the gathering dispersed.

INSANITY OF IVAN IV.

Once Let Wild Bears Loose to Slaughter Subjects.

The Russian Grand Duke, whose eccentric freaks are the gossip of the courts of Europe, could point to many a predecessor of his blood who has been much less sane than himself—from that "most savage of monarchs," Ivan IV., to the first Alexander, son and grandson of throned madmen, says Tit-Bits.

Ivan the Terrible, among his many insane freaks, would let loose wild bears in the streets of his capital and placidly say his prayers while watching the slaughter of his people, "flinging a few coins to the mutilated survivors as he rose from his knees." He would compel parents to slay their children and children to kill one another; and if there was a survivor, "the amiable monarch would despatch him with his own hands, shrieking with laughter at so excellent a joke."

In one of his lighter moods of frolic he commanded the citizens of Moscow to "provide for him a measure, full of fleas, for a medicine," and fined them 7,000 rubles when they failed.

The insanity of Peter III. took less savage if more grotesque forms. His ruling mania was for the "pomp and circumstance of war," and one day he gave orders that 100 cannon should be fired simultaneously so that he might get some idea of the din of battle. On other occasions he would rise from the table and, glass in hand, prostrate himself before the portrait of Frederick of Prussia, exclaiming, "My brother, we will conquer the universe together."

Peter's son, the first Paul, was no less insane than his father, although his madness was longer in manifesting itself. So violent was his hatred of the revolutionary round hats, a fashion imported from France, that one day he sent 200 police and dragoons to scour the streets of St. Petersburg and tear them from the heads of all who wore them. He banished all the cabmen from his capital because one of them was found with a pair of pistols on him. Hundreds of his officers and courtiers were sent in chains to Siberia for a glance or a word that displeased him, many without any cause at all, and he sent an entire regiment on a 2,000 mile march because, in drilling, it had failed to understand one of his indistinct words of command.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from liver and kidney derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backache caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

A DASTARDLY ASSAULT.

Geo. Alderson was arraigned before R. H. Little, J.P., in Lisle, on Saturday afternoon, charged with having assaulted Miss Hales on the public highway on the evening of Christmas day. It appears that Miss Hales, who lives with her parents about a mile out of Lisle, started to walk home from the village between six and seven o'clock, and was followed by Alderson and a young man named Geddes, in a cutter. When they overtook the young lady, Alderson got out of the cutter, seized hold of her, threw her to the ground, and maltreated her most shamefully. Just at this junoture Harvey Brown, a member of a private detective agency in Toronto, who was spending the holiday with his wife's friends near Lisle, came driving along, and stopped to see what he at first thought in the dark was a drunken row. Alderson then desisted and the young lady made her way to Brown's cutter and claimed his protection. Alderson in the meantime got into his cutter again and drove rapidly away. The detective took Miss Hales back to Lisle, and on getting her account of the assault, got out a warrant for Alderson and taking Constable Anderson with him next day, to Alderson's residence, a few miles out, arrested him. On being brought before the magistrate, the evidence was so strong against the prisoner that the magistrate had no other alternative than to commit him for trial, and he was taken to Barrie that evening.—Creemore Star.

You Get Bilious

Because Your Liver is Lazy

You get a bilious attack when your liver refuses to do its work. The bile does not flow. You become constipated. Food sours instead of digesting. You have that "bitter as gall" taste. The stomach becomes inflamed and inflated—turns sick—vomiting, and violent headache.—The best preventative and cure for biliousness is Chamberlain's Tablets. They make the liver do its work—strengthen the digestive organs, and restore to perfect health. 25c. a bottle—All Dealers and Druggists, or by mail. 1

CENTENARY OF STEEL PEN

James Perry Made First Instruments in 18th Century.

The advent of the steel pen dates back to about 100 years ago, when steel pens of the barrel type—that is with the holder and pen in one piece—were made and sold for 50 cents, says Tit-Bits.

To James Perry belongs the credit of bringing steel pens into general use. He began pen making in Manchester in 1819, and ultimately developed the pen trade in London before the prominent Birmingham makers, Mitchell, Gilliot and Mason, caused a revolution in the trade by machine made pens.

The greatest improvement in the manufacture was the adoption of a screw hand press for the cutting out of pens. By means of this process one man can cut as many as 45,000 blanks a day.

The shape is given to the blanks, of course, by the dies in the press, and there are many different types of pen to be made. As a matter of fact, a leading pen maker has a catalogue containing 5,000 varieties of pens, while it has been estimated that no fewer than 10,000 different shapes and sizes are on the market.

The greatest objection to the steel pen when it first came into general use was its stiffness. There was no that "give" and spring in the metal pen which characterized the old-fashioned goose quill pen.

This was remedied, however, by the side splits which we see in pens today, and for many years the method of slitting the pens by means of a press was kept secret by those famous pen makers, Gilliott and Mason.

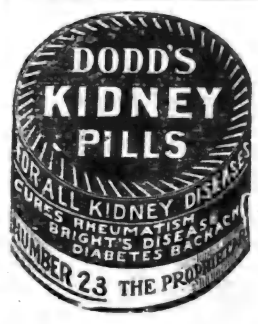
Briefly, the method of manufacture of a steel pen to-day may be described as follows: The blanks are pierced and the slits cut, after which the pen requires to be softened by annealing. They then are raised and hardened, scoured with acid, colored, varnished and dried, girls afterward looking over the pens, throwing aside the faulty ones and packing the good ones into boxes ready for sale.

How the trade has grown may be gathered from the fact that in 1839 steel pens were not generally known, but in 1849 the trade was a leading industry in Birmingham. There were 12 factories, employing about 2,000 men, women and girls, the weekly output of pens being stated at 65,000 gross.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arms. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Rev. Canon J. P. Smith, of London, is dead, aged 73.



OLD-TIME ORANGEVILLE.

Mr. Jas. H. Corbett, of Proton Station, Recalls Early Day Incidents.

With his renewal subscription to The Banner, Mr. Jas. H. Corbett, of Proton Station, sends us the following interesting note:—

"I want to say a word about your Christmas number. When I received it I was more than surprised to see the beautiful sketches of my former home, both in its present state and as it appeared in former years. It took me in memory back to the boyhood days that I spent in and around Orangeville and to going to school with Julius Galbraith, Bertie McGuire, J. J. Kelly, Robert Lloyd and a great many others, whom I might mention. There were also a lot of larger boys—some of whom have passed away—such as Cyrus Jull, Joseph McKeown, Jos. McMaster, Jas. Dawson. It is pleasant to think of the half hours spent in swimming and splashing in Jull's mill pond. If we could only go back to the good old days again how differently life would be spent and to how much better advantage. I would like to know how many of those boys are still living who got their first education some 52 years ago in the old log school house that stood just about where the fire hall is today. This was burned down and another was opened on Broadway east of Penfold & Huskinson's foundry just across from the Anglican cemetery and remained there until the new brick school was erected. The first teacher whom I remember going to was James Kelly for a short time, then Mr. McBain, Mr. Brant, John Beswick and afterwards to a Mr. Dickinson, who taught school in the old Baptist Church near Mrs. Rhoda Reid's and then in a building just north of Jesse Ketchum's taught by a Mr. Brant. The two latter were known as grammar schools. I might go on and mention the fights that took place between the larger boys, when the master had to step in and act as arbitrator and where a beech gad was freely used. I might go further than that and state that I can well remember some of the old log residences, some of which have long since been pulled down to make way for more commodious dwellings. One of these—just a little west of the Fire Hall—was occupied by Blaney McGuire, grand father of one of the present proprietors of the Banner. A little farther west on the north side of Broadway stood the log residence of Samuel Hamilton. Then on the Prince of Wales a little north of Broadway stood Mrs. Irwin's home. As we come back again we reach old Master Davison's dwelling occupied later by Mr. Waldick. Then farther east we had the home of Mr. Isaac Newton and his mother. There are many other matters of interest that I might mention, but I must refrain for the present.

I wish The Banner and its staff the compliments of the season and trust they may be spared to issue many more Christmas numbers like the present one."

SALT RISINGS BREAD.

Every little while some correspondent writes to the newspapers mourning over the nice things that were given to him to eat when he was a boy, and lamenting the fact that those things are not to be had any more. Here, for instance, is a correspondent of The Sun telling about the delicious "salt risings" bread that his folks had at home, and begging The Sun's readers to have pity on a brother in distress and send him a recipe for that kind of bread. About once in six months the culinary departments of the papers give the salt risings recipe, as a matter of curiosity, but no one was ever known to eat the bread when he got it. Hungry, out-of-door, old fashioned childhood delighted in any kind of food that appeased its appetite, and remembered even salt risings bread with joy; but it was never as good as the other kinds, and nobody can eat it now.

However, a good many people do like, in their maturity, the vile things that they had to eat when they were children. The Office Window knows a German who eats lard on his bread in preference to butter—because in his childhood lard was the only lubricator for bread that was available in his humble home. Needless to say that he prefers rye bread to wheat, for the same reason. But the Office Window believes that that there is no case on record of any person of this generation preferring salt risings bread to yeast bread—after he has tried it.—New York Mail.

John Conlon, a farmer of Sombra township, has started a fox industry on his farm.

T. H. Reburn has sold his brick dwelling house in Shelburne to Henry Pellett, of Conover. Mr. Reburn will move to Markdale shortly.

Dermott-Washington.

An interesting event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Washington, of Farmington, on New Year's Day, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Myrtle, to Mr. Joseph Dermott, Prince of Wales Road, Mono. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock, Rev. C. O. Reynard, of Toronto, officiating. Miss Ethel Aiken, cousin of the groom, played the wedding march. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Maggie, and the groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Samuel Baddock. The marriage took place under a prettily decorated arch. The bride's dress was of white nimon over silk with bridal veil and orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid's dress was of white nimon over silk with touches of pink and she carried pink carnations. After signing the register and receiving the congratulations of the guests, the newly wedded couple led the way to the dining room, where a dainty repast was served. The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome gifts, among them being a cheque from her uncle, Dr. Washington, of Milwaukee. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful stole, to the bridesmaid a signet ring and to the groomsman a pair of engraved gold cuff links. The guests, who numbered thirty-five, were chiefly immediate friends and relatives. The evening was pleasantly spent in songs, recitations and dancing. The happy couple will take up their residence on the Prince of Wales Road, where they start out in life accompanied by the hearty congratulations of their numerous friends.

Peavoy-McDonald.

A pretty Christmas Day wedding was that of Miss Bessie Irene McDonald, daughter of Mrs. Bessie McDonald, to Mr. Elgin C. Peavoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Peavoy, which took place at the home of the bride's mother, 201 Pearson avenue, Toronto, at four o'clock. The Rev. J. Vining performed the ceremony. Miss Frances Peavoy, sister of the groom, played the wedding marches. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. William McDonald, of Montreal, and wore a gown of white silk draped with accordian pleated chiffon, the waist being shadow lace. The tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses, and also wore the groom's gift a pearl and peridot pendant. Her sister, Miss Jean McDonald, was bridesmaid and wore pale blue brocaded satin with mob cap of blue trimmed with fur. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and wore the groom's gift a cameo ring, the pianist receiving the same kind of gift from him. Mr. Dunke Floyd was best man, to him the groom gave a pearl tie pin. After the ceremony Mrs. McDonald held a reception and was wearing black satin trimmed with blue brocaded velvet, the groom's mother wearing amethyst satin draped with black lace. Later on the bride and groom left for a trip across the border, the former travelling in a combination suit, the skirt being of black and white tweed, with black brocaded coat, and hat of taupe color, and black fox furs. Ontheir return they will reside at 4 Galley avenue.

Conley-Rennick.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rennick, 7 Pauline Ave., Toronto, on New Year's Day, when their only daughter, Miss Lavina May, became the bride of Mr. Stanley Cleve Conley, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Conley, of Orangeville. Promptly at two o'clock the bride entered the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by her cousin, Miss Birdie Leighton, of Orangeville, and took her place under an arch of autumn leaves and flowers in the centre of which was a large white bell. She was becomingly gowned in ivory duchesse satin with shadow lace and pearl trimming and carried a large shower bouquet of lily of the valley and maidenhair fern. Rev. Mr. Skey, rector of St. Anne's Church, Toronto, performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty invited guests. The happy couple were unattended. After the usual congratulations the bride and groom led the way to the dining room, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The room was decorated with evergreens and pink and white carnations. The bride received a large number of beautiful and costly presents, among them being a piano from her father. The happy couple were driven in a taxicab to West Toronto, where they took the five o'clock train for Owen Sound and other points north amid showers of confetti and good wishes from a large number of friends who had assembled to see them off. The bride travelled in a suit of blue whipcord with hat to match and wore the groom's gift, a handsome set of Persian lamb furs. On their return to the city the young couple will take up their residence at 7 Pauline Ave., where the bride will be at home to her friends after Feb. 1st.

Among those from a distance, who were at the wedding, were the bride's grandfather, Mr. John Lundy, of Mono Centre, an old gentleman of 92 years, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Leighton, Miss Birdie Leighton, Mrs. Alex. Conley and Mr. Ed. Rennick, of Orangeville, Mr. and Mrs. D. Harkness, of Alton, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Corbett, Dundalk, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Lundy, Palgrave, and Mrs. T. J. Robinson, Mono Mills.

Robert Little, one of the oldest residents of Mulmur, died at his home near Mulmur Corners a week ago Monday at the age of 85 years.

Dymes-Johnston.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Johnston, Laurel Cottage, Laurel, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on New Year's afternoon, when their sister, Miss Jessie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston, of Laurel, was married to Mr. E. Fleming Dymes, also of Laurel, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. J. S. Stevenson, B.D., of Laurel. The bride entered the drawing room with her father, to the strains of the wedding march by Mendelssohn, played by Mrs. L. S. Johnston, sister-in-law of the bride, and took her place under an arch of smilax, ferns and white carnations. The bride wore a handsome gown of ivory silk crepe de chene, trimmed with crystals and seed pearls, also the customary wedding veil, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. After the congratulations of their friends and during the signing of the register, several well rendered piano solos by Rev. H. V. Ellison added to the enjoyment of the occasion. After a dainty dejeuner Mr. and Mrs. Dymes left on the evening train en route for Chatham and Detroit, the bride travelling in a blue tailored suit with hat to match. On their return they will reside near Laurel.

A NEW YEAR'S WEDDING.

The marriage of Mr. G. Frank Halbert, of Shelburne, and Miss Annie Kendrew took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James Kendrew, Fairview Farm, Primrose, at five o'clock on New Year's Day. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Caldwell, beneath a decorated arch of evergreen. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Edgar Kendrew, carried a bouquet of white roses and fern and wore a gown of white lace over silk, and had her bridal veil caught with lily of the valley and fern. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Georgina Graham, a friend of the bride. Only immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present, and after congratulations had been extended, the company adjourned to the dining room where a dainty wedding repast was served, after which short speeches showed the esteem in which both were held. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful presents. The groom's gift to the bride was a pendant set with pearls and to the organist a bar brooch. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Halbert left for their home in Shelburne.

MATHISON—MOFFATT

On Wednesday, December 31st., 1913, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moffatt, when their daughter, Anna Bertha, was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. Henry Mathison, of Toronto. Rev. W. G. Marshall, of Mono Mills, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march. She wore a dress of cream voile with shadow lace trimmings, tulle veil and lily of the valley, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Hattie Mundy, of Toronto, was bridesmaid, and wore pale blue silk with lace trimmings and carried white carnations. Mr. Arnold Moffatt, brother of the bride, supported the groom, and Miss Annie Mallat, of Caledon, played the wedding march. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold watch fob, to the best man a watch fob, and to the organist a silver mesh bag. After a dainty wedding breakfast had been served, Mr. and Mrs. Mathison left on the evening train amid showers of confetti and good wishes on an extended trip to Scotland and England and expect to return early in March. The bride travelled in a tailored suit of grey and black hat.

A Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Griggs had a very pleasant social gathering at their home in Amaranth on Saturday evening, Dec. 27th, the occasion being a birthday party held in honor of their grandson, Master Hugh McG. Griggs. There were about 25 guests present, among whom were Mr. Hugh Bracken, of Mono, Master Hugh's grandfather, Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Bell, of Laurel, and other friends, principally family connections. At an early hour in the evening all were invited to the dining room, where the tables were laden down with seasonable viands and delicacies. After ample justice had been done to the inviting feast, an adjournment was made to the parlor, where a programme of songs, dialogues, step dancing etc. had been arranged for the entertainment of the guests. The different numbers were nicely executed and proved very entertaining to the older people present. The programme lasted until eleven o'clock or later and furnished one continued round of pleasure until the last moment. After wishing Mr. and Mrs. Griggs a Happy New Year and many returns of the day, the guests took their departure to their respective homes carrying with them the kindliest recollections of the pleasant evening they had spent.

Mr. S. E. Buchanan, of Zealandia, Sask., formerly of Orangeville, is spending a month with friends in Orangeville and vicinity. Mr. Buchanan intends to take his mother, Mrs. N. Sproul, home with him when he returns.

Mesdames Lucas, Lee, T. D. McIntyre and J. R. McIntyre, of Dundalk, and Miss Beynon, of Tempermanceville, spent Wednesday with Miss Ritchie, of Dundalk, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Ritchie, of Prince of Wales Road.

Mr. Harry Cruikshank, of Balcarres, Sask., arrived in town last week and will visit relatives here and at his former home in Mono for a month or so. Mrs. Cruikshank has been here since before Christmas. Mr. Cruikshank tips the scales at 215 and looks the picture of good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lathwell, of Plympton, Man., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lathwell and other friends in this community. Mr. Lathwell left here 30 years ago and notices many changes in the long interval. Mrs. Lathwell, who was a Miss Kneeshaw, was a milliner many years ago for Francis Irwin, who is now town treasurer. Both are looking well and the West seems to agree with them.

ORANGEVILLE BOY SCOUTS...

The following passed the tests for Tenderfoot Badge on Friday last and were enrolled, T. H. Hewson, B. McKay, A. Rohmer and E. Rohmer.

Tenderfoot Badges may now be obtained from Rev. G. W. Tebbs, who has received a supply from Headquarters.

Next Friday Dr. Thos. Henry will give the Scouts a Lecture on First Aid. As far as possible Scouts should bring triangular bandage with them. It should be 40 inches square.

This is to be Expansion Year in the Scout Movement. Watch Orangeville.

I. O. O. F. Installation

Maple Leaf Lodge, No. 57, I.O.O.F. held its annual installation of officers in the Oddfellows Hall last night. W. Bro. John A. MacGregor, of Erin, District Deputy Grand Master, was present and installed officers for 1914 as follows:—T. H. Greenis, N. G.; J. A. Langford, V.G.; J. R. Hughes, F.S.; J. Norris, R.S.; J. E. Smith, Treas. Two new members were initiated during the evening. A banquet was held at the close of the business meeting and was followed by a delightful programme of toasts and short speeches.

Begin the New Year Well.

The pleasure of every member of the family during 1914 can be considerably increased by reading each week that greatest of all weekly papers, The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. It has pages for everyone, old and young. It is really surprising what wonderful value one gets each week in that paper. One dollar is a small sum indeed for such a vast amount of good clean wholesome reading during the year. No mistake can be made in sending one dollar to The Family Herald Office, Montreal, for a year's subscription. It will be the best New Year's Gift to the family.

Golden Wedding Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ridley, who were married in Brampton, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home on Church St., Orangeville, on January 5th. Many valuable presents were received including a quantity of gold. Telegrams of congratulation were also sent from Toronto, New York, Vancouver and many other places. A number of Orangeville people also called to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Ridley. Among the guests were Mr. E. and Miss M. Trimble, Mrs. Goddard, Miss Hannah Trimble,, Mr. Samuel Trimble, Mrs. Black, son and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, of Brampton, Mrs. Howden, of Guelph, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Smith, Mr. W. Johnston, Mr. I. Trimble, Toronto, nephews and nieces to the number of forty, nine grandchildren and one great-granddaughter from the vicinity.

Hospital Notes

There are five patients in the hospital—all convalescing.

Miss Barclay spent New Year's Day with friends in Guelph.

Mrs. White has been six months in training and Miss Rowan has finished her first year in the hospital. Also there are two probationers, making five, including the superintendent, on the nursing staff.

The D. O. E. beg to convey their thanks, on behalf of the hospital, to Mrs. McKeown, for a web of flannelette, also to Mr. Arlow, of Mono Mills, for a barrel of apples.

The monthly meeting of the D.O.E. will be held in the auditorium of the Public Library on Friday, Jan. 6th. The Executive Committee will meet at 3 o'clock and the general meeting will be held at half-past three o'clock. As this will be a most important meeting (nomination of officers for 1914), a large attendance is earnestly requested.

Mrs. Jos. Henry

Mrs. Henry, widow of the late Joseph Henry, one of the early residents of Mono township, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Rawn, of Mono Road, on Monday morning at the ripe age of 83 years. Deceased lady, who went to visit Mrs. Rawn in November, had been in failing health since the death of her husband last June. She is survived by a family of three sons and five daughters. These are Messrs. W. J. Henry, of Hornby, A. K. Henry, of Hornings Mills, James Henry, near Mono Centre, Mrs. John Patterson, First St., Orangeville, Mrs. W. J. Henry, Primrose, Mrs. John Rawn, Mono Road, Mrs. W. Lundy, Mono Centre, and Mrs. J. D. McDonald, Toronto. The remains were brought to Orangeville on Tuesday evening and the funeral was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Patterson, to the Forest Lawn Cemetery yesterday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Tebbs was the officiating clergyman. The pallbearers were Messrs. Jas. Ewing, J. J. White, Robt. Holmes, Fred. Manning, T. B. Lewis and G. F. Stewart. The sympathy of many friends is extended to the members of the bereaved family.

Mrs. Wm. Walwin

Mrs. Brookhina Walwin, wife of Mr. Wm. Walwin, West Caledon, died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Alfred Temple, Mill st., on Saturday. The deceased was 65 years of age and is survived by her husband, one son, George Walwin, 5th line, west, Caledon, and two daughters, Mrs. John Henderson, North Erin, and Mrs. Alfred Temple, Orangeville. Messrs. Chas. and Henry Scott, of Melville Cross, are brothers. The funeral was held from Mr. Temple's residence to the Forest Lawn Cemetery on Monday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Alton, conducted the services. The pallbearers were Messrs. John Glassford, David Patterson, Duncan Conley, Jas. Hilliard, Jos. Davis and Henry Ableson.

Not For Fashion's Sake.

The criminal law of England was formerly marked by indiscriminating severity. Theft of an article valued above 10 shillings was punished with death. In writing about "Sweet Hampstead and Its Associations" Mrs. White records a pleasant thing of Lord Mansfield, who, as a rule, leaned to the side of mercy. It was Lord Mansfield who directed a jury to find a stolen trinket less in value than 10 shillings in order that the thief might escape capital punishment. To this the jeweler who prosecuted demurred, asserting that the fashion of the thing had cost him twice that money.

"Gentlemen," replied the judge, with grave solemnity, "we ourselves stand in need of mercy. Let us not hang a man for the fashion's sake!"

Manager Sinclair, of the Markdale House of Refuge, had his nose broken and received other injuries when he was pulled over a plough by a team he was driving.

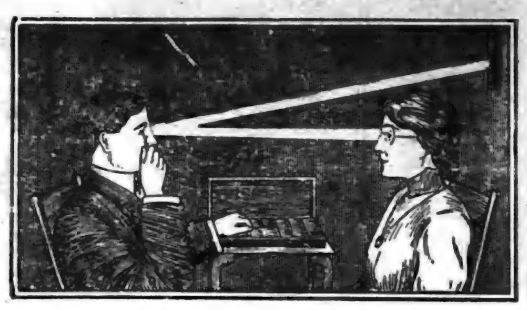
COMING TO ORANGEVILLE

The Eye Specialist Who Practises the New System

"HE LOOKS INTO THE EYE"



An opportunity shall be given the people of Orangeville and vicinity to have their eyes examined and glasses fitted by the new and wonderful "shadow test" method which does away with all machines, drops and drugs in testing, also the old but still used method of trying on glasses.

MR. F. A. GRAHAM

of Montreal, instructor in the new system, will be in my store to fill a 10 days engagement of sight testing

Beginning Monday, January 5th.

Ending Wednesday, January 14th.

A new day has dawned for eyesight sufferers. This specialist has a system so perfect that it has brought the correcting of imperfect sight to an exact science.

No long tedious sitting in an optician's chair to have innumerable pairs of glasses tried to your eyes, but a new and wonderful quick and easy method by which the inside of the eye ball is illuminated and nature gives up the secret of poor vision. Children's eyes can be accurately examined by this method without asking them questions.

Cross eyes can in many cases be straightened by wearing glasses fitted by this system.

All examinations will be made by Mr. Graham FREE OF CHARGE, those requiring glasses paying for the glasses only. I want this to be an invitation to all eyesight sufferers, to all who require a change in their glasses, to all who wish to know if their glasses are exactly right, to all headache sufferers and to all children afflicted with cross eyes.

This is an exceptional opportunity to many who are unable to visit the city specialists and I am fully convinced that those who take advantage of this visit of Mr. Graham will be fully repaid in satisfaction and results. The time set for free examinations each day is as follows: 9 to 12 a.m.—2.30 to 8.30 p.m. I have arranged to take a special course of instruction in the new system while Mr. Graham is here. My message to the people is COME—all who need help for your eyes. I am now booking appointments. Yours to serve,

F. S. PICKERING, DRUGGIST and OPTICIAN

BROADWAY (SUCCESSOR TO T. STEVENSON) ORANGEVILLE

WHAT HAPPENED TO A TIGHT-WAD.

We once knew a man who was too stingy to take the newspaper in his home town and always went over to borrow his neighbor's paper.

One evening he sent his son over to borrow the paper and while the son was on the way he ran into a large stand of bees and in a few minutes his face looked like a summer squash.

Hearing the agonized cries of the son, the father ran to his assistance and, in doing so, ran into a barbed wire fence, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $4 pair of pants.

The old cow took advantage of the hole in the fence, got into the cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket the stingy man's wife ran out of the house, upsetting a four-gallon churn full of cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole flock. She slipped on the cream and fell downstairs, breaking her leg, and a $19 set of false teeth. The baby left alone, crawled through the spilled cream into the parlor and ruined a $40 parlor carpet. During the excitement the daughter eloped with the hired man, taking the family savings bank with them.

Moral:—Every man should subscribe to to his home newspaper.

COMMISSIONER REES RECOVERING.

Commissioner David M. Rees, head of the Salvation Army in Canada, has made a most marvellous recovery from the serious illness which befell him about ten weeks ago. Since then his admirers of the organization he represents, have watched his progress with eager and anxious concern. Many churches throughout the Dominion united with the Salvation Army in offering special prayer for his recovery. They will now be glad to learn that the Commissioner is able to leave his room and acting upon the advice of his physicians, will take further treatment at a sanitarium.

Messages of sympathy have reached Commissioner Rees and his family from all parts of Canada, including all classes of people. For these, they desire herewith to convey their sincere appreciation and gratitude.

GOSSIP AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Only one thing is fatal to the happy social life of any country, community, and that is gossip. If the ladies cannot find in the wide field of housekeeping, chicken-raising, preserving, care of children, public schools, music, art, reading, public improvements, good government, health, sewing, entertaining and all other delightful household tasks, enough material to lift the meetings above petty personalities, then the little club, or whatever it is called, is doomed. Whenever gossip is allowed to creep into any organization people will begin to break up into little cliques or circles or groups, and the whole thing falls.—Farm and Fireside.

Railway Building in Andes 5,000 Feet Above Sea Level.

An Interesting Letter From "Bob" Kyles, a Former Orangeville Boy.

Mr. T. J. Bennett has just received an interesting letter from Mr. R. J. Kyles, a former Orangeville boy, who has been engaged in mining and railroad construction work in the Klondike, Siberia and South America. "Bob," as his Orangeville friends call him, is now supervising railroad construction work in the Andes mountains in South America. His letter, which is well written and full of interesting news, reads as follows:

Mariquita, Colombia, S.A.
Nov. 23rd, 1913.

T. J. Bennett Esq.,
Orangeville, Ont.

Dear Tom,

Your letter dated Oct. 6th, 1913, addressed to London had two trips across the Atlantic and blew in here day before yesterday together with the maple leaves.

The day on which you wrote your last letter I was tearing around London getting an outfit for this country. I left London on the morning of the 8th of October and caught the liner at Southampton. In the evening we were at Cherbourg, France, and from the latter place we had an uninterrupted run right to Trinadad, only calling into the Barbadoes the day before. I arrived in Cartagena, Colombia, 25th October, and remained there six days and then took the train from Cartagena to Calamar (4½ hours run) and got on board the express river steamer, Bagota. We were six days coming up the Magdalena river and we had great sport shooting "crocks" on almost every sandbar. Some of them were ten and twelve feet long and very often we saw as many as a dozen lying basking in the hot tropical sun. I made a few of them get a move on. On the evening of the sixth day we arrived at La Dorado, remaining on board the steamer all night. Next morning we took the steamer for Honda and Mariquita. I was around Mariquita for a few days and then moved out to my own camp, named Sabana Larga. I am at present about ten miles from Mariquita and 5,000 feet above sea level in the centre range of the Andes. It is an exceedingly healthy place to be in the tropics and only about 300 miles from the equator. Nine miles from my camp there is a perpetually snow-capped peak, 17,000 feet high.

I am working for the Dorado Railway amd Ropeway Extension Co. and it is on the Extension that I am working. At present I am building a zig-zag road and putting in a steel cable bridge across the river Guali. This Ropeway Extension is the largest steel cable transport in the world, being 64 kilometres or about 40 miles. It will be divided into 10 sections, each section driven by its own motor. Very shortly I shall have charge of the construction of the transmission line, which will be run on steel poles, 15 to the kilometre, and over one of the wildest countries you ever laid eyes on, but very picturesque.

I have a pretty swell camp—two tents, 10 x 15, set up with a space of 10 feet between them covered with a fly, which I use for a dining room. A bath room is attached on one end. I have a Jamaica boy for a cook and general housekeeper. He is one of the slickest pastry cooks that I have ever run across. He worked four years on the Panama Canal. The company furnished me with a fine camp outfit, such as beds, blankets, pillows, tables, easy chairs etc. I have a fairly decent salary. Every month I can bank $225 clear above all expenses.

My partner, I believe, is now on his way out to Colombia and I expect that I will get mixed up with several things here. We are hot foot after a gold quartz mine in the Choco district and it is said that it is extremely rich. I saw some samples from the mine when I was in Cartagena and it was fairly hot stuff, but as you know gold mining is a big gamble and I am not building much on it. If the gold is there it will be O.K. We have plenty of fruit here. Williams, my cook, has just brought in a bag full of pineapples and oranges and bananas. We are having chicken soup, roast chicken with sweet potatoes, pineapple pie with a cup of Colombian "cafe negro" and top off with Colombian cigars, very choice and only cost one cent each.

Yours sincerely
R. J. KYLE.

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak, anaemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 395 Woodville avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WHITTINGTON.

(Intended for last week.)

The weather is a little like winter now and is just what we want so as to make it look like Xmas once more. We would, however, like a little more snow to make the sleighs go better.

We have a fine rink nearby, if the manager would only attend to it and keep it in shape. Anyway the young folk enjoyed a fine time on Christmas. People came from as far away as Laurel to skate. Laurel and Shelburne will have to hurry up or they will be run out of business.

Whittington had an excellent entertainment and a fine night. There was a fine programme, which ended with a treat for everyone.

The young people are so scarce around here that we had to call on some of the older ones for some of the programme. Those who assisted were Mr. Rintoul, Mrs. Johnston and some others, who took their parts splendidly.

CALEDON EAST.

(Intended for last week.)

The G. T. R. had a gang of men at work for two weeks repainting the station house and freight shed. Caledon East now has one of the finest looking stations on this line.

The Sabbath School of St. James Church held a successful Christmas Tree Entertainment in Hanton's Hall on Friday evening, Dec. 19th. There was a large attendance and a good programme.

Some of our vegetable growers had mammoth squash in their gardens last season. Wm. Tosse grew one that weighed 175 lbs. and Parson Bros., had one that tipped the scales at 160 lbs. They were both grown from Rennie's seed and were sold to this well-known seed firm for good prices.

Mono Road Methodists held a splendid Christmas Tree Entertainment on Monday evening, Dec. 22nd. The affair drew a very large crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Potter, of Allandale Mill, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation a week ago Saturday morning. The children commenced coughing and vomiting and this awakened Mrs. Potter, who in turn aroused her husband, whom she found pretty well stupified by the escaping gas. The trouble was caused by a coal furnace.

Wm. Cranston, a son of the late Thos. Cranston, has opened a new flour and feed store in the premises next door to the Imperial Bank.

R. W. Burrell & Son have completed their new potato storehouse. The building is cement and is frost proof, so that the firm will now be in a position to take in potatoes at any time.

White & Proctor are building a new verandah at the front of the Albion hotel. The old one was badly wrecked during the big windstorm lastGood Friday.

Our merchants report a satisfactory Xmas trade.

The new C.P.R. survey passes through the heart of our village.

John Rawn, a well-to-do Chinguacousy farmer, is retiring and it is reported that he will take up his residence in Caledon East.

ALTON.

(Intended for last week.)

Miss Coral Barber and Miss Muriel Dods, of Toronto, spent the holiday at J. M. Dods.

Miss Cora Dowswell, of Arthur, and Miss De La Ree, of Shelburne, spent Christmas with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dowswell.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Mason and son, George, are spending the holidays in Alton.

Mr. Roscoe Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill and little daughter, of Hamilton, spent Xmas with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill.

Miss Winifred Meek, of Toronto, is visiting Miss Ola Dick.

Mr. Wm. Dean, of Toronto, is spending the Christmas holidays at his home.

Misses Ethel, Irene and Nettie Culligan, of Toronto, are at their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Culligan.

Miss Laura Young, of Toronto is staying at Mr. Wm. White's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smart and children, of Brampton, spent the holiday at E. D. Barber's.

Mrs. J. J. Davis and little son, Brock, of Wroxeter, spent Xmas with her mother, Mrs. S. Barber.

Mr. Charlie Lovell, of Toronto, is spending Xmas holidays at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Morgan and Miss Jean Morgan spent the holiday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ward are visiting in Toronto.

Miss Margaret Moore spent the holiday with friends in Totonto.

Mrs. Herb. Wilson, of Arthur, is visiting at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Martin.

Miss Nellie Hodgson spent the holiday with her sister, Mrs. W. C. McDonald, Belfountain.

Mr. Wilfred Erskine, of Winnipeg, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Erskine.

Mrs. Neely and Miss S. Neely are visiting friends in Owen Sound, Toronto and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Adams and family, of Toronto, holidayed at Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lemon's.

MELANCTHON.

(Intended for last week.)

Dr. R. D. Sloane, of Leamington, visited at the parental home here at Christmas.

Master Robert Mills, of Carman, Man., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mills, of the village.

Mr. Nelson Lawrence, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lawrence, Honeywood, and Eva Tupling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Tupling, also of Honeywood, were married on Tuesday.

Between now and the next annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union, nearly five thousand individuals will conduct more experiments through the Province with a view to advancing the science of agriculture.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Providing for Your Family

SUPPLYING your family with present day comforts, does not constitute your only financial obligation to them. Their future demands more consideration than their wants of to-day.

If anything should happen to you, you would not want your boy to give up his education, or your wife and daughter to be thrown on the world to struggle for a living.

The surest way of providing for your family's future is to save your money. Deny yourself a few extravagances now, that they may have comforts always.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, JAN. 22nd, 1914.

THE TOWN PARLIAMENT

Members of Citizens' League Find Fault With Work of Town Officials.

Council Decides to Advertise for Applicants for Assessor, Chief of Police and Nightwatchman.

The Town Council held the first business meeting of the year on Monday night. There was a large attendance of interested ratepayers and at times during the evening it was impossible to get near the door of the Counsil Chamber. The room itself was crowded to the doors and the throng overflowed into the passegeway. The crowd was drawn by reports that the local optionists, as represented by the Citizens' League, intended to press for the dismissal of Chief Marshall and Nightwatchman Dawson on the ground that these officers had been lax in the matter of enforcing the local option by-law. The League was represented by a deputation consisting of Thos. S. Hewson, Rev. G. W. Robinson, Rev. A. E. St. Dalmas and Mr. Robt. Curry, who spoke on the subject of local option enforcement and particularly on Chief Marshall's statement that "blind pigs" were allowed to flourish unmolested. Provincial Inspector Ayearst and Inspector T. J. Robinson also spoke on the same subject, the latter taking issue with Chief Marshall regarding certain statements made by the latter in a letter in a recent issue of The Sun. Marshall, who spoke in his own defence, admitted that while there were "blind pigs" in operation last spring he did not know of any at the present time. After some lively discussion the Council decided that, instead of reappointing the present officers, as is usually done, it would advertise for applications for the positions of Chief of Police and Nightwatchman. Applications will also be received for the office of assessor, which was held by Mr. H. Endacott last year. ...

Mayor Island read the following address :—

To the Members of the Municipal Council of the Town of Orangeville, Gentlemen :

As the elected representatives of the people in the Town Council, I wish to congratulate you on the confidence placed in you by the electors, and to the important public position of trust which you are called upon to fill. I feel assured that the members of this year's Council will serve the public interest in the very highest degree.

With regard to the ordinary expenditure for the Town of Orangeville during the year 1914 there must be considerable retrenchment in the same and the strictest economy must prevail in the management of the civic affairs of the Corporation of the Town of Orangeville. I would suggest that the Chairmen of the various Committees, at least once a month, make a report to the Chairman of the Finance Committee as to the amount spent by his Committee up to the time of reporting and that the Chairman of the Finance Committee should in turn report to the Council at least once a month the amount expended up to the time the reports of the Chairmen of the various Committees were received. By such method as is suggested we would be in a position to know every month how much of an expenditure the Committees had made and it is important that every member of the Council should know exactly how the current expenditure of the Town stood at least once a month. While our debenture debt is getting in good shape we must make an effort to place current liabilities upon some solid foundation. I recognize the fact that each year's current expenditure varies very much owing to various causes from unforeseen extraordinary expenditures. Each year should be made to pay for its own expenditures as nearly as can be accomplished. I wish to point out that every year there is quite a large amount of taxes allowed to fall in arrears. Owing to the ever increasing expenditure we should make every reasonable effort to collect nearly all the taxes for each year.

The industrial situation of the Town of Orangeville has been very much improved during the last year. I may just refer to the large factory now in process of erection, which, when completed, will be a great help to the town in bringing into our midst more people and more wealth. The policy of industrial development must be carried on if the town is to keep advancing and growing. I do not mean that we should reach out for every thing in the factory line which comes along. Every proposition respecting a new factory should be carefully considered, and only those propositions which are substantial, which have capital and experience behind them, should be submitted to the ratepayers, that is, those propositions for factories which have a reasonable appearance of success.

I wish to call the attention of the Council to at once take into consideration the advisability of revising the present tariff of charges for the use of the present Town Hall, and also the advisability of changing the name of the Town Hall for a name more appropriate to the present conditions.

The policy of this and coming Councils respecting the streets and Public buildings, now that they are in very good shape is to keep them so, and to remedy defects which experience shows exists.

Another matter that should be taken up when it is found convenient, is the revision and consolidation of the town by-laws. These have become numerous and it is very often a difficult matter to find out what there is in any particular By-law. Owing to the revision of the New Municipal Act, which came into force on July 1st, 1913, these By-laws should be revised to conform with any changes made in the new Act.

For the protection of the Public Health I think it would be well for the Town Council to take into consideration two or three matters looking towards the improvement of the sanitary conditions of the town. These matters can be discussed in Council.

In conclusion I may say that the policy of the Town Council for the present year should be harmony, economy and industrial progress.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Orangeville, January 19th, 1914.

J. L. ISLAND,
Mayor.

The address was referred to a special committee for report.

PEEL'S OPPORTUNITY

On Thursday next, Jan. 29th, the electors of the neighboring County of Peel will have the opportunity of voting the licensed barrooms out of existence in the whole of that County. At present Dufferin and Glengarry are the only "dry" counties in Ontario and if the temperance people to our south are true to their duty on the 29th Peel will have the honor of making the third on the list of banner temperance counties. Elsewhere in this issue will be found a synopsis of the Canada Temperance Act, on which the people of Peel will vote next Thursday. We commend this to the careful consideration of all Banner readers. The C. T. A. is a vastly different measure from the old Scott Act. It is simple in its forms, definite in its details and what is a matter of the first importance is the fact that provision for its enforcement has been included in the Ontario Liquor License Act. It should be borne in mind too that the carrying of this Act does not annul or in any way make void the Local Option by-law in municipalities which have already adopted local option. The Canada Temperance Act merely takes precedence over the Local Option by-law. Should it be revealed at any time these municipalities would still remain under local option, unless and until the latter was repealed in the manner provided by the Ontario Liquor License Act.

Standing Committees.

The following are the Standing Committees of the Orangeville Council for 1914. The member first named is chairman in each instance.

Finance—Henderson, McGuire.
Fire & Water—Matthews, White.
Property—Holmes, Arnott.
Street Lighting—Arnott, Johnston.
Streets—White, Darraugh.
Industrial—Johnston, White, Matthews, Darraugh, McGuire.
Court of Revision—Darraugh, Holmes, White, Matthews and Henderson.

A SHOCKING FATALITY

Caledon East Business Man Fatally Injured by Acetylene Gas Explosion.

Mr. Wm. C. Burrell, of the firm of R. W. Burrell & Son, Caledon East merchants, was fatally injured by an acetylene gas explosion on Saturday evening, Jan. 10th. The injured man lingered, suffering greatly, until shortly after midnight on Tuesday when he succumbed. The shocking affair was the result of an explosion of an acetylene gas machine situated in a warehouse at the rear of the Burrell store. Deceased took a lantern and went to the warehouse about six o'clock to attend to the machine. The lantern ignited escaping gas, causing a terrific explosion. The warehouse was shattered, the roof lifted off and hurled for a considerable distance and windows were broken in all parts of the village. Burrell was hurled a distance of several yards and when picked up was in a pitiable condition. His clothing was torn to shreds, he was painfully burned about the head and face and his body was filled with splinters large and small. Strange to say he did not lose consciousness and with assistance he was soon able to walk to his residence a short distance away. Medical assistance was at once procured and everything possible was done for the injured man, but unfortunately without avail.

Mr. Burrell, who was about 42 years of age, was married, and is survived by a widow and one daughter. He was a member of the Methodist Church, a prominent Mason and an energetic and capable business man. Practically the whole village and countryside was represented at the funeral, which was held to Caledon East cemetery on Friday afternoon. Members of the Masonic fraternity attended to the number of 100. Services were conducted at the house and grave by Revs. J. G. Rogers, Toye, More and Harmon. The sad affair has cast a pall of gloom over the community and profound sympathy is felt for the bereaved family and relatives.

Discussed Good Roads

A meeting of the ratepayers of Harshaw's polling division was held in the Orange Hall on the Prince of Wales Road on Monday evening for the purpose of discussing the Good Roads question. Most of those present seemed to think that the Government Good Roads system was calculated to benefit motorists rather than farmers. It was agreed too that the winter roads should receive more attention as it was during this season that the farmers did most of their travelling and heavy teaming. Reeve Marshall and Deputy-reeve Parks were among those who took part in the discussion. The following resolution was agreed to unanimously :

"Resolved that the opinion of this meeting is strongly opposed to the present system of Goverument road improvement as we consider the property adjoining such roads is injured instead of being benefitted and we also feel that it is not the farmers who are being benefitted at the present time."

WHITTINGTON.

The farmers around here are busy getting to work in the bush and I think most of them are repeating the old rhyme that the men of a generation ago were wont to sing :

I wish I was in Ireland
Where the fences are of hedge,
Rather than stay in Ontario
And use the iron wedge.

We are sorry to learn of the Company's new threshing outfit getting badly damaged, but we hope that it will come back alright.

Whittington young people are organizing a League. The Society will do nicely if the people only come out and give a little help.

Just a few little things we would like to know :—

Is J. L. still on the same trail yet?

When is G. P. going across the side road again ?

Some people were angry because the phone was out of order, but G. P. says he was glad.

LAUREL.

The holiday season is over once more and our people have all returned home.

Our local store is now enjoying a lull after the Christmas rush.

Mr. G. Hepton has sold his fine 200 acre property, the e½ lot 19, con. 6, and the w½ lot 19, con. 5, Amaranth. We presume he will still have enough to do now that he is councillor.

A pleasant time was spent in connection with the Epworth League here on Tuesday evening, Dec. 30th, when a debate was held on the subject, "Resolved that the Northwest offers more advantages to the Young Man or Woman than does Ontario. The debaters were :—Affirmative, W. Penny, captain, assisted by Miss J. Richardson and G. Hepton ; negative H. Nelson, captain, assisted by Miss C. Hamilton and H. Woodgate. The debate reflected a great deal of credi

A Double Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Rawn, of the Mono-Caledon townline, was the scene of a quiet but pretty double wedding on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 20th. The contracting parties were Mr. Arthur J. Brayley, of Caledon, and Miss Edith Brown, of Toronto, and Mr. Walter H. Hickey, of Caledon, and Miss May Dernell, of Toronto. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Black, pastor of Mono Mills Presbyterian Church, who had on this occasion the pleasure of officiating at his first double wedding. The happy couples will reside in Caledon. Numerous friends join in tendering their hearty congratulations.

Puterbaugh-Smith.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith, East Queen St., Alton, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding on Wednesday, Jan. 7th, when their oldest daughter, Nina Alvus, was united in marriage to Mr. Clement E. Puterbaugh, of Egeland, N.D. Rev. Dr. Armstrong, pastor of Alton Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was played by her cousin, Miss Hazel Smith. She wore a gown of marquisette silk of a delicate cream shade trimmed with beads and ruching and carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations. She was unattended, save by her little sister, Coral May, who was charmingly dressed in blue silk and carried a basket laden with roses and smilax. The bridal couple took their places under an arch of evergreens decorated with pink and white roses and a white wedding bell. After receiving the congratulations of the assembled friends, the happy couple led the way to the dining room where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The only guests present were members of the bride's family and her nearest relatives. A few friends gathered in the evening and were entertained with games, music and other amusements. The young couple will make their home in Medicine Hat, Alta., where the bride will be at home to her friends after March 15th.

A MOTHER'S DUTY TO HER DAUGHTER

Is to Guard Her Health by Keeping Her Blood Supply Pure.

Anxious mothers who see their daughters failing in strength, become pale and languid, can be certain that the cause of their anxiety is the condition of the growing girl's blood. At no time in her life does a girl stand in greater need of pure, red blood and the strength which it alone can give her, than when she is developing into womanhood. It is then that anaemia rapidly develops and the growing girl finds herself in declining health. If your daughter complains of feeling constantly tired, if her appetite is fickle, if she is breathless from exertion, or if her heart palpitates violently on going upstairs, it is a certain sign that her blood is failing to meet the demands upon it, because it is thin and watery. It is at such times that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are worth their weight in gold to tired anaemic girls. They actually make the new, red blood, that brings brightness to the eye, the bloom of health to the cheeks, and strength and activity to the whole body. The following is an instance of their value to young girls. Miss Hilda Pearl Snowe, Barrington, N.S., gradually drooped under an attack of anaemia. At first she was pale and listless, suffering from occasional headaches, but as the trouble progressed, a severe cough also attracted her and her friends feared she was in the grip of consumption. Almost from the outset she was being treated medically, but with no apparent benefit. At a critical stage in her illness Miss Snowe wisely decided that she would give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. After taking them for some time there was a noticeable improvement in her case and the Pills were gladly continued until she was fully restored to health. Miss Snowe is to-day as healthy and rugged as any girl could wish to be, and her friends believe that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved her life.

These Pills not only cure anaemia, but all troubles due to poor blood and weak nerves. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mrs. George Worts

Mrs. Worts, widow of the late George Worts, a onetime resident of Hillsburg, passed away at the home of her grandson, Dr. G. L. McKinnon, of Alton, on Friday last at the ripe age of 81 years, 9 months and 6 days. Mrs. Worts, whose maiden name was Martha Jane Green, was born at Norval, where she was married to Mr. Worts in 1852. Her husband conducted a store for the Goodeham estate at Norval for a number of years and then moved to Hillsburg where he ran a large grist mill. His death occurred in 1878 and some years afterwards his widow moved to Orangeville, making her home with her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) McKinnon. About six years ago she moved to Alton, where she has since resided. She had been very poorly for sometime before her death. Four sons survive, namely W. G. Worts, Dauphin, Man., Harry Worts, Orangeville, Fred Worts, Toronto, and D. C. Worts, a druggist in Alton. Mrs. McKinnon is the only daughter. The funeral was held from her late home to Huxley's cemetery near Hillsburg on Monday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Tebbs, rector of St. Mark's, and Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Alton, were the officiating clergymen. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. H. and Geo. McCullough, of Brampton, Jas. Carmichael, Wm. Donaldson and Chas. McMurchy, of Hillsburg, and W. C. McMillan, of Orangeville.

A Sudden Bereavement.

The sincerest sympathy is expressed for Mrs. W. J. Manning, 2nd Ave., in the sudden bereavement that has befallen her through the death of her only son, George Jackson Manning, a fine boy of 15 years. Mrs. Manning, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson, 1st Ave., rented her farm near Bondhead and came to Orangeville a few weeks ago for the purpose of giving her children the advantages of an advanced education. Her son, who had enrolled in the Orangeville Business College, contracted a severe cold which developed into a bad attack of tonsilitis. The illness terminated fatally, owing to heart collapse. The remains were taken to the old home at Bondhead for burial, the interment taking place in St. John's Church cemetery, Tecumseth, on Friday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Tebbs conducted the service at the house here and Rev. Mr. Lowe officiated at the grave. The farm at Bondhead has been owned by the Manning family for 90 years and would have become the property of the young man when he came of age. He had expressed his intention of returning to work the place, after completing his education here and at the Agricultural College. Two younger sisters were similarly affected, but we are glad to learn that they are recovering.

A Great Win.

At Brampton Poultry Show the week before last, C. R. Cuthbert, of Alton, made a great win with his Rose Comb Rhode Island Reds. Mr. Cuthbert carried off the following prizes:— 3 firsts, 2 seconds, 2 thirds, 1 fourth, 1 fifth and 7 specials with an entry of twelve birds in a class of 55. He also won 1st and special prizes for the best dozen brown eggs and the silver cup for the best collection of Rhode Island Reds, both Single and Rose Combs competing. This is the first time that the Rose Combs have won this prize. Mr. Cuthbert also won the silver cup for the best pair of birds at the show, which had a total entry of 740 birds.

CALEDON.

The Caledon Branch of the Peel Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Dan McKim on Saturday, Jan. 3rd. Quite a number of members were present in spite of the stormy day. The meeting was opened by singing the Opening Ode, after which the Roll was called and responded to by nearly all the members. A Paper was given by Miss P. Judge, entitled "Gifts Sent With God's Love." Two good readings were also given by Misses McLachlan and Arkell. Music was provided by Misses McLachlan and Vogan. At the close of the meeting all present partook of a dainty lunch prepared by the hostess. The next meeting will be held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, when Mrs. Watts, of Toronto, will deliver an address. See posters later.

Wedding bells are ringing. Don't you hear them.

We are glad to be able to report that Mr. and Mrs. McHugh are rapidly improving after the injuries they received in a runaway accident some weeks ago.

Mr. Homer Hillyard is confined to his home now with a severe attack of la grippe. We hope for a speedy recovery.

The Swastika Sewing Club met at the home of Miss Mamie Nesbitt on Thursday evening and report a very successful evening. We hear that some of our councillors are attending. What is the attraction, Jim?

Miss Ethel Armstrong has returned to her home in Erin after spending a couple of weeks with her friend, Miss A. Mallatt.

Mr. Wm. Faulkner, C.P.R. brakeman from Toronto, visited old friends around here over Sunday.

We wonder what subject Joe intends to study at school. Perhaps matrimony.

Wake up Caledon boys and don't let the sorrel from Mono keep the C. R. broken.

The business side of life is looking brighter now since Wesley Speers has opened out a boot and shoe repair shop. We wish you success, Wesley.

MARSVILLE.

Hillview Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Urias Everson, was the scene of a pretty event on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 7th. The occasion was the marriage of their oldest daughter, Miss May M., to Mr. Wesley G. Byers, of Toronto, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Byers, of this village. Promptly at 4.30 to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Bessie Everson, the contracting parties took their place under an artistically constructed arch of evergreens dotted with white roses. The Rev. R. S. Scott tied the nuptial knot. The bride was unattended and was given away by her father. She was charmingly attired in cream gloria with pearl trimmings and shadow lace. She wore the customary bridal veil with orange blossoms and carried a beautiful shower bouquet of bridal roses, lily of the valley and maidenhair fern. Her travelling suit was of tailored blue serge, trimmed with fur and she wore a black hat with plume. After the service the guests repaired to the dining room which was tastefully decorated and where the wedding menu was served in the most up-to-date style. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch. She was also the recipient of many useful and costly gifts, which is ample proof of her popularity among her host of friends. The happy couple left the following week for their home on Toronto and will reside in the Cornwall Apartments, 1070 Bathurst St.

The township council held its first meeting of the year on Monday, Jan. 12th, when the usual business was transacted. The following officers were appointed:—Clerk, Jno. Preston; Treas., Jas. H. Simpson; Collector, Jno. Platt; Assessor, V. Armstrong; Auditors, A. J. Simpson and L. Boggs.

The Council is composed of the same members as last year with the exception of Mr. J. K. Thompson replacing Mr. S. Cook, who retired.

The last regular monthly meeting of the Marsville Branch Women's Institute was held on Jan. 7th at the home of Mrs. S. Boggs. The attendance was good and a profitable meeting was held. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. V. Armstrong on the first Wednesday of February.

The following officers have been installed in Court Marsville, No. 351, C. O. F.:—C.R., L. Boggs; V.C.R., J. E. Dyer; Rec.-Sec., M. McCormick; Fin.-Sec., Jas. Boggs; Treas., A. Nodwell; S. W., D. Jestin; J.W., R. Mann; S. B., Jas. Johnston; J. B., H. Nodwell; Chap., V. Armstrong.

Mr. Samuel Boggs is the first farmer in the community to have an increase in his flock of sheep. Quite early for spring lambs.

The annual business meeting of the Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday evening of last week, but owing to the stormy night the attendance was smaller than usual. The different reports presented showed all branches of the church work to be in a very satisfactory state.

CAMILLA.

The Camilla Literary Society reorganized last week and meetings will be held every Saturday night at 7.30. The following officers were elected:—Hon.-Pres., Mr. A. J. Fowlie; Pres., John Ledlow; Secy-Treas., Ralph Bremner; Door-keeper, Alex. Lundy. The first meeting, which was held on Jan. 10th, was largely attended. The affirmative of the debate "Resolved that Trade offers more opportunities to Success than Profession" was taken by Will Parks and Norman Rayfield, while the negative was skilfully handled by Miss Hazel Banks and Fred Thompson. The judges, John McNaughton, Ralph Bremner and Jim Little, decided in favor of the negative. After the debate a lengthy programme of speeches, recitations and musical selections made the first meeting of the season a grand success.

There was a good crowd in attendance at the second meeting of the Camilla Literary Society on Saturday night. The subject for debate was "Resolved that the North American Indian has suffered more at the hands of the white man than the Negro." Miss Myrtle Kyles and Jim Little took the affirmative while Ralph Bremner and Fred Thompson had the negative. Miss Mary Aldcorn, Mrs. Banks and Miss Muriel Howard were judges and gave their decision in favor of the negative. Mr. Oscar Banks acted as critic. Among the numbers on the programme were speeches by Messrs Will Rintoul, Dave Lundy and Will Henry, and recitations by Mrs. Banks and Corona Lundy.

There will be two debates on Jan. 24, a juvenile under the leadership of Janey Howard and Freeland Lundy, taking as a subject, "Resolved that Winter Sports are more enjoyable than Summer Sports." After this the regular debate with Gershoon Canning and Harold Marshall as Captains. The subject will be "Resolved that the Written Word has more power than the Human Voice."

Build a Better Silo and Save Money

BUILD the kind that will keep your ensilage always at its best. Build the kind of silo that does not have to be repaired or painted every other year. Your dairy herd will show its appreciation in the additional quantity of milk it gives. The best silo, by keeping ensilage perfect, increases output and soon pays for itself.

A Concrete Silo

is the dairyman's surest dividend payer. It keeps ensilage in just the right condition and does not permit it to dry out or get mouldy. A concrete silo cannot leak, rot, rust or dry out. It has no hoops to replace. Requires no paint and needs no repairs during an ordinary lifetime.

Send to-day for this free book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It tells how to build a concrete silo and many other things on the farm that will save you many dollars.

MONO ROAD.

(Intended for last week).

Capt. Dan. McCaughrin, our station agent, is at Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal, attending to the duties of his office.

Dr. Graham, who has been ill with a severe attack of tonsilitis, is again hale and hearty.

William Speers and wife, of Toronto, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Speers' father, Mr. Joseph Donaghy.

Sand Hill young people last Thursday evening had a most interesting debate on the subject "Resolved that Ontario offers more inducements to the immigrant than the West." The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

Bolton on Thursday evening last was full of life when the new $10,000 skating rink was opened. A special train came from Toronto brinsing upwards of 300 people. A special also ran from Orangeville and intervening points. The farmers turned out in large numbers with their sleighs to bring people from the station which is a mile from the village. A burlesque band came from Toronto, also Tottenham band, which added much to the entertainment of the evening. The main feature was a hockey match between Eaton's team and Bolton team. The score being a tie—6 to 6. J. C. Eaton, president of The T. Eaton Co., came up in his special car. There were over 1500 people present.

This community was startled on Saturday evening when a terrific explosion took place in Caledon East, a mile from this village, Burrell & Son, general merchants, have an acetylene plant, about 30 feet from the rear of their store, which supplies gas to the churches, stores and some dwellings in the village. About six o'clock Mr. Will Burrell noticed a dimness in the lights so he went to find the cause. On entering the plant building with a lantern an explosion took place caused by escaping gas. The building was torn to pieces, many windows in stores and dwellings were shattered and the rear of the Burrell store was also badly wrecked. So severe was the explosion that two large trees near by were torn out by the roots. Mr. Burrell was badly burned and bruised. By last reports he is doing well as can be expected. To show how close a call it was for him, most of his clothes were torn from his body. When one looks at the ruins he wonders how Mr. Burrell escaped being blown to pieces. Fortunately no one else was seriously hurt..

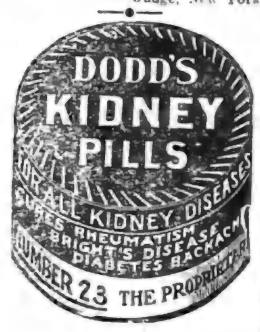
FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Own Story.

London, Ont.—"I am a farmer's wife and a very busy woman. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back so bad that I could not get up or scarcely move without pain, and my periods were painful. My husband called in a good doctor and I was under his care for some time, but he did me little or no good.

One day a friend of mine told me to try Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound as she had been greatly helped by it. I began taking it and soon got w- and my periods ' came natural again. Since then I h- had perfect health. In fact I have never felt so well in my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine many women need. If you think this letter will help other women please publish it."—Mrs. K. C. Young, Tambling's Corner, Ontario, Canada.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.



If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

SOME NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS.

The kind of New Year's resolutions that men would make for women.

To take the ticklers off their hats, so that men would not have to do a continuous rubbernect performance in every crowd of women to keep from swallowing a yard of feathers.

To do their shopping in the middle of the day, so that a tired business man could keep his seat in the street car coming home without being made to feel that he was a pig.

To learn which is the business end of a check, and that the 6.00 train doesn't start at 7.35.

To reflect that some men like to see the first act of a play, and prefer to get to the theatre on time.

To eat enough at home so that a man will not have to feed her every time he takes her out.

That wives would try to believe that going down to work every day is not equivalent to going to a picnic, and that a man is not having a hilariously gay time when he is wrestling with a cranky boss, or pin-head employees or cantankerous customers.

That wives would realize that nerves are not an exclusively feminine possession, but that husbands have them too.

That wives would regard husbands a little more in the light of human beings, and less as family cash registers.

That wives wouldn't save all of their best jollying for company, as they do the best silver.

That wives would realize that a husband is always his wife's biggest baby, and likes to be petted, coddled and showed off.

That wives would give a husband an evening off occasionally without raising a rumpus about it.

That wives would go to bed and go to sleep, instead of waiting up for their husbands at night.

That wives would take as much real geart interest in cooking as they do in bridge whist.

That wives would spend money with due appreciation of how hard every dollar comes, instead of burning it up as if it was waste paper.

That wives would turn off the tear duct and turn on the laugh oftener.

That wives would quit pitying themselves and bestow a little sympathy on their husbands.

That every wife would resolve to spend 1914 in studying how she could make a happy home, instead of trying to find out if Browning thought he thought.

What women would resolve for men:

To quit blowing tobacco smoke in women's faces and spitting on the sidewalks and in the street cars where women have to drag their skirts through the filth.

To quit hiding behind a newspaper in the street car when tired-looking women, especially working women, are standing.

To quit handing out the old gag about angels and men's superiors, and then class them politically with the idiot, the criminal and the insane.

To quit batting women about the way they dress, and then all run after the woman with the latest freak gown from Paris on.

To quit lambasting women for acting like idiots, while they flock around the little goose who rolls her eyes at them and asks silly questions, and let the high-browed college graduate paper the walls at parties.

That husbands would resolve that it isn't giving the wife a square deal to marry her because she is a parlor ornament and then expect her to be a kitchen utensil.

That husbands would realize that it's just as much up to the father to walk the baby with the colic as it is to the mother.

That husbands would realize that all work and no play makes Mary a dull ', and that if you want to keep a wife satisfied with her job you must give her an occasional treat.

That husbands would realize that marriage doesn't make a woman lose her sweet tooth, and that she is just as fond of bon bons, conversational and otherwise after the wedding day as she was before.

That husbands would realize that a wife is still a lady, even though she has come to be a man's wife, and is entitled to be treated as such.

That husbands would realize that to give a wife an allowance instead of making her ask for every nickel not only saves her self-respect but prevents the family row over money.

That husbands would resolve to make their wives bless the day they got married, instead of spending their time wondering what on earth made them marry at all and how they happened to get the husband wished on them that they did.

Of course, no man believes that he has got any real faults, or could be improved for the better. The same way about a woman. But how each could improve the other if only they could make the other one over.

HOW THEY GET THERE.

One day the little five-year old daughter of the house was looking through a picture book, when she suddenly glanced up to her mother.

"Mamma," said she, with a very serious expression, "don't men go to heaven?"

"Why, of course, my dear," answered the mother in a surprised voice. "What makes you ask?"

"Because," responded the little girl, turning to the book again. "I have never seen any pictures of angels with whiskers."

"That's easily accounted for, darling," was the smiling rejoinder of mother. "While men do go to heaven, they only get there by a very close shave."

Andy Carnegie has given away another cool ten million dollars. O, that Andrew would endow the poor printers with a portion of his surplus!

"MY ONLY MEDICINE"

Says Mrs. Corbett, Are "Fruit-a-tives" "They Keep Me in Perfect Health"

Mrs. ANNIE A. CORBETT

AVON, ONT., May 14th, 1913

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I am highly pleased with "Fruit-a-tives" and am not ashamed to have the facts published to the world. When I first started, about six years ago, to use them, I took four for a dose, but I cured myself of the above troubles and gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives" I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the disease as from these treatments.

Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which someone recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory and I have no hesitation in recommending them to any other person. They have done me a world of good. I get satisfaction from them, and that is quite a lot". ANNIE A. CORBETT.

THE CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN.

He is above a mean thing. He cannot stoop to a mean fraud. He invades no secret in the keeping of another. He betrays no secrets confided to his own keeping. He never struts in borrowed plumage. He never takes selfish advantage of our mistakes. He uses no ignoble weapons in controversy. He never stabs in the dark. He is ashamed of insendoes. He is not one thing to a man's face and another behind his back. If by accident he comes in possession of his neighbor's counsels he passes upon them an act of instant oblivion. He bears sealed packages without tampering with the wax. Papers not meant for his eye, whether they flutter at his window or lie open before him in unguarded exposure, are sacred to him. He invades no privacy of others, however the sentry sleeps. Bolts and bars, locks and keys, hedges and pickets, bonds and securities, notice to trespassers, are none of them for him. He may be trusted alone, out of sight—near the thinnest partition—anywhere. He buys no offices, he sells none, he intrigues for none. He would rather fail on his rights than win them thru dishonor. He will eat honest bread. He tramples on no sensitive feeling. He insults no man. If he have rebuke for another, he is straightforward, open, manly. He cannot descend to scurrility. In short, whatever he judges honorable he practices towards every man.

FALLING HAIR

Many People Have a Simple Way of Stopping It—They Use Parisian Sage

It was Dr. Sangerbond, of Paris, who first discovered that dandruff and falling hair were caused by a microbe.

And now that Parisian Sage, the remedy that kills the dandruff germ, is sold in every town in Canada, the people of this country have awakened to the fact that dandruff is unnecessary; that falling hair and itching scalp can be quickly stopped, and that the people who use Parisian Sage will never grow bald.

To every reader of The Banner who wishes to eradicate offensive dandruff, stop falling hair and have an immaculately clean scalp, free from itchiness, F. S. Pickering says he will sell Parisian Sage in a large fifty cent bottle with a guarantee to refund the money if not satisfied. It is an ideal, daintily perfumed hair dressing, free from grease and stickiness, that will put life and beauty into dull faded hair and cause it to grow lustrous and luxuriant.

BOTH "BEAT IT."

Two little boys went out nutting one day, and as they were coming home they passed a graveyard, and climbed over the fence to count their nuts and divide equally between themselves. But as they climbed over two nuts fell on the outside of the fence and they said, "We will get those when we come back."

They began in a slow, sing-song voice, "One for you an' one for me—an' one for you an' one for me," when a negro passed by and heard them, without seeing them. "Lawd—a massy. Dat's the Lawd and de debil in der a countin' out de dead," thought he, and with his hair on end ran as fast as he could till he met a white man, who asked him what was the matter.

Sambo told him, and he laughed, and taking the poor fellow by the arm, he led him back to the graveyard to investigate matters.

The voices were still going on: "One for me an' one for you, an' one for me. An' that's all. But now we'll go and get the two outside."

It is said that the white man beat the negro running.

ACRE PROFIT COMPETITION.

During the summer of 1913 the Ontario Department of Agriculture, under the direction of its District Representatives, conducted a Competition to determine the profit to be obtained from an acre of land. These competitions, in each county, were open only to the young men who had attended the Two or Four Weeks' Short Courses held by the District Representatives. The contestants were allowed to select their own crop and were given directions for keeping account of the various items of expenditure in connection with the crop. Five dollars per acre was allowed as rental; fifty cents per ton allowed for manure, although, being worth more, all the benefit cannot be derived from the manure in one year, and other charges allowed proportionately.

In Dufferin County there were eight contestants, and the crop grown was potatoes. The crop was valued at sixty cents per bushel, and the items charged up in accordance with the schedule. Four of the competitors presented satisfactory reports. The winner in this Contest was Roy Best, of Whitfield, who has a yield of one hundred and eighty bushels per acre with an expense account of $24.20, leaving a profit of $83.80. The other competitors were R. R. Oliver, Waldemar R. R. with a profit of $76.95; W. H. McCutcheon, Honeywood, with a profit of $73.45; R. L. Hamilton, Laurel, $31.85.

The winner of this contest will receive two weeks' expert instruction in live stock and seed judging at the O.A.C., Guelph, at the expense of the Ontario Dept. of Agriculture. Another contest will be held in 1914 open to all those young men attending the various Short Courses held by the District Representative.

FORESTRY FACTS.

In Southern Nigeria, on the west coast of Africa, the British Government has done much to encourage the practice of forestry, and eight hundred villages now have communal plantations of rubber trees. The natives supply the labor, the native chiefs supply the land and the Forestry Department supplies the seeds, technical knowledge and tapping appliances. The profits are divided equally among the three co-operating parties.

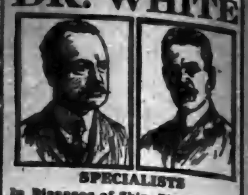
The largest lake on the east slope of the Rocky Mountains lies at the head-waters of the Maligne river, a tributary of the Athabaska. It is twenty-two miles long and from one to three miles wide, and is surrounded by lofty mountains which make it one of the most beautiful spots in the Rocky Mountain region. Yet this lake was practically unknown until a forest survey was made of this region last summer by the Dominion Forestry Branch. Unfortunately, there are no fish in this lake, owing probably to the fact that the Maligne river flows underground for several miles, after leaving the lake.

The revenue from the forests of British India administered by the Indian Forest Service last year amounted to over $14,000,000. The total cost of fire protection, tree-planting and administration generally, was $8,000,000, leaving a net annual revenue of $6,000,000, which the forests are able to produce continuously, without depletion.

The 'Great Divide' is sometimes a very small affair in the Rocky Mountains of Alberta and British Columbia. This summer a forest survey party sent out by the Dominion Forestry Branch, found that the head-waters of the Athabaska River in Alberta were separated only by a narrow strip of low lying land from the waters of a lake in British Columbia which drains into the Columbia River. Were the outlet of this lake blocked and a shallow trench dug for a couple of hundred yards, its waters could be made to flow east instead of west. A somewhat similar case is seen where the head-waters of the Smoky and Fraser rivers, though flowing in opposite directions, have their common source at the base of a great glacier on Mount Robson, which guards the boundary between Alberta and British Columbia.

Wm. H. McNee was elected chairman of Kingston Board of Education.

Fire, which broke out in the Mack House, Napanee, destroyed that place, a three-storey structure, and the two-storey opera house adjoining. The loss is estimated at $157,000.



The Government let a $99,000 contract to the Polson Iron Works of Toronto for the construction of two large lighters for use at Port Nelson on Hudson's Bay.

A HOCKEY GAME.

Star & Vidette Tells How Grand Valley Trimmed Orangeville by Score of 6 to 2.

Bert Booth and his hockey braves came up from Orangeville on Monday evening and played the local boys a genuine live game of hockey. Owing to the lateness of the train the puck was not faced until ten o'clock and the hockey fans and rail birds were busily engaged keeping themselves warm, while waiting by stamping their feet when the mercury was somewhat below zero. But they were amply repaid by the brand of hockey served by both teams. There were thrills from beginning to end, and the fast pace set at the beginning of the game was kept up throughout. The local boys, with their new suits, looked quite like a team and made a much easier for spectators to follow the game closely. It is only fair to state that Grand Valley has at the present time one of the best balanced teams that has ever worn the red and blue, and if the boys play the same dashing spirited game in the immediate games to follow, they will surely get the support due them. Percy Brawley was the Percy of two years ago and did the comeback stunt nicely. His work was also effective and a treat. Britton adds much to the defence both in weight and generalship and played a sterling game. Keith and Gib McArthur make a great pair of wings and outplayed and outskated their checks the greater part of the game. Jack McDonald in goal and Herb. Cotton at point did not have much to do but when called upon always relieved in a careful manner. At centre ice Norman Moss had a great battle with his check who was perhaps the pick of the Orangeville team. Bert Booth, of the Orangeville team, in the second half, gave a good exhibition of defensive work and helped to keep the score down. The referee did not have his batting eye with him and therefore many off-sides and minor fouls were passed up.—Star & Vidette.

It is estimated that there are 15,000 workless men in Toronto.

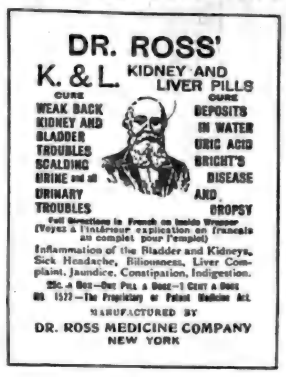
Court Gives Damages For Fraudulent Imitation

Bold Attempt to Deceive the Public with an Imitation of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

You can scarcely imagine an imitator with sufficient audacity to put on the market an exact imitation of a medicine so thoroughly well-known as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. And yet this is exactly what was done a few months ago in the city of Montreal.

THE ORIGINAL



A study of the wrappers reproduced on this page will show you that the imitation is a direct steal, word for word. The only difference being in the portrait which takes the place of that of DR. CHASE and the name DR. ROSS. The company name at the bottom was, by the way, purely fictitious as was also the registration number. Not only were the wrappers the same color, but the pills, the wooden boxes, the inside labels, were all just as like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as they could be made.

Such a deliberate attempt to defraud the unsuspecting public and steal the reputation of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills had never previously come to our attention, and an appeal was immediately made to the courts to stop by injunction the sale of the imitation. This was followed by an action for $50,000.00 damages against Mr. Ethier and the discontinuance of the manufacture and sale of the imitation.

Our object in telling you about this is to show how particular one must be when buying Dr. Chase's medicines. While not many dealers will take the chances of punishment which Mr. Ethier did by directly imitating the medicines, very many have some substitute to offer and will try to talk you into accepting it in place of the genuine. Why? There is only one reason. More profit. Medicine is one thing on which you cannot afford to take chances. Always remember that an imitation is like the original in name only and insist on getting what you ask for.

DOCTOR SAID HE HAD DIABETES

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cleared Out Every Trace of It.

That's Why Mr. David Heon, of Nicolet Co., Quebec, Is Recommending the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy to His Neighbors.

St. Wenceslas, Nicolet Co., Que., Jan. 19th. (Special).—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by the doctor, and he told me that all trace of diabetes had disappeared."

This is the statement of Mr. David Heon, well known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the remedy that never fails to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's Disease is that all of these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by disordered kidneys failing to do their work.

Mr. Richard Cunningham and Miss Myrtle Miller, both of Alliston, were united in marriage by Rev. G. I. Craw, on Wednesday, January 7th.

MAY DESTROY SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

The Roman hierarchy in Ontario is becoming fearful that the bilingual agitation carried on by French fanatics will endanger the entire separate school system. Nor is it mistaken. There is a growing undercurrent of feeling against the French propaganda and the fact that priests and nuns have encouraged rebellion against the government school inspectors has turned indignation against sectarianism in the schools. If the agitation of Belcourt, Genest, Bourassa and Lavergne only keeps up a little longer, we may soon see an advantage of a revolutionary nature secured by the forces of English Protestantism in Ontario.

A week ago, Vicar-General Corbett, speaking at high mass in a Cornwall Church, pointed out that sectarian schools were fostered by the government in spite of very pronounced, if kindly, sentiment against them on the part of the majority. He saw no reason why Protestant inspectors should not be sent to supervise a system which the government of a Protestant province aided and protected, and he considered it highly dangerous that laymen seeking notoriety or selfish ends should place themselves in active opposition to the government. People, he said, who countenanced such tactics WERE NOT ACTING IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE WISHES NOR HAD THEY THE APPROVAL OF THE AUTHORITIES OF THE ROMAN CHURCH IN ONTARIO, and they might endanger the system, which was a vital factor in the progress of the church.

It is seldom that a Roman church dignity puts the position of his church in so reasonable a light. He realizes that there is more than bigotry in the demand for a common school system, and that it is not an extreme measure to appoint Protestants to see that an efficient education is given in schools where the catechism is taught. He suggests that gratitude, a quality so seldom shown by Romanists who have privileges conceded them out of good nature, should lead Roman Catholics to accept gracefully the present situation.

While we believe our cause will make greater headway if the Vicar-General's advice is ignored, we are pleased to commend the attitude of the highest Roman church authorities in Ontario as he states it. We would not be surprised, however, if this policy is over-ruled by Rome, for there can be no question that the Vatican is disposed to put the control of the church in Canada into the hands of the French race. Already the entire government of the church in Western Canada and Quebec is composed of French prelates, and the French are more and more influencing the course of the church in Ontario, as Bishops Fallon and Scollard and Archbishop Gauthier can tell. This is inviting disaster, as anybody knows who understands the favorite tactics of the French hierachy, but Rome fails to take to heart the lessons of innumerable blunders. If she will but blunder on a little longer in this province, she will receive the greatest setback she has ever received on the American continent. And not without ample warning.—Orange Sentinel.

CONSERVATIVES MEET.

County Association Holds Its Annual Conclave.

John A. Cornellius Is Again Elected President.

The annual meeting of the Dufferin Conservative Association was held in the town hall, Shelburne, on Friday afternoon, Jan. 9th, 1914. President John Cornellius occupied the chair. There were between 75 and 100 representatives from different parts of the county and the meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—John Cornellius, re-elected president; Dr. Berwick, re-elected vice-president; R. E. Mortimer, B.S. A., re-elected sec.-treas.; Wm. Pacey, hon.-pres. The vice-presidents for municipalities elected are as follows: Melancthon, John Henselwood, Corbetton; Mulmur, John Reburn, Whitfield; Mono, Hilliard Anderson, Camilla; Amaranth, Thos. Reid, Shelburne; East Garafraxa, Trueman Hall, Grand Valley; East Luther, John Cunningham, Grand Valley; Grand Valley, T. C. Hamilton; Orangeville, Jas. E. Booth; Shelburne, R. A. Riky. President Cornellius thanked the Association for the honor conferred in re-electing him to the honorable position of president.

Mr. John Foley, of The Orangeville Sun, introduced the subject of appointing officials and thought all applicants should be approved and recommended by the Executive Committee of the Association. John Best, M.P., replied to Mr. Foley and the discussion dropped.

The Committee on Resolutions, Messrs. S. C. McKee, R. A. Riky and Vance A. Statia, brought in the following resolutions, which were carried unanimously:—

I. We, the Conservative Association of the County of Dufferin, in our annual meeting assembled, take this opportunity of expressing our continued confidence in the Honorable R. L. Borden as leader of the Conservative Party in the Dominion of Canada and wish to express our appreciation of the great work being carried on by him as Premier of our Dominion, not only on behalf of our own country, but on behalf of the Empire of which we form so important a part.

We further wish to express our unbounded confidence in the stand taken by the Honourable Mr. Borden in connection with the share borne by Canada in the construction and maintenance of the Imperial navy.

We further express our entire confidence in the administrative abilities of the Honourable Mr. Borden and his colleagues in the cabinet, and express the hope that they may long continue to govern the affairs of our Dominion in the very best interests of the British Empire.

II. That we, the Conservative Association of the County of Dufferin, in our annual meeting assembled, wish to express our great sorrow by reason of the very serious illness through which our beloved Premier, Sir James P. Whitney, is now passing. We recognize in him one of the statesmen of the British Empire.

We feel that the withdrawal of the mind of Sir James P. Whitney from the politics of Ontario will be a national calamity and we join with Conservatives and Liberals throughout this Province in hoping that he may speedily be restored to his office of usefulness as Premier of this Province.

As leader of the Conservative Party and as Premier of the Province of Ontario, we have learned to love and respect and recognize in him a power seldom found in the political arena. May we venture to express the hope that for years yet to come we may have at the head of our political affairs, he, who was bold enough to be honest and honest enough to be bold.

III. We desire to express our unbounded confidence in the work of both our Dominion member, John Best, and the stand taken by C. R. McKeown, in the local House, in the upholding of their respective leaders on the naval bill and the bilingual question. It is our desire to witness the day when not only Ontario but the Dominion of Canada will be under one tongue and the language of our Mother Country. It is the desire of the Conservatives of Dufferin that Canada contribute its share to the British navy in men and ships so as to retain as in former centuries its naval supremacy of the world.

After the general business had been concluded C. R. McKeown, M.P.P., was called on to address the meeting. He paid a glowing tribute to his leader, Sir James Whitney, as Premier of Ontario, who is now seriously ill and whose recovery is despaired of by his thousands of admirers all over the Dominion. He reviewed at length the work done by the Ontario government during the past years and showed that he was in touch with and had a good grip of all political questions.

John Best, M.P., was the next speaker. He discussed federal politics and paid particular attention to the subject of rural mail routes, which are being opened all over Dufferin County. He was prepared to answer all questions asked in reference to rural mail routes and the difficulties in laying out the routes to the best advantage.—Free Press.

SAFE AND SURE FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are a safe and sure medicine for the little ones. They never fail to regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and cure all the minor ills of boyhood and childhood. Concerning them Mrs. Duncan Joy, Vancouver, B.C., writes: "I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house and give them to my little one whenever needed, as I think them the safest and surest remedy a mother can give her children. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail, at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mr. R. Robson has sold the property known as the Wellington Hotel, in Brampton, a boarding house, to Rev. Mr. Nixon, of Winnipeg, for $6,000. This is the second piece of property Mr. Nixon has bought in Brampton during the past six months.

Grand Valley municipal officials and salaries are:—J. A. Richardson, clerk, $70; Robert Dixon, assessor, $30; Wm. McKinley, treasurer, $25; Dr. McClelland, M.O.H., $10; S. Tate and G. M. Lawson, auditors, each $6; A. A. Hughson, solicitor; James McKinley, member Local Board of Health; George Tough, Library representative for 3 years.

In the case of Horan vs. Township of Albion heard at Osgoode Hall the appeal was dismissed with costs. Last October in the County Court Mr. Horan sued for $500 damages for injuries from being thrown from his horse by reason of the horse slipping into a hole in the road. He got judgment for $100 and costs. The case was appealed by the township and the township will now have to pay the four hundred dollars and costs.

Mono Mills Dramatic Club Scores Big Success in Opera House on Friday Night

Comedy-Drama Presented Under Auspices of St. Mark's A.Y.P.A. Draws Capacity Audience

The Mono Mills Dramatic Club staged the play "The Country Squire" before an enthusiastic and appreciative audience in the Town Hall on Friday night last. The large auditorium was packed to the doors. Seats were placed in the aisles to accommodate the overflow and even at that a number of people were turned away. Shortly after eight o'clock the play commenced. The scene of the drama is in the vicinity of Mono Mills. The farm of Squire Eben Gray is heavily mortgaged. John Tarbox, who is a miser, store keeper, postmaster and double-dyed villian, holds the mortgage. Oil is struck on the adjoining property. The Squire is offered $10,000 by a Mr. Ross, representing a Toronto firm of financiers, for his farm of 20 acres, if he can locate oil on his land. The Squire must have money to work the drill and asks old Tarbox to lend him $1000 more. Tarbox will lend it only on the condition that the Squire's beautiful daughter, Alice, becomes his wife. The Squire flies into a rage and beats the old miser unmercifully. Presto! In jumps the hero, Ben Carlton, who immediately starts to defend the fair Alice's good name, by taking the tar out of Tarbox's hide. Tarbox swears to get even with Ben and plots to make him a thief by placing money in his pocket and then accusing him. At the same time that the miser is placing the package in Ben's pocket, the Squire is taking a snapshot of his darling betrothed, Cynthia Brown, and unknown to all concerned the malicious deed is recorded in the picture. Shortly after, Ben is arrested, but stoutly maintains his innocence. In the meantime drilling operations are going on, also the time is drawing near for the mortgage to be closed. No oil is found and Tarbox gloats, thinking he will soon be in possession of the property and eject the Squire and household into the cold world.. The day arrives when the mortgage is to be foreclosed. The oil drilling apparatus breaks, and several trips are made to Armstrong's foundry for repairs. It is nearly midnight and no oil. Coming in the distance are seen Tarbox and the Sheriff, with a number of followers. The Squire immediately gathers his little band of braves and the onslaught starts. Sally, the hilarious little servant, explodes a charge of nitro-glycerine in the well. Oil flows. The financier, Mr. Ross, hands over the $10,000 to the Squire, who in turn pays off the mortgage. At the trial of Ben Carlton, the photo is produced by Jack Carter, proving Ben's innocence. Ben forgives Tarbox. The play ends with an old fashioned dance in the Squire's home.

The play throughout was intensely interesting and the players are to be congratulated on their dramatic ability. The Squire, Mr. John E. Jackson, took the role remarkably well. Miss Ina Taylor, as Alice Gray, acted with gracefulness and charm, and in the love scene looked pretty in her shyness. Miss Annie Holmes, as Cynthia Brown, came in for a great deal of applause. Miss Ella Taylor as Biddy McGuire and Mr. Ed. Patterson as Barney McGuire, her husband, and Sheriff, brought the house down with their Irish witticisms and pranks. Miss Ethel Mason took the part of Sally splendidly, but the Squire's cider seemed to be her only failing. Without Solomon Isaacs, the Hebrew peddlar, the audience would have lost many a hearty laugh. Mr. Cecil Wellwood taking this role to perfection. Mr. Jackson Holmes, as Jack Carter, Ben's true friend, acted well. Mr. Elgin Holmes as Judge Hardacre, made a capable judge. Mr. W. Jackson as Mr. Ross, the financier, was good. The rather difficult role of John Tarbox was capably sustained by Mr. Austin Fagan.

Between the acts St. Mark's orchestra, under the able leadership of Mr. E. H. Smith, rendered rapturous music. This orchestra is a great attraction at any entertainment, and the artists are to be commended for the high class of music they give to the public.

The Play was given under the auspices of St. Mark's A.Y.P.A., which will net a tidy sum out of the venture. The evening's proceeds were about $110. Everybody was delighted with the clever work of the Mono Mills players and they are assured of another bumper house should they visit Orangeville at any future time.

A Christmas Day Reunion

A very happy and interesting event occurred at the beautiful home of Mr Carver and Miss C. G. Simpson, The Maples, on Christmas Day. The guests included brothers and sister, nephews and nieces, some being from Toronto, Napanee, Mono Centre and Newark, N.J., and other distant points. The house looked charming with its decorations, English and American holly and red bells. The Christmas tree looked gay with its presents, everybody being remembered with beautiful gifts. The tables were artistically decorated with holly, smilax, maidenhair fern and elegant pink carnations in tall cut glass vases. The delicacies were all that could be desired and were served under the capable supervision of Miss Margaret Ingraham, one of Orangeville's best caterers. She was assisted by four daintily dressed maids who served in excellent style. In the evening the dining room looked sweet with softly shaded candles in old fashioned candlesticks of four generations past. Some were not present through illness and the two great, great aunts, Mrs. Lowry, of Moorefield, and Mrs. Wilcox, of Toronto, regretted not being present on account of the distance, though still quite active. The day was somewhat marred by the memory of the death of a very dear nephew, who passed away some months ago. In the afternoon the guests were photographed. One interesting feature of the day was that the family had not been together before for twenty years.—Com.

Turner-Small.

At the residence of Wm. Small, "Clifton Farm," Amaranth townline, on Wednesday, Dec. 24th, 1913, at 5 o'clock p.m., a large gathering of relatives and friends met at the celebration of the marriage of Wilfred J. Turner, of Toronto, contractor, and son of Mr. and Mrs. John Turner, of Camilla, to Miss Ella May Small, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Small. The bride was given away by her brother, R. J. Small, of Chatham. The bridesmaid was the groom's sister, Bessie, of Toronto, while the bride's brother, Edward, was groomsman. The ceremony was performed under a decorated arch of evergreens. At the close of the playing of the wedding march, Rev. Dr. Caldwell, M.A., B.D., of Shelburne, performed the marriage ceremony. After congratulations the party retired to the dining hall where a rich dinner was provided. The bride and groom are highly esteemed. The presents were numerous and costly, the groom's gift to the bride being a set of mink furs, to the bridesmaid a pearl and amethyst pendant, to the groomsman a pearl tie pin and to the organist, Miss Lottie Christian, of Toronto, a pair of veil pins set with pearls. Mr. and Mrs. Turner will reside in Toronto.—Free Press.

A Silver Wedding.

On New Year's Day Mr. and Mrs. John A. Simpson celebrated their silver wedding at their home near Waldemar. Guests to the number of about thirty assembled to wish the bride and groom of twenty-five years many years of continued happiness and prosperity. Among those present from a distance were Rev. and Mrs. Crawford Tate, of Bluevale, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tate, of Lucknow, Miss Edna Smith, of Toronto, Miss Jennie MacArthur, Orangeville, Mr. J. Choate, Toronto, and Mrs. Simpson's aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Tate, of Grand Valley. Messrs. T. J. and Roy Simpson, of Toronto Medical School, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, were also home.

Death of Geo. Dodds.

Mr. Geo. Dodds, one of the oldest residents of the Primrose district, passed away at his home, "Echo Mead," Primrose, on January 7th, 1914, in his 74th year. Deceased had been ill for three years, but was only confined to his bed for eight weeks prior to his demise. The late Mr. Dodds was born in Mono township in the vicinity of Blount on May 24th, 1840 and was of United Empire Loyalist parentage. He taught school at Stanton, Mulmur township, from 1862 to 1867 and at Relesney in Mono from 1867 until 1869. In February, 1869, he moved to Primrose, where he opened a general store, which he conducted until he retired to his farm in 1909. He was also appointed postmaster, which position he continued to hold until his death. On April 8th, 1864, while living at Stanton, Mr. Dodds married Miss Mary Anne Frarey, eldest daughter of the late John and Margaret Frarey, of Mulmur. His widow and a family of five sons and two daughters survive. The sons and daughters are J. Frarey Dodds, onetime license inspector for Dufferin, Jonathan W. Dodds, of Edmonton, Alta.; Thos. H. Dodds and Geo. B. Dodds, of Winnipeg; Jas. G. Dodds, at home; Mrs. G. L. Shipley, Ailsa Craig, and Miss Mary B. Dodds at home. He is also survived by two brothers and three sisters, namely, Wm. J. Dodds, Mono, Jas. Dodds, Orangeville, Mrs. Jas. Hamilton and Mrs. Samuel Raney, Tottenham, and Mrs. Jas. Hollinger, Toronto. The funeral, which was largely attended, was held to Primrose Presbyterian cemetery on Friday, January 9th, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Bell-Smith, of Hornings Mills, assisted by Rev. J. A. Black, of Mono Mills. The sorrowing ones have the sympathy of the community in the bereavement that has befallen them.

Death of Mrs. McQuarrie

An old and greatly esteemed resident of Orangeville passed away on Wednesday, Jan. 7th, in the person of Mrs. Flora McQuarrie, relict of the late James McQuarrie, formerly a grain merchant in this town. The deceased, who was 75 years of age, had not been enjoying good health for the last two years or longer and her death was not unexpected. The end came quietly and peacefully as befitted the close of a good and useful life. Mrs. McQuarrie was a member of one of the oldest families of Caledon township, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Lamont, being among the early residents. She was born on the second line, east, and in 1860 was married to Mr. McQuarrie, who died in 1906. In 1887 the family moved to Orangeville and have since made their home in this town. The late Mrs. McQuarrie was a woman of a quiet, kindly disposition and was greatly beloved not only by the members of her own domestic circle but by a large circle of neighbors, friends and acquaintances. By her kindness, her courtesy and her gentle manners she made friends of all who came within the range of her influence. She is survived by four sons—William, of Los Angeles, Cal., Dr. J. K., of Chicago, Daniel, of Rainey River and Neil, of Orangeville. The funeral took place from her late residence to St. Andrew's Church cemetery, 4th line, east, on Friday afternoon, Jan. 9th, when many old friends and neighbors were present to pay their last mark of respect. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. M. Morris. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. Fairbairn, Thos. Wright, D. McPherson, Thos. McKay, James Lamont and Geo. Laughlin.

Death of Nurse Bracken

The many friends of Nurse Bracken learned with sincere regret of her death which occurred in Dauphin hospital on Wednesday morning. She had been in poor health for some time past, and last Saturday, Dr. Rogers in consultation with Dr. Poole, of Neepawa, decided that an operation was necessary. This was performed on Tuesday, and she only survived a few hours. Dr. Halpenny, of Winnipeg, was in attendance with Dr. Rogers.

Nurse Bracken was held in the highest esteem by her sister nurses and by all with whom she was acquainted. Her only sister, Mrs. Geo. Moon, of Kelwood, was constantly in attendance, and to her it is a sad blow.

The remains were taken to Kelwood on Friday, and the funeral took place from Knox church. Rev. Fleming, of Dauphin, assisted in the service which was most impressive, a very wide circle of acquaintances being present.

The pallbearers were Messrs. F. Walton, T. Mabley, E. Cliff, J. Brown, W. Cawston and H. Bristow. The floral tributes were numerous and most beautiful, and were borne by eight young ladies, friends of the deceased—Miss L. Tremaine, I. Brown, E. Hamilton, V. McKone, I. Murray, M. Baudy, E. Beford and M. Mabley. They consisted of:—wreath, Ladies Aid of Knox Church, Kelwood; wreath, Young People's Society, Kelwood; anchor, Dauphin doctors; broken heart, Sister Mary; wreath, hospital graduate nurses; wreath, hospital directors; cross, Hospital Aid Society; wreath, Staff, hospital nurses; spray, Nurses Laura, and Edna Wilson; spray, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. King; spray, Dr. and Mrs. Rogers; spray, Miss Dorothy Clark; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Hall.

Much sympathy is extended to the father, who is lying very low at Borden, Sask., also to Mrs. G. Moon, of Kelwood, and the brothers—John, William, Bonnar, Stanley, and George, all of whom live in Borden, excepting John, who is in Michigan, —Neepawa, Man., Press.

The deceased was a niece of Messrs. Hugh Bracken and Edward Jenkins, of Mono.

Gordon Lackey

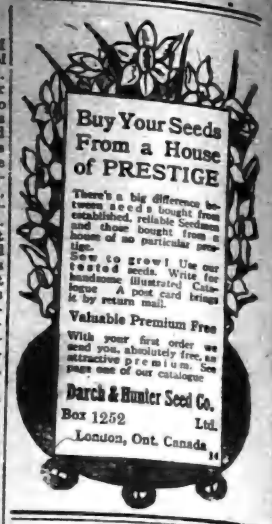
We regret to report the death of Mr. Gordon Lackey, youngest son of Mr. Samuel Lackey, of this town. The young man had been ailing for some time and about three weeks ago was obliged to give up his work as C.P.R. baggage man at Dundalk and come home. On his arrival here he went to Lord Dufferin hospital where he was given the best of medical attendance and nursing. Mr. Lackey, who was 20 years of age, was formerly in the employ of Hill & Co. here. Two years ago he went out West, but indifferent health caused him to return to Ontario. He was well thought of and popular amongst his friends and associates and his untimely demise will be keenly regretted. He is survived by his father, two brothers, Thos., of Dundalk, and William, of Orangeville, and four sisters, Misses Lizzie, Abigail and Margaret, of Toronto, and Mrs. E. Beatty, of Berkeley. The funeral was held to the C.P.R. station at 9.40 this morning and the burial will take place at Markdale this afternoon. Rev. G. W. Tebbs conducted the service at the house. The pallbearers were Messrs Harry Mossop, Del Densmore, Percy Trought, Dalton Patterson, Alan Cranston and Lewis May. Among the floral tributes were a pillow from the father and sisters, an anchor from the brothers, wreaths from C.P.R. employees and Mr. and Mrs. Iredale, Toronto, and a spray from Dr. and Mrs. H. Culp, Toronto.

Mrs. Jackson Potter

After an illness which was borne with true Christian spirit and fortitude, Mrs. Potter, wife of Mr. Jackson Potter, one of the old residents of Caledon township, passed away at her home lot 18, con. 6, east, on Saturday morning, January 10th. The deceased lady, who had reached the advanced age of 81 years, had been unwell for some time, but was able to go around until about a week previous to her death. It seemed then that the time had come when the best of medical attention and the tender care of her family and friends were alike unavailing to further prolong her life. Mrs. Potter had been a resident of Caledon for 53 years and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss her aged husband, one son, David, and three daughters, Mrs. John A. Vance, of Mono Mills, and Misses Margaret and Isabel at home. Rev. J. A. Black, of Mono Mills, conducted the services at the funeral, which was held to Charleston cemetery on Monday, Jan. 12th. Messrs. Oswald Potter, Wm. Riddell, R. J. Potter, John Vance, Samuel Wallace and Thos. Glassford were the pallbearers.

A. Y. P. A.

As a result of the entertainment last Friday evening the Anglican Young People's Association was able to hand its Treasurer upwards of $70 after paying all expenses.



The debate on Monday evening was won by the High School, which was represented by Miss Fennell and Mr. Alan Preston.

Next Monday night the programme will take the form of an Historical Evening. The Daughters of the Empire have kindly consented to furnish the programme.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The regular monthly meeting of the Orangeville Branch of the Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. J. D. Torrie, 1st Ave., on Tuesday, the 27th inst. at 4 p.m. Subjects, "Wisdom in Shopping" by Mrs. Geo. Allen and "Table Etiquette" by Miss Ritchie. Special music. All interested are invited to attend.

Mayor Oliver, of Fort Arthur, who was re-elected to the position of chief magistrate for the second time, was presented with a gift of $1500 by the Council for his services rendered during 1913.

Congregational Meeting

The congregation of St. Andrew's Church held its annual business meeting on Thursday evening last. Prior to the business meeting the ladies served tea in the Prayer Meeting Room and the Sunday School orchestra discussed sweet music in the Sunday School room. There was an unusually large tournout of the members and a lively interest was evident in the business proceedings. Reports from the various departments and church organizations were of a most encouraging character. The report of the session showed a membership of 473 as compared with 401 a year ago. One hundred and fifteen new members were received during the year and losses by death, removal and withdrawal totalled 43. The Treasurer, Mr. C. V. Jeffers, reported a balance of $190.10 on general fund account. The running expenses for the year were about $3000. About $690 was raised by the congregation for mission purposes. The Board of Managers was enlarged from 9 to 12 members. Messrs. Oliver Sproul, J. H. Kearns and D. Young, the three retiring members were re-elected. The three new members are Messrs. S. Trimble, I. J. Murphy and J. S. Robertson. The other officers were appointed as follows:—Treasurer General Fund, C. V. Jeffers; assistant treasurers, Misses Brown and Donaldson; Treasurer Mission Funds, Dr. R. Lecture on Tuberculosis.

Arrangements have been completed for a Free Illustrated Lecture on the subject of Tuberculosis, to be given in the Town Hall, Orangeville, on Sunday evening, February 22nd, after the church services. The lecture will be given by Rev. J. H. Dyke, the Field Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association. The Lantern Views used in illustration and the lucid explanation thereof make up a fine evening's instructive entertainment. His Worship, Mayor Island, has kindly consented to fill the chair. Everybody duly interested in the saving of human life and the preservation of human health will find real profit in the lecture.

Orangeville Boy Scouts.

His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, Governor General, sends the following message to the Orangeville Boy Scouts:

"As Chief Scout I cordially wish the most happy and useful of New Years to all Boy Scouts and a substantial increase in the numbers and efficiency of the Association."

Carrying out of the Scout Law; efficiency in doing your good turn daily; efficiency by endeavoring to get the best you possibly can out of your troop and for your troop and Orangeville Troop will attain a degree of success without its peer in the Province. Meeting next Friday at Seven o'clock sharp. Tenderfoot tests will be proceeded with. None others need attend this week.

Next week a first lesson in Scout Photography.

Public Library Entertainment

An Entertainment will be given in the Town Hall, Charleston, on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, under the auspices of Caledon Public Library. The programme will be furnished by the Young People's Dramatic Club, which will present the popular Play, "My Old New Hampshire Home." This Play has been given in many towns and villages and has always been well received. It will doubtless furnish the Charleston people with an enjoyable evening's entertainment. Doors open at 7.45; Play at 8.15. Admission—reserve seats, 35c; general, 25c; children under twelve, 15c.

Camilla Dramatic Club.

Camilla Dramatic Club will present the Play, "My Old New Hampshire Home," in the Opera House, Orangeville, on Friday evening next, January 23rd. The Play will be given under the joint auspices of the Daughters of the Empire and the Charity Society and the proceeds will be divided between the Orangeville hospital and the Charity Society. The Play is well staged by the Camilla Club and should furnish an excellent evening's entertainment. A good orchestra will furnish music between acts. Curtain rises at 8 o'clock. Admission, 25c and 15c.

Fifteenth Anniversary.

About thirty-five guests from Brampton, Islington, Erindale, Shelburne and Grand Valley assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Coulter on New Year's Day to celebrate the 15th anniversary of their marriage. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bridesmaid, Mrs. D. A. Cameron, of Alton, was present, as was the groomsman, James I. Young, of Brampton. After a sumptuous dinner was partaken of, toasts were proposed and responded to and a most pleasant time was spent by all. Mrs. Coulter received many valuable presents, beautiful bouquets of American Beauty roses, cut glass, etc., and the best wishes of those assembled for many years of happiness.

The Bankers' Trophy

Dufferin County Curlers held the opening bonspiel for The Bankers' Trophy on Orangeville ice on Monday. Two rinks from Grand Valley, Shelburne and Orangeville competed. Grand Valley rinks were both beaten in the morning game. In the afternoon Shelburne downed the two local rinks and as a consequence carried the Trophy with them when they returned home at night. The Northerners will now defend the Trophy against any rinks from the other two clubs which may see fit to challenge for it. The results of Monday's games follow:—

Agricultural Society Meeting

The Dufferin Agricultural Society held its annual meeting in the Public Library Auditorium on Saturday afternoon. There was quite a large turnout of the members and a healthy interest was evinced in the proceedings. The financial statement presented by the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. H. Endacott, showed the finances of the Society to be in a flourishing condition, with a balance of about $800 in the treasury. The question of a spring show was discussed, and it was decided to hold the show again this year. The incoming directorate was empowered to make additions and alterations to the prize list as deemed advisable. The field crop competition will be held as usual. The Society decided to dispense with the services of government judges President Leighton, who tendered his resignation, was offered a fourth term, but insisted upon his resignation being accepted. Mr. W. Marshall Green was selected as his successor. Mr. A. E. Annis was appointed secretary-treasurer at the directors' meeting in the stead of Sheriff Endacott, who resigned. The 1914 officers are:—

President—W. M. Green.
1st Vice-Pres.—Jos. Gillespie.
2nd Vice-Pres.—John Park.

Sad Shooting Fatality.

Thomas James Wardell, 11 years old, was accidentally shot on Friday by another lad named Robt. Boyd, while the two were playing at the home of the mother of the latter, a widow, living near Thessallon and died within a few minutes. While together in the living room Boyd picked up a shotgun and, as he claims, the trigger caught on his clothes, the entire charge entering the abdomen and passing entirely through the body. The unfortunate lad never spoke and passed away hardly knowing what happened. The victim is a son of Isaac Wardell, living near the upper bridge, four miles up the Thessallon river. Mrs. Boyd lives at Sherwood near the lower bridge, where the C. P. R. station formerly stood. The funeral took place on Sunday to Little Rapids.—Thessallon Advocate.

The unfortunate boy was a nephew of Messrs. Thos. and Chas. Wells, of this town.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

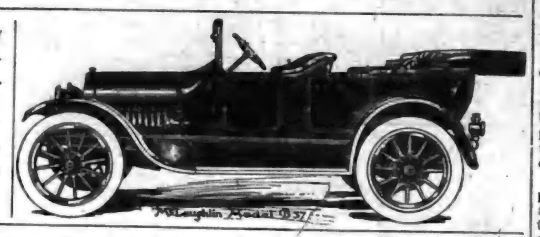
THE McLAUGHLIN-BUICK MOTOR CARS



PRICES on our six different models range from $1250 to $2800

MODEL B 25—A comfortable light, easily handled touring car, powerful enough for any service, anywhere. Develops 28 actual h. p. Finish—round front, deep tilted cushions, upholstered in black leather. Brighter parts are nickel-plated.

All models are equipped with Delco electric lighting and self cranking ignition system at no additional cost. Left side drive, and centre control. The McLaughlin Buick Overhead Valve Motor is guaranteed to develop more power, and give more mileage per gallon of gasoline than any other motor of its size, either American or foreign make, and no line of motor cars at any price can show more value than will be found in the McLaughlin Buick for 1914.

The McLaughlin Buick Six in appearance is exceedingly pleasing, the body being an example of the pure stream line effect. The riding qualities are superb. This car will give considerably better than fifteen miles to the gallon. We guarantee it to give more power and mileage than any other engine of similar dimensions.

MODEL B 37 is a large roomy car that will go anywhere, easily, economically, comfortably and enjoyably. Develops 35 actual h. p.

ADDRESS— GALBRAITH & CARNEY

AGENTS FOR DUFFERIN COUNTY, ORANGEVILLE, ONT.

Mr. Mark Wilson built a fox corral last summer and has had in his possession nine or ten red foxes. These were in a wire enclosure covered over with wire, and a cement floor, the wire being imbedded in the cement. Notwithstanding all these precautions Mr. Wilson has but five foxes now left. Some time ago one got out in some mysterious manner, another broke its neck against the wire, and one night last week the cute little animals found a weak spot in the wire and three broke through to liberty. Since then some of the hen roosts in town have suffered. B. Welton losing twelve fowl. These losses of fully fifty dollars worth of foxes will be charged up to experience.—Flesherton Advance.

Kimberley had a successful poultry show the week before last.

PEEL'S OPPORTUNITY TO VOTE THE BAR OUT

By THE CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT.

Jan. 29th, 1914.

A SYNOPSIS OF THE ACT.

At the Peel County Convention of Temperance Workers, held in Brampton on Thursday, March 27th, at which representatives for all the municipalities in the County were present it was unanimously decided to submit the Canada Temperance Act to the county. In order to do this a petition must be signed by twenty-five per cent. of the electors qualified to vote at an election of a member of the House of Commons, which embraces Parts I. and III. of the Voters' List.

The main features of the Act are as follows:

PROHIBITION:

No person shall, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent

(a) Expose or keep for sale, within any such county or city, sell or barter, or, in consideration of the purchase of any other property, give to any other any intoxicating liquor, or

(b) directly or indirectly on any pretence, or upon any device within any such county or city, sell or barter, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property, give to any other any intoxicating liquor, or

(c) send, ship, bring or carry or cause to be sent, shipped, brought, or carried to or into any such county, or city, any intoxicating liquor; or

(d) deliver to any consignee, or other person, or store, warehouse, or keep for delivery, any intoxicating liquor so sent, shipped, brought or carried.

RELATION TO OTHER LICENSES:

No act done in violation of the provisions of this section shall be rendered lawful by reason of any license issued to any distiller or brewer, or steambont, or any license of any other description whatever.

EXCEPTIONS:

(1) Paragraphs c and d above quoted "shall not apply to any intoxicating liquor sent, shipped, brought or carried to any person or persons for his or their personal or family use, except it be so sent, shipped, brought or carried to be paid for in such county or city, to the person delivering the same, his clerk, servant, or agent or his master or principal, if the person delivering it is himself a servant or agent.

(2) The sale of intoxicating liquor for exclusively medicinal purposes, upon the certificate of a legally qualified physician, may be made by druggists specially licensed to make such sales in quantities not exceeding ten ounces at one time. The druggist shall file all such certificates and prescriptions and shall record every sale in a book kept for the purpose giving full particulars of each and every sale. This file and book shall be kept for inspection at all times and a return of all such sales shall be made yearly to the collector of Inland Revenues.

Such licenses may be issued to two druggists in town or one in a township.

PENALTIES:

Every one who by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, violates this Act shall be liable to the following penalties, 1st offence, $50.00 or one month imprisonment; 2nd offence, $100.00 or two months' imprisonment; 3rd offence, 4 months' imprisonment.

SEARCH:

The Act authorizes the search of any and all premises and the finding of liquor or any appliances usually used in the sale of liquor is evidence of violation of the Act.

Heavy penalties are provided for any attempt to tamper with any witness.

LAW ENFORCEMENT:

The C. T. Act as it exists to-day is a different measure in many respects from the Scott Act of thirty years ago. It is simple in its forms, definite in its details and provision for its enforcement has been included in the Ontario Liquor License Act as follows:—

Section 149 Ontario Liquor License Act "All the provisions of Sections 127, 128, 144, 145, 146 and 147 of this Act shall be applicable to municipalities in which the second part of the Canada Temperance Act is in force."

Section 146 Ontario L. L. A. referred to above, reads "The Board of License Commissioners and the Inspectors appointed under this Act shall exercise and discharge all their respective powers and duties for the enforcement of the provisions of The Temperance Act of 1864, and the second part of the Canada Temperance Act as well as of this Act, so far as the same apply, within the limits of any county, city or incorporated village or township within which the Canada Temperance Act is in force."

RELATION TO LOCAL OPTION.

When the Canada Temperance Act is passed in any county in which there is one or more municipalities already under Local Option, it does not annul or make void the Local Option law but merely takes precedence to it while it, (the C.T.A.) is in force. But should the C.T.A. be repealed the said municipalities would still maintain their local option until it was repealed under the provisions of the Ontario Liquor License Act.

MONO EAST PARISH.

After a pastorate of three years and two months the Rev. R. J. W. Perry on Dec. 28th conducted farewell services to large congregations. Before his departure to the parish of Innisfil, near Barrie, he and Mrs. Perry were the recipients of many tokens of esteem. The members of Mono Mills congregation assembled at the rectory and presented the rector with an upholstered chair and Mrs. Perry with a music cabinet, accompanied by the following address:

St. John's Church,
Mono Mills.

Dear Mr. Perry:

The members of the above church having learned, with deep regret, that you and Mrs. Perry were about to sever your connection with us, cannot allow you to leave without showing our appreciation of the way you have labored among us for the past three years. You have endeared yourselves to the members of the congregation and as a small token of our love and esteem we ask you to accept this cabinet and chair. We hope you may be spared to enjoy them for many, many years and assure you that you carry our best wishes with you to your new field of work.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

Archibald Speers,
Geo. S. Jackson, Wardens

At the annual Christmas Tree, Mr. Perry, who was also presented with a travelling writing case and Mrs. Perry received from the W. A. two brushes in German silver enclosed in an alligator leather case with the following words of appreciation:—

My dear Mrs. Perry:—The members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's, Mono Mills, wish to express their appreciation of your untiring efforts in behalf of this branch of the church work. They desire you to accept this very slight token of their love and esteem and hope that you may have every blessing attend you in your new field of work.

Signed on behalf of the W. A.
Elizabeth Mills, President.

Members of the St. John's Mono branch of the W. A., together with their husbands, met a week later at the rectory and presented Mrs. Perry with a dozen silver spoons and an address. On Dec. 29th at a public missionary meeting under the auspices of the W. A., when the Rev. G. W. Tebbs delivered a very much appreciated lecture on the Island of Ceylon, illustrated by beautiful lantern views, the members of the W. A. presented the following address accompanied by a library writing set finished in brass and a beautiful china fern pot fitted in solid brass.

To Mr. and Mrs. Perry:

We, the members of St. John's Woman's Auxiliary, wish to express our gratitude to you for your faithful and enthusiastic co-operation in all our W. A. enterprises. You have been the means of organizing this branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, have taught us to be energetic in our work by your example and have given us the impetus to proceed with this very important phase of our church life. We hope that the results following from your endeavors and your efforts put forth to gain these will always be to the Glory of God, that you may have just cause to rejoice with us in our successes.

Not only as participants in missionary work will you be missed, but in all our social gatherings, which you have always made pleasant and profitable. We ask you to accept these slight tokens of our good-will and hope that they will cause pleasant reminiscences of St. Paul's W. A.

We wish you every success in your new field of labor and hope that God will abundantly bless you in all your endeavors.

Signed on behalf of St. Paul's W.A.
Minnie Parker, President
Bertha Christian, Secretary
Sadie Firth, Treasurer.

HAIR HINTS

Worthy the Attention of the People Who Wish to Preserve The Hair

Always have your own brush and comb at home or at hair dresser's.

Never use a brush or comb found in public places, they are usually covered with dandruff germs.

Wash your hair brush weekly with soap and warm water to which may be added an antiseptic.

Shampoo the hair every week or so with pure soap and water.

Use Parisian Sage every day, rubbing thoroughly into the scalp.

Parisian Sage, which comes in a large bottle, is guaranteed by T. Stevenson to destroy dandruff germs and abolish dandruff—to stop hair from falling and scalp from itching, or money refunded.

To put life and beauty into dull—dry or faded hair and make it soft and fluffy surely use Parisian Sage—it is one of the quickest acting hair tonics known.

Public Library Entertainment

An Entertainment will be given in the Town Hall, Charleston, on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, under the auspices of Caledon Public Library. The programme will be furnished by the Young People's Dramatic Club, which will present the popular Play, "My Old New Hampshire Home." This Play has been given in many towns and villages and has always been well received. It will doubtless furnish the Charleston people with an enjoyable evening's entertainment. Doors open at 7.45; Play at 8.15. Admission—reserve seats, 35c; general, 25c; children under twelve, 15c.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, JAN. 29th, 1914.

WARDEN DRYDEN

Melancthon's Reeve Unanimously Chosen for Highest Office in Gift of County.

Proceedings at January Meeting of Dufferin County Council.

Dufferin County Council for 1914 is in session in the Court House here this week. The opening sederunt was held on Tuesday afternoon, with the members all present as follows:—
Mono—J. A. Marshall, reeve; T. J. Parks, deputy-reeve.
Mulmur—John Reburn, reeve; Elijah Kidd, deputy-reeve.
Melancthon—T. C. Dryden, reeve; Jas. Clarke, deputy-reeve.
Amaranth—A. E. Williams, reeve; Reuben West, deputy-reeve.
East Luther—H. H. Hilborn, reeve;
East Garafraxa—Manasseh Ferns, reeve.
Orangeville—J. J. White, reeve; Thos. Arnott, deputy-reeve.
Shelburne—H. Falconer, reeve.
Grand Valley—Lewis Menary, reeve.

The first business taken up was the election of Warden. Two candidates were proposed—Reeve Dryden, of Melancthon, nominated by Messrs. Falconer and Reburn and Reeve Hilborn, of East Luther, nominated by Messrs. Menary and West. Mr. Hilborn, who is considered the probable choice for 1915, provided he is re-elected, made a neat speech, at the close of which he asked his proposer and seconder to allow him to withdraw in favor of Mr. Dryden. The latter was therefore declared the unanimous choice of the Council. The Warden-elect was sworn in by Judge Fisher and after being escorted to the Warden's chair tendered his fellow-councillors his hearty thanks for the honor they had conferred upon him.

A number of communications were presented by County Clerk J. C. Reid. The County Council of Perth expressed the opinion that a large part of the $10,000,000 appropriated by the Federal Government for the promotion of agricultural interests could be profitably employed in cleaning out and deepening streams and water ways. Alex. Firth, treasurer of the Dufferin Teachers' Institute, submitted a statement of the finances of that organization and asked for a grant sufficient to defray the cost of printing and distributing uniform promotion papers. Mr. A. E. Amis, Secretary of the Dufferin Agricultural Society, submitted the auditors' report on the Society's books for 1913. The following accounts were presented by the institutions named for County of Dufferin pupils:—Meaford High School, $44.50; Owen Sound Collegiate, $84.88; Dundalk High School, $229.54.

Messrs. Menary, Reburn, Falconer, Ferns, Marshall, Williams and Hilborn were appointed a Committee to strike the various Standing Committees. These were selected as follows, the member first named being chairman in each instance:

Finance—Menary, Falconer, Marshall, Kidd and Clarke.
County Property—White, Parks, Reburn, Ferns, West and Falconer.
Assessment—Marshall, Arnott, Williams, White, Ferns and Kidd.
Education—Falconer, Reburn, Arnott, Hilborn, Marshall and West.
Legislation — Williams, Hilborn, Clarke, Parks, West and Arnott.
Roads & Bridges—Reburn, Menary, Falconer, Marshall, Williams, Ferns, White and Hilborn.

When the Council resumed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the Warden read the following address:—

To the Members of the County Council.
Gentlemen:

It is with pleasure I welcome you all to this the one hundredth Session of the County Council.

I congratulate you all on your election as Reeves and Deputy-Reeves of your respective municipalities which is a mark of the esteem in which you are held by your ratepayers.

It is a matter of congratulation that the County is in such a good condition financially, there being at present a surplus of about $3600.00 in the County Treasury, which should be sufficient to carry us along till the June session of the County Council.

There will no doubt come before you many matters which will require your closest attention and consideration. If you contemplate making the usual grants to roads I would advise you to do so at this session as it will enable the different Commissioners to have the work done early in the season which I consider is very necessary.

Owing to the Tate bridge not having been completed before the cold weather set in, the Engineer thought it advisable to leave the construction of the concrete floor over until next spring. A temporary plank floor has been put on in the meantime by the contractor at his own expense and a permanent floor will be built as soon as the weather will permit this coming season.

There are some other County bridges that will require building this season and also some that will require repairing. I would advise the Road and Bridge Committee to inspect all County bridges as early in the spring as possible, have all necessary repairs made and report all new bridges that will be required at the June session of the County Council, so that the cost of the work may be provided for when making the levy.

The contract was let to Thos. McGinn for the construction of a reinforced concrete bridge to replace the old wooden structure on the schedule of County Bridges, as No. 24. I understand the contractor is prepared to proceed with this work as soon as the weather is favorable in the spring.

Owing to the great expense that the different municipalities in the County have been to on account of bridges having been taken off by the spring freshets in the last two years, I would advise different Committees to be as careful and economical as possible during the year and I know that all matters coming before you will be dealt with in your usual businesslike manner.

In conclusion let me thank you all for the honor you have conferred on myself and my municipality in electing me to the responsible position of Warden of the County of Dufferin for the year 1914. Trusting that you will give me your best assistance in performing the duties pertaining to this office and that my actions will be such as to show that your confidence in me has not been misplaced.

Yours sincerely,
THOS. C. DRYDEN,
Warden.

A Committee consisting of Messrs. Marshall, Menary, Falconer, Reburn and Arnott was appointed to consider and report on the address.

By-laws were put through making the following appointments:—Board of Criminal Audit, Reeve Marshall, of Mono, and ex-Warden Bryan; High School Trustee, W. G. Kearns; Member Board of Entrance Examiners, Principal Glenn, of Grand Valley.

County Treasurer C. R. Wheelock submitted a statement, in which he told the Council that the County is entirely free from debt with a surplus of $3605.94 on hand.

Last summer there was considerable local irritation when the C.P.R. took police court proceedings against several citizens for trespassing upon its property. It was felt that the railway company was acting in a high-handed manner, particularly as the trespassers had only been guilty of taking a Sunday afternoon stroll on the railway tracks south of the town. There is, however, more reason than may appear on the surface for the prosecution of trespassers of this class. The annual report of the Dominion Railway Board states that of the 643 persons who were killed by the railways in Canada during the year 1913, 250 or nearly 40 per cent., were persons, who had no right on the railway premises. In the year previous the proportion of those killed who were trespassers was nearly 50 per cent. So serious is the loss of life from this cause that the Railway Board has taken up with the Attorney-Generals of the different provinces the matter of prosecuting trespassers on railway tracks and crossings in order to reduce the number of fatalities.

A GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine for little ones that are sold under a guarantee to be perfectly safe. These Tablets are backed by the guarantee of a government analyst to be strictly free from opiates, narcotics and other harmful drugs. The mother may rest assured that she can give them to even the newborn babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones, and from actual experience they all say nothing can equal the Tablets in banishing childhood ailments. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail, at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Townsite Company

We learn from the Edmonton Capital that the Peace River Land and Development Company, of Edmonton, have been appointed general townsite agents for the Edmonton, Dunvegan and B. C. Railroad Company. The directors of the Company are Messrs. Peter McArthur, one of the chief officials of the E.D. & B.C. Railway Company, Andrew Hill and John W. Currie, of Edmonton, B. F. Holden, Indian Head, Sask., and W. A. Campbell, M.P.P., Ponoka. Mr. Andrew Hill, one of the Directors, was formerly a business man in Orangeville and is well known to many Banner readers. At the present time the Company is engaged selling the official townsite of Smith, the first divisional point north of Edmonton. Smith is situated 131 miles north of Edmonton at the junction of the Athabaska and Lesser Slave rivers, both of which are navigable for large steamers and freighters for many miles north and south of the town. Arrangements are being made for the erection of machine shops, a round house, water tank and station. There is already at Smith a population of about 1000 people, mostly squatters, living in shacks and tents, who have been for years awaiting the arrival of the steel and are now desirous of securing land for building purposes. The E.D. & B.C. Railway Company have about 100 men engaged on the work of erecting the huge cement piers for a big bridge that will span the Athabaska and carry the steel across the river, whence it will run westward to Peace River Crossing and through Pine Pass to Fort George.

The Peace River Land and Development Company will put other townsites on the market just as soon as the progress of the railway warrants it in doing so.

Rev. Dr. John Abraham, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Whitby, since 1880, will retire in June.

North Brant Liberals nominated Scott Davidson for the Legislature, and made a strong declaration in favor of abolition of the bar.

THE TOWN HALL

Improvements Made by 1913 Council Have Greatly Changed the Building

Description of the Interior of Renovated Auditorium

Lack of space and the rush of work usual at this season of the year have combined to prevent The Banner from making more than a brief reference to the renovated Town Hall, which was formally opened under auspicious conditions on New Year's night. Before proceeding to speak in detail of the improvements and the transformation that those have made in the comfort and utility of the building, it may not be amiss to state that the Town Hall was originally built in 1875. The building was designed to serve the double purpose of a Town Hall and Market Building. On the ground floor a large room at the east end of the building was planned for the accommodation of the Town Council, while the rooms in the westerly portion were fitted up as butcher stalls and were used for that purpose for many years. As the years rolled by the business section of the town shifted westward and the butchers followed the general drift by giving up their stalls and finding themselves more centrally situated business places on Broadway. Eventually the Town Council, which had shifted its quarters from the large Council Chamber downstairs to a smaller upstairs room off the main auditorium, decided that the new Public Library offered a more convenient and comfortable meeting place. Something like four years ago the Council furnished a new Council Chamber in the Library Building and since that time has held its meetings in the new quarters. Abandoned and disused, with the exception of the auditorium, which was still requisitioned for concerts, political gatherings and other large public meetings, the building was allowed to fall sadly out of repair. The hall has long been a reproach and a disgrace to the town. The ancient and antiquated stoves, with which successive councils made a pretence of heating the building, were a standing joke—and there were few indeed, who had not good cause to feel the joke had been carried altogether too far if they had to undergo the trying experience of sitting through a concert in zero weather.

For years town councils and private citizens had talked of renovating the building but it was not until last year that the matter got beyond the talk stage. The 1913 Council submitted a by-law to provide $3000 for town hall improvement purposes. The by-law was carried by a large majority and late in the year the work was commenced. The improvements were made in accordance with plans prepared by Mr. Chas. King, of this town. These called for a number of very material alterations in the building, particularly in the auditorium. In the old auditorium the stage was situated at the east end of the building and in the new one it is at the west and the back of the hall to the east. The roof leaked badly and it was decided to replace the old shingle covering with a new metal roof. The contract for this was let to Mr. Harry May, who did the work in a satisfactory and expeditious manner. The contract for the carpenter work, painting and decorating was awarded to Mr. John Rowan, an experienced local builder and contractor. The contract for the painting and decorating was sublet to Messrs. Fuller, Allen & Holmes. The reconstructed auditorium is 40 by 80 feet and there is a gradual drop of 9 feet from the rear to the orchestra pit. The long benches, which did duty as seats in the old hall, have been replaced by comfortable chairs with folding seats. These were manufactured by The Globe Manufacturing Co., of Waterloo, and supplied through Mr. George Beswick, the Company's local representative. There are 415 chairs, which were purchased at a cost of something over $800. The walls of the hall were repainted, the color effects produced being harmonious and very pleasing to the eye. The decorative effect includes what is described as a Grecian scroll, whereon are displayed at regular intervals some fifteen artistically executed figures. The stage is 19 feet deep by 40 feet wide and is fitted with electric footlights and a full length orchestra pit. The proscenium arch is 15 feet high and is finished in gilt and white enamel, set off with a painting of the bust of Shakespeare. The drop curtain was painted by the Great Eastern Scene Painting Company, of Toronto. Appropriate scenery and stage furnishings have been provided by the Charity Society, which has generously undertaken to bear the cost of the required stage fittings. On the ground floor are two commodious dressing rooms, which are directly connected with the stage. There is a lavatory in connection with each of the dressing rooms. Lavatories, which may be reached from the street, have also been provided for the use of the public. The electric lights and wiring were installed under the supervision of Mr. Wm. Harkies, who is an expert in this line of work. The building is now heated by a large furnace, installed by the Adamson Hardware Co. A large portion of the ground flooring was cemented, the work being done by Mr. Fred. Manning. The work, apart from the scenery and the seating, was all completed in a little more than six weeks. Notwithstanding the short time spent in making the improvements everything seems to have been done in a thorough and workmanlike manner. The result has been a complete transformation in the appearance of the hall. The auditorium in particular is now one of the finest north of Toronto, and can be easily heated even in the coldest weather. Much of the credit for the excellent job is due to Councillor A. B. Holmes and ex-Councillor T. Hepton, who were the members of last year's Property Committee and were therefore responsible in a special sense for the proper carrying out of the contracts. To their efforts and to the progressiveness of the 1913 Council, which was a unit on the question of making the improvements, is due the fact that Orangeville now has a Town Hall worthy of the name.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Ex-Reeve Goodeve Discusses Adjala Municipal Issues.

Tells Ratepayers Some of the Things that Last Year's Council Did.

To the Ratepayers of Adjala:
Gentlemen:

Now that the elections are over and I have been defeated, I consider it is my duty to thank the people of Adjala for the support they have given me, not only in the past election, but in the many elections in which I have asked for support. In all my public life I never did as well for my township as I did in the year of 1913.

In the early spring the floods were the worst we have seen in this township for many years, necessitating the building of eight new bridges, a big year's expenditure in itself. This, followed by the August flood, compelled the Council to build ten more new bridges, besides having to repair miles of road.

About two years ago the township of Mono got stuck in this manner. They issued debentures and spread the debt over fifteen years. We paid ours all at once, the better policy. Our debt is paid and no one hurt, their debt remains. The first payments of principal being so small, it costs a lot in interest to tide debentures along.

We also put in ten Ingot and Tonkins culverts, also repaired others, in all, over thirty bridges and culverts. To this list must be added the six cement bridges I built on the Government road. Those six bridges cost over $2,700. Seven hundred and some odd dollars will be charged against our appropriation and $2,000 will be paid by the County. This favor I received from my colleagues at the November session in open council. Over and above this, the County has paid for all culverts from Rosemont south to Albion and east to Tecumseth, Mono and Albion supplementing in every case out of their Township treasuries. Adjala was not asked to pay one cent for culverts on county boundaries. In the year of 1913 the County demanded from Adjala over $4,200 and I received back in grants over $2,100. In other words, I got back more than half of the amount we paid in county rates.

Now my opponent stood on the platform on nomination day and said: "This thing about county grants is all bosh. Sure, the County took that road over and they have got to build and maintain those bridges." I understand that this argument was used against me all through the campaign.

Now, I will tell those men once more that I did get a grant of $2,000 and by doing so kept the same amount off our appropriation. All municipal men know, or should know, that any bridge on county roads costing $500 or less is charged to the municipality's appropriation. Now, if I had not got this grant, Adjala would be overdrawn on her appropriations for four or five years. As it stands now, there is just about $700 of an overdraft and if the people had sent me back this year I would have got $500 more, which would have reduced the overdraft to about $200.

Now, I challenge Mr. Walsh to come forward and prove to the people that I did not get the above named grant. Don't forget the amount, $2,000. If you can't prove it then why did you say I did not get it? If Mr. Walsh was ignorant of the truth I could pardon him, but I had told him the truth about the whole business so often that I will not let him hide under the cloak of ignorance.

I have always tried to do what I thought was best for my township and now, after fifteen years service, to be told by Mr. Walsh and his friends that I am a falsifier, am I not justified in asking him to prove his assertion?

Now, Mr. Editor, I have taken more space than you may be willing to allow in one issue. I would like if Mr. Walsh would place himself on this question. Will he go to Barrie and tell the Council when assembled that I did not get the grant?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I am

Respectfully yours,
THOMAS GOODEVE.

KILLED PARENTS— —THEN SHOT HIMSELF

Edgar Simpson Shot Father and Mother and Afterwards Ended His Own Life With Rifle Bullet.

Shocking Triple Tragedy in East Garafraxa on Tuesday

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simpson, lot 3, 10th line, East Garafraxa, was the scene of a terrible triple tragedy on Tuesday. While laboring under a sudden attack of insanity Edgar Simpson, an only son, shot his father and mother, made an attempt to kill his sister, Margaret, while she was making her escape to a neighbor's, and then barricaded himself in the house, where he afterwards took his own life.

The maniac murderer, who was about 29 years of age, was a quiet, well-behaved young man, who seems to have acted quite rationally up to the time of his mad deed. He had been in poor health for some time past and had been attended by Dr. Macey, of Belwood, to whom he complained of severe pains in the back and left side of his head. On Tuesday morning, his father, a man 55 or 60 years of age, well-to-do and highly respected in the community, drove to Orton to bring home a load of chop. He returned home about 10.30 in the forenoon and drove to one of the outbuildings, where he commenced to take off his load. Almost at the moment of his arrival, Edgar came downstairs clad in his nightshirt and armed with a 32 long calibre rifle. His mother and sister were the only other persons in the house at the time. The sister is not very clear as to what happened immediately after her brother's appearance, and was almost paralyzed with terror when she saw him level the rifle and fire at her mother. As Mrs. Simpson fell to the floor the daughter ran from the house to where her father was taking off his load and told him that Edgar had shot her mother. Leaving the girl to look after the horses the father started hurriedly for the house, intending to enter through the woodshed door. As he neared the door another rifle shot rang out and the terrified girl saw her father stagger and fall. Almost beside herself with terror, the girl retained sufficient presence of mind to realize that her own life was in danger. Springing into the sleigh she turned the horses toward the road, urging them forward at a mad pace. Scarcely had she done so when the maniac stepped out of the door and started toward her, making frantic efforts in the meantime to reload the rifle with the evident intention of shooting her down in the same way as her parents. Before he could accomplish his purpose the flying horses had carried her over a small elevation and out of range of the deadly weapon. Attracted by the cries and furious driving of the fleeing girl, Sadie Gibson, the daughter of James Gibson, a farmer living across the road, ran from her home to meet Miss Simpson. Meantime Mrs. Simpson, who had only been badly wounded, had made her way from the house and crying, "I'm shot, I'm shot," started down the lane in the direction of the Gibson place. Apprised of the awful deed that had just been committed the Gibson girl courageously ran to the aid of the injured woman. She had only reached her side and taken her arm to support her, when looking back she saw the maniac following them with the rifle in his hand and a table fork firmly gripped between his teeth. The rifle was not working any too well and it is supposed that he had picked up the fork for the purpose of prying out the used cartridges. The women had only gone a few steps when he overtook them. Miss Gibson pleaded with him not to shoot his mother again. His answer was "I must—better shoot her than leave her like this." At that he levelled the rifle and fired at the injured woman. As she fell Miss Gibson begged him not to shoot her. At first he declared he would, but finally relented somewhat in his manner and words. As he proceeded to reload the rifle the girl sought safety in flight. After running some distance she heard another shot, but whether it was fired at her or into the prostrate body of Mrs. Simpson, the girl was unable to tell.

The maniac, who was still in his night clothing, returned to the house, drew down the blinds, and closed the doors. The whole neighborhood was soon aroused and in a short time fully one hundred men from surrounding farms had gathered at the scene of the tragedy. Some of them were armed with shotguns, others with rifles. Knowing that the madman was inside the house armed with a rifle and plenty of ammunition they were chary about attacking the place, but made a courageous and successful attempt to bring away the bodies of the two victims. While some of the men threatened to attack the house on one side thereby attracting the attention of the demented man, others drew near from the direction of the barn and managed to place the two bodies on a sleigh and take them from the place. Mr. Simpson, who was shot through the lower part of the body, was not killed outright, but managed to stagger for some rods back to the driving house. When recovered the body was reclining partly across a cutter that was standing inside the driving house. His hands grasped a rug, with which he had evidently attempted to staunch the fatal wound. Mrs. Simpson was still alive and lingered for a couple of hours after she was taken to Mr. Samuel Depew's house on the Fergus, road, two lots north of the scene of the tragedy. "What made Edgar do it," the dying woman moaned over and over as her life slipped away. The father's body was taken to Mr. E. E. Cook's house, on the corner opposite the Depew place. After recovering the bodies, the farmers who had gathered placed a guard in the barn and surrounded the house, effectually cutting off every possible avenue of escape.

Word of the terrible tragedy reached Orangeville over telephone shortly before twelve o'clock. Coroner Dr. James Henry and Chief Marshall were the first who were apprised of the occurrence. Coroner Henry left for the scene almost immediately and about one o'clock Chief Marshall, Nightwatchman Thos. Dawson, Dr. T. H. Henry and Robert Smith, a driver in White's livery, left with a team and double sleigh. It was 3 o'clock or later when the party reached Depew's corner and by four o'clock the officers had their plans ready for the capture of the maniac. Detailing groups of farmers to watch the house on all sides, Marshall and Dawson decided to attempt to enter the house from the rear. Approaching under shelter of the barn and other outbuildings they gained the woodshed without molestation. Pausing for a moment they made final plans to rush the house and capture their man dead or alive. They threw open the door and were surprised to find the kitchen filled with dense smoke. A moment's hesitation and they rushed in, not to be confronted by a raving maniac levelling the rifle that had already done such fatal work, but by the unexpected sight of his lifeless body lying across the floor on the far side of the kitchen stove. A moment sufficed to grasp the significance of the appalling scene. Simpson had ended his own life, by placing the muzzle of the rifle against his right side and discharging the weapon. The explosion had set fire to his clothing and this in turn had ignited the floor upon which the body lay. The flooring was hardwood and the smouldering flames made slow headway, otherwise the house might have been destroyed before the officers arrived. The clothing was burned off the upper part of the body and the trunk of the dead man was severely charred in places. Simpson was fully dressed, so that he must have dressed himself upon returning to the house after slaying his parents. The same maniacal impulse that prompted him to destroy father and mother may have impelled him to the awful act of self-destruction. Of this no one can ever be certain. It may be on the other hand that returning reason forced upon the unfortunate man the awful realization of the unnatural and inhuman crime he had so recently committed and in sheer desperation he forced himself to the last act in the sad tragedy that has desolated a happy home and cast a pall of sorrow over the entire surrounding community.

Upon ascertaining the facts of the tragedy as soon as possible after his arrival, Coroner James Henry empanelled a jury and opened an inquest in E. E. Cook's house. A number of witnesses were examined, among them Dr. Macy, of Belwood, who had attended young Simpson during his illness and who was also present with Mrs. Simpson at Depew's place for a short time before her death. The physician told the jury that Mrs. Simpson had expired about 2 o'clock. An examination of her body showed that she was shot no less than five times. Dr. Macey described the location of the wounds and stated that the woman's death was caused by shock and internal hemmorrhage. Rev. Chas. Cole, Methodist minister at Orton, deposed that he knew the family well and that their home life had always seemed unusually happy. James McBride and Samuel Depew, neighbors, told what they had heard and seen of the awful occurrence, but neither of them was an eye-witness of the shooting. Margaret Simpson, the surviving member of the family, was so broken up by the tragic occurrence that her evidence was naturally disconnected. She could assign no reason for her brother's mad act. He had been ill for a considerable time and complained a good deal of pains in his head, but had seemed better lately. Miss Sadie Gibson, who showed such pluck in attempting to save the mother, told of the shooting down of the poor woman in the lane and her own lucky escape from a similar fate. Drs. T. H. Henry, Orangeville, and A. Gibson, Hillsburg, testified as to the nature of the wounds and the condition of the bodies.

After hearing the evidence and the observations of the Coroner, the jury, after deliberating for a short time, returned a verdict to the effect that Mr. and Mrs. Simpson had met their death from bullet wounds inflicted by their son, Edgar, "who in our opinion was insane at the time he fired the shots."

The jurors were Edmund E. Cook, William Hawe, Jos. K. Thompson, Jos. A. Turner, Silas Cook, Victor Armstrong and Jas. H. Hall.

It was shortly after 7 o'clock when Coroner Henry, the officers and other members of the Orangeville party arrived in town. The news of the shooting had caused a good deal of excitement in and about the town and the members of the party were no sooner home than they were subjected to a regular fusilade of inquiries relative to the facts. The spectators who had gathered at the scene speak in terms of warmest praise of the conduct and courage of the two Orangeville officers. Although they felt that they were probably taking their lives in their hands, neither Marshall nor Dawson faltered for a moment. They made their plans carefully and carried them out courageously. When they entered the house they supposed that the maniac was still alive and awaiting their entrance with loaded rifle. They knew that he would only have time to fire once before they could reach him and the arrangement before they entered was that if the madman shot either of them the other was to rush him before he could reload.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simpson, the two victims of the dire tragedy, were old and highly esteemed residents of East Garafraxa. Mr. Simpson was a well-to-do farmer, owned a valuable property of 150 acres with fine brick house, a large bank barn and good outbuildings. He was reputed worth between $15,000 and $20,000. He was an elder in Bethel Presbyterian Church at Price's Corners and he and Mrs. Simpson were active church workers. Mr. Philip Coulson, Zina St., who was formerly a near neighbor, states that there was no family in the neighborhood that enjoyed more genuine respect. He was about 55 years of age and has two brothers in the West. Mrs. David Jestin, of Marsville, and Mrs. James Thompson, Fergus, are sisters. Mrs. Simpson was a sister of Mr. David Johnston, postmaster at Belwood. Miss Simpson, who is about 20 years of age, is spoken of as an unusually fine girl. Profound sympathy is felt for her in the terribly trying position in which she has been so suddenly placed.

Up to the time The Banner went to press, definite arrangements had not been made for holding the funeral of the three victims of the awful occurrence. The bodies, will, however, be interred in McKee's Cemetery on the 8th line, East Garafraxa, probably on Friday afternoon.

LAUREL.

A busier village you ne'er did see,
Than that wherein dwells Bumble Bee.
Now every night the bells go by,
I can scarcely close my eye.

Since that good sermon the preacher gave,
I thought Monday night they would behave,
Where are you going I did cry—
Why, to the banquet of the W. I.

On Tuesday there was so much snow,
I couldn't see where the folks c'id go,
On Wednesday night my wife said:
"Take me to the practice of the Ladies' Aid.
And you at prayer meeting can wait for me
And be an obedient Bumble Bee."

On Thursday evening the bells did ring,
For up the fifth you could hear them sing;
Away I flew with all my might,
And found a party on this night.

On Friday evening I did my best,
To try to snatch a little rest,
My wife said This was no use
We must go to League to see the views."

They kept on till near midnight,
Which I don't think was just quite right,
So slowly I said that I did snore,
I said I'd go to League no more.

On Saturday night we all did think
We would have a slide on the skating rink,
But the weather man said this would not do,
And so he sent some water blue.

On Sunday we did go to kirk
To see the new lantern work;
Real good attention we did give,
And said a better life we'll live.
Next week we will have more news from me,
Tonight I go to the G.O.R.A.B.

The Ladies of the Methodist Church are giving a tea "In Olden Times" in the Church on Friday evening, Jan. 30th. A large turnout is expected.

WHITTINGTON.

Miss Verna Linder has returned home after spending some time with her aunt at Cataract.

Miss Ruth Farnell entertained the choir at her home on Tuesday evening last.

Miss Gladys White has returned home after spending a couple of weeks with friends in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hamilton, of Laurel, visited the latter's mother, here on Sunday.

The Epworth League was organized on Wednesday last with an attendance, which speaks well for the coming year. Next Wednesday evening there will be a debate given, "Resolved that the Press has more power than the Platform." The captains are Miss Florence Durkin and Mr. Morton Rintoul.

Mr. Thos. Leader is home after spending a week in Buffalo.

Miss Annie Kinsley is improving now after her recent illness.

MONO CENTRE.

The Mono Centre Branch of the Women's Institute will hold its meeting at the home of Mrs. Ernest Avison on Thursday, Feb. 5th, at 2.30 p.m. Report of church committee and Paper on Poultry by Mrs. Martin.

ROSEMONT.

At time of writing we are enjoying beautiful weather with plenty of snow.

Miss Lucy Irwin is spending a month with Toronto friends.

Mr. Frank McNabb and Miss Elma Hand, of Alliston, spent Sunday with Stanton friends.

Mr. Edgar Moore spent Sunday with Sheldon friends.

Mr. Russell McDowell and Mr. Melville Bulmer, of Creemore, spent a few days with Primrose friends this week.

Mr. Milford Hunter, who spent the last few months with Toronto friends, has returned home.

On Thursday, Jan. 15th, death once more visited our community and claimed as its victim, little Marguerite Peacock, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Peacock. The funeral was held to Thompson's Church cemetery on Saturday afternoon. The little girl was seven years old. She was ill only a couple of months and during her sickness was always bright and cheerful. The parents, with four brothers and three sisters, are left to mourn her loss. Among the floral offerings was a beautiful wreath from the Sunday School, of which she was a member. Those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Peacock, of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Proton, of Lisle.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church held a Box Social in L.O.L. No. 9 hall on Friday night. The attendance was not very large owing to the unfavorable weather. Those who did go report a good time.

The young people of St. Luke's Sunday School purpose having a sleigh drive to Mr. R. J. Murphy's at Mansfield on Saturday afternoon if the roads and weather are favorable.

See J. D. Torrie's Black and Blue Serges to order before buying. Direct import, best value in the trade.

MELANCTHON STATION.

We rise to congratulate Thos. C. Dryden Esq., and James R. Clarke Esq., upon their election to the distinguished positions of Reeve and Deputy-Reeve, respectively, of their township, amid the large array of candidates. It is considered an honor to be elected if there are but two or three candidates competing for the office, but in the present case four were running for Reeve and five for Deputy-Reeve so Messrs. Dryden and Clarke deserve special credit for the success they achieved at the polls.

We regret to report that Mrs. Richard Honey is at present on the sick list, suffering from an attack of eczema. We hope to soon hear of her recovery.

Mr. James Brown, manager of the Dufferin Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co., paid an official visit to Grand Valley last week.

We have plenty of snow for sleighing up in this northern clime now, and wont need any more until next year.

Our local live stock raiser, Mr. John F. Breen, has purchased a thoroughbred bull from Mr. Watt, of Elora. John believes in raising good cattle or none, and we think that some more of the farmers around us would do well to follow Mr. Breen's example for it costs just as much to feed a $40 cow as it does to feed an $80 one.

We notice that a considerable amount of soft 4 foot wood is coming into the C.P.R. station yard since sleighing commenced. One would have thought that the days of the soft wood business were gone forever, but it seems that there still remains a few cords in the scattered woods on the rear ends of farms in Melancthon.

HILLSBURG.

The members of the Hillsburg lodge, C.O.F., held their annual oyster supper at the Exchange Hotel, on Thursday evening, Jan. 22nd. The majority of the members and their ladies were present. After all had enjoyed the sumptuous and tastefully prepared supper given by Mrs. Oliver, a lengthy programme of music, recitations and speeches was given followed by games and social intercourse. An enjoyable time was spent by all.

Mr. R. McKibbon, of the 8th line, Erin, held a clearing auction sale on Tuesday, the 27th. We believe he intends to move to town.

Hillsburg Literary Society intends holding an open meeting in the Town Hall on Friday evening, the 30th inst. A fine programme is expected.

Mr. Andrew Dolander is steadily improving in health after his recent severe illness.

Everyone was pleased to see Dunk McGibbon, the South African veteran, back at his old place at the anvil in Byrne's shop.

Robert Dingwall, of Hopeville, was instantly killed by a falling tree.

George Ham as a Judge.

George H. Ham of the C.P.R. was a good many years ago an alderman of the City of Winnipeg. This gave to him the right at that time to sit as a Justice of the Peace. A compositor on one of the papers had been arrested for carrying a little too much liquor inside his personality. George Ham was called upon during the absence or sickness of the ordinary occupant of the bench to act as a J. P. The accused, delighted at the fact of Ham being the judge, cheerfully pleaded "guilty." To his horror he was addressed as follows: "Prisoner, the sentence of the court upon you is that you be taken to the place in which you were last confined, and then be hanged by the neck until you be dead, and may the Lord have mercy upon your soul." The man gazed in horror. "Or," continued the judge, "you may pay the costs of this court and go home."

This was the only case in which the alderman presided as a judge, "as," says he, "that was the only great criminal case in which I was ever a principal."

Champion "Packers."

They set great store by the ability to "pack" heavy loads in new countries and many a reputation in the west is built on a feat of "toting." Andy Linderberg, who stake a claim on the Salmon River in southeastern Alaska, acquired local fame by packing 400 pounds of supplies a short distance. At Haynes Mission in Alaska, the story is told of Joe Martin that he carried a stove, weighing 380 pounds, from the wharf to the store without stopping. Alluring invitations were showered upon him all along the way, too, for the whole camp lined up along his path and did its best to get him to stop and have a drink or a chew, for Martin had made a bet. But he turned a deaf ear to the begullements, and with perspiration dripping from his nose, he strained on up the trail and delivered his burden in accordance with his boast.

Britain Buys Our Cheese.

Great Britain is still the premier market for Canadian cheese, according to statistics prepared by the Department of Customs at Ottawa. During the month of October last Canada exported 21,120,000 pounds of cheese, valued at $2,802,000. Of this Great Britain took $2,776,000 worth, Newfoundland $10,433 and the United States was a poor third with $5,-335. The balance was distributed among British West Indies, Bermuda, British South Africa, China, Japan and Hong Kong.

They Want It Easy.

Before the Balkan war Bulgarians were to be seen in numbers in every centre in Ontario where manual labor was in progress. The majority of Bulgarians in Ontario were called home to fight Turkey, and died on the job.

Three Bulgarians have written the Dominion Minister of Agriculture asking about Canada. This letter has been forwarded to the Ontario Minister of Agriculture. The three applicats are all of good parentage, but their families have been ruined by the war. They make the "modest" promise that they would gladly come to Canada if they could be assured of positions becoming their rank and dignity. They balk at the farm servant's work idea, and want free board and lodging, and a sufficient training to enable them to go homesteading.

The letter will be answered informing them that the country is full of dignified people, who decline work on the farm, who are looking for free board, free education and free land grants.

Replacing Postoffices.

Fifty-three new postoffices were opened in Canada on Dec. 1. Eighty-seven were closed on the same date, of which seventy were discontinued owing to the inauguration of the rural free delivery system.

MANITOBA WATER POWERS.

Importance of Hydro-Electric Energy in the Province—Development of the Winnipeg River.

Owing to the great and ever-increasing cost of good steam coal, the great distance of the province from anthracite coal fields, and the constant growing demand for hydro-electric energy in and around the city of Winnipeg, the development of water powers in Manitoba possesses a peculiar importance.

The main sources of power in commercial quantities are the Winnipeg river, Grand Rapids on the Saskatchewan, and the large rivers of the northern hinterland, including the Churchill, Nelson and Berens.

The great strides made in the electrical industry in recent years brought the present commercial centres of the province within easy transmission distance of the basins of the Winnipeg and English Rivers.

A well-considered and cautious policy of water-power administration has put into force regulations which afford every reasonable protection to the public in the way of limited grants, rentals and control of rates, subject to periodic revision while at the same time providing sufficiently attractive opportunities for investment to actively interest the capitalist. Moreover the Department of the Interior has issued instructions that all vacant Dominion land contiguous to power sites on rivers shall be reserved and shall be disposed of only under the Water-Power Regulations referred to.

Of the eight possible power sites on the Winnipeg river there are three now under development, representing a total power capacity of 199,000 (twenty-four hour) horse-power. One site is completely developed by the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company on the Pinawa channel, and produces about 26,500 horse-power under favorable conditions. Another site at Point du Bois falls, developed by the city of Winnipeg, produces at the present time about 20,800 horse-power but is capable of extensions to a maximum of 77,000 (twenty-four hour) horse-power. Development at the third power site at Great Falls, having a maximum possible development of 95,500 (twenty-four hour) horse-power, is about to be commenced.

There is, therefore, at the present time, about 47,300 horse-power produced on the Winnipeg river, and transmitted for use in and around the city of Winnipeg, which can with the two present plants be increased to 103,500 horse-power.

The remaining power sites on the Winnipeg river are under the control of the Dominion Government, and can furnish a further amount of 24 hour power to a maximum extent of 210,700 horse-power.

In addition there are several important power sites on the Winnipeg and English rivers within the province of Ontario, which are within easy transmission distance of Winnipeg.

Surely this abundance of dependable and economically feasible power spells an assured industrial future for the province of Manitoba, and especially for the cities of Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie and Brandon.

THE WARBLER FAMILY.

There Are Thirty-Three Kinds Found In Ontario.

The Sylvicolidae, or Warblers, are a very wide family connection—embracing in all thirty-three varieties of birds which honor Ontario with their prized presence, some, it is true, in such very limited numbers as to be comparative rarities, says C. M. C. in Toronto Star Weekly. There is a prevailing strain of brilliant coloring running through them; their beauty, indeed, is more a prominent feature, as usual, than any proficiency in a melodic sense. In fact, a college professor, hard put for a joke, well might state the breed to be so-called, because they do not "warble." The blue yellow-backed warblers utter but a soft, drawn-out twitter; the mourning warbler nothing further than a low, pensive, simple "twit"—their only songs. The Blackburnian variety — the most beautiful of the whole family — breeds in Northern Ontario, so that, except on its passage north and south, we see too little of it; unless in too great a haste it is its habit to stop off for a week or so each October's end.

Speaking generally, the warblers may be said to nest on low bushes, although a few, like the Pine-creeping and Golden-crowned thrush species, resort to ground-nesting to rear their brood. Their little cousins—sometimes known as the Canadian Fly-catchers (Myiodioctes Canadensis) — utililize both situations indifferently. The Yellow warblers — so commonly observed about civilized haunts and prized for their assiduity in ridding the fruit trees of small insects—have a peculiarity of not being able to forego building in a willow or a maple, if they can find one situated adjacent to an orchard. The entire Warbler family has the distinction —also value — of feeding alone upon insects.

After the Yellow Warbler — whose name sufficiently describes him—the commonest of the warblers are, perhaps, the Red-start, the Golden-Crowned Thrush, and the Water Thrush or Wagtail. The first is five and a quarter inches long; black, if one is asked to describe him; but the white breast and the ruddy orange tint of the sides of the breast and base of the quills and tail make him one of the prettiest birds of our woods. The last-named is olive-brown above, of a prevailing sulphur-yellow below, and is generally to be found near a stream or pond, wading in the shallows, diligently "wagging" his tail with the relish his feed of aquatic insects imparts.

From his appearance the Water-thrush has been sometimes confused with the Golden-crowned Thrush, but the latter never nests or feeds near the swamps and moist ground. Above he is olive-green with a tinge of yellow; his crown has two streaks of black enclosing a broad orange stripe, beneath, his plumage is white, while his breast and sides are sooty black—also a truly beautiful summer resident, one can see. If she can, this pretty creature prefers a pine-wood for the scene of her nuptials. Suppose the five young to have safely chipped themselves out from the creamy-white eggs that you knew were hatching, although not wishful to disturb. The ground-nesters have so many enemies that it seems a wonder their kind does not become extinct—till you remember how mother nature, with an eye to that very chance, gives for each of such birds the right hues of plumage to protect it, as well as by directing its instincts so that these dangers may be minimized.

What the golden-crowned thrush mostly hunts for is a nesting site on a knoll, irrespective of direction, where she can cunningly thatch her nest with the needles, so like the ground around. Which explains why she is far better known to most people as the "oven-bird"—Seiurus aurocapillus.

"What Neck'st?"

W. F. Stevens, the robust Live Stock Commissioner for Alberta, is widely known for his geniality, a quality which seems to accompany stoutness of person. He was in Winnipeg one hot July day and had occasion to buy a new collar. Entering a gent's furnishing store on Portage Avenue he startled the obliging young clerk by asking for a collar, size 22.

"Sorry, sir," the boy replied politely, "but we are just out of that size. There is a store, however, just around the corner that could probably supply you."

Imagine the feelings of the live stock authority when he rounded the corner and read the following sign:

"Northwest Harness Co., Ltd. Use 'Fit-Well' Collars on your Horses."

Light Rifles For Cadets.

The Cadet Corps of Canada are to be supplied with 22-calibre rifles. The Ross Rifle Company is making the rifles of a pattern approved by the Militia Department. They will weigh about five pounds or less and are almost a miniature of the long Ross.

In the past, while the cadets used the long rifles for shooting over the ranges, and will do the same in the future, the rifles were found too heavy for drilling in the case of the smaller boys. The light rifles will be used for drill purposes and for indoor shooting.

First Aid to Settlers.

The lack of hospitals in the north and the scarcity of medical men in the scattered districts of New Ontario is being pressed on the Government as a necessity for the establishment of medical cabinets at certain points where supplies could be obtained and urgent cases dealt with until more expert assistance could be obtained.

Dicing For Cigars.

Throwing dice for cigars is a common practice in tobacco shops in Vancouver, and if the customer wins he pays less than the recognized price for his cigar.

IN MISERY AT MEAL TIME

Indigestion Can Be Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If your digestion is weak you cannot derive proper nourishment from your food. The pain and distress you suffer is a protest from your stomach that it is unable to do its work. It is then that you lose all appetite, have dull headaches, acute pains in the chest and abdomen, heartburn and other distressing symptoms.

You cannot cure indigestion by the use of laxatives, and pre-digested foods only make the stomach more sluggish. Indigestion can only be cured by giving tone to and strengthening the nerves that control the stomach. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured indigestion times without number, because they purify and enrich the blood. In this way they improve the appetite, dispel the torments of indigestion and enable you to derive benefit from the food you take. The following is proof of these statements. Mrs. George Brien, Great Shemogue, N. B., says: "A few years ago I was taken down with a fever which left me suffering from nervous stomach trouble. I apparently got over it, but the trouble could not have been wholly eradicated, as during the summer of 1912 I was taken down with it again. I took many medicines, and was attended by two different doctors, but instead of getting well seemed to be growing worse. I could not eat without suffering the most intense pains; even a drink of milk seemed to upset me. I slept poorly and at last dreaded to see night come. In this condition I saw in a newspaper the story of a woman who has similarly suffered and was cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to try the Pills and found by the time I had taken three boxes that they were helping me. I continued using the Pills until I had taken eight boxes, when the trouble had disappeared, and I have to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for restoring my health after I had practically given up hope of ever being well again."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MEAFORD HUS A PROTEST NOW

Exception Taken to the Validity of Vote at Recent Election.

And the town of Meaford does not seem to be out of the bushes yet with respect to the local option by-law, which everyone thought to have been passed on at the last municipal election. The point of contention on which the anti forces have made the attempt to upset the election and to declare the result to be invalid is that the notice was not posted ten days prior to the date of the election, also that the by-law could not be legally submitted this year owing to its having been submitted the year previous and that this is not in accordance with the Act, which declares that it shall be lawful to vote on it once every three years. The notice in Monday's dailies with regard to the matter is as follows:—An interim injunction until Friday next, retraining the Meaford town council from giving a third reading to the local option by-law which was carried by a vote of the ratepayers at the recent municipal elections, was granted to-day by Mr. Justice Lennox at Osgoode Hall. It was granted on the application of Mr. G. H. Blair, who contended that the by-law was illegal, as the ratepayers had voted on a similar by-law last year. Under the statutes a period of three years must elapse before the question could be submitted to the people again. Another objection raised was that the voters' list was not posted ten days before the voting.

KIDNEY TROUBLE IS HEREDITARY?

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure It.

Dresden Man, Who Inherited Trouble, Finds Speedy Relief and Permanent Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dresden, Ont., Jan. 26 (Special).—Whether Kidney disease is hereditary or not is a matter of opinion. Mr. Samuel Burkett, a well known resident of this place, is convinced that he inherited his from his parents. He knows that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured it.

"I inherited my Kidney Disease from my parents," Mr. Burkett states. "I was treated by a doctor, and tried various medicines, but it was not till about eighteen months ago" when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills that I got any permanent relief.

"Since then I have not felt any effect of my old trouble, and I feel that anybody troubled with Kidney Disease will be be benefitted by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills if they follow directions closely.

"I hope that others may be helped by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I am well known here, and anybody who wishes more particulars of my cure can have them by writing me and enclosing stamps for reply."

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease.

Rev. Dr. John Abraham, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Whitby, since 1880, will retire in June.

North Brant Liberals nominated Scott Davidson for the Legislature, and made a strong declaration in favor of abolition of the bar.

HAULTAIN'S BLOCKADE.

Present Chief Justice Prayed For Morning or Wellington.

The name of Judge Haultain, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan, is familiar throughout Canada, he having so long been Premier of the old Northwest Territories, before the creation of the new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The Chief Justice is an Englishman, having been born at Woolwich. His father was a lieutenant-colonel in the Royal Artillery. The Chief Justice has lived most of his life in Canada and was educated at the Montreal High School and Toronto University. Throughout the far west Judge Haultain is famed for his flashing wit, no less than for his ability as a lawyer and politician. In the Saskatchewan Legislature, some years ago, when Mr. Haultain was leader of the Conservative party in Opposition, the Opposition asked the Government for a promise that the following election would be held on new voters' lists. The Government declaration was that it could not see its way clear to make that promise. So the Opposition held up supply, starting in on a Thursday morning, and keeping the House in continuous session sixty hours, until midnight Saturday, when they quit perforce. Mr. Haultain practically did not leave the building. On Saturday morning, at six o'clock, after having slept not at all from Thursday morning, he took the floor and held it until the "day shift" of the fourteen Opposition members arrived at nine. During the next week—an armistice having been arranged meanwhile—the Government gave the promise desired. The leaders on both sides of the House made little speeches referring to the obstruction tactics. Mr. Haultain was describing his desperate effort to find something to talk about during the three hours on that cold Saturday dawn, while he was waiting—"For night or Blucher" came a voice from the Government side "No. For morning or Wellington," came the flash in retort. The House roared. Wellington was the name of the then member for Moose Jaw City, who was to relieve his leader.

Wild Creatures Knew.

On that still Saturday when the storm king was gathering fury for a mad, murderous Sabbath on the Great Lakes, a mysterious influence stirred the wild things of the northern woods. The spirit of the wilderness whispering through the forest was warning them of the wrath to come. Burly bruin, ready to den up from winter blasts, forsook his lair; big bull moose set their mighty antlers back and crashed through the underbrush; graceful deer, heedless of hounds and hunters, deliberately betook themselves in certain directions; while their relentless enemy, the timber wolf, howled dismally, and, heedless of the easy prey, slunk off in the same direction as his fellows of the forest.

With one accord all these wild creatures were leaving the tall timber to seek the refuge in the swamps. Twenty-four hours later, when the demon of the wind shrieked through the woods, uprooting huge trees and filling the air with death in the shape of falling limbs, all the animals were safe in the thickets of the muskeg hollows, where small cedar, tamarac and spruce, close packed, suffered little from the fury of the gale.

Such is the story told by a Toronto lumberman just returned from one of his camps in the Sudbury region. This strange migration of the animals, whose mysterious instinct foretold the danger, had been note by his swampers and loggers back in the bush.

We Use 'Em All.

The export of butter and eggs from Canada to Great Britain has entirely stopped, and the export of live cattle from Canada to Britain is decreasing. Apart from the Irish supplies, the total cattle received in Britain in 1912 was only 49,000. In 1905 over half a million were landed. The figures relating to sheep are even more remarkable falling from 1,000,000 in 1895 to 150,000 in 1912. The supply is by no means equal to the demand.

The decadence of the trade in animals on the hoof, however, has been partly balanced by the increased imports of dead meat. Over eight million hundredweight of fresh beef was imported in 1912, having doubled in ten years. Over five million hundredweight of fresh mutton was imported, an increase of one million in a decade.

Taking all kinds of meat together, the aggregate overseas receipts last year were about 21,000,000 hundredweight, valued at about $232,000,000.

Mink Farming Now.

The mink, whose skin has a certain value, is now successfully raised in the province of Quebec. On one ranch, situated on Lake Chaud, there are sixty minks.

A company is being formed, it is said, to raise muskrats, whose skin is highly considered and is known commercially as Hudson otter, after suitable dyeing and treatment.

At present only the breeding of the fox is really well developed. If by overproduction, the value of the skins finally becomes depreciated—a fatal error—prices will probably not fall below a certain level, which will leave a profit for the breeders. Thus their efforts are of much interest, and besides their speculative value they assure the conservation of certain varieties whose increasing rarity has inspired fears of their complete disappearance."

Vermin Exterminator.

It is a well known fact that vermin are attracted by light. A Canadian inventor has patented an insecticide in which that principle is practically applied. He has invented a luminous sticky compound or paint, which does the work of the ordinary sticky fly paper in daytime, absorbs the rays of light at the same time and becomes luminous at night to finish its work of extermination.

MAN'S WILL POWER.

Bismarck's Comment on Schopenhauer and His Theory.

In an entertaining account of a dinner party at Prince Bismarck's Berlin residence which is given in the recollections of the Livonian journalist Eckhardt the following, which was a part of the table talk, shows the host in a new light: The conversation had turned on Bismarck's early days at Frankfort, and Eckhardt asked whether at the table d'hote of the Hotel d'Angleterre his host had ever met Schopenhauer. "No," said Bismarck; "he had no use for me nor I for him. Moreover, I have never had time or desire to occupy myself with philosophy. While I was a student Schopenhauer was still unknown. I know absolutely nothing about his system."

Another guest, an admirer of Schopenhauer, then joined enthusiastically in the conversation and explained that the philosopher's great merit consisted in the discovery of the fact that will power was the indestructible essence of the mind of man and that intelligence was only of secondary importance. "That may very well be true," said Prince Bismarck, "at least as far as I am concerned, for I have often noticed that my will had already come to a decision while my mind had not yet finished thinking about the same subject."

TO THE MODERN QUACK.

[After reading the early history of medicine.]

Ye makers of fortunes gigantic,
Quack venders of potions and pills,
Who now give us nothing romantic
Except your advertisement bills,
Consider the wondrous concoctions
Put up in the bottle or box
By doctors aforetime and, wanting no more time,
Just pull up your socks.

"Digestion," they'd ask, "misbehaving?"
Or: "Blisters on both of your heels?
Tut, tut! Take an ivory shaving
Thrice daily an hour before meals."
Such sorts of medicinal dainties,
Backed up by a ponderous mien,
They'd foist upon folly as certain of jolty
Well curing the spleen.

They'd (almost) put up in a flagon
And afterward offer for sale
Pink hairs from the head of a dragon,
Blue tufts from a unicorn's tail,
And, could they have only got at them,
No doubt they'd have mixed with their drinks
For troublesome tummies the wrappings of mummies
Or chips off the sphinx.

But you, did we ask that a pimple
Be cured with a balsam of bats,
Would only look hopelessly simple
Or rudely ejaculate, "Rats!"
Come, give up your commonplace nostrums,
Present something quaint to our view.
Those picturesque liars could always find buyers,
So why shouldn't you? —Punch.

A New Brunswick clergyman had just performed the marriage ceremony.

"How much do you charge?" inquired the groom.

"Well, the law allows me two dollars and a half," said the hopeful clergyman.

"All right," handing over 50 cents, "this will make your three dollars, then."

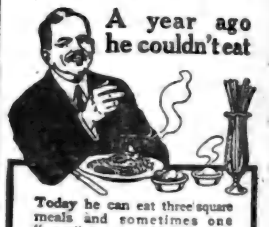
HOW THIS WOMAN FOUND HEALTH

Would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for All Rest of Medicine in the World.

Utica, Ohio.—"I suffered everything from a female weakness after baby came. I had many spells and was dizzy, had black spots before my eyes, my back ached and I was so weak I could hardly stand up. My face was yellow, even my fingernails were colorless and I had displacement. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am stout, well and healthy. I can do all my own work and can walk to town and back and not get tired. I would not give your Vegetable Compound for all the rest of the medicines in the world. I tried doctor's medicines and they did me no good."—Mrs. MARY EARLEWINE, R.F.D. No. 3, Utica, Ohio.

Another Case.

Nebo, Ill.—"I was bothered for two years with female troubles and the doctors did not help me. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and every month I had to spend a few days in bed. I read so many letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound curing female troubles that I got a bottle of it. It did me more good than anything else I ever took and now it has cured me. I feel better than I have for years and tell everybody what the Compound has done for me. I believe I would not be living to-day but for that."—Mrs. HETTIE GREENSTREET, Nebo, Illinois.



SIR MACKENZIE PAYS TRIBUTE TO FRIEND.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, when informed of the death of his old friend, Lord Strathcona, said:

"It is a great loss to the Empire, and especially to Canada. He has done so much for this country. The history of his life and work are so well known that I need not repeat it. We all had the very highest appreciation of his ability and his devotion to the Dominion and to the Empire, which has been equalled by none. The Government will have difficulty in replacing him."

Kidney Trouble

Mr. John E. Pumfrey, Farmer, Viceroy, Sask., writes:—"I think it is my duty to let you know the benefits I have obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For years I suffered from weak kidneys. The urine was scanty, thick and was accompanied by burning sensations. The trouble grew worse until there was a total stoppage of urine and I suffered most excruciating pains. Besides private treatment by medical men I was twice operated on at a hospital in Oxford, England.

"Soon after coming to this country the trouble returned with great severity, and the druggist to whom I went recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, for which I am very thankful. I am now enjoying excellent health and I am positive this is due to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The water is clear and no difficulty in passing it. I am making this statement voluntarily so that others may know of this medicine which has given such wonderful results."

This case gives you some idea of the splendid work being accomplished by this great medicine of the famous Receipt Book author, A. W. FOX FARMING IN THE YUKON.

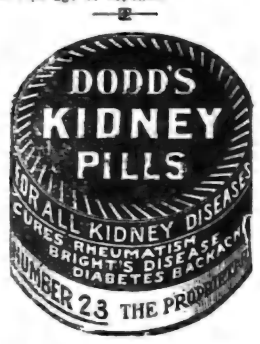
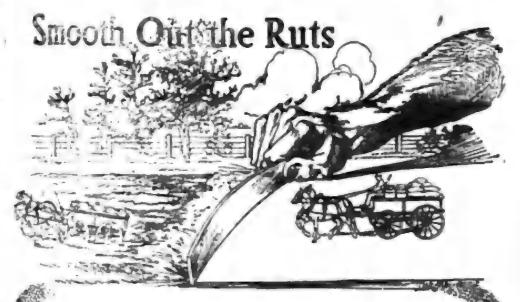
Animals Doing in Captivity—Shipments to Eastern Dealers.



The enthusiasm concerning fox ranching and farming in Yukon has materially waned during the past few weeks, owing to the fact that the price of foxes has decreased nearly 50 per cent. Since last summer and that hundreds of foxes held in captivity have died from some unknown cause. Many of these foxes were black, and, in some cases, as high as $1,500 to $2,000 had been paid for them. One dealer who, it is said, could have sold his stock of foxes in July for $65,000, sold two weeks ago for less than $45,000, the latter price being, to some extent, due to the decline in prices, but, also, to the fact that many of the animals had died in the meantime. One young black fox, for which $1,000 had been paid, died five days after being placed in the corral.

Owing to the decline in price, fully 150 young foxes, all of the red variety, held in captivity in southern Yukon, have been turned out to return to their native haunts in the wilds. Previous to sickness developing among foxes in captivity here, upwards of 200 young ones had been shipped from Whitehorse alone, to fox ranches in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and to dealers near Boston, Mass. At present there are not over 50 held in this locality.



A number are experimenting with mink farming, but great difficulty is experienced in keeping them, wire corrals offering little resistance when they seek their freedom.

Owners of black and silver gray foxes are not discouraged over the slump in prices, but contend that they will be more valuable than ever within a few months.—U. S. Consular Reports.

Smooth Out the Ruts

HOW soon will your roads, that now take the heart and soul out of every man and horse that uses them, be made into a continuous stretch of road that you and everyone in your county will be proud of?

How soon will you stop filling the ruts and mud holes with your road taxes, and build roads that will permit you to put your road taxes into more good roads?

Concrete Roads

cost no more to build than any other good road, and their upkeep expense is practically nothing, which makes them the cheapest kind of good roads.

Concrete roads benefit the farmer, consumer, merchant, newspaper, board of trade and railroad. They make for greater prosperity generally, by increasing land values and production; bringing more trade; more industries; more employment; greater traffic. They decrease the cost of marketing. All of these factors combine to decrease the cost of living.

Every citizen owes it to himself to investigate the advantages of concrete roads and learn how they will directly benefit him. This information is free for the asking. Write for it to-day to

GOLDEN WEDDING.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Barden, of Hillsburg, was the scene of a happy gathering on Jan. 5th, when the members of their family and other friends met to celebrate with them the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day.

After partaking of the bountiful hospitality of the host and hostess, a pleasant afternoon was spent in a social manner, interspersed by music and other amusements, a pleasing feature of the proceedings being the presentation by the family to Mr. and Mrs. Barden, of a beautiful pair of upholstered chairs.

The aged couple were married on January 8th, 1861, and took up their residence on lot 20, con. 6, Erin township, and along with others of that somewhat earlier period, they experienced all the trials and hardships incidental to converting a waving forest into a well tilled farm, and here amid the scenes of their active farming operations, they were enabled to acquire a sufficient competence on which to rely in their declining years.

By the kindliness of heart, hospitality and other sterling qualities they have won for themselves a large circle of friends who join with those of their own family in hoping that they may still have in store for them many years of health and strength in which to enjoy the fruits of their labors.

GROWTH OF A CHURCH.

St. Paul's In Toronto Was a Tiny Place 71 Years Ago.

It was in a spirit of ambassadorship of the gospel that the early settlers in Toronto raised to the worship of God the first log chapel and set apart the Sabbath. Perilous times these, when men moved in the shadow of death and knew not what a day might bring forth. It was an unpretentious House of God that was opened seventy-one years ago where the forest barred the way northwards to the encroachments of Toronto and where St. Paul's Church now stands on Bloor street, a low, narrow frame building, it provided ample accommodation for the hundred souls that comprised its first congregation. Its wooden spire, hoisted to the top by willing hands, was built of four pine trees.

Eighteen years later the wooden church had given place to a handsome stone structure of typical English design, seated to accommodate three hundred and fifty people. For thirty years this sacred edifice stood like a sentinel on the outposts of the city and within its walls another generation grew into the fullness of Christian knowledge.

In 1900 three hundred more worshippers were provided with seats by an enlargement of the church, and so rapid was the growth of population at this period that four years later the building was further extended, giving seating accommodation for 1,250.

Such is the record of steady growth from the modest forest chapel, built of wood, to the spacious and handsome architectural structure that has adorned Bloor street east in ever increasing size for over forty years.

Three years ago the corner-stone of a new church building was laid, capable of seating 2,500 people. The grain of mustard seed planted in 1842 has grown to enormous dimensions. The forest chapel has become the city temple.

The other day the congregation of St. Paul's worshipped for the first time in the new and imposing building in which for three years past the clang of hammer and chisel has never ceased. It approaches Westminster Abbey in dimensions, and is considerably larger than Exeter Cathedral.

The facade of the church on Bloor street is designed in what might be commonly termed four "stories"; three large arched doorways deeply recessed, with well-designed arch mouldings and traceried heads, each varying in design; a low arcade of lancet-pointed arches supported on columns standing about two feet in front of the lights behind; three towering windows with richly varied tracery, mullions and transoms, and emphasized by columns and archivolt mouldings; a traceried stone balustrade, set out in relief from the main gable, which rises behind it, and is flanked on either side by heavy buttresses, which finish in traceried pinnacles. In each transept is a huge rose window, quite worthy to stand in an old world cathedral. These windows are forty feet high and twenty-seven feet wide, the diameter of the rose itself being twenty-two feet.

KEPHALDOL

COMES TO CANADA

Originated by Dr. Stohr, a famous physician of Vienna, Austria, Kephaldol is known and used throughout Europe and Great Britain.

Now, backed by the endorsements of hundreds of physicians and hospitals, it comes to Canada to relieve pain and cure Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Neuritis, Headache, La Grippe, Fevers and similar troubles.

Kephaldol has received the highest commendation from the medical profession because of its direct strengthening action on the nerves, without injury to the heart, and its lasting regulative and curative effect upon the whole system.

Unlike other pain-killing remedies, Kephaldol is absolutely harmless. It causes no intestinal irritation, and has no depressing effects.

Kephaldol will now bring to pain-wracked Canadians the untold blessings which it has already conferred in the Old Country—joy of perfect life again to those who, perhaps for many years, have dragged through a tormented existence.

Get a 50c tube of Kephaldol tablets at your Druggist's, Kephaldol, Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

Mink Farming Now.

The mink, whose skin has a certain value, is now successfully raised in the province of Quebec. On one ranch, situated on Lake Chaud, there are sixty minks.

A company is being formed, it is said, to raise muskrats, whose skin is highly considered and is known commercially as Hudson otter, after suitable dyeing and treatment.

At present only the breeding of the fox is really well developed. If by overproduction, the value of the skins finally becomes depreciated—a fatal error—prices will probably not fall below a certain level, which will leave a profit for the breeders. Thus their efforts are of much interest, and besides their speculative value they assure the conservation of certain varieties whose increasing rarity has inspired fears of their complete disappearance."

Vermin Exterminator.

It is a well known fact that vermin are attracted by light. A Canadian inventor has patented an insecticide in which that principle is practically applied. He has invented a luminous sticky compound or paint, which does the work of the ordinary sticky fly paper in daytime, absorbs the rays of light at the same time and becomes luminous at night to finish its work of extermination.

FREE OF ALL THREE DISEASES

"Fruit-a-tives" Brought Him Perfect Health

Avon, Ont., May 14th, 1913.

"I am younger since I have been taking "Fruit-a-tives". I was troubled very badly with Piles, Constipation and Stomach Disorder, but I found "Fruit-a-tives" was the panacea for the whole three.

Now I am free of all these diseases and enjoying perfect health, and able to work whenever I like. Five years ago, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I took two every night and they worked wonders for me.

No other medicine I could get was so good and I took lots of different remedies before I found out how good "Fruit-a-tives" were.

I keep "Fruit-a-tives" on hand all the time, and am never without them. I even take them with me when I go motoring, so I can have them handy. "Fruit-a-tives" are worthy of every good word I can say about them. The fact that they cured me of Piles, was something to be everlastingly thankful for"

LATE MRS. JOHN GLOVER.

The late Mrs. John Glover passed away at Norgate, Manitoba, on Dec. 31st. She had suffered with asthma for the last thirty-five years and her death was due to heart failure. She was the eldest daughter of the late John Gamble. James Gamble, of Amaranth, a brother of the deceased, and Mrs. Henry Lamb, of Meaford, are the only two of the family surviving. Her children are William, John, James, Samuel and George Lomas, of Amaranth. She was a life long member of the Presbyterian Church. She was in her seventy-sixth year and for the last thirteen years she made her home with her son, Samuel, from whose home the funeral took place to Kelwood cemetery. The pallbearers were her five sons and one grandson, who were all at her side when she passed away. At time of writing her aged partner is seriously ill and not expected to recover being in his ninety-third year. —Star & Vidette.

NEWSPAPER LAW

1—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2—If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3—Any person who takes a paper from the Post Office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4—If a subscriber orders his paper stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the Post Office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5—The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the Post Office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is ing and leaving them uncalled for, does not relieve the subscriber from liability for the subscription.

REMEMBER THE DATE!

ACCOMPLISHED BY THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE.

In The People's Journal, a Dunlee paper, appeared a very interesting letter, from a correspondent in California, which we reproduce: "If the people were given a fair opportunity of expressing their wishes as to whether they desired a continuance of the drink traffic or not, how long, think you, would it exist? In Pasadena, California, the people insisted from the birth of the town that there were to be no public houses of any description within its borders. And the result? In a steadily growing city of 35,000 people there are no slums, no houses of ill repute, and business and trade conditions are always good, even when they are at low ebb in 'wet' towns. The moral standard is very high, and the general health of the people excellent. The few inebriates seen here come mostly from neighboring 'wet' towns, but Pasadena's climate does not agree with them for police reasons. A visit by some active, intelligent Temperance workers to a few temperance or 'dry' towns in California would give an impetus to Temperance reform such as has never before been experienced." —All the talk of "broadmindedness" and "charity towards the trade" will never alter facts. Where there is no drink, poverty and misery are starved out. Neither the godly private life of the brewer, nor respectability of the publican can stem the tide of drunkenness, vice, and wretchedness that always flows side by side with that of intoxicating drink. But the exclusion of the drink can and does put an end to the sordid horrors that always accompany its sale and consumption.

The Late Miss Emmeline Sheppard

There passed away at her parents' home in Elora on Saturday morning, January 17th, 1914, Miss Emmeline Sheppard, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sheppard. Miss Sheppard was taken ill with pleurisy shortly before Christmas, and though for a time hopes were entertained for her recovery, complications set in and notwithstanding every care and attention, she passed away as above stated. The deceased lady was well known to the public, having for many years conducted a jewellery business in Elora. She was of a quiet, retiring disposition, respected and beloved by all who had the privilege of her acquaintance and friendship, and the news of her passing away was heard everywhere with sorrow.

The funeral took place on Monday, a public service being held in St. John's church, conducted by the rector, the Rev. L. J. R. Naftel, M.A. As a token of respect and sympathy, the places of business closed during the funeral, and the service was largely attended. The pallbearers were, Edward and William Sheppard; Fred Powell, Toronto; John R. Connon, John Shortreed and Joseph McCully, Elora.

Besides her aged parents, the deceased leaves to mourn her loss, the following brothers and sisters; Ed. S. Sheppard, Gananoque; Wm. Sheppard, Saskatoon; Mrs. Wm. Johnston, Darlingford, Man.; Miss E. A. Sheppard, Galt; Miss Mary Sheppard and Miss H. A. Sheppard, at home in Elora. All of these, except Mrs. Johnston, were present at the funeral. The bereaved have a full measure of public sympathy in the loss they have sustained.—Elora Express.

The deceased lady was a niece of Mr. F. Marshall, First Ave.

Death of Harold Lindsay

Deeply regretted was the untimely death of Mr. Harold Lindsay, of Granger. The sad event occurred on Saturday, Jan. 17th, following an operation for appendicitis. Dr. Groves, of Fergus, and Dr. S. F. White, of Shelburne, operated on Monday, Jan. 12th. For a day or so the patient progressed favorably, but unlooked for complications developed and he passed away on Saturday. The young man, who was held in high esteem, is survived by his aged parents, five brothers and two sisters. The brothers are John, William, Thomas and Milton Lindsay, of Expanse, Sask., and Geo. Lindsay, of Mono. The sisters are Mrs. Wm. Creary, Shelburne, and Miss Fernie Lindsay, at home. Deceased was an Orangeman and the funeral, which was held to Shelburne cemetery on Tuesday afternoon was under the auspices of the Orange Order. There was a very large attendance, about 170 vehicles leaving the house for the cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. R. J. S. Adamson, rector of St. Paul's Church, Shelburne. The members of the bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and relatives in their affliction.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

BIGGEST DIVIDEND IN LONG HISTORY

Bank of Hamilton Declared Twelve Per Cent—Savings Deposits Growing.

J. P. Bell, New General Manager.

The declaration of the biggest annual dividend in the history of the bank featured the 42nd annual meeting of the Bank of Hamilton last week. Of the year's profits, amounting to $749,411.26, the sum of $360,000 was distributed as a 12 per cent. dividend. The balance remaining to the credit of profit and loss is $151,131.75, $100,000 having been carried to the reserve fund, the same amount entered under the head of depreciation of securities and $34,529.51 transferred to the pension fund.

The resignation of General Manager Turnbull was announced and Senator Gibson made reference to the faithful service rendered the bank during a quarter century by Mr. Turnbull. He will be succeeded in office by J. P. Bell, who has for the past two years been assistant manager.

FORESIGHT SAVED THE DAY.

The retiring general manager seconded the adoption of the annual report. The general condition of business in Canada was due, he said, to a period of too great prosperity, which has resulted in extravagant living and the straining of capital resources. Owing to the foresight of the banks in applying the brake, and the excellent crops which has been harvested from one end of the country to the other, the situation had been fairly met.

A By-Law was passed increasing the authorized capital stock from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Bolton Agricultural Society

The annual meeting of the Albion and Bolton Agricultural Society was held in the Town Hall in Bolton on Saturday. The Society had a most successful year in 1913 and the auditors reported that last year's overdraft of $200 had been wiped off, and a balance was in hand at the bank. It was decided not to use departmental judges at this year's fair, which will be held on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 28 and 29. Messrs. Smith and Ruston were appointed to request a grant from Bolton Council, and Messrs. McCandless and McKee to make a similar request from Albion Council. The new officers are: Hon. presidents, R. Blain, M. P., J. R. Fallis, M.P.P., and Anson McCabe; president, Geo. Downey; vice-presidents, Jas. W. Mann and D. B. Kennedy; treasurer, Robert Smith; secretary, F. N. Leavens; auditors, J. H. Bolton and C. L. Gott; grounds committee, Jas. Ruston, A. Norton, and D. B. Kennedy; directors, A. Norton, James Ruston, Alex. Goodfellow, Bert. Mellow, W. H. Monkman, Joe. McCandless, William Little, N. Downey, and Alex. McKee. The next meeting of the directors will be held in March.

A. Y. P. A.

At the regular meeting of St. Mark's Young People's Association on Monday next, the programme will be in the form of a Missionary Lecture. Rev. G. W. Tebbs will give an electric lantern lecture on "Japan." Everybody invited. Silver collection.

Mr. James Potts will receive $50 for performing the work of assessor in Osprey township.

FEBRUARY WEATHER

In his storm and weather forecasts for February, Rev. Irl R. Hicks, the St. Louis weather predictor, says that "if the Mars influence should have modified the winter storms and weather up to this period, its dominating influence will begin to break down at this time and some of the hardest storms and most severe weather for the winter will come during the remainder of February. If the Mars influence should have taken the positive turn—that is should have resulted in severe weather in December and January—conditions will begin to change at this time into softening weather and storms of a more equatorial and tropical nature will characterize the rest of the month." The "Mars" or some other influence has assuredly moderated the winter conditions during December and January, and therefore, if Mr. Hicks' predictions have any value, cold and stormy weather may be looked for in February. The prognosticator also states that "The Mercury period, which ends at this time will cause much and destructive sleet during its continuance the first ten days of February. Piercing cold will visit most parts of the country from about the 12th to the 14th." By the 16th of February Mr. Hicks also states "We will have entered well into the earth's vernal equinox and the Venus equinoctial period will be approaching its maximum strength. It must not be forgotten, also, that the great Jupiter perturbation has not yet subsided. As we approach the middle and close of February, growing danger of equatorial storms and tornadoes in the south should be apprehended. Let it never be forgotten that the influence of the March equinox of the earth begins in February and that some of the most violent West India hurricanes and cyclones sometimes occur during the last half of this month. As early as the 14th and 15th, change to warmer will begin in western extremes, the barometer will begin falling, winds will shift to southerly and storms of rain, wind and snow will start on their eastward career. By the 16th to 18th these storms will grow in severity as they cover the great central valleys of the continent. By the 19th storms will reach the Atlantic coast regions, and the rising barometer, blizzardous winds and cold waves which are sure to push the west, and northwest side of the storm areas, will have spread well over all western and central parts of the country. These conditions will advance eastward and southward, giving the whole country a mixture of boreal and tropical storms, followed everywhere by rising barometer and sharp cold for February. Remember 'the electric fire of Venus turns quickly to ice'—that is warm waves with rain, thunder and hail, followed within a few hours by sleet, snow and violent change to colder, are the characteristic features of the Venus influence. See if the storms at this period—the 14th to 19th—do not show some such Venus 'earmarks.' The Venus period is central on the 24th, covering almost the entire month of February and into March.

Orangeville Boy Scouts.

H. Laverty passed his final tests for Tenderfoot Badge on Friday last, and will be enrolled at the next meeting.

On Friday next Rev. G. W. Tebbs will give a demonstration on Scout Photography at the Weekly Scout Meeting. Negatives will be developed and prints made at the meeting. Only Scouts can be present on account of the limited room.

Mr. Samuel Smith has sold his 150 acre farm on the 13th con. of Carrick for $12,000 to Mr. Henry Koenig, of Ayton.

A LONELY PASTORATE.

Half of the Ungava Church Staff Is Now on Furlough.

Half the staff of what is perhaps the loneliest mission station in the world is now spending a brief furlough in England. That half-staff is the Rev. E. M. Stewart, whose permanent address is anywhere in Ungava, the great ice-bound province between Labrador and Hudson Bay—a thousand miles further from civilization than the scene of Grenfell's work in Labrador.

"The most anxious moment of the year," said Mr. Stewart, "is when the Hudson Bay Company's vessel from England is sighted, and we are waiting to know whether she brings us good news or ill. A few years ago my furlough was nearly due, and I was looking forward to getting back to see my old father in Ireland. Then the ship came and I found he had died nine months before."

The equanimity with which Mr. Stewart could speak, within the very confines of Fleet street itself, of his banishment from the news of the world came as something of a shock to the interviewer.

"We get on quite well without news," the exile declared, "and I find I can pick up the threads of everything that matters within a week after I get home."

For the last eighteen months Mr. Stewart has had a colleague to share his solitude, but for twelve years before that he carried on the work single-handed.

The missionary's preaching includes the gospel of cleanliness, and he backs it up in a practical way with cakes of soap.

"Unfortunately," he remarked, "I gave them scented soap to start with, and they ate every cake they could get hold of. Now I have taken to carbolic, and they say they don't like 'medicine soap,' so they use for the purpose it was meant for."

Mr. Stewart is going back to the peace of Ungava as soon as he has found friends to defray the cost of a motor-boat that will rival his "twelve-dog-power Eskimotor" in keeping him in touch with his scattered congregations. He is looking forward with lively anticipation both to the experience of sailing the boat up from Newfoundland, and to the reception it is likely to be accorded by his parishioners.

The Godless Church Basement.

A Methodist minister of the new school, who has come under the modern broadening influences which have failed as yet to touch the leading members of his flock in a small Ontario town, was telling his troubles to an understanding friend.

"Some of them are inconceivably narrow and restricted in their viewpoint," he said, "and especially the members of the executive board. We have in the church some twelve or fifteen young girls of whom any pastor and congregation might be proud—healthy, clean-minded, vigorous and talented girls in their teens. They wished to give a Christmas concert, and they asked me if they could have the use of the church instead of the Sunday school, which is in the basement. I promised to do what I could, and when I laid the matter before the board, I strongly recommended that their request be granted. But the members were dubious, and the chairman—a fine fellow, but one hundred years behind the times—would have none of it.

"'No,' he said; 'it must not be. We cannot let the church be used for these affairs. The church is a sacred edifice. Why, God himself is there! They must use the basement.'"—Saturday Night.

His Influence Failed.

Judge Drysdale, of Nova Scotia, tells a story of a meeting of the Bar Society of one of the Eastern Provinces where the point was raised whether law students did or did not, as a general rule, adopt the political ideas of the lawyers with whom they were articled.

"Well, I studied in Judge Blank's office," said a member, "and while he was a strong Liberal, yet he did not not make me a Liberal."

"And I studied with the late Mr. Brown," retorted another member when the Tory cheers had subsided, "and while he was a staunch Conservative, he did not make a Conservative out of me."

It was now the Liberals' turn to applaud, when a vinous looking member arose in the rear of the hall.

"Gentlemen," he announced a trifle unsteadily, "I studied law with good old lawyer White, and while he was an ardent Prohibitionist, I am glad to say that he did not make a Prohibitionist out of me."

The Heckler Silenced.

Ready wit is an indispensable requisite to a good political speaker. In a recent election in British Columbia a well-known coast orator, now a member of Premier McBride's Cabinet, found this to be true, especially in addressing rural folk. The incident occurred during a joint meeting, held in a constituency where fishing is the principal industry, and at a time when the Oriental labor question was a burning issue on the coast.

"We must curtail this invasion of undesirables!" he declared in the course of a splendid speech. What—"

"Pardon me, sir," interrupted his opponent, a young Vancouver lawyer with political ambitions; "but are not these 'undesirables" human beings, strong, and willing to work?"

"Very true, my dear friend," was the quick reply. "They are as strong as oxen and have no more sense."

Fort Pelly To Be Preserved.

Fort Pelly, Saskatchewan, for many years the headquarters of the Northwest Mounted Police, has been reserved by the Government as an historic spot, and will likely be converted into a public park. It was at Fort Pelly that the first Northwest Council sat in 1875.

EARLY CIVIC SYSTEMS

HOW CANADIAN TOWNS WERE GOVERNED UNDER FRENCH.

At First Champlain Was Governor and Mayor and Everything. But Later on the Intendant Took the Reins of Power and Administered Municipal Affairs — Many of the Ancient Ordinances Remain.

The opening chapter of the story of municipal government in Canada, while particularly important now because of the entire change that has taken place both in the theory and the practice of government, is exceedingly interesting, for it presents a side of life seldom touched upon by the writers of popular history, and gives one an unusual view of the times of long ago.

Samuel de Champlain, the founder of Quebec, and first real Governor of Canada, undertook the discharge of duties that would now be performed by the municipal authorities. He laid out streets and published ordinances for the good government of the city. His successor, Montmagny, continued the work by laying out streets according to a plan, and he erected a pillory which served as a means of punishment and a place for the publication of proclamations and public notices.

As time passed and the colony grew, something like municipal institutions grew up, and their future can best be indicated in brief form by an account of the duties of the principal officers, who carried on what may be called municipal government.

At the head of the system was a high official appointed by the King of France, and known as the Intendant. He ranked next to the Governor, and with respect to some matters his commission was so general that he claimed powers equal to those of the Governor, an arrangement that often caused friction between the two officials. In his highest capacity the Intendant was an officer of the whole colony. He controlled all expenditure of money and he presided over the Sovereign Council. He also possessed the power of independent legislation as well as certain judicial power.

"A great number of ordinances of Intendants," writes the historian Parkman, "are preserved. They were usually read to the people at the door of churches after mass, or sometimes by the cure from his pulpit. They related to a great variety of subjects—regulation of inns and markets, poaching, preservation of game, sale of brandy, rent of pews, stray hogs, mad dogs, tithes, matrimonial quarrels, fast driving, weights, value of coinage, trespass on land, building churches, observance of Sunday, preservation of timber. The Intendant issued regulations to safeguard against fire, and others specifying in what manner houses were to be built. These are matters that to-day are regulated by municipal councils.

Another official was the Syndic d'Habitation. This official was well-known in France, where he represented popular rights before the administrative tribunals. Records show that such Syndics were elected in Quebec, Three Rivers, and Montreal, where they were entrusted with certain local authority and represented the community in its dealings with the Government. This did not please the King's Colonial Minister, Colbert, who instructed Frontenac to gradually suppress the office.

At Montreal, the office seems to have been one of importance. There the Syndic administered the affairs of the town, subject, however, to the approval of the local judge and the Procureur Fiscal. The Montreal Syndic also levied taxes for the support of the garrison.

Another high municipal official of the old Regime was the Grand Voyer, "an officer," says Parkman, "charged with the superintendence of highways." If the Grand Voyer reported that a new road was wanted or that an old one needed mending, an ordinance of the Intendant set the whole neighborhood at work upon it directed by the captain of the militia of the neighborhood. The Grand Voyer was the road surveyor, and all road-work was done under his supervision.

The Captain of Militia, a constable and local head of the men available for fighting, was also deputy of the Grand Voyer. The captain personally directed the roadwork of his locality, and saw that each parishioner performed his due share, which was determined by the extent of his farm. The Grand Voyer decided upon the extent of the work, and he also laid out streets in towns and villages, and inspected buildings in order to see that they were safe. The office of Grand Voyer existed long after the colony had passed to the British crown; and in the years 1777, 1778 and 1796 the law respecting work upon the roads referred certain duties to an officer styled the Grand Voyer, and the name was in use many years later.

In those olden times the seignors, under a system of customs called "corvee," had the right to call upon the tenants to perform a certain amount of labor for the maintenance of the roads and bridges. The system took deep root, and it received the sanction of the first Parliament of Lower Canada, the purpose being to secure sufficient labor to make possible the improvement of the highways. This act was not repealed until 1854. In a modified form the principle was continued in Lower Canada, now Quebec, and in fact, throughout other provinces, for road-tax continued to be "worked out"; that is, instead of paying it in money the farmers contributed labor—a system that is now being abandoned by progressive communities desirous of improving their highways.

In civil and social matters the head of one of those old-time rural parishes was the seignior, who often administered justice among the people, received their rents, and looked after public affairs, much as did the Syndic in a city or town.

50 YEARS A SCHOOL-MASTER.

Principal of Goderich Collegiate Institute for 34 Years

Dr. H. I. Strang's Distinguished Career in Teaching Profession

In a recent issue the Toronto Daily Star published a photo and the following sketch of Dr. H. I. Strang, father of Miss G. M. Strang, of the Orangeville High School teaching staff:

Dr. H. I. Strang, master of classics in the Goderich Collegiate Institute, an L.L.D., and also a graduate of Toronto University, has recently completed 50 years in the teaching profession. This is a distinction which few men have achieved. Dr. Strang is looked upon as an authority upon the dead languages in his part of Ontario.

He was born in 1841 in Galt, the same year as the Goderich Collegiate Institute was founded, and one year after the birth of Queen's University at Kingston. Being a staunch Liberal, he enjoys another distinction of being one month younger than Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

In January, 1864, he commenced his teaching career and wielded the schoolmaster's rod in a country school a short distance from Galt. The following year he went to Owen Sound, where he remained until 1871, when he went to Goderich, and was for 34 years principal of the Collegiate Institute. He retired from the principalship in 1905, but still continues as a member of the staff. He graduated from Toronto University in 1862 and a few years afterwards received the honorary title of LL.D., one of the first degrees bestowed by that University.

In public and private life he is extremely popular and is known in Goderich as "the grand old man." He was married to Miss Elizabeth Morrison, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Morrison, of Owen Sound, and six children, all living, blessed a happy marriage. The family circle was complete last Christmas.

He is a Presbyterian in religion and a regular church attendant.

Large Elms.

Thos. J. Robinson, of the Mono-Caledon townline, manufactured 40 cords of wood from two elm trees, which he bought from Thos. McPherson, one of his neighbors. Mr. Robinson made a bee to convert the trees into wood and it took 13 men a day to cut up one of them. The larger of the two trees measured 4 ft. 10 in. across the butt. They were very tough cutting and "Pob" Harrison was kept busy sharpening saws.

Mackenzie-McArthur

The home of Mrs. Duncan Mackenzie, of Caledon, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 27th, when her youngest daughter, Violet Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. William Griffith MacKenzie, of Toronto, Rev. Jenkins Burkholder, pastor of Knox Church, Charleston, performed the ceremony in the presence of about 35 of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The wedding march was played by Mr. W. McIlmurray, of Toronto. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. Dan McArthur, and was gowned in white duchesse satin with shadow lace and pearl trimmings. Her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and also wore the groom's gift, a beautiful pearl necklace. Her sister, Miss Irene McArthur, was bridesmaid and Mr. Will Monaker, of Toronto, supported the groom. The bride wore pale pink satin with pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl brooch and to the groomsman a pearl tie pin. After the usual congratulations the bride and groom led the way to the dining room, where a dainty wedding repast was served. The room was prettily decorated for the occasion. The bride received a large number of handsome and costly presents. The young couple left on the evening train amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a short trip to Buffalo and other points. The bride travelled in a navy blue tailored suit with white plush hat and mink furs. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie will reside at 1022 Dundas St., West Toronto, where they will be at home to their friends after March 1st.

The Bankers' Trophy.

Last week The Banner recorded the results of the opening Bonspiel for the coveted Bankers' Trophy. The Bonspeil, our readers will remember, was won by the two Shelburne rinks. The victorious rinks played off on their home ice on Tuesday night. After a strenuous twenty-end contest Dave Henderson's rink won the honor of "defending the trophy" by a score of 17 to 14. The rules call for an 18 end game, but as the rinks were a tie when 18 ends had been played it was necessary to play two extra ends to decide the tie. The players and scores were:—

A. W. Watson	F. H. Silk
R. Smith	F. Shepherd
E. A. Ferguson	H. Cameron

D. Henderson 17. Dr. S. T. White 14.

The Henderson rink was not allowed to retain undisputed possession of the trophy for very many hours. Archy Ramsay, of Grand Valley, the first challenger, took a rink to Shelburne Wednesday afternoon and gave the defenders a great game. He failed to lift the trophy by the narrow margin of 3 shots. J. D. Torrie, of Orangeville, who got in the second challenge, was accommodated Thursday night. The challenging rink had a comfortable lead in the early stages of the match, but faded away in the second half. The score at the finish was 20 to 10 for Shelburne. The local players were D. McCallum, Dr. W. H. Bowles, Dr. G. H. Campbell and J. D. Torrie. The third challenger was A. A. Smith, of Orangeville, who brought the Trophy home from Grand Valley last season. The Smith quartette journeyed north on Monday and managed to lift the trophy, winning a keenly contested game by a score of 18 to 11. The players were:—

Orangeville—	Shelburne—
R. H. Neilson	A. W. Watson
E. C. Clark	H. Cameron
A. D. McKitrick	A. E. Ferguson
A. A. Smith sk 18	D. Henderson sk 11

A BUMPER HOUSE.

My Old NewHampshire Home Draws a Great Audience.

Camilla Dramatic Club Scored a Distinct Triumph

"My Old New Hampshire Home," staged by the Camilla Dramatic Club, under the auspices of the Charity Society and the Daughters of the Empire, on Friday night last, in the Opera House, drew an audience which has probably never been equalled in the history of the building. Long before eight o'clock all the seats had been filled and shortly after all available standing room was taken up. Ever since their debut, the Camilla Dramatic Club has been greeted with splendid houses. The play, which opens with a home scene, is full of plots and counterplots on the parts of the arch-villian, Van Dusen, his accomplice, Rawlings, and the detectives on their trail. In the first act an impromptu banquet is served on the stage, at which Mickey Mullins, the most comical Irishman ever seen in Orangeville, kept the audience in an uproar. As the play proceeds it portrays the breaking up of the banquet, which is held in Farmer Winthrop's home, by the confession of Mabel Winthrop, the farmer's daughter, who, when she is asked to marry Oliver Stanhope, a young blacksmith, who is in love with her, announces that she is already another man's wife. She is expelled from her home and goes to New York, followed by her faithful little friend, Muffins, a young lady adopted by Farmer Winthrop. Van Dusen, who is the man secretly married to Mabel, also goes to New York, and plots to entrap and kill Mabel along with her lover, Oliver Stanhope, who also follows Mabel to the city. Oliver and Mabel meet together on a wharf, and are pounced on by Van Dusen and Rawlings. Mabel is thrown into the river and Oliver sandbagged. They are rescued and the thugs arrested. In the meantime Farmer and Mrs. Winthrop lose their farm, but by the generosity of Muffins, who falls into a fortune, are again placed in possession. Eventually everyone gets back to the old home again. Muffins pleads with Farmer Winthrop to forgive his daughter, but the old man takes a lot of persuading, finally giving in to Muffins' entreaties. Van Dusen and Rawlings escape from Sing Sing and straightway make for the Old Home swearing to be revenged for their imprisonment by firing the buildings. They are caught in the act by detectives who have been on their trail. Rawlings, to save his own hide, appeals on Van Dusen, who then confesses that he deceived Mabel by going through a mock marriage with her. On this astounding testimony, Oliver Stanhope, who remains true to Mabel, tries to reach the betrayer, but is prevented. All ends well in the final scene. Oliver and Mabel swear to be true to one another. Tilly, who has had an eye on Mickey Mullins all through the play, seizes that important Hibernian, and vows he shall love her, notwithstanding Mickey's strenuous objections. Muffins and Zeb Watkins hitch up together for life. Farmer and Mrs. Winthrop render thanks for the joyous outcome of it all, while the audience rejoices in seeing the two scoundrels booked for "durance vile."

The play, from the rise to the fall of the curtain, was full of exciting incidents and at times a few touches of pathos. One of the big hits of the night was the banquet, in which all the company took part. The make-up of all the artists was exceedingly clever and realistic. Mr. Oscar Banks, who took the part of Micky Mullins, the Irishman, is to be praised on his general make-up and his brilliant acting. Mr. Jack Ledlow, as Van Dusen, and his accomplice, Mr. Fred Thompson, as Rawlings, took their respective roles with the ability of real villians. Miss Myrtle Kyles, as the heroine, Mabel Winthrop, acted well. Farmer and Mrs. Winthrop, in the persons of Mr. W. Henry and Miss Muriel Howard, took their parts earnestly and forcibly, making a good, old, loveable couple. Miss Hazel Banks, who took the difficult role of Muffins, showed splendid dramatic and emotional power. Mr. Dougal Large as Oliver Stanhope, was a most ardent lover. Mr. Ralph Bremner as Zeb Watkins, made a good country boy. Mrs. Banks, in the role of Tilley, the maiden aunt, presented her part in a wonderful manner, calling applause from the audience time and again. Mr. Bert Trimble, as Moses Gazinski, who puts in glass etc., and acts detective as a sideline, was greatly appreciated.

An orchestra, composed of local artists, provided excellent music between acts. The proceeds amounted to $142. After defraying necessary expenses the balance will be divided equally between the Daughters of the Empire and the Charity Society.

Nat Pinkerton at the Dufferin Theatre

Detective stories are always attractive features and we offer for your approval this wonderful feature on Feb. 4th and 5th next. This is an entirely new detective story entitled "Nat Pinkerton, on the Trail of the Museum Thieves." This feature which is over 3000 feet in length, contains many novel features. It is exceptionally interesting and thrilling and should prove to be a great attraction. It has just finished a three weeks' run in the leading Picture Theatres of Toronto and has been booked a second time by many of them. Don't miss this; Also two good Western Comedies and a thrilling Civil War feature, entitled "A House Divided." Don't fail to hear Alice May, one of Toronto's professional Singing Artists, rendering several songs, also cornet selections. There will also be selections by other talented Toronto artists. Admission price, 10 and 15 cents.

AN OPEN MEETING

Orangemen Arrange for Public Addresses on Principles and Work of Order.

The members of the two local Orange Lodges are making arrangements for a public meeting in the Opera House, at which prominent local Orangemen will deliver addresses on the principles and work of the Orange Order. Tuesday evening next, Feb. 3rd, has been selected as the date for the meeting, which will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Mayor Island will preside and Revs. Bros. W. M. Morris, G. W. Tebbs and A. E. St. Dalmas will be the chief speakers. Rev. Mr. Morris will speak on the subject, "Why I am a Protestant and an Orangeman." Rev. Mr. Tebbs on "An Orangeman's Experience in Ireland," and Rev. Mr. St. Dalmas on "Orangeism in Canada." Rev. G. W. Robinson, pastor of the Methodist Church, will also be present and speak during the evening. The meeting is open to the general public and citizens, who are not connected with the Order, will have a splendid opportunity to acquaint themselves with its principles and objects. The brethren of neighboring lodges are urged to be present if they possibly can. A cordial invitation is extended to the general public and a special invitation to the ladies.

MUNICIPALITY LIABLE

Appellate Court Gives Important Ruling in Simcoe County Suit

An important ruling regarding the liability of municipalities was given by the Appellate Division at Osgoode Hall on Monday, when the judgment of the county judge of Simcoe, nonsuiting Mrs. McIntosh in the action she entered against the Township of Sunnidale and the County of Simcoe for damages for the loss of a horse, was set aside, and judgment for $200 damages entered for the plaintiff.

The main facts of the case were not disputed, and the whole point raised was that of liability. According to the evidence, Mrs. McIntosh's son was driving the horse along the county road within the limits of the township when it took fright at a cement mixer standing on the road. The horse swerved to one side and impaled itself on the handle of a plow. The mixer was the property of the contractor who was laying cement sidewalks for the township authorities. In fixing the liability upon the township the court said: "The law was well settled that an employer could not divest himself of liability in an action for negligence by reason of having employed an independent contractor where the work to be done was necessarily dangerous or from its nature likely to cause danger to others unless precautions were taken to prevent such danger."

Church Notes

In the Baptist Church, Rev. A. E. St. Dalmas is preaching a series of Sunday evening sermons on "Six Steps Heavenward." The Steps and dates on which they will be discussed are as follows:—Feb. 1st. Conviction; Feb. 8th, Conversion; Feb. 15th. Confession; Feb. 22nd, Consecration; Mar. 1st, Confirmation; Mar. 8th, Consummation.

Picture of the Royal Family

P. S. Inspector W. R. Liddy has received a number of copies of a fine framed picture of the members of the Royal Family. Mr. Liddy has one of these pictures for every rural school in the County of Dufferin. Teachers or Secretaries of rural school boards are invited to call at his office and obtain a picture.

A Good Example

The Public Library Board is deeply indebted to Mr. Jas. A. Matthews for a recent donation of a valuable ten-volume set of books, edited by Julian Hawthorne.

This is an example which is worthy of being followed by others who are desirous of promoting the interests of the reading public in the town of Orangeville.

CHARLESTON.

Our Charleston correspondent has mailed us an interesting and well-written report of the meeting, which the opponents of the Canada Temperance Act held in that village Tuesday night. We regret that the late hour at which the report reached us made it impossible to print it in full and go to press in time for Thursday morning's mails. We gather from what our correspondent says that the 'antis' had considerable difficulty securing a chairman. Hon. Mr. Windle, of Chicago, who has been appearing on many Ontario platforms in behalf of the organized liquor interests, was the speaker of the evening, and "sophistry, evasion and specious argument" are described as the outstanding features of his address. We greatly mistake if the oratory and illogical reasoning of this paid and imported campaigner will go down with the sensible and hard-headed electors of Caledon.

The $10,000 slander action started by two Burlington hotelmen against E. H. Cleaver has been dropped.

Leonard Betts, one of the oldest residents of Artemesia, passed away at his home, Collingwood gravel, at the ripe age of 95years.

Hospital Notes

The Daughters of the Empire and the Charity Society are very grateful to the Camilla Dramatic Club for the entertainment which they gave on Friday evening last, proceeds of which amounted to $143.00, and have been divided equally between the two societies. The Camilla Club are to be highly congratulated upon the great success of their play. Each member took his or her part exceptionally well and the players are certainly entitled to a great deal of credit for their work. The Orangeville Orchestra furnished several selections during the evening and was much enjoyed.

The Board of Management wish to thank the Violet Hill Women's Institute for their kind donation of $20.00 in aid of the Hospital work.

A very critical operation was performed in the Hospital by Dr. Gibson, of Hillsburg, and Dr. McKinnon, of Alton. The patient is progressing favorably.

All members of the Daughters of the Empire are reminded that the election of officers for the year 1914 will take place on Monday next, Feb. 2nd, at 3.30 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Library.

"Alice in Wonderland," the pretty children's story by Lewis Carroll, dramatized and set to music by Miss Hope Leonard, of New York, will be presented by one hundred of our best local talent in Orangeville Opera House on Thursday and Friday evenings, Feb. 19th and 20th, under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire.

CHEAPER FENCEPOSTS.

Preservatives Prolong Life of Poorest Woods.

As a result of the many enquiries in regard to the preservative treatment of fenceposts, the forestry branch, Ottawa, has now issued a circular on this subject. The various methods described of treating the posts with the preservatives are all illustrated by diagrams, and the apparatus required is simple and costs little.

The great advantage of these treatments is that they keep even cheap woods free from decay for from 10 to 15 years. Many kinds of wood found in farmers' wood lots will last, when used as posts, only four years or thereabouts; after treatment, such as described, they last twice or three times, even four times, as long.

Creosote, which costs in Canada, from 10 to 25 cents a gallon, is the best preservative. When boiling hot creosote is applied liberally with a brush, for instance—to the butts of well-seasoned posts from which the bark has been removed, it sinks into the wood for a distance of about a quarter of an inch. This should add at least ten years to the life of a post made from a non-durable wood, such as poplar, balsam, fir or spruce. This is not the best method, but it is the simplest and, on a small scale, probably the cheapest. Other methods require that the posts be kept covered in tanks of hot creosote for a longer or shorter period.

Besides lengthening the life of the post, the preservative treatment also tends to reduce the cost of the posts in another way, for as cheap local woods can be used, the first cost and the cost of transportation are usually much lower than for cedar, oak or tamarack. Moreover, as posts will need to be set less often, the proportionate cost of setting the post will be less. Taking into account all the items that go to make up the cost of the post, and comparing this with the number of years it will be found, in the majority of cases, to be much less for treated posts.

How Alberta Has Grown.

A recent census bulletin issued from Ottawa deals with agricultural statistics for the Province of Alberta. It shows that on June 1, 1901, the number of farm holdings were 9,486, of which 9,429 were holdings of five acres and over, as compared with 60,353 holdings of five acres and over, and 1,143 holdings of less than five acres, making a total of 61,496 holdings of between 100 to 200 acres increased from 6,577 to 34,555 in the decade, while those of over 200 acres increased from 2,587 to 24,023. The average size of the holdings has not varied from 1901 to 1911, being 283 acres at each census period.

In 1911, of the total land area, 10.96 per cent., or 17,747,739 acres, were occupied as farm lands, as compared with 1.69 per cent. or 2,735,630 acres in 1901. There were therefore in 1911 over 144,000,000 acres in Alberta not occupied for agricultural purposes.

In common with the other provinces of the west, Alberta is seriously beginning to make adequate provision for the feeding of animals in the winter season. In 1901 no land producing cultivated grasses was reported. The records of the last census show for 1910 149,973 acres of hay and clover and 2,592 acres of alfalfa, and these figures were increased to 162,411 acres of hay and 7,780 acres of alfalfa in 1911. In addition to 125,662 tons of cultivated hay and 5,133 tons of alfalfa, the records show that 100,849 tons of prairie hay were gathered in the census year.

Horses increased by 314,492, milch cows by 101,586, other horned cattle by 315,304, sheep by 46,488, swine by 191,441, turkeys by 60,782, geese by 18,063, ducks by 21,945, hens and chickens by 2,102,181.

They Want It Easy.

Before the Balkan war Bulgarians were to be seen in numbers in every centre in Ontario where manual labor was in progress. The majority of Bulgarians in Ontario were called home to fight Turkey, and died on the job.

Three Bulgarians have written the Dominion Minister of Agriculture asking about Canada. This letter has been forwarded to the Ontario Minister of Agriculture. The three applicats are all of good parentage, but their families have been ruined by the war. They make the "modest" promise that they would gladly come to Canada if they could be assured of positions becoming their rank and dignity. They balk at the farm servant's work idea, and want free board and lodging, and a sufficient training to enable them to go homesteading.

The letter will be answered informing them that the country is full of dignified people, who decline work on the farm, who are looking for free board, free education and free land grants.

Toronto Takes Most Domestics.

So strong is the need of domestics in Toronto that the remainder of the province has little show against that city in securing the services of the new arrivals. About fifty per cent of the domestics coming over pay their own fare and the remaining fifty per cent. are assisted. For those brought to Toronto the fare average $40. In the case of an assisted passage, the Government advances $2 and the balance is provided by the young women.

Relics Unearthed.

Frank Tyo, who owns the Stearn farm, a mile east of Massena, Ont. found a bunch of 86 old British and Canadian coins while engaged in plowing the other day, the discs having turned up in the furrow. The coins bear dates all the way from the "North American Token," dated 1781, to the big copper penny of 1831. There are about 20 different kinds of coin in the collection.

EARLY CIVIC SYSTEMS

HOW CANADIAN TOWNS WERE GOVERNED UNDER FRENCH.

At First Champlain Was Governor and Mayor and Everything, But Later on the Intendant Took the Reins of Power and Administered Municipal Affairs — Many of the Ancient Ordinances Remain.

The opening chapter of the story of municipal government in Canada, while particularly important now because of the entire change that has taken place both in the theory and the practice of government, is exceedingly interesting, for it presents a side of life seldom touched upon by the writers of popular history, and gives one an unusual view of the times of long ago.

Samuel de Champlain, the founder of Quebec, and first real Governor of Canada, undertook the discharge of duties that would now be performed by the municipal authorities. He laid out streets and published ordinances for the good government of the city. His successor, Montmagny, continued the work by laying out streets according to a plan, and he erected a pillory which served as a means of punishment and a place for the publication of proclamations and public notices.

As time passed and the colony grew, something like municipal institutions grew up, and their nature can best be indicated in brief form by an account of the duties of the principal officers, who carried on what may be called municipal government.

At the head of the system was a high official appointed by the King of France, and known as the Intendant. He ranked next to the Governor, and with respect to some matters his commission was so general that he claimed powers equal to those of the Governor, an arrangement that often caused friction between the two officials. In his highest capacity the Intendant was an officer of the whole colony. He controlled all expenditure of money and he presided over the Sovereign Council. He also possessed the power of independent legislation as well as certain judicial power.

"A great number of ordinances of Intendants," writes the historian Parkman, "are preserved. They were usually read to the people at the door of churches after mass, or sometimes by the cure from his pulpit. They related to a great variety of subjects—regulation of inns and markets, poaching, preservation of game, sale of brandy, rent of pews, stray hogs, mad dogs, tithes, matrimonial quarrels, fast driving, weights, value of coinage, trespass on land, building churches, observance of Sunday, preservation of timber. The Intendant issued regulations to safeguard against fire, and others specifying in what manner houses were to be built. These are matters that to-day are regulated by municipal councils.

Another official was the Syndic d'Habitation. This official was well-known in France, where he represented popular rights before the administrative tribunals. Records show that such Syndics were elected in Quebec, Three Rivers, and Montreal, where they were entrusted with certain local authority and represented the community in its dealings with the Government. This did not please the King's Colonial Minister, Colbert, who instructed Frontenac to gradually suppress the office.

At Montreal, the office seems to have been one of importance. There the Syndic administered the affairs of the town, subject, however, to the approval of the local judge and the Procureur Fiscal. The Montreal Syndic also levied taxes for the support of the garrison.

Another high municipal official of the old Regime was the Grand Voyer, "an officer," says Parkman, "charged with the superintendence of highways." If the Grand Voyer reported that a new road was wanted or that an old one needed mending, an ordinance of the Intendant set the whole neighborhood at work upon it directed by the captain of the militia of the neighborhood. The Grand Voyer was the road surveyor, and all road-work was done under his supervision.

The Captain of Militia, a constable and local head of the men available for fighting, was also deputy of the Grand Voyer. The captain personally directed the roadwork of his locality, and saw that each parishioner performed his due share, which was determined by the extent of his farm. The Grand Voyer decided upon the extent of the work, and he also laid out streets in towns and villages, and inspected buildings in order to see that they were safe. The office of Grand Voyer existed long after the colony had passed to the British crown; and in the years 1777, 1778 and 1796 the law respecting work upon the roads referred certain duties to an officer styled the Grand Voyer, and the name was in use many years later.

In those olden times the seigniors, under a system of customs called "corvee," had the right to call upon the tenants to perform a certain amount of labor for the maintenance of the roads and bridges. The system took deep root, and it received the sanction of the first Parliament of Lower Canada, the purpose being to secure sufficient labor to make possible the improvement of the highways. This act was not repealed until 1854. In a modified form the principle was continued in Lower Canada, now Quebec, and in fact, throughout other provinces, for road-tax continued to be "worked out"; that is, instead of paying it in money the farmers contributed labor—a system that is now being abandoned by progressive communities desirous of improving their highways.

In civil and social matters the head of one of those old-time rural parishes was the seignior, who often administered justice among the people, received their rents, and looked after public affairs, much as did the Syndic in a city or town.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, FEB. 5th, 1914.

THOS. C. DRYDEN
Warden of Dufferin.

Most people, who are at all conversant with municipal politics in Dufferin County, will concede that Thos. C. Dryden, reeve of Melancthon township, is deserving of the distinction which the County Council conferred upon him last week by electing him Warden of Dufferin. Mr. Dryden has merited the honor by his ability and the long service he has given his home municipality and the county. He has served three years as township councillor, two years as Deputy-Reeve and is now occupying the Reeve's chair for the third term. Warden Dryden was born in North Dumfries, Waterloo County, in 1875. He removed to Riverview in Melancthon township seventeen years ago and took charge of a saw milling business. His capable and energetic management has made this a successful venture and Mr. Dryden is reputed to be on "easy street" financially. Practical business capacity has been Mr. Dryden's outstanding characteristic as a municipal representative. The Warden is one of the youngest men in the County Council. He is a Presbyterian and a Liberal. It is about twenty-one years since Melancthon, which on the basis of assessment is the largest municipality in Dufferin, has had the honor of the Wardenship. The last Warden from the municipality was Mr. S. McDowell, of Mayburne, late License Inspector for Duffgrin. The Banner wishes Warden Dryden every success in his important position of trust and hopes that he may always find his duties pleasant and easy to discharge.

In its report of the recent municipal elections in Amaranth The Banner made the statement that Williams, the successful candidate for the reeveship, "shifted ground in his nomination speech, in which he virtually committed himself to the plan of remodelling the present county buildings." Commenting upon this the Shelburne Free Press says, "We take exception to the last sentence. A. E. Williams is no wabbler and every ratepayer in Amaranth knew where he stood on the House of Refuge question before the contest started." The Banner does not ask the Free Press to take its word relative to Williams' statement of his position in his nomination speech. There are scores of ratepayers who were at the nomination meeting who can corroborate The Banner. Mr. Williams undoubtedly "wabbled" to make votes in Amaranth and the question that is now interesting everybody is what he will do if the matter should come up in the County Council again this year. There can be no doubt whatever about the position he took in his nomination speech. The writer of this article was sitting within a few feet of Mr. Williams while he was speaking and has full notes of his address. Perhaps the Free Press would like a copy of these, so that it could tell its readers just what Mr. Williams did say.

THE DUFFERIN MUTUAL

Local Farmers' Company Has $4,500,000 Insurance in Force.

The report of the Dufferin Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company for the year ending 31st December, 1913, shows that the company had in force on December 31st, insurance to the amount of $4,598,325.00, the number of policies in force being 2,320.

On December 31st, with no matured liabilities, the total assets were placed at $163,533.17, made up as follows: Cash in banks and in the head office, $11,069.98; agents' balances due in 1913, $273.42; loan on mortgage, $800.00; premium notes in force after deducting payments, $151,389.77.

There was paid out for losses during 1913 the sum of $2,864.00; and since the organization of the company a total of $72,107.81 has been paid for losses.

The receipts for the year 1913 came to more than double the expenditure.

Secured a Majority of 57 in Peel Last Thursday.

The Canada Temperance Act was carried by a majority of 57 in Peel County last Thursday. There were small adverse majorities in Albion, Caledon, Brampton, Toronto Gore, Streetsville and Port Credit. Chinguacousy rolled up 203 for the Act, and Bolton village and Toronto township also gave majorities in favor. In view of the unfavorable lists, coupled with the fact that women property holders could not vote, the temperance people are well satisfied with the result. The details of the voting follow:—

Majority for Act 203.
Total majority for Act 57.

Huron and Welland counties also voted on the Act on Thursday. In the former County it was carried by a majority of 2,608. In Welland the Act was first declared carried by a small majority, but it now appears that it was defeated. The matter will likely be fought out in the courts.

OLD OFFICERS APPOINTED

Dawson and Marshall Get Their Jobs for Another Year.

On Monday night the Town Council reappointed William Marshall to the position of Town Constable and Thos. Dawson to the position of Nightwatchman. The applicants for the Constable's job were Marshall, R. Heath, James Boyd, S. W. Matthews and Thos. Allen and for that of Nightwatchman, Thos. Dawson, Andrew Davidson, Finley Lane and J. E. Leader. There was a good deal of wrangling and bitterness over the appointments. Marshall's opponents united on James Boyd, the result being a tie vote as follows:—

For Marshall—White, Arnott, Darraugh, Johnston.

For Boyd — Holmes, Henderson, Matthews, McGuirre.

Mayor Island gave the deciding vote for Marshall.

For Nightwatchman, Davison and Dawson were pitted against each other. The Mayor supported Davison, but Councillor Holmes voted for Dawson, giving the latter 5 of the 9 votes.

Jos. Hughes was appointed assessor at a salary of $100.

A motion was put through instructing the Clerk to write the License Department to ascertain why certain persons, who were fined more than once for selling or keeping liquor for sale were fined for second and third offences instead of being sent to gaol as provided by the Liquor License Act.

ROAD GRANTS

County Council Votes Considerable Sums for Highway Improvement

Committee on Roads & Bridges Plans to Build Seven New Bridges This Year

On Wednesday afternoon a deputation from The Daughters of the Empire waited upon the County Council with a petition asking for the usual grant of $300 in aid of Lord Dufferin Hospital. Mr. C. R. McKeown, M.P.P., who introduced the deputation, addressed the Council at some length in support of the petition. The application was referred to the Finance Committee for report. Some of the members of the Committee showed want of sympathy with the work the hospital is doing by proposing to cut off the grant. They were unsuccessful in this, but as a result of their attitude the amount of the grant was cut to $200.

The auditors' reports from the Shelburne and Grand Valley Agricultural Societies were presented by the Clerk and referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. H. A. Dorrance, B.S.A., addressed the Council on the subject of School Fairs and asked for a donation of $100 toward the prize lists. The request was referred to the Finance Committee.

A special committee, consisting of Messrs. Parks, Reburn, Falconer, White and West, was appointed to consider all communications and documents that could not be referred to any of the standing committees.

Thursday morning Mr. Marshall presented the report of the special committee on the Warden's address. The report congratulated the Warden on his elevation to his exalted position and assured him of the hearty support of every member of the Council in the discharge of his duties. The Committee expressed itself in favor of the usual grants to roads and stated that in its opinion the Commissioners should be advised to expend the appropriations as early as possible.

The Education Committee recommended the following payments for the Dufferin County pupils:—Meaford High School, $44.52; Owen Sound Collegiate, $84.88; Dundalk High School, $229.54. The committee expressed the opinion that it is in the interest of the Public Schools to hold uniform promotion examinations throughout the county and recommended a grant of $40 to defray the cost of printing and distributing the examination papers.

The Finance and Printing Committees presented their reports Thursday afternoon. The former recommended the following grants:—Salvation Army Commissioner David M. Rees, $5; Orangeville, Shelburne and Grand Valley Agricultural Societies, $250 each; Orangeville Hospital, $200; Mr. H. A. Dorrance, $100 for Rural School Fairs.

At the Friday morning sitting a motion was passed granting High Constable Marshall the sum of $50 for outlay for postage and expenses incurred in the discharge of his duties.

A by-law was put through amending By-law No. 421 by adding the bridge opposite lot 18, Mulmur-Melancthon townline, to the list of County bridges and designating it Bridge No. 27.

In the afternoon Mr. Reburn presented a lengthy report on behalf of the Committee on Roads & Bridges. The Committee recommended the construction of the following new bridges this year:—No. 24, between Amaranth and Mono, Marshall, Williams and Reburn, commissioners; No. 12, Burnside bridge, Amaranth and East Luther townline, Hilborn, Williams and Reburn, commissioners; No. 27, opposite lot 18, Mulmur and Melancthon townline, Reburn and Dryden, commissioners; No. 19, opposite con. 3, Mono and Mulmur townline, Reburn and Dryden, commissioners; two bridges on County line between Peel and Dufferin, opposite cons. B. and C., East Garafraxa, Ferns, Dryden and Reburn, commissioners; bridge on boundary between Dufferin and Wellington, opposite 15th line, East Garafraxa, Ferns, Dryden and Reburn, committee.

The Committee recommended the following road grants, the members whose names appear with each item being the commissioners:—

Hockley road, $50, Mono to supplement with $50, Parks.

Prince of Wales Road, $100, Mono to supplement with $100, Marshall.

Mono and Mulmur townline, $150, Mono and Mulmur to supplement with $150 each, Marshall and Reburn.

Mono and Caledon townline, east of Orangeville, $50, Mono, Caledon and Peel County to supplement with $50 each, Marshall.

Broadway, Orangeville, west of railway track, $35, Orangeville and Mono to supplement with $35 apiece, Marshall and White.

River Road, Mulmur, $100, Mulmur to supplement with $100, Reburn.

Boundary line, Mulmur and Tosorontio, $50, Simcoe County, Mulmur and Tossorontio townships to supplement with $50 each, Kidd.

Townline west of Shelburne, $140, east of Shelburne, $10, Amaranth and Melancthon to supplement with $150 each, Williams and Dryden.

Melancthon and East Luther townline, $25, East Luther and Melancthon to supplement with $25 each, Hilborn and Dryden.

Leading roads in Melancthon $160, Melancthon to supplement with $160, Dryden and Clark.

Townline Melancthon and Proton, $25, Grey County, Proton and Melancthon to supplement with $25 each, Dryden.

Gravel Road south of Grand Valley, $35, north of Grand Valley $90, west of Grand Valley $50, east of Grand Valley $15, East Luther to supplement with equal amounts. Hilborn.

Orangeville and Reading road, $50, East Garafraxa to supplement with $50. Ferns.

Belwood Gravel Road $50, East Garafraxa to supplement with $50. Ferns.

East Garafraxa and Amaranth townline, $100, Amaranth and East Garafraxa to supplement with $100 each. Ferns and West.

Leading roads in Amaranth $125, Amaranth to supplement with $125. Williams and West.

Boundary line East Garafraxa and Caledon, $50, Peel County, East Garafraxa and Caledon to supplement with $50 each. Ferns.

The County grants are payable to the treasurers of the different municipalities after June 1st, upon the certificates of the Commissioners that the money has been expended. Each Commissioner must submit a statement of his expenditure to the Road & Bridge Committee.

The Committee on Legislation made a couple of important recommendations, which were agreed to by the Council. One of them was in the form of a suggestion that the $10,000,000 which the Federal Government has set aside for agricultural purposes should be divided amongst the different counties and then subdivided amongst the townships according to their equalized assessment so that the money may be expended as the township councils consider best. The other was that an effort be made to secure the co-operation of other county councils in an effort to have the motor vehicle law amended as follows:—

"That all motor vehicles up to 30 h.p. be taxed 30 cents per h.p. and all above 30 h.p. be taxed 50 cents per h.p.," and that all money received from such licenses be handed over to the counties from which it was derived to be expended by their respective County Councils on road improvement.

The County Property Committee got through a recommendation authorizing the purchase of new chairs for use in the Court House. The old ones will be used to replace the benches which the inmates of the gaol are now using. Authority was also obtained for certain repairs to the roof of the Court House and the Chairman of the Committee was empowered to have the cannon in front of the Court House remounted on concrete carriages.

It was about 3.30 Friday afternoon when the Council adjourned until its June meeting. This will commence on Tuesday, June 16th.

A Post Office Clock

Orangeville is likely to have a clock placed in the postoffice tower in the near future. There is also a strong probability that an extension will be built to the post office building, which is too small for the amount of mail matter handled here since the introduction of rural mail delivery. Through Mr. O. Wilder, chairman of its Publicity Committee, the Orangeville Board of Trade has placed itself in communication with John Best, M.P. for Dufferin, relative to both of these matters. Mr. Best has laid the matter before the Minister of Public Works and has been assured that when the supplementary estimates are brought down provision will be made for the erection of a clock and also for the extension to the post office building. Mr. Best's letter to Mr. Wilder reads as follows:—

Ottawa, Jan. 23rd, 1914.

O. Wilder Esq.
Orangeville, Ont.

Dear Mr. Wilder:

You will remember writing to me some time ago about a clock on the Orangeville Post Office. As soon as I came down here, I went to see the Minister of Public Works and he told me that the Main Estimates were prepared some time ago, and they therefore could not put an appropriation in the Main Estimates, but promised me that when the Supplementary Estimates are brought down near the end of the Session, that there would be a certain amount for the clock on the Post Office and also for an extension to the Post Office, which, you are no doubt aware, is not large enough at the present time, owing to the increased business through the Rural Mail Delivery.

Hoping that when the estimates are brought down, the appropriation will appear for the clock and also for the extension, I remain

Yours Sincerely
JOHN BEST.

FROM GREAT LAKES TO THE ROCKIES

Women Sing the Praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Saskatchewan Lady Adds Her Testimony to What Has Already Been Said of the Great Work Dodd's Kidney Pills Are Doing.

Caesarville, Sask., Feb. 2nd.(Special).—The scarcity of female help in a new country subjects the women of the prairies to unusual strain, and careful observation has established the fact that this strain first makes itself felt in the kidneys. For this reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are making an enviable reputation from the Great Lakes to the foothills of the Rockies.

Everywhere you will find women singing the praises of the great Canadian kidney remedy that has banished their pains and weariness, and brought them back to health. Among the many is Mrs. Edgar Cowen, an estimable lady of this place.

"I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills very beneficial," Mrs. Cowen states. "If anything I can say will help any sufferer I am glad to add my testimonial to what has already been said."

The kidneys strain all the refuse material out of the blood. If they are out of order this refuse remains in the blood, and becomes poison. That's why sound kidneys mean pure blood and good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills make sound kidneys.

WILLIAM ALGIE DEAD

Well-Known Manufacturer Passed Away Early on Sunday Morning.

Alton Loses a Prominent Citizen---Large Attendance at Funeral Yesterday Afternoon.

The Home of the late William Algie

The neighboring village of Alton has sustained an irreparable loss in the death of its most prominent citizen, Mr. William Algie, proprietor of the well-known Beaver Woollen Mills. The end came quite unexpectedly about five o'clock on Sunday morning and was due to heart trouble, following a severe attack of acute indigestion. Mr. Algie had not been feeling well on Friday and Saturday, but was able to go to his mill both days. His demise was altogether unexpected and the sad news came as a great shock to his many friends at home and abroad. In Alton, where Mr. Algie was esteemed and beloved, the sad occurrence caused the deepest gloom.

A Canadian of Lowland Scotch descent, William Algie was born in Ayr, Ont., 64 years ago. He moved to Alton in 1881 and built a factory for the manufacture of men's underwear. The business expanded rapidly and additions were made to the factory from time to time. Five years ago building and machinery were destroyed by fire. Undaunted by the disaster, which would have meant ruin to a less courageous man, Mr. Algie set about making plans for a larger and better-equipped factory. The new building was rushed to completion and in a comparatively short time the business was running again on a larger scale than before the fire. Firmly convinced that in specialization lay the secret of successful manufacturing Mr. Algie devoted his factory entirely to the making of men's underwear. The factory has a yearly output of over $150,000 and its product finds a ready market from Halifax in the east as far as Vancouver in the west. The industry gives employment to 60 operatives and over fifty per cent. of the 1914 output was placed early last autumn. So fast has the business grown that last year Mr. Algie found himself confronted with the necessity of building another addition. The new machinery required for the addition was on the ground at the time of his death. When installed and in running order it would have increased the capacity of the plant by one-third. The factory is clean, well-lighted and sanitary, and has been made as pleasant to work in as possible. This is only one of many ways in which Mr. Algie has shown his keen interest in the well-being of his employees.

While widely known as a wealthy and successful manufacturer, Mr. Algie was equally prominent in other lines. He was President of the Canadian Secular Association and was a frequent contributor to "Secular Thought" and other periodicals. He was a warm personal friend of the late Robert Ingersoll, for whom he entertained great admiration. As an orator and after dinner speaker Mr. Algie ranked high and his services were in great demand at Board of Trade banquets and like social functions. His last appearance in this capacity was at a banquet in St. Mary's a short time before his death. He was a member of the Burns' Club, of Toronto, and a great lover of the famous Scottish poet, on whose works he was a recognized authority. As a speaker Mr. Algie had a bright, breezy style and was never at a loss for an apt quotation or a humorous story. He was probably at his best at Scotch gatherings, where his addresses were always listened to with the keenest relish and where his frequent quotations from his favorite poet met with an appreciative response from his auditors.

Some years ago Mr. Algie, who has always been on intimate terms with many travellers for commercial houses, conceived the idea of holding a travellers' picnic in Alton. The "Drummers' Snack" as the function was called, made a big hit from the first and the travellers themselves were most enthusiastic in making it an annual outing. For years the event was held in Alton and drew immense crowds.

Although a manufacturer, Mr. Algie was a Liberal and a strong believer in free trade. At the last Federal election, he spoke and voted in favor of reciprocity. He was an effective political speaker and did considerable campaigning, chiefly in Dominion elections. He was frequently spoken of as a likely Liberal candidate for Peel, but business ties and social duties at home and abroad combined to keep him out of the political arena.

The deceased was a big-hearted, generous man, who rejoiced in the happiness and prosperity of those about him. His fine home in Alton was always open to his friends, whom he loved to entertain in his genuinely hospitable manner. It was his custom to hold an annual At Home for his employees and their friends and he put forth every effort to make a big success of this event. He was a generous patron of all forms of manly sport and in his death the young men of Alton have lost a true friend. Mr. Algie was an intimate friend of the late Mr. Dale, founder of the Dale Conservatories in Brampton. Since the death of the latter about 14 years ago he has been one of the executors of the Dale estate and the wonderful development of that business is due in part to his business acumen and foresight.

Mr. Algie was married to Miss Ward, daughter of the late Benjamin Ward, formerly a woollen manufacturer in Alton. His widow and a family of two sons and four daughters, survive. The latter are William Algie, Toronto; James Algie, Brampton; Mrs. George McIntyre, Oklahoma; Mrs. Wm. Dorrington, Mrs. Amos Mason and Miss Phoebe Algie, Alton. Dr. James Algie and Mr. Robt. Algie, of Toronto, are brothers.

There was a very large attendance at the funeral, which was held from the Algie home to Alton cemetery yesterday afternoon. Employees of The Beaver Mills to the number of sixty walked ahead of the hearse from the house to the grave. Alton business places were closed and practically the whole community turned out to show a last mark of respect for the man who had done so much for the village. Many friends were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Brampton, Orangeville and other outside points. A special train from Brampton brought up a large contingent of citizens, headed by Mayor Mara and Judge McGibbon. The remains were borne to their last resting place by six of the employees in the Beaver Mills, namely, Messrs. L. Lovell, Jos. Palmer, Alex. Dean, Wm. Shaw, Fred Hill and Jas. Culligan. Mr. Algie lived and died an Agnostic and there was no religious service at the house or grave. A brother, Mr. Robert Algie, read a short eulogy over the open grave. The costly casket in which the remains were consigned to the tomb was literally buried beneath the many beautiful floral tributes which bore mute but eloquent testimony to the love and sympathy of numerous friends. These included the following:—A floral blanket from the Dale family; wreaths from H. Blunt, Nashua, N.J., Alton Knitting Mills, Jas. Pearson, K.C., Toronto, The Drummers' Snack Club, Alton Boys, Mr. Morton, Brampton, Peel Liberal Association, Beaver Mills employees, Mr. Pringle, Brampton, Wright & Carrol, the Walker House, Toronto, The Albany Club, Albany, N.Y., and Harry Burns and Mr. Everett, Canadian representatives of Holland's, Limited, England; pillow, Dale Estate employees; sprays, T. W. Duggan, Brampton, Chas. Gordon, Brampton, 91st Regiment, Hamilton, Barrett family, Albany, N.Y., Norton McNeil, Toronto, Alton Dance Committee, The Culligan family, Wm. and Chas. Culligan, Mrs. Harper, Hamilton, and Alton Presbyterian Church; wreaths, the Family and Grandchildren, the Alton Women's Institute; a floral book of Burns' poems from the Burns' Society, Toronto, and a cross from W. Canham, Toronto.

Among those from a distance were Messrs. Chas. and Wm. Culligan, of Stratford; Robt. W. King, F. P. McIntosh, James Reid, Wm. Colwell, Dr. John Noble, John W. Charles, Geo. F. Campbell, Misses Culligan, Messrs. Wright, Carroll, Ellis and McDougall, of Toronto; Mr. Willis Barnett, of Albany, N.Y.; Captain Dunn, of Owen Sound; Geo. Matheson, of Hamilton, and Ex-Mayor T. W. Duggan, County Treasurer Robt. Crawford, Sheriff Henderson, James Fallis, M.P.P., Mayor Mara and Judge McGibbon, of Brampton.

LAUREL.

What do the mysterious letters G.O.R.A.B. stand for? Nobody seems to know, though many are the guesses that have been made. Some claim they are to be interpreted as: Girls Often Rush A Bachelor; while others declare that they stand for: Give Over Running After Beauty. This latter seems the most likely, as many members of the organization, which boasts the cryptic symbols are married, or else hopeless bachelors, for whom beauty long since lost its fascination.

From what we have been able to learn, the members of this strange cult hold their meetings at the home of some chronic bachelor, or else at the home of some married man whose wife is on a visit. What transpires at these meetings is for the most part unknown, though there are rumors of weird gastronomic rites being performed. Fortunately for the public, some of the happenings at a recent seance have been divulged, and are hereafter set forth.

On Jan. 29th, the G.O.R.A.B. met at the home of Noble Potter, 8th line. Those present were: Geo. Hepton, Tom Bell, Noble Potter, Stanley Potter, Leslie Walker, Logan Bell, Will Ewing, Cecil Grosskurth, Joe. Gordon, Will Jelly, Oliver Durkin, Warren Grosskurth, Karl Grosskurth, Walter Potter, Albert Pratt, George Brown, the two Peechee boys, Willis Potter's hired man, and Bert Geer.

Right here, lest we forget, be it recorded that 2.30 a.m. was the hour the meeting adjourned.

It is impossible to give a connected account of the happenings, but we may relate some facts which may serve as steps upon which each for himself may hang the story.

Effort with a view to becoming proficient in resisting Home Rule, or evolving another White Hope, the members took to boxing with one another, with the result, that if they had been a beauty doctor in the room he would have made his fortune right there. Leslie Walker made a mighty swipe at someone or other, his suspenders departed for parts unknown, and he was forced to borrow a belt to keep within the law on the way home. His physical damages were two dislocated thumbs. Karl and Warren Grosskurth then hooked up, and Warren received a sledge-hammer smash on the breast bone that made him forget that he was married for more than two minutes. About this time Albert Pratt remembered he was a married man, and realizing it was a sad thing for a woman to have an invalid on her hands he made haste home. George Hepton's nose foolishly came into collision with a boxing glove and acted as noses usually do under the circumstances. Some irresponsible force made Will Jelly top heavy, and he dived backward over a chair. Will is under the impression he was struck by lightning, but all declare they heard no thunder, and John Johnston says lightning was never known without thunder, though he has heard preachers thunder with very little enlightening. Tom Bell escaped serious injury, no one being willing to tackle such a big problem. Oliver Durkin complained of a sore side, so was spared further injury. Will Potter's conscience became active during the proceedings, and he became profoundly shocked at the conduct of his fellow members, as befitted a Methodist, whose church rules absolutely forbid fighting unless the devil be the antagonist. It is said Willis Potter's hired man became so alarmed at the bloodshed that he made his escape out of the window. He was pursued and brought back, eventually becoming so hardened to the sight that he laughed at some of the horrible things he saw.

After the mystic rites hinted above, victors and vanquished partook of such eatables as could be found, doing much more deadly execution with their jaws than they had done with their fists. Joe Gordon disposed of so much that it was decided to operate upon him to discover whether he had really swallowed it all, or had surreptitiously given most of the good things to the dog. Joe stood the operation well, it being discovered that his capacity fully warranted the amount he appropriated. In fact, Will Ewing conceded that Joe's capacity was greater than his own, a statement which increased the crowd's respect for Joe considerably. George Brown was inclined to think that he could hold more than any one else in the society, but he declined to be operated upon to substantiate his statement. The men were willing to admit that George could say less in more words than any one else, with the possible exception of Logan Bell. George and Logan were with difficulty persuaded from going to the barn to hold a contest over the matter, only desisting when the possible injurious effect on the cattle was pointed out. The mentioning of the sufferings of the cattle so moved the tender hearts of the Peechee boys and Stanley Potter that all the available dish towels were saturated in an endeavor to staunch the tears.

What do the letters G.O.R.A.B. stand for? In the light of the facts we have recorded, puzzle it out for yourselves. One thing sure, if you meet a man with a marred visage, or with a limb in splints, or with clothing patched, pinned, or nailed together, or with a hang-dog expression such as it manifested by a stealer of pies and preserves, we say, if you meet such a man, in all probability he is a member of the G.O.R.A.B.

If by chance you someday meet
Such a man upon the street,
Just pity him, and don't condemn
we pray;
For his Club has brought him low,
And his cup is filled with woe,
He may become a noble man some day.

WEST MONO PARISH

Has a New Rector in the Person of Rev. H. A. Meek

Rev. H. A. Meek, of East Oro, has been appointed rector of the parish of West Mono. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Meek are moving into the rectory at Cardwell this week and the new rector will enter upon his pulpit duties next Sabbath. In view of the appointment the following item from a recent issue of the Orillia Packet will be of interest to many Banner readers:—

On Monday evening last, a goodly company of the congregation of St. Mark's church, East Oro, drove over to the rectory at Shanty Bay, to tender a farewell to the Rev. H. A. Meek and to Mrs. Meek. Before sitting down to a dainty repast provided by the visitors, the following address was read by Mr. Sidney Leigh:

"On this, the eve of your departure from amongst us, we, the members of St. Mark's church, with whom you have labored faithfully in the Master's service for the last five years, have met together here to express our regret at the severance of your connection with us as our pastor. We realize that you have ever earnestly and sincerely striven for our uplifting, and faithfully ministered to the spiritual needs of the community, your influence and example being ever exerted to point and direct us onward in the narrow path of duty and righteousness. We have ever found in you a true friend and wise counsellor, ready at all times to offer help and sympathy. Such trials and discouragements as are inseparably connected with the work in this, as in other congregations, have never appeared to dampen your ardour and enthusiasm for the great work to which you have dedicated your life, and although the results of your toil among us may not have seemed sufficiently and encouragingly evident, we are sure that in God's own time, it will be revealed. As a small tangible token of our feelings, we ask you to accept this purse. In the new field of labor to which the Master has called you, the best wishes and prayers of the congregation will follow you, and we trust that you and Mrs. Meek may long be spared for the great work in which you are engaged. Signed on behalf of the congregation of St. Mark's Church, E. J. Leigh, William Moore."

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

Marching to Victory

Adapted by Rev. J. S. Ross, D.D.
Tune: "Marching Through Georgia."

Bring the temperance bugle now,
We'll sing a temperance song,
Sing it with a spirit
As it rolls the land along.
Sing it as we yet shall sing it—
Half a million strong,
While we are voting for temperance.

(Chorus)
Hurrah! hurrah! We'll sing the jubilee!
Hurrah! hurrah! The day that is to be!
So we'll sing the chorus from the centre to the sea,
While we are voting for temperance.

The license plan we've tested it—
It does not help the case;
It concentrates the traffic
While it grows with steady pace,
We'll treat it as it really is—
A fraud upon its face.
While we are voting for temperance.

We'll agitate the question
Till the people know their foe.
We'll drive him from the public gaze,
Although it hurts him so,
We'll write upon our banners
"The bar is bound to go."
While we are voting for temperance.

Three cheers for prohibition, then,
Reform has come to stay,
We'll never drop our banner
Till Rum's corpse is laid away.
We'll slay him with the ballot box
On Referendum Day.
While we are voting for temperance.

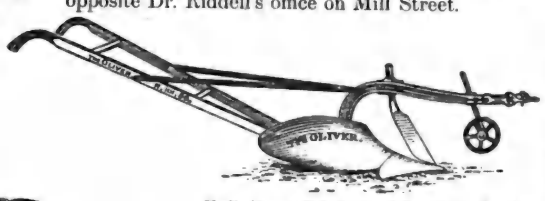
Arthur Timmins, who has been employed with Jas. Richardson, at Maple Grove, for the past two years, contracted blood poisoning in his right arm about two weeks ago. On January 21st he was taken to Toronto General Hospital for treatment.

The refusal of the Hamilton council to pass the third reading of the Mountain Hospital by-law for $200,000, already voted on and passed by the ratepayers, came as a surprise. Ald. T. Wright said that of the small majority in favor of the by-law, residents of the Mountain had cost 25 votes.

A recount into the vote cast for mayor and reeve of Chesley was held in Walkerton, but failed to change the result at all. Mr. J. C. Halliday was elected mayor by one vote over Dr. W. A. Crow and Mr. W. H. Brown won the reeveship by a margin of ten over Mr. Samuel Wright.



The explosion of a lantern caused the destruction by fire on the night of Jan. 19th of the barn of Albert Rolls, con. 4, Wallace, and the loss of 1,600 bushels of oats and 22 tons of hay. The stock was saved by desperate efforts. Insurance, $1,200 on barn and $1,100 on contents.

GROWTH OF A CHURCH.

St. Paul's In Toronto Was a Tiny Place 71 Years Ago.

It was in a spirit of ambassadorship of the gospel that the early settlers in Toronto raised to the worship of God the first log chapel and set apart the Sabbath. Perilous times these, when men moved in the shadow of death and knew not what a day might bring forth. It was an unpretentious House of God that was opened seventy-one years ago where the forest barred the way northwards to the encroachments of Toronto and where St. Paul's Church now stands on Bloor street, a low, narrow frame building, it provided ample accommodation for the hundred souls that comprised its first congregation. Its wooden spire, hoisted to the top by willing hands, was built of four pine trees.

Eighteen years later the wooden church had given place to a handsome stone structure of typical English design, seated to accommodate three hundred and fifty people. For thirty years this sacred edifice stood like a sentinel on the outposts of the city and within its walls another generation grew into the fullness of Christian knowledge.

In 1900 three hundred more worshippers were provided with seats by an enlargement of the church, and so rapid was the growth of population at this period that four years later the building was further extended, giving seating accommodation for 1,250.

Such is the record of steady growth from the modest forest chapel, built of wood, to the spacious and handsome architectural structure that has adorned Bloor street east in ever increasing size for over forty years.

Three years ago the corner-stone of a new church building was laid, capable of seating 2,500 people. The grain of mustard seed planted in 1842 has grown to enormous dimensions. The forest chapel has become the city temple.

The other day the congregation of St. Paul's worshipped for the first time in the new and imposing building in which for three years past the clang of hammer and chisel has never ceased. It approaches Westminster Abbey in dimensions, and is considerably larger than Exeter Cathedral.

The facade of the church on Bloor street is designed in what might be commonly termed four "stories"; three large arched doorways deeply recessed, with well-designed arch mouldings and traceried heads, each varying in design; a low arcade of lancet-pointed arches supported on columns standing about two feet in front of the lights behind; three towering windows with richly varied tracery, mullions and transoms, and emphasized by columns and archivolt mouldings; a traceried stone balustrade, set out in relief from the main gable, which rises behind it, and is flanked on either side by heavy buttresses, which finish in traceried pinnacles. In each transept is a huge rose window, quite worthy to stand in an old world cathedral. These windows are forty feet high and twenty-seven feet wide, the diameter of the rose itself being twenty-two feet.

George Ham as a Judge.

George H. Ham of the C.P.R. was a good many years ago an alderman of the City of Winnipeg. This gave to him the right, at that time to sit as a Justice of the Peace. A compositor on one of the papers had been arrested for carrying a little too much liquor inside his personality. George Ham was called upon during the absence or sickness of the ordinary occupant of the bench to act as a J. P. The accused, delighted at the fact of Ham being the judge, cheerfully pleaded "guilty." To his horror he was addressed as follows: "Prisoner, the sentence of the court upon you is that you be taken to the place in which you were last confined, and then be hanged by the neck until you be dead, and may the Lord have mercy upon your soul." The man gazed in horror. "Or," continued the judge, "you may pay the costs of this court and go home."

This was the only case in which the alderman presided as a judge, "as," says he, "that was the only great criminal case in which I was ever a principal."

Champion "Packers."

They set great store by the ability to "pack" heavy loads in new countries and many a reputation in the west is built on a feat of "toting." Andy Linderkere, who stake a claim on the Salmon River in southeastern Alaska, acquired local fame by packing 400 pounds of supplies a short distance. At Haynes Mission in Alaska, the story is told of Joe Martin that he carried a stove, weighing 380 pounds, from the wharf to the store without stopping. Alluring invitations were showered upon him all along the way, too, for the whole camp lined up along his path and did its best to get him to stop and have a drink or a chew, for Martin had made a bet. But he turned a deaf ear to the beguilements, and with perspiration dripping from his nose, he strained on up the trail and delivered his burden in accordance with his boast.

Britain Buys Our Cheese.

Great Britain is still the premier market for Canadian cheese, according to statistics prepared by the Department of Customs at Ottawa. During the month of October last Canada exported 21,120,000 pounds of cheese, valued at $2,802,000. Of this Great Britain took $2,776,000 worth, Newfoundland $10,433 and the United States was a poor third with $5,885. The balance was distributed among British West Indies, Bermuda, British South Africa, China, Japan and Hong Kong.

Replacing Postoffices.

Fifty-three new postoffices were opened in Canada on Dec. 1. Eighty-seven were closed on the same date, of which seventy were discontinued owing to the inauguration of the rural free delivery system.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. —"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 908 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

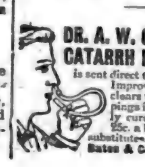
The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

WM. RUTLEDGE WARDEN OF PEEL.

Reeve of Toronto Township Elected by Unanimous Vote.

Receipts and Expenditure of Peel and Halton House of Refuge.



The first meeting of the County Council of Peel for 1914 is being held this week. All the members were present and subscribed to the oath on Tuesday afternoon. The representation is as follows:—Brampton Milner and Beatty; Port Credit, C. Elliott; Streetsville, O. R. Church; Bolton, F. N. Leavens; Albion, A. McCabe; Caledon, T. Quinn, D. Armstrong; Chinguacousy, R. Lightheart Guy Bell; Toronto Gore, John Porter; Toronto Township, Wm. Rutledge, D. McCaugherty, L. H. Pallett.

The first business was the election of a Warden. Wm. Rutledge was nominated by Mr. Elliott, of Port Credit, seconded by Mr. Armstrong, of Caledon. As there were no other nominations, he was declared elected. Mr. Rutledge thanked the members of the council for the confidence they had shown in him and promised to do his duty to them and to the people of the county.

Mr. Milner, reeve of Brampton, raised the question of the right of Toronto Township to a second deputy-reeve. Since the last meeting of the council Port Credit had become an incorporated village, thereby reducing the township's population. But Mr. Gill the township clerk had given the certificate and assured the council that the population was quite sufficient to entitle them to a second deputy-reeve.

The following Select Committee was appointed to strike the Standing Committees for the year with McCaugherty as chairman;- Messrs. Beatty, Elliott, McCaugherty, McCabe and Milner. The Committee presented the following report. Finance—Messrs. Milner, chairman, Elliott and McCabe; Equalization of Assessment—Messrs. Elliott, chairman, Lightheart, Porter, Church, Leavens, Beatty, Quinn and McCabe; Education—Messrs. Leavens, chairman, Church and Beatty; County Property, Roads and Bridges, Messrs. McCaugherty, chairman, Porter and Bell; Printing and Contingencies, Messrs. O. R. Church, chairman, Quinn and McCabe; Miscellaneous Communications—Messrs. Armstrong, chairman, Lightheart, Quinn and McCabe; Agriculture — Messrs. Porter, chairman, Quinn and Beatty.

The financial statement of the Peel-Halton House of Refuge for the past year showed that the receipts amounted to $6686.15 and the payments to the same amount. The number of inmates from Halton is 19, from Dufferin, 1, and from Peel, 27. The average cost per inmate per year is $135.23 and the average cost per week, $2.60. The net cost of the institution to both counties, exclusive of boarders, was $4873.16. The receipts from Halton County amounted to $2205.25 and from Peel to $2978.16. The receipts for stock amounted to $1290.75, for grain $7, miscellaneous $102.15, interest $2.75. $1308.95 was paid out in wages and $1063.23 for supplies, $199.28 being expended in dry goods and boots and shoes. The capital account amounts to $712.51. Insurance, heat, light, etc., cost $1405.57 and $999.74 was expended on miscellaneous matters.

Toronto Takes Most Domestics

So strong is the need of domestics in Toronto that the reminder of the province has little show against that city in securing the services of the new arrivals. About fifty per cent. of the domestics coming over pay their own fare and the remaining fifty per cent. are assisted. For those brought to Toronto the fare averages $40. In the case of an assisted passage, the Government advances $20 and the balance is provided by the young women.

Relics Unearthed.

Frank Tyo, who owns the Stearns' farm, a mile east of Massena, Ont., found a bunch of 86 old British and Canadian coins while engaged in plowing the other day, the discs being turned up in the furrow. The coins bear dates all the way from the "North American Token," dated 1781, to the big copper penny of 1831. There are about 20 different kinds of coin in the collection.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS MAKE WOMEN WELL

Just because she is a woman, there are times when every woman needs help and strength in the form of a blood-building tonic.

To thousands of girls and women Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved a blessing, because they enrich the blood, give strength and restore tone to the aching nerves. The anaemic girl who is languid and pale, the wife whose back feels like breaking; the matron whose health fails as she reaches middle age—for all such sufferers, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable, because ill health in woman is usually caused by poor blood or insufficient blood. These pills have cured thousands of others, why not you? Mrs. D. Morine, Wallbrook, N.S., says:—"It is impossible for me to say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have been a great sufferer from those troubles that make the life of so many women in almost constant misery. Pains in the back and side racked and tortured me. My nerves seemed to give out, and at times I could do no house work, and only women who have similarly suffered know what I endured. I tried medicine after medicine without any benefit, and was finally persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Soon after starting the pills I found an improvement, and as I continued their use my health and strength returned, and I now feel as well as ever I did in my life, and I am relating my experience merely in the hope that it may lead some other suffering woman to renewed health. I may add that my mother suffered from rheumatism so badly that she had to use a crutch, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills completely restored her to her usual good health.

Always get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. If your dealer does not keep them, the pills will be sent post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW SCOTSMEN MARRY

CURIOUS LAWS AND CUSTOMS IN THE LAND OF CAKES.

The Old Gretna Green Weddings Which Consisted of a Mere Declaration Before the Village Blacksmith, Have Passed and the Scottish Laws Governing Matrimony Are Highly Intricate.

If you ask anyone, layman or lawyer, outside of Scotland to give you a correct definition of the marriage laws of Scotland, there is the ten-to-one chance that he will be unable to do so. People have been heard to gravely declare that if a person, even in jest, introduced a lady as his wife to somebody else in Scotland, they were thereby tied together in matrimonial bonds. Others who do not "joke with difficulty" have been heard to state their belief that many Scots do not know whether they are married or single! Such matrimonial travesties may have had some semblance of reality in the romantic days of Gretna Green, when runaway couples were united in wedlock by the village blacksmith, but in these days a higher standard is placed upon the ceremony of marriage, both by the civil law and the law of the church.

Only the other day an important point arising out of evidence given by a Scottish minister at a bigamy trial in London was settled by the Registrar-General for Scotland, who has laid it down that "witnesses are essential" to the due observance of a Scottish marriage. The essence of the Scots' law is that marriage is essentially a civil contract. Thus, if two parties in the presence of witnesses solemnly and deliberately say to each other, "You are my wife," "You are my husband," they are as indissolubly married as if the whole ceremony of banns, clergyman, and marriage lines had been gone through. No need, therefore, for anxiety on the marriage day about mistakes in these formalities; the want of any or all of them does not in the least impair the validity of the marriage. Or again, if a man and woman write, say, on the fly-leaf of a Bible the words, "I take you, A, for my wife," and "I take you, B, for my husband," respectively, and add their signatures, both intending to marry, they are as firmly knit as if they had been wedded by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Such are the unromantic facts of a Scottish marriage.

The propriety of allowing marriages to be effected in this simple way without the safeguard of any religious ceremony has often been questioned, but the fact remains that the Legislature allows it and that "it is suited," as one authority has said "to the Scottish national character and circumstances." It cannot be said, however, that such marriages are regarded with favor either by the law or by public opinion.

Another interesting point cropped up the other day when a minister refused to marry any couple whose names had been published on the registrar's board instead of having been proclaimed in the parish church. He did not object to the registrar's certificate on the ground that proclamation in the church was a guarantee of greater publicity, but simply that it was a prerogative of the minister that he was not obliged to marry parties unless after proclamation of banns. In olden days the fees charged by church officials or kirk session for proclamations of banns were very heavy. An ordinary charge was $5 to $7.50, but sometimes it rose as high as $10. After the Marriage Notice Act of 1878 came into operation (for the express purpose of encouraging regular marriages), the church had to set its house in order, and in 1880 an act was passed by the General Assembly, in which it was decreed that the fee for proclamation of banns and certificates should in no case exceed 60 cents. When originally instituted, proclamation of banns was made on three successive Sundays preceding the marriage, but it is now sufficient if proclamation is made on one Sunday "for the first, second, and third times."

Dissenters of strong opinions like to show their independence by patronizing the registrar rather than the Clerk of the Kirk-Session, but the women still have the preference to be "cried in the kirk." The marriage "lines" are issued by the session clerk or the registrar, as the case may be, and the minister of any church can carry through all the formalities of the marriage at the bride's home or in an hotel. A small party of relatives, or a large assembly, is gathered, according to the accommodation of the house and the means at disposal. The more fashionable have their weddings about noon or two o'clock. But a great number of marriages take place in the evenings about seven or eight o'clock. Among the working classes Friday evening is the popular time, and in Glasgow and the other great towns the last Friday of the year sees as many weddings as any ordinary month. In recent years in Scotland marriages in church have become quite common among the "better class" people, but it is not often that a couple belonging to the artisan population are wedded in church.

As is the case in England, civil marriages are greatly on the increase in Scotland. They provide a lucrative business for a certain class of solicitors in large towns.

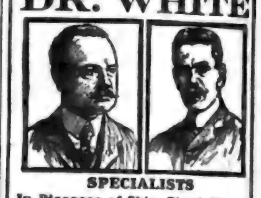
NEWSPAPER LAW

1—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.



2—If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3—Any person who takes a paper from the Post Office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4—If a subscriber orders his paper stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the Post Office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

WHO OWNS THE LAND.

A peculiar police court case came up for a hearing before D. A. Lee, J. P., and Mayor Mitchell on Saturday morning last. G. E. Crawford, of Adjala, charged J. J. Summerville, also of Adjala, with trespass, and sought a conviction in the police court. The evidence went to show that Crawford had recently closed up a roadway which the Summerville family had used for forty-eight years. The obstruction was torn down and again put up only to be removed. The council of Adjala was appealed to in an effort to establish the fact that the thoroughfare was a municipal road. Failing in this the case was brought to court. The definition of trespass given by the statute did not apply since the defendant had been using plaintiff's land as a roadway for so many years and considered that he had a perfect right to use it. The case was dismissed each party being left to pay his own costs. The magistrates advised the litigants to go to a higher court and fight out their differences there. Mr. G. E. J. Brown appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Jas. Fraser, of Tottenham, for the defendant.—Alliston Herald.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, now see if you can repeat it. What is my name?"

CAN REDUCE WEIGHT IN BATH.

German Professor Gives Simple and Harmless Remedy for Stoutness.

Professor Franz Nagelschmidt, of Berlin, Germany, after pointing out the poisons that lurk in all anti-fat panaceas, declares that he has for nearly two years employed an electric battery for the reduction of superfluous flesh. This electric battery produces a "foradic" current which sets the little fibres and strands of your muscles in rhythmic, regular, harmonic vibrations. These muscular movements are attuned to the normal rhythm of a resting muscle in such a way that the muscular motions occur without fatigue to the bulk of huge flesh.

Fat, then, according to this "Nagelschmidt electric current" can be turned off and on at will. You may take on adipose or eliminate as much as you please. The only question seems to be one of submitting to the battery.

Another method of reducing fat to a minimum, available for many who cannot be placed in touch with this new electricity, is to artificially produce a current of electricity in your bath tubs. Although it is not so reasonable nor yet absolutely explainable upon our knowledge of the impenetrability of the human skin, yet it is a well-proved fact that if Epsom salts or sulphate of magnesium is added to the water of your full bath, in the course of a few months from fifteen to thirty pounds will be eliminated.

Whether this is a mysterious electrolytic action that is set up between your skin and water, or merely a powerful assault of the salt upon the usually impervious skin has not been positively determined. The fact, however, remains that Epsom salts in the bath tub aids materially in reducing your avoirdupois.

It is evident from these two procedures that corpulent persons need not expend all sorts of money upon every published anti-fat remedy. It is far better to apply these certainly harmless, cleanly and non-fatiguing methods discovered by medical men of acknowledged training than to pick up every catchpenny panacea with no other support than the emblazoned words of an advertising writer.

Prehistoric Relics From Africa.

Central Africa was once the home of a highly civilized people. The latest proof of this comes from Leo Frobenius, a German explorer, who collected and brought back to Berlin recently many specimens of ancient art. Much of this material is not older than the sixth century after Christ, but the various objects were found in the ruins of places from 15 to 25 feet below the surface, and these buildings had been built on the ruins of still older and more pretentious structures. The latter were of solid, well built masonry with court yards and gardens surmounted by roofs of tiles.

Some of the finest specimens of statuary and bas reliefs, in bronze, terra cotta and carved quartz come from these prehistoric ruins. They rival in perfection of workmanship the best relics of ancient Egypt, thus proving that in very remote ages Central Africa must have been inhabited by a highly civilized people, and supporting the theory that Africa was the seat of the first high civilization which was transmitted across the Mediterranean to Europe, while the peoples who had founded it sank gradually into a condition of savagery, through what cause we can only conjecture.

Shady and Sunny Side of Japan.

A remarkable difference exists between the climates of western and central Japan, so much so that these districts are distinguished by the two names Sanindo—shady side—and Sanyodo—sunny side—respectively. During the long and rigorous winter of western Japan the central provinces, bordering the inland sea, enjoy dry and comparatively mild weather. The two regions are separated by mountain ranges, and the factors determining their climate conditions are distinct. A Japanese writer says that while the winter climate of central and southern Japan depends on the southwestern monsoons, that of the western coast is directly related to the barometric area of north China.

A Prophetic Dream.

One of the most inexplicable forms of dream is the prophetic one, instances of which abound. The late Lord Dufferin when in Paris dreamed one night that he was in a hearse en route for the cemetery. A day or so later he was entering the lift at a hotel when he recognized the attendant as the driver of the hearse his dream. He stepped back and the lift ascended without him. As it neared the top something broke, and it crashed to the bottom again, killing every one in it.

Hard to Fool.

"Maria," sharply asked Mr. Dorkins, "is that worthless young whipper snapper of a Dick Dogood still coming to see Bessie?"

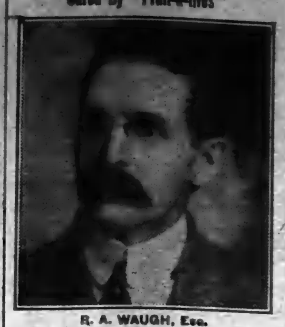
"What do you mean by talking that way, John?" said Mrs. Dorkins. "He hasn't been here in six weeks."

"Hasn't he? Is the scoundrel trifling with her affections?"

A Lack of Foresight!

The primary teacher asked for volunteers in story telling or singing, and one little girl finally offered her services. She came to the front of the room and after standing quietly for a moment, turned to the teacher and remarked:

"Gee! I wish I had kept still."



Her Revenge.

A lawyer asked a woman in the witness box her age, and she promptly replied:

"Old enough to have sold milk for you to drink when a baby, and I haven't got my money yet."

REMARKABLE CURE OF RHEUMATISM

Supt. Of Sunday School In Toronto Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

R. A. WAUGH, Esq.

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 1st, 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I have lived in this city for more than 12 years and am well known. I suffered from Rheumatism especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH,
55 DOVERCOURT ROAD.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure even the most stubborn cases of Rheumatism because it is the greatest blood purifier in the world and acts on the bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

PARCELS POST FOR CANADA.

Will be Inaugurated on February 10.

Parcels post will be an accomplished fact on February 10th. Hon. L. P. Pelletier announced in the House last week that the work of preparation had been completed and the new system would be inaugurated in two weeks' time.

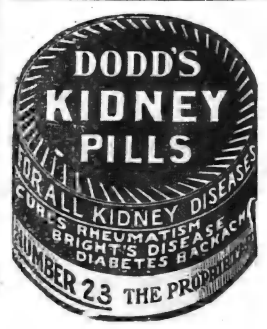
Negotiations and preliminary work for the establishment of this boon to the people have now been proceeding for some nine months, as the bill giving the Minister power to inaugurate a system was passed last spring.

One of the most important features of the system is the local zone within a twenty-mile radius of every office within which a special low rate lower than the provincial rate will apply. The purpose of this is to afford some protection to the small merchants against his competitor in the cities, and it also takes account of the fact that consideration should be shown to the short distance to which many parcels will be sent.

The rates which will prevail within this local zone of twenty miles will be as follows:

One pound—Five cents.
Two pounds—Six cents.
Three pounds—Seven cents.
Four pounds—Eight cents.
Six pounds—Twelve cents.

It will be noticed that after four pounds is reached, the rate advances two cents a pound. For the first three months, Fenruary, March and April, the Postoffice Department will not accept parcels over six pounds in weight, this being to avoid being swamped by the rush of business at the beginning.



After that three onths' period parcels will be accepted up to eleven pounds, and the local rates for the higher weights will be:

Seven pounds—Fourteen cents.
Eight pounds—Sixteen cents.
Nine pounds—Eighteen cents.
Ten pounds—Twenty cents.
Eleven pounds—Twenty-two cents.

The rates for the Provincial zone have not been announced as yet, and will be laid before Parliament in connection with the regulations regarding the whole service.

The Postmaster-General is exceedingly hopeful that the new system will go a long way towards solving the cost of living problem, and that it will be a material link between producer and consumer. Shipments of farm produce to towns and cities will, it is believed, be entirely feasible.

The body of Theodore Mann was found hanging to a rafter in the barn of Mr. John Laidlaw, Paisley Block, about six miles from Guelph, the other day. The deceased was a young German who has only been in this country for a few months, having been in the employ of Mr. Laidlaw for the past eight weeks. He was 24 years of age and unmarried and leaves a brother and mother in the home land.

C. P. R. HOLDS LEASE FOR 1,000 YEARS.

On the Tracks of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway—Interesting Statistics Regarding this Line.

The Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway and other of the earlier railroad companies were in the limelight last week in the Toronto press, in connection with the appointment of directors to these roads from the members of the city council. To Markdaleites the conditions on which the C.P.R. operates the Owen Sound and Teeswater branches of their system, which is the Toronto, Grey & Bruce railway, have been somewhat of a mystery. From the financial reference books some information of interest is gleaned. The tracks of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce were leased by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company on November 1, 1883, from the Ontario and Quebec Railway Co., which held a lease of the road and also the Credit Valley line and several other roads. The lease which the C.P.R. holds was for 1000 years, so that there does not appear to be any immediate danger of the big corporation entirely deserting Owen Sound.

The Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway Company has $785,490 capital stock and £719,000 bonds outstanding. The latter will fall due on July 26th, 2882, and the Canadian Pacific pays interest on them at 5 per cent. It also pays annual rentals amounting to $140,000 into the treasury of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Co.

A report in the Toronto Star of Friday that the company was "defunct" is entirely misleading. It cannot be absorbed or become defunct as long as they are parties of the first part in the lease which has about 970 years to run yet and the terms of the charter requires that it have a Board of Directors and hold annual meetings.

In consideration of the fact that Toronto heavily bonused the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway, the city is entitled to a director on the board of each of the Councillors to act. Last year Ald. Robins was the city's representative.

Incidentally it is interesting to note that Toronto's debenture debt in connection with the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway Company, is $387,997.39, and the taxpayers of that city will not complete their payments of interest and sinking fund for this assistance to the road until the year 1931. Evidently Toronto had to pay pretty well for their connection with this section of the province.—Markdale Standard.

WEALTH OF HAIR

PARISIAN SAGE IS THE PREPARATION THAT GROWS HAIR, STOPS DANDRUFF AND MAKES HAIR GLORIOUSLY RADIANT.

Money back says F. S. Pickering if Parisian Sage does not eradicate all dandruff, stop splitting hair, falling hair and scalp itch, and put life and lustre into the dull faded hair of any man, woman or child.

Parisian Sage is pleasant and refreshing. No cheap perfumery odor, no disagreeable concoction, but a daintily perfumed tonic—one that is not sticky or greasy—that proves its goodness the first time you use it.

Baldness and faded hair are both caused by dandruff germs. Parisian Sage kills the germs and causes the hair to grow abundantly.

SHOE COMPANY IN TROUBLE.

Was Not Able to Pay Its Employees.

Last Friday night was pay night with the Williams' Shoe Co., but they failed to pay.

Next day there was nothing doing at the factory, and a man, said to have been put in by the Dominion Bank, was on guard.

One hundred and forty employees, (thirty girls and one hundred and ten men, including a few boys), were locked out by the factory closing down. Three weeks' pay is coming to each of them.—the fortnight's regular pay and the hold back of a week which the company insists on to prevent employees skipping without notice.

That something was going to happen at the Williams' Shoe factory has been expected for months, yes, for several years by some people.

The company is said to be heavily in debt to leather men and tanners.

A meeting of these creditors was held in Toronto on Tuesday when a man was appointed to act as secretary-treasurer, a receiver in fact.

One of the directors told us today that they hoped to reopen the shoe factory on Monday.

The Williams' Shoe Co., has a capital of $50,000 of which $30,000 is paid up. The company was bonused by the town to the extent of $14,000, all of which has been earned. The cash paid for the stock is said to be $23,000, leaving $7,000 of water.

Rumor has it that the company has been a sort of a small gold mine for the bank, being worth $15,000 annually in discounts.

A man named Jenkins, of Clinton, who has $10,000 in the concern, is said to be the heaviest stockholder, Geo. W. Williams has been manager and boss of the company and factory since it started. A year ago a determined effort was made by some of the shareholders to have him fired, and Walter Downing, now of Regina, installed in his place, but it is said the heavy shareholder, Jenkins, reneged and the effort to oust Williams failed. The company up to this year has been paying 12 per cent. dividends on its paid up capital.—Peel Banner.

The Bible Defended

Dear Mr. Editor:

In answer to an article in "Comments on Current Conditions" in last week's Post, I beg space in your valuable paper to reply, not to defend Mr. W. H. Lewellen or Pastor Russell, but in defence of the truth and the Bible.

In the said article it was mentioned that, "They (International Bible Students) do not believe in a literal hell of torment," and "Dante's Inferno has no terrors for them." Quite true. The Bible says man was condemned to death—not torment—for disobedience, and was driven out of the garden of Eden lest he take of the tree of life and live forever. (Gen. 2:17, 3:22), and to this the Bible statements agree, which say, "The dead know not anything" (Ecc. 9.5). "The dead praise not the Lord" (Ps. 115:17). "For in death there is no remembrance of Thee, in the grave who shall give Thee thanks." (Ps. 6:5). "There is no knowledge or wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecc. 9:10). "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish" (Ps. 146:4).

In the account of the creation we read, "And the Lord formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:7). It does not say, the Lord breathed a soul (immortal) into man, but, "man became a soul."

Now the word "immortal" occurs only once in the Bible, while "immortality" occurs five times and is applied to God, and also a hope for the saints to seek and strive to attain at the first resurrection, while no place in the Bible do we find it stated that man possesses immortality, and if all Christians who believe the Bible abounds in such statements as "immortal" or "never dying" soul, they will be much surprised to find that such expressions are not found in the Bible, and if any Christian can point it out to us, the information will be thankfully received.

Now, dear reader, if man was sentenced to death, and if his thoughts perish in death, how can the wicked, or unrighteous, be suffering torment? I ask you is this orthodox or heterodox? According to the Bible it is orthodox. According to the teaching of most all Christian churches it is heterodox.

Satan seems to be on the side of so called orthodox theology when he said to Mother Eve, "ye shall surely not die. For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be knowing good and evil," (Gen. 3: 4-5), while Paul declares "the wicked shall be punished with everlasting destruction, from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power" (2 Thess. 1:9). Is everlasting in the day ye eat thereof, than your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as God's, destruction eternal torment? Of course not. When the prophet declares, "The soul that sinneth it shall die," (Eze. 18:4, 20)—not the body but the soul.

Someone asks, what will become of the world of mankind who are not saints, and the majority of whom never had a chance to be saints. The prophet Hosea says, "Christ will ransom them from the power of the grave, I will redeem them from death," (Hosea 13:14)., and give them back what Adam lost 'Paradise) for Christ came "to seek and to save that which was lost," (Matt. 18:11. Luke 19:10). And God pronounced Abraham, that in "thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." (Gen. 28:14). Who is Abraham's seed? Christ (Gal. 3:16) including the saints "and if ye are Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise of blessing all the families of the earth" (Gal. 3:29), which will take place in the thousand years reign of Christ and the saints, who shall reign till they have put all things under his feet, including death. (Rev. 20:6. 1 Cor. 15:25-26. 2 Tim. 2:12. 1 Cor. 6:2).

Now, I trust this letter may help some Christians to see the beauty and harmony of God's word, and to know God as a God of love, who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the Truth. (Tim. 2:4).

Yours Prayerfully,
R. J. FALCONER.

CLUB LICENSE MUST GO

Canada Temperance Act Prohibits Sale of Intoxicants in Clubs.

There are three Clubs in the County of Peel that will lose their licenses when the Canada Temperance Act comes into force on May 1st next. The Clubs that are affected are:—

Caledon Mountain Trout Club, Inglewood;

Lake Shore Country Golf Club, Port Credit.

Toronto Golf Club, Toronto township.

Section 117 of the Act contains provisions, which are of general interest. It provides:—

"From the day on which this Act comes into force and takes effect in any county or city, and for so long thereafter as, and while the same continues or is in force therein, no person shall, except as in this part specially provided, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent:—

A—Expose or keep for sale within such county or city any intoxicating liquor.

B—Directly or indirectly on any pretence or upon any device, within such county or city, sell or barter, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property give to any other person any intoxicating liquor, or.

C—Send, ship, bring or carry or cause to be sent, shipped, brought or carried to or into any such county or city any intoxicating liquor, or

D—Deliver to any consignee or other person, or store, warehouse, or keep for delivery any intoxicating liquor so sent, shipped, brought or carried.

Paragraphs "C" and "D" shall not apply to any intoxicating liquor sent, shipped, brought or carried to any person or persons for his or their personal or family use, except it be so sent, shipped, brought or carried to be paid for in such county or city to the person delivering the same, his clerk, servant or agent, or his master or principal, if the person delivering it is himself a servant or agent.

The penalty is not less than $50 for the first conviction for infraction; not less than $100 for the second offence, and four months in jail for each subsequent offence.

MONO MILLS.

Mono Mills Branch of the Women's Institute will hold an open meeting in the Orange Hall in Mono Mills on Wednesday afternoon, February 11th, at 2.30 o'clock. Mrs. Herbert Tuck, of Orangeville, will deliver an address. Her subject will be of interest to both ladies and gentlemen. All are very cordially invited to be present. Lunch will be served at close of meeting.

From a Ratepayer's Point of View

Editor of The Banner.

Dear Sir:—In your last issue appears a letter from ex-Reeve Goodeve, of Adjala, the undertone of which seems to be, that he feels somewhat aggrieved that the ratepayers should turn him down after what he considers one of his best years of service to the township.

Now, I would assure Mr. Goodeve, thus publicly, as one who contributed in part to his defeat (and I think I voice the sentiments of the majority of the ratepayers), that it was from no lack of appreciation of his services of last year, for we quite agree with him that it was his best year's work for the township and rightly so after all those years of experience, but it has come to be a recognized rule in most municipalities for shorter terms in the Chief Magistrate's chair, and he who attempts to overstep the bounds of that term is sure to meet defeat, no matter how good a legislator or how popular a man he may be.

Now just a few words of honest criticism of that letter. Mr. Goodeve points with pride to the large number of bridges and culverts built last year "all paid for and nobody hurt." If he would take a look, as the casual ratepayer sees it, the fact that many of those bridges and culverts were being built the second and in some instances the third time, in the short space of time of his own municipal service, perhaps he would not see so much glory in it. While we agree with him as to the one yearly rate being the cheapest way of payment, yet we must admit that it comes as an injustice to many, particularly tenants and others who do not share in the future benefits of the expenditure.

Again touching that $2000 county grant, while we accord Mr. Goodeve full credit for the procuring of it, yet we look upon it as an emergency grant, that any of the late representatives, Mr. Watson, Mr. Hamilton, or the present Mr. Walsh, might have obtained under the same circumstances, and who can say but that they might even have got that $700 balance as well.

In conclusion I would again assure Mr. Goodeve that it was not the indignant or ungrateful, but just the cool headed ratepayers, who felt their pockets touched by high taxes, and said we believe it's time for a change.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for taking up your valuable space, I am,

Yours Respectfully,
GEORGE LEE.

OBITUARY

The death occurred at Mortlach, Sask., early on Thursday morning, Jan. 22nd, of Bertha May, wife of Joseph Smith, aged 20 years. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, of Harris, Sask., formerly of East Luther, Dufferin County. She was married Dec. 22nd, 1911 and went West in the following August to join her husband, who has a farm at Courval. They had moved to Mortlach for the winter. The deceased is survived by her husband and one child, Hannah, a little girl of sixteen months. Mr. Smith's former home was Mono Centre. They were well known in this community and have the deep sympathy of their many friends and acquaintances. The funeral service was held at Emmanuel Church, Mortlach. Rev. C. F. Ferguson officiated at the church and grave.

Robert E. Lee

Mr. Robert E. Lee, a wealthy and widely known resident of Adjala, died at his home, lot 6, con. 1, in that township, on Wednesday night of last week at the age of 71 years and 8 months. Mr. Lee kept the store and post office at Connor for 29 years but had been living retired for some years past. As a business man he was successful and also enjoyed a splendid reputation for fair and honorable dealing. He was a Conservative and was actively identified with Connor Orange Lodge for many years. He is survived by a widow, one son, Robert, and two daughters, Myrtle and Maggie, all residing at home. The funeral was held to St. John's Church cemetery, 7th line, east, Mono, at one o'clock on Friday afternoon. Services were conducted at the home and grave by Revs. G. W. Tebbs, of Orangeville, and J. A. Black and W. G. Marshall, of Mono Mills. The pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. Fleming, Wm. Wilson, Wm. Lee, Robt. Leggett, John Turtington and Hugh Turtington.

Mrs. Robert Watson

Orangeville lost an old and greatly respected resident, last week in the person of Mrs. Sarah A. Watson, beloved wife of Mr. Robert Watson, Front St. Her death came somewhat unexpectedly after a comparatively short illness. Mrs. Watson was 66 years of age and had resided in Orangeville ever since her marriage over 30 years ago. She was a member of the Methodist Church and took an active interest in church and temperance work. A kindly woman, possessed of a sympathetic nature and always ready to do a good turn, she was highly thought of by her neighbors and friends, who will greatly regret her demise. Sincere sympathy is felt for her husband in his trying bereavement. The funeral was held to the Forest Lawn cemetery on Saturday afternoon, Rev. G. W. Robinson, pastor of Orangeville Methodist Church, conducting the services at the house and grave. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. M. Green, Jas. A. Arnott, Adam Clarridge and three nephews, Dr. Robt. Mumford, of Glencoe, Nicholas Mumford, of Mulmur, and Joseph Mumford from the West.

Death of Mrs. Morley

Mrs. Anna E. Morley, wife of Rev. Canon Morley, of St. Alban's Cathedral, died at the family residence 87 Howland Ave., Toronto, on Monday morning at the age of 55 years. The deceased lady, who is survived by her husband, one son and a daughter, was a daughter of the late Robert Jackson, of Cardwell, one of the pioneer settlers of Mono township. She was born and spent her girlhood in Mono. After her marriage she lived at Tullamore for several years and then at Bradford, moving from the latter place to Toronto, when her husband was made secretary-treasurer of the St. Alban's Cathedral Building Fund a few years ago. Messrs. John Jackson, of Ottawa, and Thos. and Jos. Jackson, of Mono, are the surviving brothers. Speaking of her death the Toronto Telegram has this to say, "Her loss is one that will be felt by the whole parish of which her husband was rector. Her ability for organization and leadership were often commented upon. Although her work was in a measure confined to the parish, her broader outlook was evinced by the semi-annual gatherings of the Women's Auxiliary and Archdiaconal meetings held in her own parish."

The funeral took place to St. James cemetery yesterday afternoon. Service was held in St. Alban's Cathedral at 2.30 p.m.

ALTON.

Misses Edith Dods and Alma Patterson are delegates to the Peel Sabbath School Convention in Bolton this week.

Mrs. Norman McClellan and daughter, of Vermillion, Alta., are visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Wm. McQuarrie, of Toronto, spent the week end with her nephew, Mr. Jos. McClellan.

Miss Bessie Peacock, of Toronto, is visiting her friend, Miss Ida Lovell.

The Presbyterian Ladies Aid held a successful Bazaar in Science Hall on Thursday afternoon and evening and realized the handsome sum of $65. The ladies served lunch in the early evening.

Miss Susie Clark and Misses Laura and Ella Dowswell spent the week end at Dr. S. T. White's in Shelburne.

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Cure

How many hospital patients, suffering the frightful itch, the raw scorching pain of skin disease, have been soothed to sleep by a soothing fluid washed in by the nurse's hands?

That fluid is the famous D. D. D. prescription for eczema.

THE SUPERVISING NURSE of one of our prominent Catholic institutions (name of nurse and institute on application), writes regarding a patient "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression."

How many eczema sufferers are paying their doctors for regular treatment and are being treated with this same soothing, healing fluid?

DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes "D. D. D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Cool and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D. D. D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle. Follow those directions—and see!

And it certainly takes away the itch at once—the moment the liquid is applied. The skin is soothed—calmed—so thoroughly refreshed—delightfully cooled.

All druggists of standing have the famous specific as well as the other D. D. D. Skin Soap.

But we are so confident of the merits of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to result your case. You alone are to judge.

Our Minister's Sermon

The minister said last night, says he,
"Don't be afraid of givin'.
If your life ain't worth nothin' to other folks,
Why! what's the use of livin'?"
And that's what I say to my wife, says I,
"There's Bill the miser'ble sinner,
He'd sooner a beggar would starve than give him
A cent to buy his dinner."

I tell you our minister's prime, he is,
But I couldn't quite determine,
When I heard him givin' it right and left,
Just who was hit by his sermon.
Of course there could be no mistake.
When he talked of long winded praying,
For Bob and Joe they sat and frowned
At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister then went on to say,
"There's various kinds of cheatin',
And religion's as good for every day,
As it is to bring to a meetin';
I don't think much of that man that gives
The loud amens at my preachin',
And spends his time the followin' week
In cheatin' and overreachin'."

I guess that dose was bitter enough,
For a man like Joe to swaller;
For I noticed he didn't open his mouth,
Not once after that to holler;
"Hurrah!" says I, "for the minister"—
Of course I said it quiet—
"Give us some more of this open talk,
It's very refreshin' diet."

The minister hit 'em every time,
And when he spoke of fashion,
And riggin' out in bows and things,
As some girls' rulin' passion,
And come to church to show the style,
I couldn't help a winkin',
And I punched Miss Stuckup, says I,
"That's you."
And I suppose it set her thinkin'.

Says I to myself "That sermon's pat,
Some men is a queer creation
And I'm much afraid that most of the folks
Won't take the application.
Now if he had said a word about
My personal mode of sinnin',
I'd have gone to work to right myself
And not set there a grinnin'"

Just then the minister, says he,
"And now I've come to the fellers,
Who've lost this shower by usin' their friends
As a sort of moral umbrellas."
"Go home," says he, "and find your faults, Instead of huntin' others."
"Go home," says he, "and wear the coats
You tried to fit for others."

My wife she nudged, and Bob he winked,
And there was lots of smilin';
And lots of lookin' at our pew,
It set my blood a boilin'.
Says I, to myself, "Our minister
Is gettin' a little bitter;
I'll tell him, when the meetin's out,
That I ain't at all that kind of a critter."

Curlers Retain Trophy

The South rink was not allowed to remain in undisputed possession of the Bankers' Trophy for many days. They won the Trophy at Shelburne a week ago Monday and were scarcely home again when they received a challenge from Dr. S. T. White, of Shelburne. The game was to have been played on Wednesday but last week's thaw affected the ice so much that it was not pulled off until Friday afternoon. The defenders succeeded in holding the Trophy after a hard game. The players and score were:—

Orangeville	Shelburne—R. H. Neilson	Dr. Berwick
E. C. Clark	F. Shepherd
A. D. McKittrick	E. A. Ferguson
A. A. Smith sk. 15	Dr. White sk. 10.

Ed. McIntyre, of Grand Valley, gave the trophy defenders a hard game on Monday night. At one stage the Valleyites got a small lead and matters looked critical, but the local rink steadied down and managed to pull out another win by the narrow margin of 2 shots. The rinks were:—

Orangeville	Grand Valley—R. H. Neilson	R. T. Forgrave
E. C. Clark	W. G. Jenkins
A. D. McKittrick	Ed. McIntyre 12.
A. A. Smith sk. 14

Under the rules the defending rink, if it is successful in holding the Trophy for two games, must hand it over to another rink in the same Club. This the Smith rink has done and E. G. Bingham will now have the honor of defending the Trophy. Dr. Frank, of Shelburne, the first challenger, played Bingham last night and came very nearly lifting the Trophy. The visitors had a lead of five with only one end to play, but the Binghamites managed to pile up six on the final end. The rinks were:—

Orangeville	Shelburne
Dr. Rooney	Dr. Davis
J. D. McMillan	H. Rutledge
Dr. Cantelon	J. A. Mills
E. G. Bingham sk. 15	Dr. Frank sk. 17.

Mr. R. B. Henry was in Brampton on Saturday attending the annual meeting of the Peel Farmers' Mutual, which he represents in this district. Mr. Henry states that the Company has had one of the most successful years in its history.

Business College "At Home"

"There was a sound of revelry by night," but the scene this time was is Dufferin's county town and not Belgium's ancient capital The occasion was the annual At Home given by the students of the Orangeville Business College. While the young men and ladies who attend this popular and progressive institution will concede that the Governor General's State Ball at Ottawa may have affected the attendance somewhat, they are unanimously agreed that the function can only be adequately described by the word "Successful" written with a big S. The event, which took place on Thursday evening last, was held in the spacious Club Rooms over Dr. Campbell's dental parlors. The capacity of the ballroom was taxed to the limit. The early part of the evening was devoted to music and progressive euchre. The points prizes were won by Miss E. Tilt and Mr. W. Watt and the prizes for lone hands by Miss M. Awrey and Mr. G. Young. After refreshments had been served, there was a lively demand for floor space, the eagerness shown in this respect indicating the enthusiasm with which the young people anticipated the fascinating pleasure of the giddy two-step and the dreamy waltz. From this point it was a case of "on with the dance" with unabated vigor until the wee, sma' hours, when the merry makers dispersed, carrying with them the happiest memories of the evening. The patronesses were Mesdames W. Fairbairn and P. Coulson and Misses Park and Shaw. A number of ex-students were present from a distance. In view of the success of the function it has been suggested that the students make it a regular annual event.

A LARGE FUNERAL.

Victims of East Garafraxa Tragedy Were Buried on Saturday.

The remains of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simpson and their son, Edgar, the three victims of the East Garafraxa tragedy, were interred in McKee's cemetery, 8th line, East Garafraxa, on Saturday afternoon. The funeral was the largest that has ever taken place in the neighborhood. About 250 conveyances followed the bodies from the stricken home to the cemetery. There were three hearses in the procession furnished by Undertakers Johnston, of Belwood, who had charge of the funeral arrangements, Turner, of Hillsburg, and Thomson, of Fergus. The three caskets were placed side by side in one grave. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. R. S. Scott, of Hillsburg, assisted by Rev. Mr. Cole, of Orton. A memorial service will be held in Bethel Presbyterian Church at Price's Corners next Sunday afternoon.

STUDENTS MAKE MERRY.

Annual Dance at High School a Successful Social Event.

A very enjoyable and successful social event took place last Friday evening, when the students of the High School held their annual dance in the School Gymnasium. Some one hundred and fifty guests were present, the great majority of whom took full advantage of the good floor and the excellent music of an orchestra of five pieces, under the able leadership of Mr. Fred Faulkner. Supper was served at midnight and the affair was brought to an end shortly after, when the boys of the school led in giving the school yells and hearty cheers for their former teacher, Mr. Adams, who was present.

The gymnasium was very artistically decorated with festoons of evergreens and red and blue bunting, Chinese lanterns as shades for the lights and flags and evergreens on the walls. The success of the affair must be attributed largely to the energetic work of the various committees under the able general supervision of Mr. Jack Aiken. The guests present included, in addition to the pupils and a large number of ex-pupils resident in town, the following:—Mrs. Steele, Mrs. Tebbs, Mrs. T. H. Henry, Mrs. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. Hyland, Mr. and Mrs. MacCallum, Mr. and Mrs. Neilson, the Misses Shain, Miss Lalor, Miss Hunter, Miss Ruby Wilcox and Miss McArthur. There were also a number present from out of town, including Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Adams, Toronto; Miss Hutchinson, Brampton; Miss McGill, Brampton; Miss Ferrier and Miss Marjorie McKeown, Toronto; Miss Enid Frank, Shelburne; Mr. Bert Wheelock, Mr. Herb. Rowan and Mr. Wilfred Parks, Toronto.

Choral Union Concert

An event of unusual interest to the lovers of good music in this community is announced to take place in the Opera House, here, on the evening of Friday, March 6th, when the first concert under the auspices of the Orangeville Choral Union is to be produced. Perhaps not during its entire history, certainly not in recent years, has Orangeville been furnished with the means of carrying out such a programme as that proposed and now being prepared by this recently organized musical society for the entertainment and edification of its citizens and neighbors. One remarkable feature of the meetings of the Union is the marked enthusiasm of the members themselves and the keen interest they display in their work of preparation. Each selection, as it is being worked through draws from them exclamations of admiration and delight, which speak volumes for the high character of these selections. We have one regret in regard to this forthcoming concert, viz., that the seating capacity of our Opera House is not double or even treble what it is, for it is certain that hundreds more than can be accommodated in its auditorium will seek admission on the night of March 6th. Possibly the Union could overcome this difficulty by repeating the programme a second night.

AN OPEN MEETING

Large Audience Heard Addresses on Orangeism in Opera House on Tuesday Night.

The open meeting in the Opera House on Tuesday night under the auspices of the local Orange lodges attracted an audience of about 300 people, who listened with the closest attention to the speakers of the evening. Mayor Island presided. Rev. W. M. Morris, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, discussed the subject, "Why I am a Protestant and an Orangeman." Protestantism, the speaker maintained, consisted not so much in holding certain opinions as in the spirit and temper in which these opinions were held. He was a Protestant because of the Protestant democratic conception of the Church, its belief in the equality of all believers and because history and conditions prove that in countries where Protestantism flourishes there is more material prosperity, more progressiveness, a higher moral and religious standard and more adequate provision for the protection of women and the care of the sick, feeble and dependent. He was an Orangeman because the Orange Order was an organization that united the forces of Protestantism to place the principles of Protestantism before the world and to bring together the different churches to further the principles and interests for which Protestantism stands.

Rev. G. W. Tebbs, rector of St. Mark's, who spoke on Orangeism in Ireland," quoted extracts from the constitution of the Association to show that the Orange Order is founded on broad, liberal principles and stands for equal rights for all and special privileges to none. His address related largely to personal observations and experiences in Ireland and gave his audience a vivid portrayal of the disabilities under which Protestants labor in the south, east and west of Ireland. He referred to the attitude of the Nationalists toward Great Britain during the Boer War and declared that the spirit of disloyalty is just as rampant today as at that time. Mr. Tebbs quoted from a handbook of the Roman Catholic Association to show the activity and aggressiveness of the Romish Church in Ireland and the unscrupulous nature of its methods. He instanced cases where Protestantant clergymen had been jailed for two weeks for preaching on the streets and told of the experience of Dr. Long, a medical missionary in Limerick, who was so ruthlessly boycotted that he was obliged to send to Dublin, 96 miles away, to buy bread for his household.

Rev. A. E. St. Dalmas, who discussed Orangeism in Canada, said the religious question was one that affected every man, woman and child. He disclaimed any hostile feelings toward Roman Catholics as such, and made it plain that what Protestants opposed was the Romish politico-religious system. Rome dreaded the Bible because it opens the eyes of those who read it, they become converted and no longer belong to Rome. The platform of the Orange Association was equal rights. The speaker would challenge anyone to point to a single instance where Rome had granted equal rights unless they had been forced or wrested from her. Mr. St. Dalmas discussed the marriage question, Separate Schools and bilingualism in an interesting and forceful manner, making a strong plea for greater activity in the matter of conserving the interests of Protestant and English speaking people on these three vital issues.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speakers on motion of Past County Master Robert Curry, seconded by Mr. S. J. Brown. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Dufferin County L. O. L.

The annual meeting of Dufferin County L.O.L. was held in L.O.L. 635 hall on Tuesday. About 100 members of the Order were present, every District in the County being represented. County Master W. A. Wansbrough presided and Mr. H. A. Duke, the Deputy-Master, was in the deputy chair. The District reports were incomplete, so that it is impossible to give an accurate statement of the membership in the County and the losses and gains during the year. The election of officers resulted in a keen contest between W. E. Reid and Jos. M. Island for deputy master. The former won by two votes.

The officers for 1914 are:—W.C.M., H. A. Duke; D.C.M., W. E. Reid; Chap., Rev. J. R. Bell; Rec.-Secretary, V. A. Statia; Fin.-Secretary, T. H. White; Treas., Thos. Holmes; lecturer, Trueman Hills; deputy lecturers, S. Patterson, A. G. Atkinson; D. of C., G. F. Gabriel.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ARE SAFE AND SURE

Mothers wanting a safe and sure remedy for their little ones can depend upon Baby's Own Tablets. They are absolutely guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates, narcotics or other injurious drugs. Concerning them Mrs. G. L. Bonham, St. George, Ont., says:—"I can recommend Baby's Own Tablets, as a safe and sure medicine for little ones. I have raised four babies with their aid and would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Alliance Convention

The annual Convention of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance will be held in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 25, 26 and 27. Vital issues will be discussed and plans formed for the prosecution of the warfare against the liquor evil. Churches and temperance societies are urged to appoint delegates and in this way assist to make the 1914 Convention a record gathering.

By Women for Women.

"The Woman's Century" has reached its seventh issue and is distinctly "making good." One of the most interesting things about it is its breadth and representative quality. All women are not advanced or suffragettes, or unorthodox, and, while the idea of a woman's journal suggests mental activity and independence, it is not to be forgotten, in The Woman's Century that there are women of the standard type, and women of the older fashion in abundance still, as well as women of the new time. The world cannot do without any of them, for there are men to match all of them—or nearly all, making due allowance for those who do not want to be matched. There is more efficiency and more point in every column of The Century than there is in most corresponding journals conducted by men. It must no longer be thought that women are not capable in any pursuit to which as a class they may apply themselves. One note we may make from page 11, which is significant beyond comment:

"Every Bulgarian of possible fighting age went to war last year. The women had to run the farms. The result indicates a crop increase of six per cent."—Editorial from Toronto World, Monday, Nov. 17, 1913.

The Banner will be glad to take subscriptions for the Woman's Century at $1.00 per year. The management is offering to the Women's Institutes, with each subscription a free ad. for one year of their produce as illustrated on page three of the current issue.

A Women's Institute Night

Wednesday evening next, Feb. 11th, will be Women's Institute night at The Dufferin Theatre, the management having generously agreed to hand over the proceeds to the Orangeville W. I. for the benefit of the Hospital for Sick Children. A programme of unusual merit will be provided. There will be extra reels of pictures. Messrs. Percy Harding, T. W. Huston and Ernest White will contribute solos and an orchestra will provide music. Admission, 10c.

CALEDON.

Mrs. Todds, of Orangeville, spent the week-end with Mrs. John Stubbs.

The many friends of Mr. Elgin Stubbs are pleased to see him out again after his recent illness.

(Intended for last week).

The town this week wears an air of unusual activity. Something doing every day.

Monday — Annual Congregational Meeting of Knox Church. Meeting of Local Board of Health.

Tuesday—The marriage of one of our charming young ladies. Anti-Temperance Meeting, addressed by "Hon." Mr. Windle.

Wednesday—Annual Meeting of Farmers' and Women's Institutes for the County of Peel.

Thursday—Polling day for Canada Temperance Act.

Friday—The presentation of that thrilling melodrama "The old New Hampshire Home."

Saturday—A day off—to recuperate after so much excitement.

Mr. Hunter, agent for Wm. Pace, West Toronto, loaded a car of potatoes Tuesday. He paid 70 cents a bag and the potatoes simply poured in.

The following books of special interest to the farmers are listed in the Caledon Public Library:—

Farm Weeds, 2 vols.; Agriculture, by Sommerville; Agriculture, by C. C. James; Propagation of Plants; How Crops Grow; How Crops Feed; Plant Breeding; The Nursery Book; The Soil; The Fertility of the Land; The Chemistry of the Farm; Silos, Ensilage and Silage; Milch Cows; Milk and Its Products; Manual of Cattle Feeding; Feeding Animals; Diseases of Live Stock; The Horse in the Stable and in the Field; Uses and Abuses of Domestic Animals; The Principles of Fruit Growing; American Fruit Culturist; Barry's Fruit Garden; Canadian Fruit, Flower and Kitchen Gardener; Money in the Garden; Gardening for Profit; The Poultry Book, by Weir; The Beekeepers' Guide; Bees and Honey; Barn Plans and Outbuildings.

McLAUGHLIN MOTOR CARS

The enthusiasm with which McLaughlin Buick cars have been received in the past, the growing demand for that luxury of motion, flexibility and power that can be produced on a "Six" cylinder car, is the reason for the New McLaughlin Buick (B. 55).

The fact that Six Cylinder automobiles are now made even lighter than Fours, and handled with the ease of small cars, has developed a constantly increasing number of enthusiastic adherents of the Six.

In this Silent Big Six we have produced a car which justifies the belief that we have outclassed everything in Six Cylinder construction.

Flexibility unequalled. As vibrationless at sixty miles as at four, due to the perfect balance of every part.

The ultra-exclusiveness of this McLaughlin-Buick Six places it alone for beauty of design and finish.

Altogether it isn't too much to say that the introduction of this car opens up a new era for the Motorists of Canada.

FACTS TO BE ESTABLISHED

We do not intend to convey anything to the mind of the buyer that we do not back up with the car that we "sing" about. There are four essential facts that a purchaser of a "Six" should establish before reaching a decision, namely :—

(1) He should determine the stability and the permanency of the manufacturers.
(2) He should prove by actual demonstration, how slow the car in question will run in "high gear," and whether the power developed is sufficient to carry a full load.
(3) If the results are satisfactory with reference to how slow the car will run in high speed, he need not make the test as to how fast it will run, because the slowness with which it will operate with a full load in high speed will demonstrate its power, and if you have sufficient power at slow speed, you can rest assured you have it at high speed, because power and speed in a properly designed gasoline touring car go hand-in-hand. You can't have one without the other.
(4) He should satisfy himself as to gasoline consumption ; especially on a Six Cylinder pleasure car.
(5) The efficiency and dependability of the electric starter and whether he can depend on it to start the motor under all conditions at all times.

Should Insist Upon a Substantial Guarantee

When a prospective buyer has satisfied himself on the foregoing, he need have no hesitancy in making his purchase. He should, however, insist on a substantial guarantee and not promises, which are frequently and oft' times unreliable.

The manufacturer of the McLaughlin-Buick Six Cylinder Car guarantees that the "Six" will travel a given distance in high gear with a full load at a speed of not less than fifty-five miles per hour, without vibration, and carry its load at all speeds and under all conditions, with perfect comfort to the passengers.

We further guarantee it will do all this on less gasoline than any other Six Cylinder manufactured.

We absolutely guarantee that the McLaughlin Buick Six Cylinder Car with five passengers will tour over ordinary country roads on one gallon of gasoline to every seventeen miles travelled, and frequent road tests have assured us that it is possible to get as high as twenty miles per gallon.

You don't have to believe these statements, as seeing is believing. What we want you to do is to give us the opportunity to prove to you that every statement we make in reference to our 1914 cars is absolutely correct.

Write us for 1914 catalogue, showing cuts and specifications.

THE WARBLER FAMILY.

There Are Thirty-Three Kinds Found In Ontario.

The Sylvicolidae, or Warblers, are a very wide family connection—embracing in all thirty-three varieties of birds which honor Ontario with their prized presence, some, it is true, in such very limited numbers as to be comparative rarities, says C. M. C. in Toronto Star Weekly. There is a prevailing strain of brilliant coloring running through them; their beauty, indeed, is more a prominent feature, as usual, than any proficiency in a melodic sense. In fact, a college professor, hard put for a joke, well might state the breed to be so-called, because they do not "warble." The blue yellow-backed warblers utter but a soft, drawn-out twitter; the mourning warbler nothing further than a low, pensive, simple "twit"—their only songs. The Blackburnian variety — the most beautiful of the whole family — breeds in Northern Ontario, so that, except on its passage north and south, we see too little of it; unless in too great a haste it is its habit to stop off for a week or so each October's end.

Speaking generally, the warblers may be said to nest on low bushes, although a few, like the Pine-creeping and Golden-crowned thrush species, resort to ground-nesting to rear their brood. Their little cousins—sometimes known as the Canadian Fly-catchers (Myiodioctes Canadensis) — utililize both situations indifferently. The Yellow warblers — so commonly observed about civilized haunts and prized for their assiduity in ridding the fruit trees of small insects—have a peculiarity of not being able to forego building in a willow or a maple, if they can find one situated adjacent to an orchard. The entire Warbler family has the distinction — also value — of feeding alone upon insects.

After the Yellow Warbler — whose name sufficiently describes him—the commonest of the warblers are, perhaps, the Red-start, the Golden-Crowned Thrush, and the Water Thrush or Wagtail. The first is five and a quarter inches long; black, if one is asked to describe him; but the white breast and the ruddy orange tint of the sides of the breast and base of the quills and tail make him one of the prettiest birds of our woods. The last-named is olive-brown above, of a prevailing sulphur-yellow below, and is generally to be found near a stream or pond, wading in the shallows, diligently "wagging" his tail with the relish his feed of aquatic insects imparts.

From his appearance the Water-thrush has been sometimes confused with the Golden-crowned Thrush, but the latter never nests or feeds near the swamps and moist ground. Above he is olive-green with a tinge of yellow; his crown has two streaks of black enclosing a broad orange stripe, beneath, his plumage is white, while his breast and sides are sooty black—also a truly beautiful summer resident, one can see. If she can, this pretty creature prefers a pine-wood for the scene of her nuptiels. Suppose the five young to have safely chipped themselves out from the creamy-white eggs that you knew were hatching, although not wishful to disturb. The ground-nesters have so many enemies that it seems a wonder their kind does not become extinct—till you remember how mother nature, with an eye to that very chance, gives for each of such birds the right hues of plumage to protect it, as well as by directing its instincts so that these dangers may be minimized.

What the golden-crowned thrush mostly hunts for is a nesting site on a knoll, irrespective of direction, where she can cunningly thatch her nest with the needles, so like the ground around. Which explains why she is far better known to most people as the "oven-bird"—Seiurus aurocapillus.

"What Neck'st?"

W. F. Stevens, the robust Live Stock Commissioner for Alberta, is widely known for his geniality, a quality which seems to accompany stoutness of person. He was in Winnipeg one hot July day and had occasion to buy a new collar. Entering a gent's furnishing store on Portage Avenue he startled the obliging young clerk by asking for a collar, size 22.

"Sorry, sir," the boy replied politely, "but we are just out of that size. There is a store, however, just around the corner that could probably supply you."

Imagine the feelings of the live stock authority when he rounded the corner and read the following sign:

"Northwest Harness Co., Ltd. Use 'Fit-Well' Collars on your Horses."

Light Rifles For Cadets.

The Cadet Corps of Canada are to be supplied with 22-calibre rifles. The Ross Rifle Company is making the rifles of a pattern approved by the Militia Department. They will weigh about five pounds or less and are almost a miniature of the long Ross.

In the past, while the cadets used the long rifles for shooting over the ranges, and will do the same in the future, the rifles were found too heavy for drilling in the case of the smaller boys. The light rifles will be used for drill purposes and for indoor shooting.

First Aid to Settlers.

The lack of hospitals in the north and the scarcity of medical men in the scattered districts of New Ontario is being pressed on the Government as a necessity for the establishment of medical cabinets at certain points where supplies could be obtained and urgent cases dealt with until more expert assistance could be obtained.

Dicing For Cigars.

Throwing dice for cigars is a common practice in tobacco shops in Vancouver, and if the customer wins he pays less than the recognized price for his cigar.

THE DUFFERIN CENTRAL.

Auditors Report Shows Receipts of $2641.45.

The annual meeting of the Dufferin Central Fair was held in the council chamber, Shelburne, on Wednesday, Jan. 21st. The attendance was not large, probably due to the weather and the condition of the roads. The financial report was read and passed, showing a favorable balance, after paying off the mortgage, prizes, etc. Suitable sheds will be erected this year for the accommodation of live stock, at a considerable expense. The auditors' report showed receipts of $2641.45, and after deducting expenditure, including mortgage and interest, a balance was left of $64.71. Legislative and municipal grants this year amounted to $588 ; members' fees and donations, $501.-40 ; rents, $69 ; gate receipts, $213.-50 ; receipts from spring horse fair, including legislative grant, $189.30 ; field crop competition, $50.00 ; miscellaneous, $223.82. The expenditure included : Prizes for horses, cattle, sheep and pigs, $615.00 ; poultry, $16.25 ; dairy, $42.50 ; grain and seeds, roots and vegetables, fruit and flowers, $127.25 ; fine arts and ladies' work, $141.25 ; standing field crop, $75.00 ; spring fair, $167.20 ; special features, $530.40 ; mortgage and interest, $210.00 ; salaries, $131; postage, printing and express, $267.-20, as well as some other small items.

The following officers and directors were elected for 1914 :—Hon.-Pres., John Best, M. P.; Pres., H. Christian ; 1st vice-pres., W. Besley ; 2nd vice-pres., Rice Hill ; sec., R. J. Watson ; treas., T. J. O'Flynn ; auditors, H. H. Walker, R. J. Puckering.

Directors—J. Chalmers, J. Mowat, W. J. Creary, J. Reid, R. Fawcett, J. Atkinson, G. Best, S. Phoenix, R. Hill, A. McDonald, W. J. Laidlaw, W. J. Henry, A. E. Williams, J. J. Braiden, Chas. Mason.

Hon. Directors — H. Falconer, G. Mournahan, T. C. Dryden, G. E. Foster, J. Reburn, Josiah Marshall, A. Kannawin and J. Tindale.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Henry Christian for his untiring efforts as President of the Association for the past year.

The president, 1st vice-president and secretary were appointed to attend the Association of Fairs to be held in Toronto on Feb. 5th and 6th.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 29th and 30th, were chosen as the dates of the Fair for 1914.

A Spring Show will be held again this year similar to that of 1913, the date to be announced later.

It was also decided to have the Field Crop Competition this year as in former years. All parties wishing to compete must have thier entries in the hands of the Secretary not later than May 20th, 1914.

The Heckler Silenced.

Ready wit is an indispensable requisite to a good political speaker. In a recent election in British Columbia a well-known coast orator, now a member of Premier McBride's Cabinet, found this to be true, especially in addressing rural folk. The incident occurred during a joint meeting, held in a constituency where fishing is the principal industry, and at a time when the Oriental labor question was a burning issue on the coast.

"We must curtail this invasion of undesirables!" he declared in the course of a splendid speech. What—"

"Pardon me, sir," interrupted his opponent, a young Vancouver lawyer with political ambitions; "but are not these 'undesirables" human beings, strong, and willing to work?"

"Very true, my dear friend," was the quick reply. "They are as strong as oxen and have no more sense."

KEPHALDOL

KEPHALDOL

Has Now Come to Canada

Sufferers from Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Headaches, Neuritis and kindred agonizing ailments may now find speedy, welcome relief and certain cure.

At last the victims of these torturing complaints—men and women whose lives are long-drawn-out agony—may look with hope—confidence—certainty—to pain's most glad departure.

Kephaldol is now offered to Canadians, for the first time, a remedy which not only has medical endorsement for its efficacy, but is also guaranteed to be a perfectly safe pain-killer, containing nothing to injure the heart or any other bodily organ.

For colds, influenza, catarrh and similar complaints, Kephaldol is unequalled. A tablet or two taken at the first indication of trouble will unfailingly check its development and restore health.

Get a tube of Kephaldol tablets from your druggist, or write for them to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, FEB. 12th, 1914.

A FRIEND'S TRIBUTE.

A Former Mono Friend Bears Testimony to Worth of Late Congressman Bremner.

Mr. S. T. Newton, head of the Technical Department of Kelvin Technical High School, Winnipeg, sends the Editor of The Banner the following appreciative lines re the late Robt. G. Bremner. Mr. Newton is himself a prominent graduate of Orangeville High School and knew Mr. Bremner intimately, when the latter taught school at Granger in Mono township. He writes:

"Large headlines in the Winnipeg papers announcing the death of Congressman Robert G. Bremner came as a great shock to the large number of friends of the deceased in Western Canada.

I venture to say that not one of Dufferin's sons was more widely known or will be more sincerely mourned. Warm hearted, impulsive, generous, he made hosts of friends wherever he went. He was at home in the smallest cottage or in the largest palace. It is just 20 years since he said good-bye to his old pupils in the Granger School and set out to seek his fortune in the great city of New York at a time when the financial panic was crippling industry everywhere. At first he encountered all kinds of difficulty, but his dauntless courage enabled him to steadfastly hold to his purpose and his many friends were gratified to see the steady progress which he was making, until finally the people of his adopted country showed their appreciation of his ability and many sterling qualities by electing him to the House of Representatives, in which sphere he has acquitted himself with signal success.

At the Democratic Convention held in Washington to nominate a candidate for the presidency, it is well known that Bremner exercised an influence second only to that of the peerless Bryan in swinging the Convention to Wilson. It was my good fortune to spend a day with him at his home in Passaic, New Jersey, where he knew everyone. Even the smallest children on the streets would stop, knowing that he would have a kindly word for them.

Bob Bremner is gone, but many a year will have passed before his thoughtfulness, his kindness and inspiring personality will have been forgotten by the thousands who were fortunate enough to know him or to be associated with him in anyway. To his family we extend our sincerest sympathy in their great loss of a brother and son; cut off when just entering on a brilliant career."

SCOTSMEN MEET.

St. Andrew's Society Holds Burns Banquet in Prince Rupert.

A copy of the Prince Rupert Journal, which has just come to hand, contains an interesting report of a Burns' banquet given by the St. Andrew's Society of that city. The Journal states that "the stirring speech of Rev. G. A. Rix proved the gem of the evening." Rev. Mr. Rix, who introduced the toast "Canada," is reported as follows:—

"He said that he was proud of the fact that he was a Canadian. In Western Canada he found too many Englishmen, Scotsmen and Irishmen. There should be more Canadians. They should be proud of the country they lived in. (Applause). Moreover, he would say that any man from the country of the Stars and Stripes should, if he was to live under the Union Jack, be a Britisher and a Canadian. (Applause). If he could not do this, he should go where he would be more at home. (Applause).

Mr. Rix said there was too little known of this country by those who lived in it. He thereupon traced the history of the explorations made in Canada. He followed with the early history of the country and the brave deeds done in defence of the land. There have always been strong men in Canada to fight its enemies. Men to fight the natural obstacles as well. Canadians had "gone up and possessed the land." Only a patch remained yet to be possessed.

This is British territory. Let it be made so. A vivid loyalty to the flag and to the country must be taught the people of other nations in our midst so that at least their children would give the same respect to that flag and sing the same national anthem as the British born. Our King was the representative of our institutions. He hoped to see a unit of the British Navy on this coast with its headquarters in Prince Rupert. (Applause). He hoped to see the mountains crossed with defences. (Applause).

This was God's country. While they should sing God Save the King, they should also sing All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

NATIVE WINES

Toronto Manufacturer Claims That Law Allows Him to Sell.

Temperance People Likely to Seek Legislation Limiting Alcohol Content.

It is probable that the temperance people will seek to have the Liquor License Act amended so as to place restrictions on the sale of native wines containing a high content of alcohol, in view of the situation which has arisen in the case of W. P. Ryan, a Toronto native wine manufacturer, whose product is declared by the Provincial Analyst to contain from 23 to 25 per cent. of proof spirit, and who was remanded last week in the Police Court on a charge of selling liquor illegally.

At present the License Act permits the manufacture and sale in wholesale quantities without a license any wines grown and produced in Ontario, without specific reference to the alcohol content. On the other hand, any beverage containing more than 2½ per cent. of alcohol is described elsewhere as a liquor within the meaning of the Act. It was upon the definition of liquor as set forth in section 2 of the Act, that Inspector Gregory, of the Toronto Morality Department, proceeded against Ryan, his summons following the conviction a week ago of one Bernstein on a charge of selling without a license. Bernstein, it appears, was marketing the Ryan product. He was fined $100 and costs.

Section 36 of the Liquor License Act, on the consolidation of 1887, as amended by an Act of 1911, states that:

"Subject to any regulations or restrictions which the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may impose, manufacturers of native wines grown and produced in Ontario, and who sell such wines in wholesale quantities only as required in the case of a wholesale license under this Act, to be wholly removed and not drunk upon the premises, shall be exempt from any duty under this Act, and shall not be required to obtain any license for selling wines so manufactured."

Escaped In Bare Feet

Tom Rutledge, a resident on Zina St., imbibed not wisely but too well Saturday night. When he got home shortly after midnight he was fighting drunk and proceeded to turn his wife and children out of the house. A neighbor summoned Nightwatchman Dawson and Constable Marshall. The officers pacified the man and finally persuaded him to go to bed. About 3 o'clock Sunday morning he kicked up another racket forcing his wife to leave the house in her nightdress and stockings. The woman summoned the officers, who went to the house with the intention of arresting Rutledge and taking him to the town lock-up. The man, who was only partially dressed, consented to accompany the officers, but getting an opportunity bolted out of a side door and after consigning Marshall and Dawson to a place where the thermometer never drops below zero vanished into the darkness. The night was stormy and bitterly cold and Rutledge was bareheaded, barefooted and clad only in his shirt and trousers. The officers started in hot pursuit, but the fleeing man quickly distanced them. They followed him to the West Broadway railway crossing, nearly a mile distant, where they lost the trail and after a fruitless search were obliged to return to town empty handed. About 3.30 Rutledge aroused David Sawyers just west of the railway crossing and on the strength of a trumped up story about his team running away obtained shelter for the remainder of the night. Early on Sunday a telephone message informed the officers of his whereabouts and they succeeded in arresting him without any further difficulty. Strange to say his feet were not frozen and he does not seem any the worse after his mad escapade. Police Magistrate Pattullo remanded Rutledge until Saturday and yesterday granted him his liberty on bail.

Peel Mutual Annual

Company, of Which Mr. R. B. Henry is District Agent, Had a Very Successful Year.

Has a Surplus of $40,000—Policyholders Paying Their Assessments Promptly—Directors Speak Well of Their Secretary—Retiring Directors Re-elected at Annual Meeting.

Peel Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co. annual meeting in the Concert Hall last Saturday afternoon, was not as well attended as usual because of the stormy weather.

President, John Gardhouse occupied the chair.

The directors' report was the most satisfactory one ever presented at an annual meeting of the company.

The company is now carrying $8,239,140 in insurance, the largest in its history and an increase of over half a million in a year. Its policyholders have increased eighty-three in one year.

Although the fire losses of 1913 were $4,000 in excess of the losses of 1912, the company has now a surplus of $40,000.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature about the auditors' report is that relating to unpaid assessments, a discouraging incident in oldtime reports. The unpaid assessments for 1913 are only $335.60, and for the years previous not a dollar is owing, a most creditable condition of affairs. The unpaid assessments of previous years used to run about $1,600.

The policy holders at Saturday's meeting unanimously re-elected the retiring directors, John Gardhouse, Nicholas Harrison, and Alexander Armstrong.

Following is the report of auditors Crawford and Sinclair:—

1. It is with much pleasure the Board of Directors of this Company once more meet the policy holders in annual meeting assembled. We beg to submit for your approval the twenty-seventh annual report of this Company, showing the general business transacted for the year 1913, also showing the financial standing of the Company at the close of the year.

2. Your Company has had a very favorable year to report, in that the business has exceeded the year 1912 by half a million dollars. We have issued 83 policies more in 1913 than in 1912, and 53 over the highest number taken in any other year of the Company's history, notwithstanding the fact that there have been in the year 1913, 98 policies combined and rewritten into 48 policies.

3. Your Directors feel that a large part of the increase in business is due to the cash premium system inaugurated in 1912, which seems to be meeting with the general approval of the policy holders, for it places the Company in the position of offering an applicant either the cash or assessment system.

4. Our losses for the past year have been some $4000 greater than the year 1912. These losses last year amounted to $1278. But notwithstanding this fact the surplus is the largest in the history of the Company, and it is a pleasure for us to report that we now have a surplus amounting to $39,792.66, consisting of $20,392.66 cash in the bank, and $19,400 secured by first mortgages on farm property. We had at the close of last year 3632 policies in force, covering an insurance of $8,239,140 with a total premium note capital of $224,704.97. We have increased cattle to $70 and hogs to $25.

5. We owe to Mr. J. J. Stewart, our Secretary, part of the credit for the success of this Company for his enterprise and promptness in attending to the business of the Company.

6. In conclusion we would say we are thankful to the patrons of the Company for their promptness in paying their assessments. Knowing this we enter the present year with courage, believing that our efforts will be crowned with success.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

January 31, 1914.

Committee:— John A. McBride, Thos. McCartney.—Peel Banner.

Truss Torture

Once Thought Necessary, but Now You Search for Relief is Ended

Wonderful Method Retains Rupture Without Knife, Danger or Pain

J. Y. EGAN, Specialist of Toronto

Old-fashioned truss torture is no longer necessary. Galling, slipping trusses and barbarous methods of treating rupture are done away with by the wonderful invention of a specialist who has devoted fifty years to this one affliction. The marvelous new EGAN "CURATRUS" gives to the ruptured instant relief, rest and security where all others fail. It stops all irritation and restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used and for all time and old style trusses are thrown away.

"EGAN'S CURATRUS" cures are absolutely without operation and the cost is small.

Multitudes of cured men, women and children testify. Also endorsed by many physicians.

Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Nothing complicated, no pain or irritation, but just a natural retentive method.

Immediate relief guaranteed. No fakes or lies—just straight business. Do not lay this aside, or delay, but tear off free coupon now.

Free Consultation Coupon.

This coupon, upon presentation to J. Y. Egan, rupture specialist, (office, No. 220, 11 East King Street, Toronto) who will visit the towns on dates mentioned below, will entitle bearer to free consultation and examination of samples. Ask at hotel office for number of my room. Note dates.

ROSEMONT.

The January thaw soon lowered the snow, but on Friday night we had another fall.

In spite of Saturday being a stormy day, St. Luke's Sunday School held its annual sleigh drive to Mr. R. J. Murphy's, of Mansfield. Four sleigh loads turned out.

Our young people are having great sport on our new skating rink down at Mr. Archie McCreary's.

A number of our young people took in the party at Mr. James Gilmore's on Friday night and passed through our village at break of day. All report a good time.

Our new store keeper is moving to the village. William thinks opposition is the life of trade.

Quite a number from here took in the meeting at Alliston on Feb. 4th, in connection with the Beeton Telephone Co., which has applied to the Railway Board to raise the rental from $12 to $15, the extra $3 for night service. There are about 150 subscribers on the Alliston exchange and about 125 have signed for the night service. The company pay the Bell Company about $50 and the increase would amount to about $480. This the commissioner stated was too much and that he would stand between the company and the public and he would protect the people and also protect the company. The new contracts the company sent out for $15 are not worth the paper they are printed on. So now the matter will stand as it is until the Company get a new charter from the Government. The company took out one phone because the subscriber would not sign for the $15 and they were ordered by the Commissioner to put it in again.

Mrs. Alex. McDowell and Mrs. Archie Moffatt are visiting Owen Sound friends this week.

Mr. Oswald Armstrong, of Orangeville, spent the week end at his home here.

Mrs. Jos. McFarland sr., of Mono, spent a few days last week at Mr. Ed. Little's.

Miss Mabel Kindrew, of Primrose, who has spent the past week at Mr. Fred McNabb's, has returned home.

Mrs. Geo. Moore is visiting Mono and Orangeville friends.

Miss Minnie Armstrong, of Toronto, is visiting at her home here.

LAUREL

We have been greatly concerned during the recent storms for the safety of any of the Literary Bees that might be abroad in our midst, as it takes something more than poetic aspirations, a ready pen and intimate knowledge of the G. O. B. A. B., to protect even a Queen Bee from the chilling effect of such a storm as we have had within the week.

The Ladies' Aid of Laurel presented to an audience of almost record size, that play entitled "The Ladies' Aid of Mohawk Valley," in the Methodist Church on Friday evening, January 30th., and as usual, their efforts were crowned with success. The costumes were of the most elaborate design, and many of them of costly material. The hoopskirts and correspondingly ancient shawls and head dress of Mesdames Hepton and Trimble were surely an echo of the past, and we have been assured that these dresses were actually worn by society ladies of bygone days. The fact that so many of the costumes were relics of almost a century ago, shows to what extent the ladies endeavored to make their concert both interesting and realistic. Perhaps the most ancient model of headgear now in captivity was the bonnet worn by Miss Liddy as it is rumored that its age runs well into three figures. The handsome costume in which Miss Bya Gray appeared caused much favorable comment. The play was lively and interesting throughout, being a travesty on the Ladies' Aid meetings of long ago, where the ladies displayed more interest in gossip, home remedies and the like than the more important objects for which they were organized. We were somewhat surprised to learn that even at the early date represented by the gathering at Mohawk Valley, and in that small community, they were not without what we now call Militant Suffragettes and the frequent cries of "Votes for Women" showed that the otherwise peaceful hamlet was strongly in favor of what we now know to be "The most troublesome tribe in Europe." In the parts of Suffragettes, Mrs. E. Richardson and Miss Bertha Hamilton did exceptionally well, and proved that "Generally speaking a woman is generally speaking." The program was supplemented by songs by Mrs. Ward Trimble, Miss S. Patterson and Mr. Robert Bessant, an appropriate reading by Miss Eleanor Nelson, and instrumental music by Mr. and Mrs. L. Dynes.

The Ladies' Institute met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) J. R. Bell. Addresses were given by Mrs. C. Banks and Mrs. (Rev.) J. S. Stevenson, after which a dainty lunch was served.

Mrs. Geo. Bidwell has been rather seriously ill for the past week and Mr. Bidwell was forced to return rather early from a visit with friends in Uncle Sam's domains. We hope to hear of Mrs. Bidwell's speedy recovery.

Very successful card parties have been held at the homes of Messrs T. W. Wallace and Frank Gray.

Miss Maud Hughes of Toronto, is visiting for a few days at the home of her brother, Mr. Herb. Hughes.

The genial manager of the Laurel skating rink, or what will be a skating rink if cold weather continues, hopes to entertain the young people of the community every evening from now till the big March thaw. Mr. Maltby has persevered under very adverse weather conditions, and surely after displaying such optimism, he is entitled to the loyal support of every skater in the district. We hope to be able to announce a carnival in next week's issue. John says "If being an optimist is working night and day to make ice, then I'm one of 'them things'."

LAUREL.

The young men of Laurel Epworth League are holding a Box Social on Tuesday evening, Feb. 17th. A good programme will be provided, including a sketch play entitled, "The Prodigal Son." A good time is expected.

The storm has so filled the roads with drifts that the mail carriers were unable to perform their duties, and our pastors were compelled to remain in the village on Sunday.

The Orangemen are carrying on a very successful campaign and a good number attended the meeting last week. Are you an Orangeman? If not, why not?

We are sorry to regret that Mrs. G. Bidwell and Mrs. Louis Johnston are still under the doctor's care.

At last the rink is ready and we are looking forward to some good fun.

The Women's Institute met last week at the home of Mrs. J. R. Bell. A goodly number were in attendance. All appreciated Mrs. Bell's hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cooney, who have been visiting friends in Toronto, have arrived home.

Boys, don't forget Feb. 14th. Send your girl a valentine.

We understand that there was a happy termination to a Toronto romance on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Bertha King, daughter of Mrs. King, of this place, was united in marriage to Mr. John Hayward, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. McClure. The bridal couple left immediately for the bride's home where they purpose spending a few days before continuing their honeymoon trip to New York City.

THE DUFFERIN MUTUAL.

Farmers' Insurance Company Has Had Another Successful Year.

The Dufferin Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company held its annual meeting in the Town Hall in Shelburne on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the inclemency of the weather and the drifted state of the roads the attendance was not large. The President, Mr. W. J. Jelly, occupied the chair. The Auditors' Report showed that the Company has had another successful year. There were 2,320 policies in force on December 31st representing insurance to the amount of $4,598,825. The amount paid for fire losses last year was $2,864.00, which makes $72,107.81 paid out since the organization of Company. The assets amount to $168,588.17, consisting of cash in banks and in the head office, $11,069.98, agents' balances, $278.42, loan on mortgage, $800 and premium notes in force, less payments, $151,889.77. WITH THE CURLERS

The Bankers' Trophy is still engaging the attention of Dufferin County curlers. Two games have been played for the Trophy since last week's issue. The first took place on Friday night, when Dr. Frank, of Shelburne, who came so close to lifting the Trophy on Wednesday night, brought down another rink. The Dr. did not make such a good showing on his second venture, being defeated rather handily by a score of 18 to 9. The players were:—

Orangeville	Shelburne
Dr. Rooney	Dr. Davis
J. D. McMillan	T. J. Harrison
Dr. Campbell	H. Cameron
E. G. Bingham— skip, 18	Dr. Frank— skip, 9

Having twice defended the Trophy successfully, Bingham was obliged to hand the honor over to another rink. The choice fell upon J. D. McMillan, who had his first game on Monday, the challengers being a Grand Valley rink skipped by Ed. Reilly. The visitors had a comfortable lead at one stage, but the local rink pulled ahead toward the close and had a single point to the good when the last stone was played. The players were:—

Orangeville	Grand Valley
C. V. Jeffers	H. McDonald
J. M. Rowan	A. Menary
D. B. Brown	A. G. Ramsay
J. D. McMillan— skip, 15	Ed. Reilly— skip, 14

Two rinks journeyed to Shelburne on Monday to compete for the John Best Trophy. One of them won with 12 shots to spare, but the other lost by 14. Points count in this competition, so that the first game put the locals out of the running. The players and results were:—

Shelburne	Orangeville
J. Mills	R. J. Bennett
H. Cameron	C. V. Jeffers
E. A. Ferguson	Dr. Rooney
Dr. Frank— skip, 10	E. G. Bingham— skip, 22
J. Cassie	A. Dalgleish
R. Smith	D. McLean
D. Henderson	D. McCallum
Dr. White— skip, 23	J. D. Torrie— skip, 9
33	31

Grand Valley was also represented by two rinks. Each of these was beaten by 5 shots, so that Shelburne will retain the Best shield for another year.

A couple of Fergus rinks paid the local brithers a visit yesterday, playing morning and afternoon games. The visitors secured a lead of 12 in the morning game and were 7 down in the afternoon. The players and scores were:—

TO THE CHURCH OF GOD.

"Comfort one another with these words" (Thess. IV.:18).

The burden on my spirit day and night is the imminent appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ from heaven to translate His saints. I pray God to make you ready and to keep you ready. May your portion be amongst this blessed number that shall be "caught up" to heaven.

Although we know not "the hour" in which our Lord shall appear, it is possible for us, like Simeon, to have a revelation by the Holy Spirit of His coming in our lifetime. It appears that the special message of the Spirit to the prepared believer today is, "Thou shalt not die, but thou shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air." There is a special unction on the prayers, on the hymns—in a word, on everything that has to do with the "translation."

It is an inspiration to think that "the day" is at hand; and that in the twinkling of an eye we shall be changed to be eternally like Him. In a moment we shall be made sinless—O, lofty life! O, spirit arousing thought! The cursed sin finished forever! Sin under our feet for eternity, and we ourselves in full possession of God's pure nature, and its beauty and perfection in each part of us; and henceforth we shall be without shame, to appear before God or to walk amongst angels! O, blessed hour! "Come" is the unquenchable cry of my spirit! And to think that such an hour is at the door! O, to be ready, and to finish the work that He gave us to do, and to prepare others.

In a "moment" also our bodies shall be made spiritual! O, happy day! After such tribulation to be in the whole what we are now in part; to have a spiritual body as well as to possess a perfect spirit. Then, O sinless life! then untiring work! For ever after this we shall be completely spiritual, and our joy a thousand times higher than that which we proved in the highest and most Divine hours of our life. Will not this cause us to cry aloud, "O come, heavenly appointed hour!"

There is a minute pre-ordination at the back of all God does. The times have been measured by God; and it appears to-day that God, through the spirit, is saying, "The second coming of My Son is at hand. Be ye ready."

And then in a moment we shall be clothed with immortality. Henceforth we shall be above death and fear and suffering; and in a day which has no darkness nor shadow, we shall serve the Lord for ever to His satisfaction. "BE YE READY!" In this hope and waiting for His near coming.—Evan Roberts in The Overcomer.

Grease a Cause of Disease.

Grease in a sink is a very prolific cause of disease. It cannot but accumulate from dishes and utensils, and when small bits of vegetable matter adhere to it a shelter is given to mischievous bacteria. Besides, grease will clog the drain and become a nuisance and an inconvenience. The surest and simplest cleansing agent is a strong solution of washing soda and boiling water. The sink should first be scrubbed with soapsuds and the hot solution then dashed down the drain. This cleaning should be done at least once a week.—Chicago News.

TIPPING THE TORMENT OF TRAVEL.

Tipping is one of the nuisances of travel. One seems to be almost perpetually plunging down into his trousers' pocket to soothe the itching palm of somebody on train or in hotels or city barber shops. In the United States they are fighting the evil thing. Some time ago a Senator slapped a waiter bang in the face. He was arrested, of course, and humiliated by being sent to the cells. But the Judge who tried the case, while imposing a fine, complimented the Senator as a noble pioneer in the art of self-defence. The porters in the Pullmans will awaken you at night to search for your shoes, to develop a pretext for the tip. They begin to lay seige just before the terminal, when they produce their tormenting little whisks and brush your dust off on your neighbor, you probably all smiles while your heart is in hot rebellion. It does not seem so very bad to see a colored man take a tip, but the other day we got a shock like the one that almost killed father, when seeing a white Pullman conductor on the tipping line. After the shock subsided we thought he wasn't all white. At Hamilton a porter grabbed two tips and hastened to the railway platform. One owner came along and handed over a quarter. The second drew up a moment later, and it was another. This was reaping a harvest. When one pays from fifty cents to a dollar a meal, and has for several days, as many travellers do, and has to pay a sur-tax of 25 cents cash sitting order to get proper attention, the disturbance ensuing is not very conducive to delightful digestion. On the other hand there are many students who take this method of raising funds. Knowing this, your heart relaxes. But to be held up by bandit smiles; knowing your money is likely later to contribute to the gaiety of a "Craps" session, you feel it is an imposition from which Companies ought to preserve their patrons.

SHE WAS HELPLESS FOR TWO YEARS.

Why Mrs. Baldwin Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She Could Find Nothing to Cure Her Rheumatism Till On a Neighbor's Advice She Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Walburg, Sask., Feb. 9th. (Special).— "I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for any one suffering from Rheumatism." These are the words of Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, a highly respected resident of this place. And Mrs. Baldwin gives her reasons.

"I was nearly helpless with rheumatism for two years," she states. "I got medicine from the doctor, and tried several other remedies but nothing helped me. Then one of my neighbors advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought four boxes, and they helped me almost from the first. I have used nearly two dozen boxes and am nearly cured."

That rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys is again shown in Mrs. Baldwin's case. She had headaches, stiffness of the joints and backache. Her sleep was broken and unrefreshing, and she was always tired and nervous. Her limbs swelled and she was always thirsty. These are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. When she cured her kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills the symptoms vanished—and so did the rheumatism.

A new edifice of the cathedral type will replace Knox church, Stratford, burned last spring.

THEATRES FOR THE PEOPLE.

Russia Leads the World in Cheap High Class Entertainment.

Russia, backward in most things of culture, leads the world in people's theatres. That is, in theatres with good art and low-priced seats, where the tired workingman, to whom half a dollar is an exorbitant charge, can see things worth seeing for much less.

In most European countries people's theatres are few. Yet barbarous Russia has 407 theatres existing wholly and entirely for the working classes.

They range from splendid stone playhouses and opera houses, one of which is the second biggest theatre in the world, down to modest frame buildings in remote towns; and even Siberia boasts about 30.

People's theatres existed in Russia at times when there were none at all elsewhere. They existed under serfdom, and, in fact, originated with serfdom. Wealthy owners of thousands of "souls" used to send the most promising "souls" to Moscow and Petersburg that they might learn to dance, play and sing, and these histrionic monjiks, though remaining slaves, were kept for my lord's entertainment, just as the medieval barons kept jesters and buffoons.

Soon after emancipation the need for doing something to entertain the now free monjik led to small theatres being started by kind-hearted people in towns and even in villages, chiefly in Tamboy and Kursk governments. Several towns later started municipal people's theatres with popular prices, or allotted the use of the ordinary theatres for several days in the week to audiences of workingmen.

The foundation and management of the people's theatres are carried out either by the local state temperance association, by the municipality or by private associations and philanthropists. Sometimes the three collaborate. In one case the association subsidizes a municipal people's theatre or agrees to make up its deficit; sometimes it finds the money for construction, while the municipality contracts to bear the deficit; sometimes it makes a contract for sharing the cost with local rich men or associations.

"The People's House of Nicholas II.," in St. Petersburg, consists of theatre, library and restaurants, and last year it had a triumph in the addition on its left wing of a vast People's Opera House, which holds 3,500 spectators. The opera house has thus no rival in the world. Since its addition, the people's house as a whole, counting the two theatres, restaurants, libraries and grounds, can hold 30,000 persons, and every Sunday and holiday it is filled.

It has staged all the best Russian, Italian, French and German composers, and can claim with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, to have been the only theatre other than Bayreuth, to play Wagner's Parsifal. So well was Wagner done that one of the Bayreuth managers went to St. Petersburg to see if he could pick up notions. In this way, at prices as low as six cents, a musical feast is given to the St. Petersburg workmen which is not enjoyed by the richest citizens anywhere else.

Science Accepts the Divining Rod.

The first congress for establishing the scientific value of the divining rod, which met in Berlin recently, closed by placing on record its opinion that it was a scientific fact that a forked willow or hazel stick, or even an iron or steel rod, in the hands of certain persons, would indicate subterranean water sources and coal, potash and other mineral beds.

The congress decided that, in view of the mass of evidence secured during two days of successful practical experiments in the vicinity of the place where the meeting was held and elsewhere, under conditions which precluded any fraud, science could no longer deny the results that have been achieved.

Steps were taken at the closing session to organize an international society of men in all countries for the scientific study of the divining rod.

Cigars That Last.

Ever smoke an Igorrote cigar? Well, these Igorrotes, in the Philippine Islands, make a cigar that in one respect is like the old time Christmas plum pudding—it lasts a week. It's fifteen inches long and three to five inches thick. Old man Ig. rolls the cig. and smokes it an hour; then Misses Ig. and all the little Igs. take their turn. By about the fourth day it must need a cuspidor attachment to keep it in operation. One smoke like this would last some people a lifetime.

An Apology.

An excited military-looking gentleman entered the editorial sanctum one afternoon, exclaiming: "That notice of my death is false, sir. I will horsewhip you within an inch of your life, sir, if you don't apologize in your next issue."

The editor inserted the following next day: "We extremely regret to announce that the paragraph in our last issue which stated that Major Blazer was dead is without foundation."

Lottery Circulars Banned.

The postoffice authorities are calling attention to the fact that circulars of foreign lotteries in Hungary and Denmark are passing through the mails. Postmasters are ordered to send them back to country of origin. Letters from Canada are not to be forwarded to the addresses of these concerns, and no notes or orders are to be made payable to them.

Courage.

"Henry is a brave man. The other night his wife thought she heard a burglar."

"And he went down?"

"No. He had the courage to tell her he was afraid."

Give That Puny Child This Guaranteed Remedy

If your child is under-weight, listless, ailing, liable to get sick easily, it needs a medicine to build its weight and strength. For this purpose there is nothing else we know of that we can so strongly endorse as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. The remarkable success of this splendid medicine is due to the fact that it contains ingredients that tone the nerves, enrich the blood and furnish to the entire system the strength, weight and health-building substances it needs. And, it does all this without injury to the stomach. In fact, Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is not only pleasant to take, but even the most sensitive stomach is benefitted by it, and the digestion improved. On the other hand, it contains no alcohol or habit forming drugs, which most parents object giving their children. It does its work by taking hold of the weakness and builds the body up to its natural strength, at the same time making it strong to resist disease.

If Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion doesn't build your child up, feed the stunted, puny muscles, and make the little one lively, strong, well, and full of animal spirits children are meant by nature to have, come back and tell us and get your money back. We don't want you to lose a cent. We think this is no more than fair, and it leaves you no cause to hesitate. For old people also—for convalescents—for all who are nervous, tired-out, run-down, no matter what the cause—we offer Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion with the same guarantee of entire satisfaction or money back. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. T. F. & T. J. BROWN, Orangeville.

PAST CENTURY MARK.

Mrs. Brown is One of Oldest Women in Canada.

The Berlin News-Record of Friday, January 30th, had the following reference to the grandmother of Mr. Robt. B. Smith, of Shelburne :—

One of the oldest women in Canada, who resides in Toronto, and stands at the head of five generations, is Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, 4 Tiverton Avenue. This wonderful woman, born in Ireland, and who lives a day of activity equal to that of a woman of 50, has reached the remarkable age of 101 years, and has relatives in this city.

Mrs. J. C. Smith is a daughter. Mrs. Smith was in Toronto recently, when a little family party was held at the home of Mrs. Brown, and the latter rose at 10 o'clock, spent from then until midnight with her family talking over old times, and relating anecdotes of her younger days. The tedious days had no apparent effect on her, and the following morning she was as bright as usual.

The only defective faculty is Mrs. Brown's memory, which does not serve her as well as in former years. Her eyesight is excellent, and her hearing good. She was born on a farm in Armagh, Ireland, and she has resided on a farm practically ever since. It is probable that it is owing to this fact that her health is so unimpaired. She has never had a serious illness in her life; the last time she had a doctor was four years ago, when she suffered a slight attack of indigestion.

Mrs. Brown was born 101 years ago, but the day and the month are not known. There is no doubt about the year, however, since the certificate of the birth of an elder sister was obtained this year from the old country. This sister, who died in Garafraxa township six years ago was 99 years of age, and Mrs. Brown was four years younger. She came to Canada seventy-six years ago, with her husband and three children. Eight children were born in Canada, completing a family of eleven. Her husband died 45 years ago.

Mrs. Brown has belonged to the Methodist Church for 65 years, the last two she has been a member of Trinity Methodist church here.

A very interesting feature is that there are five generations living. The following is the genealogical tree:—Mrs. Elizabeth Brown (first generation); Mrs. Martin, Grand Valley, Dufferin; Mrs. Russell, Ladstock, Sask.; Mrs. Burgess, Wiarton, Ont.; Mrs. J. C. Smith, Berlin; Mrs. Hamilton, 4 Tiverton Ave., Toronto, daughters and John and Robert Brown, Grand Valley, and Wm. Brown, Guelph, sons (second generation); Mrs. Martin's daughter is Mrs. Campbell, of Grand Valley, (third generation); her daughter is Mrs. Hall, of Grand Valley (fourth generation); and Mrs. Hall has three children (fifth generation).

LIGHTNING CURES.

Many Strange Recoveries Credited to Much Feared Bolt.

There is an old saying to the effect that "faith will either kill or cure," and it would seem to apply to lightning also. Certainly it is a remedy which nobody could be persuaded to try voluntarily, but there are many cases on record where permanent benefit has been derived from being struck by lightning—that is, subjected to Nature's own electrical treatment.

A telegraph employe in Germany who was manipulating his instruments during a severe thunderstorm was seen to fall at the very instant that a lightning flash of intense vividness occurred. At first he was thought to have been killed instantly, but it was afterwards found that he was still alive, although he was both senseless and paralyzed. In this state he remained about twenty-four hours, and then recovered completely. Strangely enough, prior to the lightning stroke he was in very indifferent health, but since that apparent catastrophe his health has been more robust than ever before in his life.

A similar case took place on the island of Martinique, where thunderstorms are both frequent and severe. A well-known French resident was struck by lightning and picked up for dead. He was not dead, however, but only paralyzed, and was treated with massage and artificial respiration. In a few hours he recovered, and from having been a man of very weakly health, poor appetite, and suffering from "general debility," as the pill advertisements say, he became henceforth "as fit as a fiddle," losing all his old-time invalidism.

Some time ago a deaf man was standing near a tree with a companion during a thunderstorm, when the tree was struck by lightning and shattered, the two men being thrown to the ground in a dazed condition. They probably owed their lives to the fact that they were not in actual contact with the tree, and both experienced the secondary force of the electrical discharge. The deaf man's companion was the first to find his voice, and the hitherto deaf man was amazed to find that he could hear him. The lightning had worked a sort of minor miracle and unstopped the deaf man's ears.

More than one case has occurred of a lightning flash causing a dumb man to speak. These have always been cases where some peculiar nervous affection has been the cause of dumbness. After a serious illness, for instance, a woman found herself unable to use her tongue in speech, and she so remained for many years, making her wants known by writing them upon a slate which was kept beside her for the purpose. She was dreadfully frightened of thunderstorms, and used to retire to the coal-cellar when they occurred. Needless to say, the lightning followed her there, and on one occasion, when lightning and thunder were simultaneous, she was so frightened with the flash and the tremendous crash which followed it that she ran screaming up the cellar steps as voluble with her tongue as ever she was in her life. She had found her speech again.

Use For Hot Stones.

Primitive man boiled his water with hot stones. That was not the only use he made of them—at any rate—if he was a Scythian. The Scythian practice described by Herodotus has been claimed by some as the first recorded case of smoking. Having spoken of a kind of hemp that grew in the country, Herodotus proceeds: "Now, the Scythians, taking the seed of this hemp, go into their tents and then throw the seed upon stones heated white hot. As it is thrown on it is burnt into smoke, producing so much that no Greek vapor bath could surpass it. And the Scythians delighted in it, bellow. This takes the place of washing for them." It seems as though they had discovered the Turkish bath and the cigarette.

Coffee From Dried Figs.

It is claimed that an excellent coffee can be made from dried and roasted figs, which need not be of the first quality. They are dried in the sun or in evaporating pans, according to climate, and then roasted in ovens till brown or almost black and quite brittle. They are then ground up, and the resultant powder is pressed into tablets. These must be kept dry. When made use of they are merely dissolved in hot water. The beverage is said to be agreeable in color and flavor, with a somewhat sweeter taste than that made from chicory.

Deceived.

Countryman at the National Gallery)—Why, them's the very same pictures I saw here the day before yesterday!

Attendant (dryly)—Quite likely.

Countryman—Then that clerk at the hotel is an awful liar. He told me that the pictures was changed daily in all the leadin' picture houses.—London Opinion.

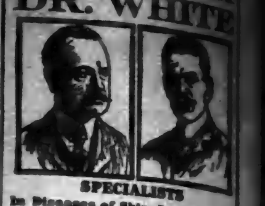
Not Too Important.

"I hear Brown's been promoted again."

"Yes."

"That's splendid! He must be quite an important member of the concern now."

"Oh, I guess not. The office boy still calls him by his first name."



The Largest Theatre.

The largest theatre in the world is the opera house in Paris. It covers three acres of ground, its cubic mass is 4,287,000 feet, and it cost about $25,000,000.

Cities Have Grown.

A century ago there were in all Europe only 22 cities with more than 100,000 inhabitants.

PRINCIPAL'S CERTIFICATE.

May be Sufficient to Entitle Pupils to Admission to High Schools in Toronto.

Entrance to the High Schools of Toronto will hereafter be permitted in certain cases without examination of the candidates, by certificate of the principals of the schools where they have received primary education. Dr. L. E. Embree, chairman of the examining board, made this statement :

"The High School Entrance Board of Examiners, at a meeting held today, decided to accept for the year 1914 certificates of the principals of the public and separate schools and of the principal of the Normal School for admission into the High Schools. This plan of admitting pupils is allowed by the regulations of the Department of Education, as an alternative to the High School entrance examination, which is held in June of each year.

"The adoption of the system of accepting certificates does not entirely eliminate the entrance examination, which may still be held as a test for the admission of candidates from any of the above named classes of schools that may not accept this system, and of candidates who are not pupils of these schools.

"A committee of the entrance board was appointed to work out the details."

This action on the part of the examiners is in line with a policy recommended by the Board of Education. The necessary legislative power to put the plan in effect is vested in the examining board.

The significance of the second paragraph in Dr. Embree's statement is that the new system does not affect private preparatory school pupils or pupils of public institutions which prefer not to adopt the plan. These will continue to seek entrance by writing examination papers as heretofore. Provision is also allowed for pupils of schools adopting the system who fail to obtain certificates from their principals. Provided that they can secure certificates on Part 1 of the curriculum, pupils will be permitted to write upon Part 2 of the entrance examinations and thus, if successful, be admitted to the High Schools.

An Operation for Appendicitis was ordered by his doctor.

But Complete Cure was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure. Dr. Chase's medicines have proven of wonderful benefit in our home as the Ointment cured my little girl of a severe burn when nothing else would bring relief."

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers. Sample box mailed free if you mention this paper. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE WORLD'S BIGGEST THINGS

The largest library is the National in Paris, which contains 3,000,000 books.

The tallest monument is in Washington, D.C. It is 550 feet high.

The highest chimney is in Glasgow, Scotland, and is 474 feet.

The deepest coal mine is near Lambert, Belgium, and is 3,500 feet deep.

The largest monolith is in Egypt —107 feet.

The biggest dock is in Cardiff, Wales.

The greatest bank is the Bank of England, London.

The oldest college is University College, Oxford. It was established in the year 1050.

The largest college is in Cairo, Egypt. It has on its register each year over 10,000 students and 310 teachers.

The largest bronze statue is that of Peter the Great, in St. Petersburg, Russia. It weighs some 1,100 tons.

Damascus is claimed to be the oldest city in the world.

The most costly book is a Hebrew Bible, which is owned by the German government, and which the Pope offered $125,000 for, but which the government of Germany would not give up.

Until recently the most costly medicine was supposed to be metallic gallium, $150,000 a pound. But lately radium has far outstripped it in price, bringing about $600,000 an ounce.

Rowdyism in Streetsville.

Wets Celebrated the Vote by Doing Damage to Homes of Drys.

Good old Tory Streetsville, where the villagers used to slam the daylights out of anybody who dared vote Liberal during the early days, covered itself with renewed glory on the night of the Scott Act vote. The hoodlums of the village bombarded the residences of the High School Master and the Presbyterian Minister with whiskey bottles. The crime of which these gentlemen were accused was that of being 'dry' when the majority of the people in the village are decidedly 'wet.' Nine panes of glass were broken in the preacher's home and a hanging lamp in a room knocked down. At the teacher's house a bottle was thrown with such force that it broke the window glass, a glass fronted bookcase and buried its broken remains in the books. The respectable portion of the village, is of course, naturally outraged in its feelings and is loudly demanding that the culprits be punished. The County Council, in session last week, asked the Crown Attorney to make an investigation at the County's expense. An Ontario detective has visited the village, we are told, but an ex-villager tells us "it will be little he'll find out. They don't talk in Streetsville." —Peel Banner.

Concrete walks need no repairs

THEY are not only best at first but are cheaper in the end than any other kind of walk. They are clean, permanent and safe. There is nothing to become loose nor are they slippery. They improve the general appearance of a house and are a source of great satisfaction to every housewife because they keep children out of the mud, prevent colds from wet feet and prevent dirt from being "tracked in" on floors and carpets. Equally important is the fact that they never wear out and never need repairs.

This free book "What the Farmer can do with Concrete" tells all about concrete walks and how to build them, and a score of other things needed on every farm. Write for it to-day.

ALASKAN VOLCANOES.

Eruption of Mount Katmai Greater Than at First Believed.

The tremendous outburst of Mount Katmai in Alaska last year is now known to have been one of the greatest volcano eruptions of historic times. The eruption of this mountain unquestionably constitutes Alaska a land of volcanic activity of the first magnitude. Only because of the extreme scarcity of the population did the eruption escape being a disaster which would have shocked the civilized world. Yet little has been said about this terrific convulsion of nature, which, it is estimated, blew between 12 and 15 thundred billion tons of material into the air.

June 6, without warning, the Katmai volcano proclaimed itself by a frightful explosion, the sound of the mighty bombardment carrying as far as Juneau, 750 miles distant, and even across the towering Alaska range to Dawson and Fairbanks in the far interior of the peninsula. Following this came a huge column of steam and ashes which rose to a height of over four miles and was immediately seen in the clear atmosphere at Clark lake and Cook inlet, 150 miles distant. Within a few hours this cloud had shed a deluge of pumice over the whole east half of Alaska peninsula, and most of Kodiak and Afognak Islands. Intense darkness accompanied the fall of ashes. Midnight blackness at noon extended as far east as Kenai peninsula, 200 miles distant.

Volcanic dust fell at points 1,000 miles away, and fumes were reported at Puget Sound, 1,500 miles from the explosion. Kodiak Island and other surrounding islands and territory, within a hundred or more miles of the volcano, enjoy an exceedingly fertile soil and mild climate, and are destined, as the crowded world expands into more remote sections, to sustain a population of possibly a million inhabitants. With such a settlement, to say nothing of a dense population like that of Japan or the southern Mediterranean countries, the explosion of Mount Katmai would have been simply terrific in its mark of destruction. The country within 20 miles of the volcano was submerged in from two to three feet of hot volcanic ashes, and on Kodiak Island, 100 miles away, more than a foot of ash and pumice fell, embracing everything in its smothering grip. This material sliding down the steep mountain slopes and piling and drifting in great banks crushed in houses and submerged much territory to the depth of 25 and even 40 feet.

It seems incredible that no person was directly killed by the eruption of Mount Katmai. Had the convulsion been that of Vesuvius or Etna, in Italy, or Asamayama, Japan, or many other active volcanoes, the loss of life would probably have been in the tens of thousands. In the Katmai disaster a few people died from breathing the dust, while the damage to crops and grass and the destruction of game and fur animals were indirect losses.

Very likely it will be years before this volcano can generate enough force for another eruption of equal severity, which is a reassuring thought.

The Oriental Beauty.

If the woman of fashion of London, Paris or New York spent as much time over her toilet as her sister of the far east she would have very little left in which to attend to her social and domestic duties. The oriental belle devotes most of her day to the preservation of her health and beauty. She uses many wonderful cosmetics for coloring her eyes and brows and for beautifying her skin. On arising her hair is dressed by her maid, who massages the scalp with oil made from aloe wood or cocoanut. The eastern woman will never interfere with the color of her hair, for the long silky blue black locks are considered her chief charm.

Next a very hot bath is prepared and in this she remains for two or three hours. In place of soap numberless unguents are used which render the skin as soft as velvet. These delicate perfumes are secret preparations of the bathing woman. The hair of the oriental beauty is beautifully long and soft and she has a way of arranging it which adds a distinct charm. The face is washed over with a milk into which the juice of a lemon has been squeezed.

Being Awake.

Moral reform and improvement are the effort to throw off sleep. Why is it that men give so poor an account of their day if they have not been slumbering? If they had not been overcome with drowsiness they would have performed something. The millions are awake enough for physical labor, but only one in a hundred million to a poetic or divine life. To be awake is to be alive. I have never yet met a man who was quite awake. How could I have looked him in the face?—Thoreau.

Handling a Husband.

There is a happy mean in everything. It is said that a shrewd old woman heard her married daughter say: "If my husband doesn't do such and such a thing, he'll find himself in hot water."

"My child," said the woman, "a man is like an egg. Kept in hot water a little while he may boil soft, but keep him there long and he hardens."

A Coincidence.

"I'm afraid, George," said his fiancee, "that you are going from bad to worse."

"Quite a coincidence," muttered George. "That's what Clara said when I threw her over for you."

Ice House a Necessity.

An agricultural paper declares that an ice house has become indispensable on most farms.

SUFFERED AGONY WITH NEURALGIA

Nothing Helped Her Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., May 5th, 1913.

"I cannot speak too highly of "Fruit-a-tives". For over thirty years, I have suffered from Chronic Neuralgia and Constipation, experiencing untold agony. The Neuralgia settled in my lungs and I took bottle after bottle of medicine without relief. The doctor told me I would not get better but "Fruit-a-tives" proved that the doctor was wrong, by giving me quick relief and finally and completely curing me.

I would not have my present health if it was not for "Fruit-a-tives" and I am glad of the opportunity of giving you this letter about such a splendid remedy as "Fruit-a-tives", for the guidance of other women who may be similarly affected"

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine made from fruit juices and is particularly suited to women because of its mild action and pleasant taste.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE GRAND RIVER

Planning to Prevent the Destructive Floods.

In the districts of Western Ontario through which the Grand River flows, there have been for years tremendous losses from floods almost every spring. Many plans have been made to guard against these, but at last something has been done in improving the general regimen and local flow characteristic of that obstreperous river. For some time past, through progressive obliteration of these physical influences which govern natural control, the flood of the Grand River has been gradually increasing in volume and destructiveness.

As a consequence of this steady increase in flood discharge, the low water flow has been steadily decreasing, and there has been a very material loss through shrinkage in power capacity. Realizing that these conditions would tend to become worse from year to year, a number of interested municipalities have solicited the help of the Provincial Government in the matter of an investigation for the purpose of devising some remedy; such remedy to serve the joint purpose of ameliorating the flood conditions and of increasing the power capacity of the stream under conditions of minimum flow.

During the fall of 1912, a reconnaissance survey was made of the Grand River watershed covering the main stream from Caledonia to headwaters, and several of the larger tributaries were also examined throughout their entire length. Several locations were chosen as being suitable for storage reservoirs and regulating works. Those mentioned were near Paris, Glenmorris, Elora, and Blair. Other sites on the Conestoga, Speed, and Nith Rivers were also suggested. While the information obtained made it evident that material benefit might be derived from the construction of storage works, the extent of the benefit and the cost of construction could not possibly be estimated without the help of instrumental surveys and comprehensive hydrographical study.

The Government in consequence established stations on the Grand River at Brantford, Glenmorris, Blair and Elora, and at the present day they are still being used to gather information in connection with the characteristics of the main tributaries. The measurements taken, which must of necessity extend over a protracted period of time, besides recording the flow characteristics of the river at different seasons of the year, make it possible to forecast the behavior of the river under future conditions of regulated flow. Of the three necessary surveys, two have been already carried out, namely, an instrumental determination of the channel slope and a survey of storage basins to establish flood contours, and to determine the maximum possible or permissible limit of backwater. The third, a detailed instrumental survey of sites for proposed dams, is yet to be undertaken.

When these surveys have been completed the cost of dams for retaining the flood water for use as power can be estimated. It is certain the work will take several years, even if it be pushed to the most speedy possible issue, and in the meantime the districts must be content to wait and suffer. Temporary relief may be obtained in places by building dikes and enlarging obstructed channels, but the loss of power must of necessity go on until the larger work be completed. There is comparatively little that such small units as cities can do. A protected city might make its protection more ample by strengthening its dykes or enlarging its outlet, but nothing approaching adequacy can be accomplished until Federal, Provincial, and local governments combine to carry out the work along the broadest lines of general economy and safety.

PEEL COMPANY'S ANNUAL MEETING

The Directors' Report Was Most Gratifying.

Receipts for Year $57,287.22.—Expenditure $17,494.56.—Officers and Directors All Re-elected.

The annual meeting of the Peel Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held in the Concert Hall on Saturday last. The attendance was not as large as usual, owing to the fact that there were no rumblings of dissent from the work of the directors heard during the year. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. Gardhouse, president of the company. The company has at the present time insurance in force to the amount of $8,239,140, half a million dollars greater that that of last year. The number of policies in force is 3632, a greater number than at any previous time in the history of the company. A feature in connection with the management of the company that was favorably commented upon was the fact that while for ten years there has been an average of $1615.58 in arrears for unpaid premiums last year the amount was only $335 and there is not one dollar arrears for any year prior to 1913.

The receipts for the year amounted to $57,287.22 and the expenditure to $17,494.56, leaving a balance on hand of $39,792.66. The expenditure was made up as follows:

Agents fees and commissions	$1072.00
Salaries, directors, sec.-treas. and auditors	2234.35
Losses by fire and lightning	12,784.05
Printing, advt. and calendars	265.62
Rebates on cancelled policies	501.27
Postage, rents, express and office expenses and bond ...	408.15
Legal expenses, office fixtures, freight and discounts	55.10
Licenses and Underwriters' fee, telephone and taxes ...	174.02

The Directors' report was as follows:—

To the Members of the Peel Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Gentlemen:

1. It is with much pleasure that the Board of Directors of this Company once more meet the policy holders in annual meeting assembled. We beg to submit for your approval the thirty-seventh annual report of this company, showing the general business transacted for the year 1913, also showing the financial standing of the company at the close of the year.

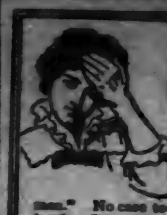
2. Your Company has had a very favorable year to report, in that the business has exceeded the year 1912 by half a million dollars. We have issued 83 policies more in 1913 than in 1912, and 53 over the highest number taken in any other year of the Company's history notwithstanding the fact that there have been in the year 1913, 98 policies combined and rewritten into 48 policies.

3. Your Directors feel that a large part of the increase in business is due to the cash premium system inaugurated in 1912, which seems to be meeting with the general approval of the policy holders, for it places the Company in the position of offering an applicant either the cash or assessment system.

4. Our loses for the past year have been some $4000 greater than the year 1912. These losses last year amounted to $12,784. But notwithstanding this fact the surplus is the largest in the history of the Company, and it is a pleasure for us to report that we now have a surplus amounting to $39,792.66, consisting of $20,392.66 cash in the bank, and $19,400 secured by first mortgages in farm property. We had at the close of last year 3632 policies in force, covering an insurance of $8,239,140, with a total premium note of $224,704.97.

5. We owe to Mr. J. J. Stewart, our Secretary, part of the credit for the success of this company for his push and promptness in attending to the business of the company.

6. In conclusion we would say we are thankful to the patrons of the company for their promptness in paying their assessments. Knowing this we enter the present year with courage, believing that our efforts will be crowned with success.



All of which is respectfully submitted.

Committee: J. A. McBride, Thos. McCartney.

January 31st, 1914.

The three retiring directors were John Gardhouse, N. Harrison and Alex. Armstrong. All three were re-elected, no other names being mentioned as candidates against them. There is usually an election at the annual meeting but the action of the policy holders at this time may be regarded as the best evidence of the satisfactory service rendered by these gentlemen. The auditors, John Sinclair and Ralph Crawford, were also re-elected without a vote.

At the directors' meeting following the general meeting John Gardhouse was re-elected president, J. J. Stewart, secretary, and David Kirkwood, treasurer.—Brampton Conservator.

BIG GALT PLANT GUTTED BY FIRE.

Factory of Shurly, Dietrich, Limited, Destroyed With Loss of $280,000.

150 Men Out of Work.

Fire which broke out on Friday last in the works of Shurly, Dietrich, Ltd., saw and bed manufacturers, gutted practically the whole plant, which covers the greater portion of a block. Only a solid brick warehouse, recently erected, remains, the rest of the buildings not so solidly constructed having burned like tinder. Although at one time it was thought the solid stone office would be saved, the fire got in and it was gutted.

It is expected the loss will reach about $200,000, and 150 men will be thrown out of employment.

The fire started in the tempering department, and Joseph Moore, night watchman, tried for a time to fight it with a single hose of the factory department. When the brigade arrived a fierce fire was raging, and, fanned by a stiff east wind, it made a clean sweep through the extensive works.

The home of John Johnson, Glebe Street, caught fire, and a strong wind had to be made here to prevent further spreading. All houses in the block were emptied of their furniture and much water had to be used on them. Valuable assistance was given the firemen by the shop-brigade of the Goldie and McCulloch Company, whose big plant is across the street from the Shurley, Dietrich shops. This place would undoubtedly have been destroyed had the wind been from the other direction.

Water pressure was all that could be desired, the new electric pumps and one stream pump giving an average pressure of 180 pounds. The insurance was $65,000.

After a meeting of the directors President J. C. Dietrich announced that the big grist of orders on the company's books would be handed over to the R. H. Smith Company, Ltd., St. Catharines, of which he is also the president, and that that firm would put on a night and day shift in order to produce the increased output necessary. As a result, a large number of their local employees will be given jobs at St. Catharines. This applies only to the saw department. Until a definite decision as to the future is arrived at, after a settlement has been effected with the insurance companies, the manufacture of iron beds, to which a large section of the Shurley-Dietrich plant was devoted, will be at a standstill. The amount of insurance carried in several companies is only $85,600, which means the firm has sustained a monetary loss of $195,000.

DRURY LANE ORANGE WOMEN.

One after another the old customs of London are disappearing. Only a few years ago the cows were banished from the end of the Mall, and the women whose families ever since the Restoration had sold cakes and milk in the booths under the trees were moved into a little shop at the Park gates. Then came the warning to the flower girls, who for generations have collected at Regent Circus ever since it was built to move their baskets, and finally, a week or two ago a bombshell exploded in Drury Lane in the shape of a police order directing the orange women to cease plying their trade round the doors of the theatre, from which the sentries from the guards, in their red coats and bearskins, have also comparatively recently disappeared.

The orange sellers of Drury Lane are contemporaneous with the life of the theatre. It was in 1663 that the first Theatre Royal was opened by Sir William Davenant, poet laureate to Charles II., and the writer of a certain number of more or less brilliant and more or less questionable Restoration plays. His license was shared with Killigrew, perhaps the most disreputable of the King's satellites, and anybody who has read the confidences of Mr. Secretary Pepys has an idea what Drury Lane was like in those days. Here, in due course, there appeared the secretary of the navy's "Mrs. Nell," as Eleanor Gwynne is known in the famous diary. Her chief notoriety in those days came less from her acting, which was indifferent, and more from her hat, which was immense. It was of the circumference of a cartwheel, and as "Mrs. Nell" was emphatically short, the humor of the King was delicately appealed to.

Nell Gwynne was the most famous of the Drury Lane orange girls who sold fruit and other refreshments to the ladies and gentlemen who came to roar at the unrestrained license of Sedley, of Etherege or of Wycherley. She came of that early band of orange girls who flocked to the theatre pit at the Restoration, and she was the only one of them who ever achieved fame. Still, for century after century, they have carried their baskets to the pit, and it was here, when Charles II. was King, that Frances Jennings came crying oranges, in disguise, in the days before she married Tyrconnel. The orange sellers of the Theatre Royal who have come and gone all the intervening centuries may not have had the charm of Nell Gwynne, but, in the words of Kingsley Wood, who introduced their deputation to the Home Secretary, they have been "at least as honest, if not more so." So perhaps that recommendation, added to their ancient lineage, has been instrumental in securing the undertaking of Mr. McKenna that they shall not be interfered with, but shall be permitted to carry on their occupation somewhat in the manner in which it was carried on when "Old Rowley" was King.

A QUESTION OF NOTES.

The legal column of Saturday's Mail & Empire contained the following question and answer:

A. F. P., Corbetton.—(1) The promoters of a company sold shares in 1907, and took notes of stock subscribers in payment. They afterwards sold the notes to the present holder, who lives in an adjoining county. If the holder sues upon the notes in the county where he lives, can the action be removed to the county where the notes were made? (2) If the makers of the notes can show that they received no value, can they be compelled to pay?

Ans.—(1) If the present holder took the notes before maturity, he can sue upon them whether any consideration was given for them or not. You do not say that the notes were given "without any consideration." Of course, if the makers of the notes did not receive any consideration, they have a good defence against the person who took them before maturity without notice. If you wish to have the cause of action removed to the county where the defendants reside, you will have to show some good reason for asking the court or Judge to grant your request. In other words, you will have to make out a prima facie defence. (2) There is no defence to the notes if they were taken by the present holder before maturity, and have not been paid.

NOTES FOR BEE-KEEPERS.

Many a beekeeper has ordered some hive part from a dealer in supplies, and received something that he did not want. A thorough knowledge of bee hive parts as well as their names is valuable.

The hive stand is the platform or foundation upon which the hive rests; this may be a brick at each corner, or several boards, or a specially made platform.

The bottom board is the floor of the hive.

The hive body is the case that holds the combs of the hive proper.

The brood frames are the wooden frames in which the brood combs are built.

The follower board or division board is used beside the brood frames in the hive body to wedge over the brood frames and keep them snugly together.

The super is the case holding the one pound sections or honey boxes. The section holders are little frames upon which the sections rest in the super.

The separators are thin slats placed between each row of sections in the super to prevent the bees from making one comb fat and another lean.

The starter is the piece of wax comb foundation and tin sections and frames to guide the bees in building the combs straight in them.

The honey board is used over the frames in winter, and also over the sections in summer, being always beneath the cover. All hives are not supplied with honey boards.

The bee escape board is the honey board equipped with a little tin container or trap so that when placed beneath a super of finished honey the bees can pass through it but not return. Honey may thus be removed without using a bee smoker.

Brood foundation is beeswax rolled into sheets for use in the brood frames. It should not be used in the section honey boxes.

Surplus foundation is beeswax rolled into thin sheets for use in the sections only.—Wesley Foster.

LOYALTY THAT FAILED NOT.

Tom Wallace, of Woodbridge, the heaviest man in the Commons, says that in the recent bye-election in South Bruce one old-timer from a little hamlet walked up to the polling booth and demanded a ballot, loudly declaring his intention of voting for John A. Macdonald.

"But," said the returning officer, "you can't vote for Sir John A. Macdonald—he's dead long ago."

"Well," retorted the native, "I want to say that he's a better man dead than either Truax or Cargill alive."

So he went in and spoiled his ballot.

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines written in memory of Harold Lindsay, who departed this life on January 17th, 1914.

Another form is laid to rest,
Another soul returned to God,
The face we loved so well in life
Is lying now beneath the sod.

'Twas hard to leave behind
His parents and loved ones dear;
But when it was His Master's call,
He could not linger here.

His farewell words were spoken,
And from his chamber low,
Harold passed forth with the light
Of heaven upon his brow.

But now he knows no pain or care,
His sufferings all are o'er;
And his soul is anchored safe
On the happy, goldea shore.

Now, he has gone and left us
And his loss we deeply feel;
But the God who hath bereft us
Can all our sorrow heal.

Yet in Heaven we hope to meet him,
Whence his life from earth hath fled,
And we hope again to greet him,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Oh, the years of life are uncertain,
We cannot be sure of a day;
It seems as if those we love most,
Are the ones who are taken away.

R. G. Bremner Dead

Member of Congress Succumbs After a Long Illness.

Was Born in Mono and Received High School Education in Orangeville.

Robert Gunn Bremner, member of Congress from the Seventh New Jersey District and Editor of the Passaic, N.J., Daily Herald, died last Thursday of cancer in Dr. Howard Kelly's sanitarium in Baltimore. Mr. Bremner had been suffering from cancer for four years and had been undergoing radium treatment in the Baltimore sanitarium since last December.

The cancer, which was in his left breast and shoulder, had stubbornly resisted all efforts at eradication. As a final resort Mr. Bremner was taken to Dr. Kelly's sanitarium, where $100,000 worth of radium was temporarily embedded in his shoulder in the hope that it would destroy the malignant growth. The radium was embedded in the growth and left there long enough for its radio-active properties to penetrate every part of the cancer. Dr. Kelly placed the radium in tubes, coated with a covering of rubber and these tubes, measuring each about 2½ inches in length and about one-third of an inch in diameter, were planted in as many incisions. The tubes were first inserted on the morning of Christmas Day and the operation was repeated at regular intervals. For some time the patient appeared to be making excellent progress, but on Friday preceding his death a relapse occurred and he began to sink rapidly.

The late Mr. Bremner was born in Scotland 39 years ago. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bremner, came to Canada while he was quite young and settled on lot 20, Prince of Wales Road, Mono, a short distance north of Camilla. The future Congressman spent his boyhood on the farm, attended public school in the neighborhood and subsequently took a High School course in Orangeville. Upon the completion of his High School education he decided to teach school and secured a school at Granger, where he wielded the birch for several years. While thus engaged Mr. Bremner was a frequent contributor to the columns of local newspapers, chiefly The Banner. Sixteen years ago he gave up reaching and went to Passaic, N. J., where he found congenial work in newspaper reporting. Some years later he obtained control of the Passaic Daily Herald, which under his management became one of the influential Democratic journals of the State. An able writer and a ready and eloquent speaker, it was only natural that Mr. Bremner should soon drift into politics. In 1912 he was persuaded to stand for Congress for the Seventh District. The district had been gerry mandered by the Republicans and was supposedly safe, but Mr. Bremner's personal popularity and the energetic campaign waged by his friends enabled him to carry the seat with 5000 majority. Owing to ill-health the successful candidate did not make a speech during the election. On the night before the voting President Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, visited Passaic and made a speech in his behalf.

Mr. Bremner was a close friend of President Wilson. It was largely his influence which held the New Jersey delegation solid for Wilson at the big Democratic Convention and he was one of the men who in the end swung the Convention over to Wilson. The President was not slow to show his gratitude and his high opinion of Bremner's ability, for it is an open secret that he offered him a Cabinet position, which the New Jersey Congressman declined on account of the precarious condition of his health. During his last illness President Wilson kept constantly advised respecting Mr. Bremner's condition and frequently sent him messages of sympathy and encouragement accompanied by flowers.

When the news of Congressman Bremner's death reached Passaic, Mayor Seager ordered the flags on all the city buildings placed at half mast as a token of respect. Flags were also placed at half-mast on many other buildings.

The late Mr. Bremner was the oldest of a family of nine sons and two daughters. His older sister, Helen, and other members of the family were with him when the end came. His mother was also at his bedside during his last illness. He was married and is survived by a widow, but no children. The news of Mr. Bremner's death caused general sorrow here and in the neighborhood of his old home in Mono. By his friends here he was held in the warmest esteem and his successful career was followed by them with interest and pride. During his student days he was always popular because of his geniality, his ready wit and his unvarying good nature. Principal Steele speaks of him as a clever student, who even at that time gave promise of the brilliant career that lay ahead of him.

In St. Andrew's Church on Sunday night Rev. W. M. Morris made a feeling reference to Mr. Bremner's death and pointed to his career and the honorable success he had obtained as something which all young men might emulate.

Mrs. N. Dunning

Mrs. Elizabeth Dunning, widow of the late Noah Dunning, an old resident of Mono Township, passed away at her residence, lot 5, Centre Road, on Monday at the ripe age of 94 years. The funeral was held to the Forest Lawn cemetery yesterday afternoon. An extended notice is unavoidably held over until next week.

James Pierson

The death of James Pierson, a well known Mono farmer, occurred on Saturday last after a comparatively short illness. Deceased was 66 years of age. The funeral was held from his late residence, lot 12, con. 3, east to Mitchell's Church cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. A fuller notice will appear in next issue.

Lilly Victoria Speers

The sympathy of their neighbors and friends goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Speers, lot 21, con. 4, east, Caledon, in the great sorrow that has befallen them through the death of their daughter, Lilly Victoria, a bright girl of 12 years. The sad occurrence took place on Saturday and followed an illness of three weeks resultant upon an attack of rheumatic fever which settled around the heart. Every possible means was employed to save the life of the stricken girl, but unfortunately without avail. The patient suffered greatly, but was very patient and cheerful through it all. The funeral was held to the Forest Lawn Cemetery on Monday afternoon, Rev. G. W. Tebbs conducting the services at house and grave.

Jas. S. Norris

The death occured at Guelph on Monday of Mr. James S. Norris, a cousin of Mr. John Norris, of the firm of Hughes & Norris. The deceased was a son of the late James Norris, a well-known mill and vessel owner in St. Catharines many years ago. Deceased resided in Montreal for a number of years and was a well-known member of the Montreal Board of Trade. He retired from business a few years ago and took up his residence in St. Catharines where he had spent his boyhood. Two sons, James and Arthur, and a daughter, Annie, reside in Chicago. The remains were interred in St. Catharines yesterday.

WHAT MACKENZIE WOULD DO.

Though the number of people who are discussing the purchase by the city of Toronto of its street railway system has been considerably reduced since election day, there are still many persons who resort to it as a topic of conversation when the idiosyncrasies of the weather have been exhausted. The other evening an anti-purchase man met a pro-purchase man on the rear platform of a street car and entered upon the familiar topic.

"Don't you know what Mackenzie would do if he got the city to buy his railway and his other stuff" be asked, aggressively, waving the "Evening Telegram."

"No," said his acquaintance.

"You don't; well I do."

"Well, spit it out," said the pro-purchase man.

"Why, he'd bring his Radicals in here underground, that's what he'd do," said the oracle emphatically.

HAULTAIN'S BLOCKADE.

Present Chief Justice Prayed Both Morning or Wellington.

The name of Judge Haultain, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan, is familiar throughout Canada, he having so long been Premier of the old Northwest Territories, before the creation of the new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The Chief Justice is an Englishman, having been born at Woolwich. His father was a lieutenant-colonel in the Royal Artillery. The Chief Justice has lived most of his life in Canada and was educated at the Montreal High School and Toronto University. Throughout the far west Judge Haultain is famed for his flashing wit, no less than for his ability as a lawyer and politician. In the Saskatchewan Legislature, some years ago, when Mr. Haultain was leader of the Conservative party in Opposition, the Opposition asked the Government for a promise that the following election would be held on new voters' lists. The Government declaration was that it could not see its way clear to make that promise. So the Opposition held up supply, starting in on a Thursday morning, and keeping the House in continuous session sixty hours, until midnight Saturday, when they quit perforce. Mr. Haultain practically did not leave the building. On Saturday morning, at six o'clock, after having slept not at all from Thursday morning, he took the floor and held it until the "day shift" of the fourteen Opposition members arrived at nine. During the next week—an armistice having been arranged meanwhile—the Government gave the promise desired. The leaders on both sides of the House made little speeches returning to the obstruction tactics. Mr. Haultain was describing his desperate effort to find something to talk about during the three hours on that cold Saturday dawn, while he was waiting—"For night or Blucher" came a voice from the Government side. "No. For morning or Wellington," came the flash in retort. The House roared. Wellington was the name of the then member for Moose Jaw City, who was to relieve his leader.

Wild Creatures Knew.

On that still Saturday when the storm king was gathering fury for a mad, murderous Sabbath on the Great Lakes, a mysterious influence stirred the wild things of the northern woods. The spirit of the wilderness whispering through he forest was warning them of the wrath to come. Burly bruin, ready to doze up from winter blasts, forsook his lair; big bull moose set their mighty antlers back and crashed through the underbrush; graceful deer, heedless of hounds and hunters, deliberately betook themselves in certain directions; while their relentless enemy, the timber wolf, howled dismally, and, heedless of the easy prey, struck off in the same direction as his fellows of the forest.

With one accord all these wild creatures were leaving the tall timber to seek the refuge in the swamps. Twenty-four hours later, when the demon of the wind shrieked through the woods, uprooting huge trees and filling the air with death in the shape of falling limbs, all the animals were safe in the thickets of the marshy hollows, where small cedar, tamarack and spruce, close packed, sheltered little from the fury of the gale.

Such is the story told by a Toronto lumberman just returned from one of his camps in the Sudbury region. This strange migration of the animals, whose mysterious instinct foretold the danger, had been noted by his swampers and loggers back in the bush.

We Use 'Em All.

The export of butter and eggs from Canada to Great Britain has entirely stopped, and the export of live cattle from Canada to Britain is decreasing. Apart from the Irish supplies, the total cattle received in Britain in 1912 was only 49,000. In 1905 over half a million were landed. The figures relating to sheep are even more remarkable, falling from 1,000,000 in 1895 to 156,000 in 1912. The supply is by no means equal to the demand.

The decadence of the trade in animals on the hoof, however, has been partly balanced by the increased imports of dead meat. Over eight million hundredweight of fresh beef were imported in 1912, having doubled in ten years. Over five million hundredweight of fresh mutton was imported, an increase of one million in a decade.

Taking all kinds of meat together, the aggregate overseas receipts last year were about 21,000,000 hundredweight, valued at about $232,000,000.

Mr. Thompson, who was born in East Garry and afterwards farmed on the 2nd line in Caledon, went West some eleven years ago. He located in Edmonton, but moved to Vegreville a couple of years afterwards. He ran a large farm implement business in Vegreville until two years ago, when he sold out and returned to Edmonton. Mr. Thompson has done well in the West and says that from a money-making standpoint it has Ontario beaten twenty ways. He predicts a great future for Edmonton and the surrounding country. The latter is splendidly suited for ...ixed farming and is therefore capable of sustaining a denser population than the purely grain growing country farther south and east.

STOMACH HEALTH— OR NO COST TO YOU

Few people like to take physic, especially salts, because they are so disagreeable to take and because of the griping and pains they cause. Rexall Orderlies enable you to take less physic, and all without griping, purging or excessive looseness. Salts and harsh physics usually only give temporary relief and often leave the bowels worse off than before.

Rexall Orderlies move the bowels promptly, and soothe, tone and strengthen the intestinal muscles, leaving them healthy and regular in action. They taste like candy, and the movement they cause is as easy and natural as though your bowels were in perfect health and you never had to take any physic at all. We have so much faith in Rexall Orderlies that we urge you to try them with the understanding that, if they do not satisfy you in every way, all you have to do to get your money back is to tell us. We honestly believe them to be the best bowel remedy made. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores, and in this town only of us. T. F. & T. J. Brown, Druggists, Orangeville.

Bracken-Rowley

On Wednesday, Jan. 28th, an unusually pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. John Rowley, of Albion, when his eldest daughter, Jennie, became the bride of Mr. William H. Bracken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bracken, of Mono. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father and was gowned in white silk trimmed with shadow lace. Her travelling dress was of alice blue broadcloth with hat to match. She wore a set of mink furs. Rev. Mr. Westney, M.A., B.D., performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives from Toronto, Sutton West and other points. Miss Vera McMinn, organist of St. Alban's, Palgrave, in which the bride was formerly a member of the choir and organist, presided at the organ. The bride received numerous useful wedding presents. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the bride and groom led the way to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding repast was in readiness. After justice had been done to the many good things provided for the occasion Rev. Mr. Westney proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Bracken left on the evening train for Owen Sound and other points north. After a short honeymoon tour, the happy couple will settle down to the realities of life on the groom's farm in Mono. The Banner joins the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bracken in offering its hearty good wishes.

Hospital Notes

Among the many captivating stories for children, none is so popular as the beautiful fairy tale of "Alice in Wonderland," by Lewis Carrol; so popular has this become that it is now installed as a reader in most of the public schools throughout the land. Almost every mother and every child is now familiar with the strange and beautiful dreams of "Alice in Wonderland," but it is not until quite recently that this charming story has been set to music and dramatized. The operatta scena destined to become as famous as the story under the skillful direction of the dramatizer, Miss D. Hope Leonard, and the able management of Col. John F. Bragg, of New York City, who have been engaged in presenting the grand spectacular production in the principal cities and theatres during the past three seasons. The production is magnificently staged and requires from one hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty people to assist the principals in presenting the various scenes portrayed by the author. The Hatter, Cat, Gryphon, Mock Turtle, Rabbit, and other numerous animals are introduced as well as the King, Queen, Duchess, etc. etc., accompanied by fairies, attendants, policemen, elves, injuns, judges, etc. etc.

"Alice in Wonderland" will be given in Orangeville Opera House on Thursday and Friday evenings, Feb. 19th and 20th, under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire. Seats reserved at 35c and 50c. Watch for posters. Reserve Plan will open at The Banner Office at one o'clock on Saturday, Feb. 14th.

The regular monthly of the Lord Dufferin Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, will be held at the home of Miss Gertrude Irvine, on Friday, Feb. 13th, at 3.30 o'clock. Special meeting of executive at 3 o'clock.

IN GOOD SHAPE.

Caledon Agricultural Society Has Balance of $414.56 in Treasury.

The annual meeting of the Caledon Agricultural Society was held in the Town Hall in Charleston on Friday afternoon last, Feb. 6th. The President, Mr. W. J. Limebeer, occupied the chair. The auditors report showed that the finances of the Society are in a healthy condition. The receipts from grants, subscriptions, admission fees and other sources amounted to $1355.55. A balance of $243.81 was carried forward from 1912, making the total receipts $1599.36. The expenditure was $1184.80, which leaves the handsome balance of $414.56 in the treasury. Officers were elected as follows:—

President—Thos. Smith
1st Vice-President—P. Garrity
2nd Vice-President—Chas. Atkinson
Directors—W. J. Wilson, Geo. Patterson, Hector McLeish, R. J. Potter, Geo. Fines, Robt. Armstrong, Wm. Hillock, L. Currie and David Smith.
Lady Directors—Mrs. E. J. Ellis, Mrs. J. A. McBride and Mrs. Albert Smith.
Auditors—W. J. Limebeer and W. J. Warnock.

EMERALD ISLE CONCERT

Large Audience Was Well Entertained in Opera House on Friday Night.

The Grand Emerald Isle Concert, held under the auspices of St. Mark's Church, in the Opera House, on Friday night last, was a complete success, and was as "Irish as the pigs in Dublin." The "wearin' o' the green" was prominently displayed, the lady artistes wearing green silk sashes, and the lantern screen being bordered with large imitation shamrocks and tri-color bunting. The programme opened with a ripping two-step "Albania," which tuned up the audience to concert pitch. "Kathleen Mavourneen," one of the good old songs, the kind which never die, was sung by a quintette, composed of Mrs. Endacott, the Misses Shaw, Darragh and Cruikshank. The blending of the voices, and the rendition of this fine old tune, was of a very high order. Miss Clara Hulse received a hearty hand clap upon her appearance on the stage, showing the appreciation with which her violin interpretations are welcomed. Miss Hulse played the piece de resistance of the evening, "Sprigs of Shamrock," a medley of Irish airs, which was rendered with precision and enchanting color of tone; the rendition of the piece "Endearing Young Charms" was perfectly bewitching. As an encore Miss Hulse repeated a part of the medley, again receiving great applause. A beautiful soprano solo "Killarney" was sung by Miss Nettie Darragh, whose voice was remarkably full, with an evenness in range and a distinctness, which was particularly pleasing in the high notes. The violin obligato was rendered by Miss Hulse. If there is any music in a cornet Mr. L. Luxton is the man to blow it out. On this special occasion Mr. Luxton thought the audience was imbibing to much Irish so he mixed in a little Scotch by playing a cornet selection, "Will ye no come back again?" with variations. Mr. Luxton's manipulation of the cornet, making the notes clear and resounding, was much appreciated. The Misses Shaw came in for a good round of applause by their splendid rendition of a duet, "Come Back to Erin." Miss Myrtle taking the soprano and Miss Ruth the alto, their perfect rhythm delighting the audience.

The interesting illustrated lecture "Irish Wit and Humor," given by Rev. Mr. Tebbs, with the aid of a fine lantern, operated by Dr. T. H. Henry, was divided into two sections, making an acceptable break in the programme. The first part was a travel in Dublin and round to the south of Ireland, and the second part a travel up the west coast to the north. Mr. Tebbs was well armed with jokes and short stories, and could crack an Irish joke for every picture thrown on the screen. Mr. Tebbs' versatility is already well known around Orangeville, and his numerous Irish witticisms brought tears of laughter into the eyes of his hearers, even some of the "chestnuts" being again keenly appreciated. The scenes projected on the screen were both interesting and instructive, giving the audience an insight into the life and habits of the people of the Emerald Isle, also showing the beautiful scenery and some of the historic and commercial buildings for which Ireland is noted. A great number of the views were taken by Mr. Tebbs while on tour in different parts of Ireland.

The brilliant playing of the orchestral numbers by St. Mark's Orchestra was greeted with much enthusiasm by the lovers of good music. The pianiste for the evening was Miss Myrtle Shaw. After the playing of the National Anthem, the orchestra rendered "Indepentia," a thrilling march, as the grand finale. The proceeds of the concert amounted to about $92.

The Dufferin Theatre

Commencing on Tuesday next, February 17th., the celebrated McQuinn family of entertainers will appear in The Dufferin Theatre every night next week. These entertainers put on a bright, attractive programme and there will be a complete change every night. W. J. McQuinn is well worth hearing in his Irish songs and farmer specialties, Kathleen and Jeanette McQuinn excel in songs and dances and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McQuinn are irresistibly funny in their farce comedy sketches. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

Mr. E. Hamilton, municipal clerk of Amaranth township, will hold a clearing auction sale of farm stock, implements etc. on lot 15, 5th line, Amaranth, on Wednesday, Feb. 18th, 1914. See advt. or bills for list and all particulars. Geo. McAlister, Auctioneer.

BLOUNT.

The Blount Women's Institute held a very successful meeting on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 4th, at the home of Mrs. W. J. Dodds. The members of the Mono Mills branch were invited to attend the meeting and quite a number were present. Their presence helped to make the meeting more interesting and successful. The main feature of the meeting was a hemming contest by the girls, for which prizes were awarded. The first was taken by Annie Holmes, second by Melissa McEwen and third by Laura Henry. The remainder of the programme consisted of a very interesting reading by Miss Viola Crombie, a piano solo by Miss Myrtle Dodds and a question drawer in which some very interesting questions were discussed. A dainty lunch was then served, after which the meeting closed with the National Anthem. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. Moffatt.

Will Prosecute Offenders

Certain parties have been cutting and removing timber from The Superior Cement Company's marl property near Caledon Lake. The attention of the Union Trust Co., the liquidator, has been called to the matter and the Company has instructed the local authorities to investigate and prosecute any parties guilty of this practice. The offence is a straight case of theft and and will doubtless be dealt with as such if the offenders are brought into the courts.

An Enjoyable Night

A very enjoyable night was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen, 5th line, Mono, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 4th, when Mr. and Mrs. Allen entertained a number of their neighbors and friends and also a number of friends from the West. A delightful time was spent tripping the light fantastic toe until the wee sma' hours of the morn. Excellent music was provided by the Hunter Bros., of Orangeville, D. Gray, Alvin Lemon, O. Speers and Messrs. Welwood and Harrison. Mr. John Cannawin and the Langtree Bros. made capable floor managers. A dainty supper was served about midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Allen entertained their guests with openhearted hospitality and when the merry gathering dispersed every person carried home the happiest recollections of the night.

Fast Chopping

Mr. Oliver Sproul, Centre Road, Mono, chopped 70 bags of rye and oats weighing 7300 lbs. for W. N. Baker, a young Mono farmer, one day last week. Mr. Sproul started to chop at 2 o'clock and had finished 5 minutes before 6 in the evening. This is pretty fast work. The chopping was done with a 10 h.p. gasoline engine and a Toronto grinder.

Bought Out Repair Business

Mr. Jos. Holmes, who has been in the employ of J. E. Smith & Co., local agents for the Massey-Harris Co., has decided to embark in business on his own account. He has bought out F. H. Doherty's bicycle and general repair business and is taking possession as soon as stock-taking is completed. Mr. Holmes is a first-class mechanic and a trustworthy business man, who merits success in his new undertaking. Mr. Doherty, we understand, intends to work the farm in the south ward, which he purchased from Mr. A. E. Annis some months ago.

Hockey at Grand Valley

An Orangeville hockey seven drove to Grand Valley last Friday night and gave the local team a hard game. The half time score was 6 to 2 for Grand Valley and the outlook was rather blue for the Orangeville sports. In the second period, however, the visitors had much the better of the play and managed to tie the score, which stood 10 to 10 at the finish. The ice was fast and the two teams put up an excellent exhibition of Canada's great winter game. Gordon Cooper gave first rate satisfaction as umpire. The local line up was:—Goal, E. Stevenson; point, R. Scott; coverpoint, H. Keith; centre, W. Ewing; left wing, A. McLachlan; right wing, H. Wilcox. Grand Valley was represented by:— Goal, McIeDonald; point, Britton; coverpoint, Cotton; centre, Brawley; right wing, Keith; left wing, Small.

New Cottons at 10c, 12½c, 15c, 17c and 20c a yard at Ritchie's. They are good.

Misses Irene Henry, Ruby Allen, Gladys Hogg, Ina Allen, Vera Hogg, Bertha Allen and May Allen drove to Grand Valley last Wednesday night and enjoyed a pleasant evening skating. Mrs. H. A. Dorrance chaperoned the party.

A Successful Sale

Mr. Robert Orr, of the Mono-Adjala townline, held a splendid auction sale on Wednesday of last week. There was a large crowd present and the bidding was spirited. A brood mare brought $257, cows ranged from $90 to $98 each and five yearlings were bid up to $44 apiece. The proceeds ran over $2000. Auctioneer Jas. A. Patterson conducted the sale in his usual satisfactory manner.

McLAUGHLIN MOTOR CARS

The enthusiasm with which McLaughlin Buick cars have been received in the past, the growing demand for that luxury of motion, flexibility and power that can be produced on a "Six" cylinder car, is the reason for the New McLaughlin Buick (B. 55).

The fact that Six Cylinder automobiles are now made even lighter than Fours, and handled with the ease of small cars, has developed a constantly increasing number of enthusiastic adherents of the Six.

In this Silent Big Six we have produced a car which justifies the belief that we have outclassed everything in Six Cylinder construction.

Flexibility unequalled. As vibrationless at sixty miles as at four, due to the perfect balance of every part.

The ultra-exclusiveness of this McLaughlin-Buick Six places it alone for beauty of design and finish.

Altogether it isn't too much to say that the introduction of this car opens up a new era for the Motorists of Canada.

FACTS TO BE ESTABLISHED

We do not intend to convey anything to the mind of the buyer that we do not back up with the car that we "sing" about. There are four essential facts that a purchaser of a "Six" should establish before reaching a decision, namely :—

(1) He should determine the stability and the permanency of the manufacturers.
(2) He should prove by actual demonstration, how slow the car in question will run in "high gear," and whether the power developed is sufficient to carry a full load.
(3) If the results are satisfactory with reference to how slow the car will run in high speed, he need not make the test as to how fast it will run, because the slowness with which it will operate with a full load in high speed will demonstrate its power, and if you have sufficient power at slow speed, you can rest assured you have it at high speed, because power and speed in a properly designed gasoline touring car go hand-in-hand. You can't have one without the other.
(4) He should satisfy himself as to gasoline consumption ; especially on a Six Cylinder pleasure car.
(5) The efficiency and dependability of the electric starter and whether he can depend on it to start the motor under all conditions at all times.

Should Insist Upon a Substantial Guarantee

When a prospective buyer has satisfied himself on the foregoing, he need have no hesitancy in making his purchase. He should, however, insist on a substantial guarantee and not promises, which are frequently and oft' times unreliable.

The manufacturer of the McLaughlin-Buick Six Cylinder Car guarantees that the "Six" will travel a given distance in high gear with a full load at a speed of not less than fifty-five miles per hour, without vibration, and carry its load at all speeds and under all conditions, with perfect comfort to the passengers.

We further guarantee it will do all this on less gasoline than any other Six Cylinder manufactured.

We absolutely guarantee that the McLaughlin Buick Six Cylinder Car with five passengers will tour over ordinary country roads on one gallon of gasoline to every seventeen miles travelled, and frequent road tests have assured us that it is possible to get as high as twenty miles per gallon.

You don't have to believe these statements, as seeing is believing. What we want you to do is to give us the opportunity to prove to you that every statement we make in reference to our 1914 cars is absolutely correct.

Write us for 1914 catalogue, showing cuts and specifications.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Pat Burns, the Western Canada "cattle king" and manufacturer, was in Vancouver recently and gave a common sense talk to a local newspaper man with respect to the high cost of living. He made the following interesting statements :

"The price of meat is going to come down. It has to. It can't go any higher." That seemed reasonable, but P. Burns continued :

"The way to reduce the cost of living is to go on the land and grow things. Tell every man you know to go out and take a little bit of a ranch and grow some cabbages and raise a few chickens and keep a few cows and make some butter. I'll buy his produce from him. I shouldn't have to go to New Zealand and Australia and Japan for produce when I'm operating my business in this fine big, rich Western country.

"You tell the people for me that if they want to make things cheaper that they should sell their automobiles and quit swapping real estate and living off each other. You can't reduce the cost of living by eternally increasing the cost of real estate by selling it and reselling it each time at an advanced price.

"But people are realizing that already. I find that in the east," (by which Mr. Burns meant the middle west) "this real estate business is letting up and people are going on the land and buying a few cattle. It is going to take a little while before things will improve sufficiently for prices to be affected, and the reduction will be gradual, but the process of getting back to a sensible basis is going on in the west already and it will continue.

"But I have just one thing to say. Tell everybody to go out and buy a bit of land and grow something. Make this country rich in production and the cost of living will come down."

Alliance Convention

The annual Convention of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance will be held in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 25, 26 and 27. Vital issues will be discussed and plans formed for the prosecution of the warfare against the liquor evil. Churches and temperance societies are urged to appoint delegates and in this way assist to make the 1914 Convention a record gathering.

CRIPPLING PAINS OF RHEUMATISM.

Cannot be Cured by Liniments —Must be Reached Through the Blood.

Thousands of men and women suffer severely from rheumatism. Cruel, crippling pains in the muscles and joints make every movement a torture. Many people think rheumatism is due to cold or wet weather and they try to cure themselves by rubbing liniments on the painful parts. This is a great mistake—the rheumatism poison is in the blood, and liniments and rubbing cannot give more than temporary relief. If you are a victim of rheumatism or lumbago you can only rid yourself of it by making your blood rich and pure, for only in this way can the poisons of rheumatism be driven from the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured more cases of rheumatism than any other disease except anaemia, just because they make the rich, red blood that goes right to the root and cause of rheumatism. You cannot be well when your blood is impure, therefore, begin curing your rheumatism to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The following are the particulars of one of the many thousands of cures to the credit of this health-giving medicine.

Mr. Jeremie Nadou, St. Jerome, Que., says : "A few years ago I was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism. The pains in my back, arms, and legs were terrible. I treated with several doctors but they did not help me, and as time went on I was unable to work, and began to think that I would be a cripple for life. While in this trying condition a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try this remedy, and I got a supply of the Pills. I had taken the Pills for several weeks before any improvement was noticed, but once signs of relief came the improvement from that time on was rapid, and I joyfully continued taking the Pills until every vestige of the trouble disappeared. No one but a similar sufferer can imagine the gratitude I feel for this relief from pain, and because I have since enjoyed perfect health I urge other rheumatic sufferers to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

VOCAL RETRENCHMENT.

A. B. Morphy, the Listowel lawyer, who represents North Perth in Parliament, tells a story of a visit he paid recently to a Scotch settlement, where he was invited to a service in the Presbyterian kirk. It was an old fashioned church and an old fashioned congregation, which did not put much faith in new fangled inventions, such as organs, but pinned their affections to the precentor. On the occasion in question the precentor, who was an elderly, dour old Scotchman, tried to pitch the tune to the hymn. "Ten thousand times ten thousand" but all his efforts were too high. After repeated attempts to get the proper pitch the precentor stopped, and the village wit remarked to him in a perfectly audible whisper :

"Sandy, why not start at five thousand?"

PUZZLES THE TRAVELER.

The Native Names of Various Foreign Cities and Countries.

A person who is starting on a trip around the world must be thoroughly acquainted with the names of the different places in which he is to stop or he will find himself much perplexed on arriving at the same. One would think that London is called London the world over, but such is not the case. Once you arrive in France and London become Londres. To most persons in Canada, the capital of Turkey is called Constantinople, but the inhabitants of the Ottoman empire call their chief city Stamboul, and it appears as such on all Turkish maps.

Rome and Florence in Italy may sound all right to the average Canadian, but once you visit the two cities you discover that they are called Roma and Firenze, respectively. Not one in six of the ordinary inhabitants of Greece call their country by such name. The proper name is Helles.

Most travelers making their first visit to the Holy Lands are startled by the announcement that Jerusalem is called El Kuds, the Sea of Galilee, Bahr Tubaripeh; River Jordan, Sheriat el-Kebir; the Dead Sea, Bahr Lut, and Bethlehem, Beit Lahm.

Every person in the Dominion knows what country you are referring to when speaking of Switzerland, but the traveler visiting the little European republic discovers that the inhabitants of the same call it everything but Switzerland. The population of that country is mostly made up of French and Germans with about six per cent. of Italians and those nationalities call it respectively La Suisse, Schweitz and Svizzera.

Three peoples in one country calling that country by three different names may appear bad enough, but the English and other tourists stopping in the capital of Egypt call it Cairo, the French officials stationed there call it Le Caire, and the Arabs, who were there first and should know best, call it Masr el Kahira.

A Japanese has to leave his own country and go to the nearest English-speaking settlement to know he has ever been in Japan at all. Japan, to its own natives is Nipon or Niphon —whichever way you think gets nearest to their pronunciation.

Likewise there is no China and more strangely still, there is no word in Chinese to represent China as a whole. We of the outside always think of that vast republic as of one country and of one people, whilst in reality it is practically a number of countries with a wide divergence of language and race. The natives range from copper to almost white, and vary in religion from Buddhists to Jews, and in language from Siamese and French in the south to Russian in the north.

The best way to express the term China and the one most often used seems to be Chung Kwoh, China proper, but it is to be expected that the new Government will soon adopt a more comprehensive name for its country along with its other modern improvements.

Most Chinese towns with which we think we are familiar are quite something else if we happen to visit them —such as Kuang Chou, for Canton.

Corea calls itself Tsiotsien; the natives of Siam when speaking of their country refer to it as T'hai, and the Persian thinks he lives in Iran.

Strength of Eggshells.

Most people are aware of the power of eggshells to resist external pressure on the ends, but not many would credit the results of tests recently made, which appear to be genuine. Eight ordinary hens' eggs were submitted to pressure applied externally all over the surface of the shell, and the breaking pressures varied between 400 and 675 pounds per square inch. With the stresses applied internally to twelve eggs these gave way at pressures varying between thirty-two and sixty-five pounds per square inch. The pressure required to crush the eggs varied between forty and seventy-five pounds. The average thickness of the shells was thirteen-thousandths of an inch.

Famine Origin of Game.

Herodotus learned from the Lydians that the Greek ball game originated in a prolonged famine in Lydia. For some time they endured it, but at last they invented dice, knucklebones, the ball and all other games except draughts. One day they played these games so as to keep their minds off food; the next day they took food and did not play. This alternation eked out their provisions for eighteen years, at the end of which time, the situation still being desperate, half the population emigrated. One can only suppose that the ball games were not very athletic, otherwise the increased appetite given by them must have undone much of the saving.

An Expert In Handwriting.

Mother was fair, but she wishes to be fairer still. Adorned by nature, she sought further beautification. Loveliness was her great goal.

Invited out for dinner, she stood before the mirror and proceeded to apply the pencil to her eyebrows. This, it may be remarked, is an age of artificiality, and mother had reached this age.

The little daughter stood by and wondered. Finally she asked :

"Mother, what are you writing on your face for?"

TORONTO WOMAN WELL AGAIN

Freed From Bearing Down Pains, Backache and Pain in Side by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Toronto, Ont.—"Last October, I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's VegetableCompound and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels and am stronger in every way. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound highly to all expectant mothers."—Mrs. E. WANDBY, 92 Logan Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

FATALITY NEAR BRAMPTON.

Farmer Killed and Young Girl Probably Fatally Injured.

Number of School Children Had Very Narrow Escape.

Robert Wright, a farmer about 40 years of age, of Ashgrove, three and a half miles from Georgetown, was killed, and Mildred Bessey, aged 15, lies seriously injured at the Guelph General Hospital as a result of being struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train going east shortly before five o'clock this afternoon. The fatality occurred at a level crossing on the seventh line of the Township of Esquesing, two miles west of Georgetown. Pearl Bessey, aged 12, who was also an occupant of the buggy, escaped with a bruise on one knee. Her brother, Roy, aged 9, and David Marcellus, another lad of about the same age, who were sitting in the back of the buggy, jumped in time to save themselves and were uninjured.

Wright, who died as he was lifted from the train at Guelph station, had been in attendance at an auction sale on the seventh line of Esquesing, as had also John W. Bessey, the father of the injured girls, but Wright left for home first, fearing that the snow storm might block the road. He picked up the four young people on the way as they were going home from school. It was snowing hard, and Mr. Wright could see only a short distance ahead of him, but he evidently heard the train coming and kept telling the girls to watch out for it. Just before they came to the crossing the train came thundering down the track, and the horse became unmanageable and bolted directly in front of it. The buggy was thrown some distance. The train was brought to a standstill as quickly as possible and the injured were placed in the rear coach and taken to Georgetown, where physicians were summoned. The injured were placed on the westbound train for Guelph, but, as before stated, Wright died as he was being lifted from the train. It was later discovered that his back was broken. An examination proved that Mildred Bessey's right thigh was broken and also her left arm, and she had not regained consciousness at 10 o'clock that night. Her condition is serious. Her father came up on a later train and is at the bedside at the General Hospital.

BALD AT 35

Kill the Germs; Nourish the Hair Roots and You'll Never Grow Bald—Use Parisian Sage.

It's your own fault if you grow bald at 35 as thousands of men do —yes! and women also. If you have dandruff it is because the germs are already devouring the very life of the hair at its roots.

Kill these germs with Parisian Sage and stop dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair in two weeks.

It's guaranteed, you know, this delightful and refreshing Parisian Sage that is now sold all over Canada, and if it does not prove better than any other hair tonic you ever used, get your money back. It puts life and beauty into dull faded hair. Large bottle at F. S. Pickering's and druggists everywhere. Regular price 50 cents.

The last of the notorious $10,000 slander suit brought by the Burlington hotelmen against Mr. E. H. Cleaver, during the Local Option election in Burlington, is noteworthy. In the middle of December last, a writ was issued by the two hotelmen of Burlington against E. H. Cleaver, claiming $10,000 for slander. Mr. Cleaver promptly put in a defence and requested that the action should be heard and disposed of before the Local Option election, which the hotelmen could have done, but did not choose to do. Upon the Local Option contest being over the hotelmen discontinued the action. They have since been called upon to pay all costs including those of Mr. Cleaver, which they have now done.

KEPHALDOL

Allays Fever and Cures Cold and Grippe

The quick, sure action of Kephaldol in reducing body temperature to normal health standard, gives to this great natural remedy an altogether priceless value in the treatment of every kind of fever and feverish cold.

Though it is just being introduced into Canada, Kephaldol has been prescribed by physicians and used in the hospitals of Great Britain and the Continent for many years. It relieves the burning heat and fulness in the head which comes with a "grippy" cold—allays pain and aches, soothes the nerves, and brings that sweet rest which means speediest restoration.

For colds, influenza, catarrh and similar complaints Kephaldol is unequalled. A tablet or two taken at the first indication of trouble will unfailingly arrest development and restore health.

Get a 50c tube of Kephaldol tablets from your Druggist, and be ready to check a cold the day it attacks you. Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, FEB. 19th, 1914.

WILSON'S TRIBUTE.

President was a Great Admirer of late 'Bob' Bremner

Upon being informed of the death of Congressman Robt. G. Bremner, President Woodrow Wilson made the following statement relative to the sad event and his sense of deep personal loss :—

"I am deeply grieved by the loss of 'Bob' Bremner. He was a personal friend whom I greatly admired, and was such a man as attracts deep affection. Throughout his suffering, which was long continued, he seemed never to think of himself, as he certainly never spoke of himself, and he was throughout as keenly interested in the diligent performance of his duties and in kindly offices to others as if he had been free from pain. I feel that a beautiful spirit has gone out of the world."

The President also sent the following telegram to Mrs. Bremner :—

"Allow me to express my deep sympathy with you. I feel for myself I have lost a dear and admirable friend."

THE LATE ROBT. G. BREMNER

REEVE OF FERGUS.

An Interesting Pen Sketch of Mr. T. N. Wansbrough

The Fergus News Record gives the following interesting pen sketch of Mr. T. N. Wansbrough, reeve of Fergus. Mr. Wansbrough, we might state by way of introduction, is a nephew of Mr. Robt. Wansbrough of this town.

"The subject of this sketch was born on lot 27, on the townline between Erin and Caledon, just opposite Alton, Ont., later residing for a number of years on lot 28, con 10, Erin township.

He learned blacksmithing with Mr. A. Currie, at Hillsburg, who is now librarian at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto. He remained at Hillsburg for four years after serving his time, then went to Ospringe with Mr. James Ritchie and spent three years at Living Springs as foroman for Mr. Haight.

For three years he was in business in Alma. It was while here that he married Annie, the fourth daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Barnet, of Living Springs, one of the oldest families in that neighborhood. They have a family of three sons.

Mr. Wansbrough then purchased a property in Ospringe, where he carried on business for three years, later entering into partnership with Mr. Currie, his former employer, at Hillsburg. Finding the work too hard he decided to go into railroad- [illegible] seven years was C.P.R. [illegible] sherton before removing [illegible] here he has resided for [illegible] ven years.

Peculiar Case.

A peculiar case in the Waldemar neighborhood has just been brought to the attention of The Banner. It appears that one day last summer some party or parties broke into a house while the owner was absent and stole a watch, a wood bank containing a store of coppers and other articles. The matter was reported to a magistrate in the neighborhood with the request that he institute proceedings. This he declined to do on the ground that the case was a criminal one and the Crown Attorney was therefore the proper official to take the initiative. Mr. McKay, we are told, was then communicated with but referred the complainant back to the magistrate. Up to the present no action has been taken, although it is said that the evidence against the suspected party is direct and conclusive. It would be interesting to hear the explanation for the inactivity of the law officers.

Special Committee Thinks License Inspector and Chief Marshall Should Not Have Rushed Into Print.

Facts Do Not Warrant Statements and Assertions Published in The Sun.

The Special Committee, which the Town Council appointed to investigate and report on the charges which License Inspector Robinson and Chief Marshall made in a couple of letters in the Orangeville Sun, made its report to the Town Council on Monday night. The Committee expressed the opinion that both officials were ill-advised, when they decided to ventilate their differences in the newspapers and reported that the facts did not justify the published statements and assertions. The Committee was not unanimous in its finding. Reeve White and Councillor Matthews submitted a majority report, which had the endorsation of the Mayor. Councillor Henderson presented a minority finding, but failed to carry his motion to have it adopted by Council. The majority report, which was adopted without amendment, read as follows:

Your Special Committee appointed to report on the communications recently appearing in the Orangeville Sun respecting Local Option beg leave to report as follows :—

1. Your Committee regret that the letters or statements of Mr. T. J. Robinson, License Inspector for the County of Dufferin, and Chief Marshall, which appeared in the Orangeville Sun of Dec. 25th, 1913, and Jan. 8th, 1914, were written for publication.

2. Your Committee find that in both letters the facts do not justify the assertions or statements published.

3. Your Committee further deplores the fact of the statement going abroad as to the general lawlessness of the town, as the statements made do not bear out the facts and we further feel that the License Inspector has not been as active as he should from the evidence the Committee heard.

The following is the minority report :—

Your Committee appointed to investigate certain statements which appeared in a letter from the Chief of Police in the Orangeville Sun after complaint had been lodged by several citizens of the town, beg leave to report that after calling Chief Marshall and Inspector Robinson together and hearing statements made by them we find that there was not any evidence to substantiate the same and we deplore the fact that a letter has gone abroad that may cause the general public to believe that such a state of lawlessness exists in our town and we further feel that the Inspector has not been as active in enforcing the law as he might have been.

Council passed the following accounts :—Harry May, $26.85 ; E. H. Smith, $1 ; J. McIlroy, $2 ; Armstrong & Robinson, $23.60 ; W. O. Thomas, $2.72 ; Thos. Campbell, $3.-91. The Bell Telephone Co's. account of $1.60 was referred to the F. & W. Committee for report.

A levy of $1030 will be required for the Public Library this year. Dr. T. H. Henry, chairman of the Library Board, submitted the following estimate of the receipts and expenditure:

Expenditure.

Books	$300 00
Magazines and Periodicals	110 00
Salaries	420 00
Printing	25 00
Insurance Premiums	55 00
Fuel	225 00
Bookbinding	50 00
Miscellaneous	115 00
	$1030 00

Receipts.

Legislative Grant	$200 00
Sale of Magazines	35 00
Readers' Cards	25 00
Fines, etc.	10 00
	$270 00
Amount required	$1030 00

At last meeting the Council instructed the Clerk to write the Provincial License Department enquiring why persons guilty of second and third offences under the Liquor License Act were merely fined and not imprisoned. In his answer E. Saunders, Chief Officer of the License Board, stated that the Department was not aware that any person in Orangeville had been fined for a second or third offence. The Clerk was instructed to secure the names of all parties fined for first, second and third offences and forward the list to the Department.

Mr. L. Tyrrell asked the Council to furnish a driver for the horse for the fire wagon. The matter was referred to the F. & W. Committee with instructions to report.

Council has decided not to accept The Pine River Light & Power Company's offer to supply electric power for the electric motor and pump in the Fire Hall. The Company wanted $300 a year for the service. The F. & W. Committee was instructed to ascertain the best terms on which power can be obtained and to report at next meeting.

The Streets Committee will have all necessary repairs made to the water wagon and street grader.

Successful Conservatory Pupils.

Miss H. Wallace, A.T.C.M. was successful in passing three pupils at the recent Conservatory of Music examinations. They were Miss Winnie Matthews, of Shelburne, who wrote on primary piano and Misses Stella Legate and Hazel Watson, of Grand Valley, who passed the primary theory exam. with honors.

James Bracken Dead

Mr. Hugh Bracken, of Mono, has received word of the death of his brother, James, at Borden, Sask., on Saturday. Deceased was formerly a resident of Caledon and also lived on the 7th line, Mono, for several years. He went West about 20 years ago. Mr. Bracken, who was in his 76th year, was a widower, his wife having died many years ago. He is survived by five sons and a daughter. The sons are John, in Michigan, William, George, Stanley and Bonar at Borden, and the daughter is Mrs. Geo. Moon, of Roaken, Man. Hugh Bracken, of Mono, William Bracken, Caledon East, and Henry Bracken, Toronto, are the surviving brothers, Mrs. Edward Jenkins, of Mono, is the only sister still living. The funeral took place at Borden on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Samuel Nelson

Mrs. Samuel Nelson, a lifelong resident of Caledon, died at her home, lot 22, 1st line, west, in that township, last Thursday. Deceased lady, who was a daughter of the late George Dodds, of Caledon, was 64 years of age. She is survived by her husband and two sons, Herbert and Norman, who have the sympathy of the neighborhood in their bereavement. Mrs. Nelson was an estimable woman and her memory will be warmly cherished by the community in which she lived. There was a large attendance at the funeral, which was held to the Forest Lawn cemetery on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Jenkins Burkholder, pastor of Knox Church, Caledon, was the officiating clergyman. Messrs. McFarland, Walker, Nelson, Crozier Dodds, Frank Harrison and W. J. Limebeer were the pall bearers.

BABY'S OWN TABLES CURE SICKLY BABIES

If your baby is sickly, if his little stomach is out of order or his bowels need regulating, no other medicine will have such prompt or beneficial effect as Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of other mothers use no other medicine for their little ones. Concerning them Mrs. John G. Crockett, Glenberrie, N.S., writes : "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles, vomiting and constipation, and in every instance they have proved successful. I would use no other medicine for my little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail, at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Plan Opens Feb. 28th.

At 2 o'clock p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 28th, at the Banner Office, the Plan of the Hall will open for the Concert to be given by the Orangeville Choral Union two weeks from Friday. It is important that all wishing to be present at this Concert should take advantage of the advance sale of tickets and mark their seats early ; for there is little doubt that the Opera House will not accommodate the numbers who will seek admission on the night of March 6th.

Admission fee, 35 cents. All seats reserved.

The Dufferin Theatre.

The McQuinn family of entertainers are drawing large houses at The Dufferin Theatre this week. As a vocalist W. J. McQuinn is one of the best we have heard in Orangeville in a long time. Buster, the child comedian, is a capital entertainer and Mrs. McQuinn is a skilful pianiste. Mr. and Mrs. McQuinn also make a decided hit in their comedy sketches and Irish songs. There is a complete change of programme nightly. A matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon, with 5 and 10c admission.

WALDEMAR.

Business is right up to the dot in our little burg and the prospects for trade in the future are very promising.

Talbot and McFadgzean are doing a rushing trade in the carriage and wagon line. They are making a specialty of repairing and repainting old wagons and buggies, cutters and sleighs. They make them look and last as well as new rigs and give them a fancy and nobby finish.

Mr. George Lawson, our real estate agent, has purchased the old plant north of Goose Island and may erect an oatmeal mill or biscuit factory. Mr. Lawson is an enterprising and push-ahead citizen and will soon have a monoploy of all the vacant town plots on both sides of Main St.

Mr. W. P. Tolton & Son are unloading a car of coal and will be in readiness for the spring trade.

Mr. John McLeod, C.P.R. bridge and building master, was at home for a few days this week owing to the unfavorable and extremely cold weather.

Mr. T. H. McDowell, our boot and shoe man, is making the pegs fly these days. Owing to the rush of business and the number of orders that are coming in for spring we think that Mac will be obliged to enlarge his factory.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Groskurth have recently moved from this place to their new home in London.

Mr. and Mrs. James Porterfield visited North Amaranth friends and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sproat.

Mrs. John L. Wismer, of Galt, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Henry Talbot, of St. David Ave.

Mr. Bob Mann, of Welland, is renewing old acquaintanceships in this section.

Miss Fanny Johnston, of Orangeville, gave this place a call one day last week and was the guest of Miss Hazel Sproat while here.

Mr. Richard Talbot has leased the old Talbot homestead to Mr. Will J. Tate for a term of years and held a clearing auction sale on Friday, Feb. 13th. He will reside in the village until spring.

ELBA.

Elba Branch of the Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting at Mrs. Jos. Little's on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 11th. The programme included a debate on the subject, "Resolved that Women Should Have an Allowance." The affirmative speakers were Mrs. G. Smith and Miss M. Little and Mrs. Jas. Thompson and Miss E. Algie presented the case for the negative. Instrumental music was provided by Miss Vood and Mrs. Tansley and a duet by Misses Cameron and Shaw.

Mrs. Thos. Gibson, of Guelph, aged 70 years, was probably fatally injured by being knocked down by a swinging storm door.

LAUREL.

The report of Bell Presbyterian Church, Laurel, for the year ending January 31st, 1914, has just been issued. Rev. J. R. Bell is pastor of this church. The Elders are John McPherson, John Bryan, Robt. Fife, John Wolfe, Albert Trimble. The Board of Managers is made up as follows:—Thos. H. Keys (chairman), J. S. Wallace (treasurer), Geo. Didwell, Robt. Greason, W. S. Golden, Thos. Bryan, John Wolfe, David Trimble, Robt. Fife. The church receipts for the year amounted to $885.13, with expenditure the same. The contributions amounted to $511.44 and $129.96 was subscribed to the schemes of the church. The Sabbath School, Thos. Bryan, sec.-treas., reported receipts of $89.26, which paid expenses and left $10.11 on hand. The Young People's Guild, Robt. Greason, sec.-treas., had receipts of $14.88, of which $3.22 remained on hand after paying expenses. The W. H. Missionary Society, Mrs. Herb. Hughes, sec.-treas., had receipts of $181.36, and closed the year with a balance on hand of $22.55. Bales of clothing to the value of $109.40 were sent out by the W.H.M.S. The total receipts of Church, S. S., Y.P.G., and W.H.M.S. came to $1,162.35.

CROMBIE.

The annual report for the year ending January 31st, 1914, of Sproul Presbyterian Church, of which Rev. J. R. Bell is pastor, has just been issued. The Elders of this church are :—Mungo Young, John Scott, J. J. Sproul. The Board of Managers are: John Duncan (chairman), Robt. Ritchie (treasurer), Mungo Young, Geo. Hammond, John Johnston, W. F. Hammond. The receipts for the year were $818.16, and a balance of $41.77 remained on hand at the close of the year. The subscriptions amounted to $484.24, and $124.51 was also subscribed for schemes of the church. Victor Johnston, treasurer of the Sunday School, reported receipts of $59.68, with a balance on hand, Jan. 31st, of $1.13. W. F. Hammond, treasurer, reported receipts of the Young People's Guild as $10.60, of which $1.53 remained on hand. Margaret J. Smith, treasurer, reported receipts of the W. H. Missionary Society as $178.80, all of which was paid out. This Society sent out during the year bales of clothing valued at $138.00, and in the Report of Session it is noted that Black's Corners has the honor of being again the banner society in the Presbytery. The total receipts of Church, S. S., Guild, and W.H.M.S. for the year amounted to $1067.24.—Economist.

Judge Dowling, of Chatham, advised the mother of a 14 year-old-girl, who had married Ernest Cook, of Tilbury, to leave the couple alone. She had charged Cook with perjury in misstating the bride's age. They are of mixed religion.

MONO MILLS.

Miss Hattie Forster, of Oakville, and Miss Elsie and Mr. Fred Faulkner, of Campbell's Cross, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wilson G. Duke.

The Caledon Dramatic Club is to put on its Play, "The Old New Hampshire Home," in the English Church Hall on Friday night the 20th inst., under the auspices of St. John's Church here. This is a popular play and has been well received everywhere it has been presented. See posters for particulars.

We are pleased to learn that Miss Ethel Allen, who recently returned to New York to take up her profession of nursing, is meeting with every success.

Harvey Bros. are busy these days buying up horses to take out west. Anyone having something real good for sale should certainly have the boys look it over.

Mr. Harry Arlow, of Toronto, spent a few days at the home of his parents here last week.

Messrs. Geo. Stork, Willie Fagin and Harry Arlow attended the concert on Thursday evening of last week, when the Mono Mills Dramatic Club put on its play "The Country Squire" and report a well filled house, even with the thermometer at 20 degrees below.

The local branch of the Farmers' Institute has been organized for the ensuing year, and a good membership is reported. The gathering together of farmers into working organizations seems to be becoming more and more necessary and no doubt good results will follow.

The members of the Dramatic Club and a number of their friends were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson G. Duke on Friday evening of last week.

ALTON.

Mrs. Mary Brodie, widow of the late Daniel Brodie, passed away at her residence in Alton on Saturday after an illness of four months. She was 77 years of age and is survived by one daughter, Frances, who has the sympathy of the community in her bereavement. The funeral was held from her late home to Alton cemetery on Monday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Armstrong conducted the services at the house and grave. The pall-bearers were Messrs. D. G. Worts, Ed. Rowcliffe, Alex. Walker, Chas. Jeffs, W. R. Dick and Wm. Shaw.

Miss May Allen was the guest of Miss Frances Brodie for a few days last week.

On Tuesday night a number of the members of the Presbyterian Choir met at the home of Mr. Alex. Dick and presented their organist, Miss Ola Dick, with an address and a beautiful hymnal. Miss Pearl Shaw read the address and Miss Beatrice McLean made the presentation. Miss Dick made a suitable reply, expressing her thanks to the choir for their kindness. Miss Dick is leaving for Toronto on Thursday to take a nurses training course in the Cottage Hospital.

Miss Rattee, a French Canadian lady, converted from Romanism, and now engaged by the Presbyterian Church in Redemption work and the oversight of Refuge Homes in Toronto, Sydney, Montreal, Winnipeg and Calgary, will address the ladies in the Presbyterian Church, Alton, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 21st, at 3 o'clock. A collection will be taken to defray expenses. All are cordially invited. Miss Rattee will speak in North Erin on Sunday next at 2.30 p.m. and in Alton at 7 p.m.

Miss Jennie McLean left on Saturday to attend the millinery openings in Toronto.

CALEDON.

Charleston Old Dramatic Club intend giving their new Play "White Oak Tavern" in the Town Hall here during the early part of March. The Play will be given under the auspices of Warnock L.O.L. No. 250. The date will be announced later. The Club is open to accept engagements in other places.

LAUREL.

Some local scribe under the nom de plume of "Bumble Bee" has declared that this thriving hamlet "seems like Sunday every day." Unless this statement was used to fill in and round out what at first glance appeared to be poetry and was not meant in the literal sense our poetic (?) friend has a lively idea of a peaceful Sabbath, for be it known that no other village in this fair Dominion could withstand the dizzy whirl of events that transpire in the busy metropolis of Laurel.

On Thursday night of last week the Orangeville Hockey Team journeyed this far in search of "easy picking," and though they got away with the better half of a 3-2 score they found more opposition than they anticipated. The local aggregation were well satisfied with the result, in view to the fact that it was their first game, and that Orangeville owns "Some Hookey Team." The line up was:—

We regret that the weather man was producing such frosty weather that some of the visitors suffered from frost bite.

A large number attended the Royal Arch Lodge here on Monday evening.

Laurel citizens were well represented at the skating races held in Grand Valley on Friday night, but owing to some oversight none of the local speeders competed. We are informed that this error will not be repeated at Shelburne, and—lest we forget—the town of Shelburne kindly sent their hockey team to Laurel on Monday night to play an exhibition game with the local seven. The game was fast and clean and altogether a rather good demonstration of hockey as it should be played. The spectators more than made up in enthusiasm for what they lacked in numbers. Mr. Maltby furnished excellent accommodation for a large crowd and it is to be regretted that so few turned out. Our boys got away to a good start and scored twice in the first half. The Shelburne team came back strong in the second period but could not overcome the excellent work of the forwards, and though they played a grand game and displayed some brilliant combination work, the locals scored again in the last half and the game ended with Laurel on the long end of a 3—0 score. A return match will be played at Shelburne some night next week. The line up:—

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Millar, of Queensville, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gray.

We regret that Mrs. Bidwell is still seriously ill.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid will be held at the home of Mr. Wm. Gray on Thursday evening.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. L. Johnston is recovering.

The ice on the rink is in splendid condition and everything is going along fine under the able management of John Maltby.

White Crepe, Voiles, and Kimona Cloths at Ritchie's.

CALEDON.

The weather man gave us a spell of real winter for the past two weeks. Some local thermometers registered as low as thirty-eight degrees below, but Mr. Thos. Smith, who has purchased one of the most up-to-date instruments in existence, claims that Jack Frost only gave us 29 below and says that he thinks that was plenty and if he ever takes a notion to migrate it will be to a warmer clime instead of anything colder.

The Swastika Club met at the home of the Misses McLeod on Thursday night, and notwithstanding it was 21 degrees below zero, there was a good attendance and nobody thought they were cold either.

The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian Church held a very successful oyster supper in the basement of their church on Friday night, and after all had partaken generously of the oysters and pronounced them delicious, a very entertaining programme was rendered. Mr. Wm. Brown gave some excellent selections on his excellent gramaphone, while Miss Ruby Laughlin furnished some very captivating music on the violin and Misses Winnie Vogan and May Glassford sang a couple of duets which brought the house down, and Mr. Bert Clark also sang a number of solos, which were loudly applauded. Rev. Mr. Burkholder occupied the chair in his usual very capable manner.

Kidneys Wrong?—

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones and the deadly Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well. Try

The Methodist Young People's Dramatic Club has been engaged to present its popular Play, "My Old New Hampshire Home," at Mono Mills on Friday night, the 20 inst. The Club is having quite a run this winter and has been well received wherever it has appeared. We wish the players success at Mono Mills.

Mrs. W. J. Nesbitt, who has been visiting friends in the Queen City for the past three weeks, returned home on Saturday night.

Mr. Robt. Phillips, of Pine Creek, Alta., but formerly of Powassan, is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Thompson, of Edmonton, Alta., who left Caledon eleven years ago, visited Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hillyard on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. Mr. Thompson is now a large land owner in Alberta and is very optimistic in his remarks in reference to that great country.

The potato buyers are doing a rushing trade here of late. Mr. W. J. Warnock, of this place, and Mr. Pace, of Toronto, are putting up the money. Its all right for the farmers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McHugh, who were so seriously injured in a runaway accident some time ago, have been making rapid progress toward recovery. Mrs. McHugh is almost herself again, while Mr. McHugh is now walking around the house. We will be glad to see them out again.

A LONELY PASTORATE.

Half of the Ungava Church Staff Is Now on Furlough.

Half the staff of what is perhaps the loneliest mission station in the world is now spending a brief furlough in England. That half-staff is the Rev. S. M. Stewart, whose permanent address is anywhere in Ungava, the great ice-bound province between Labrador and Hudson Bay—a thousand miles further from civilization than the scene of Grenfell's work in Labrador.

"The most anxious moment of the year," said Mr. Stewart, "is when the Hudson Bay Company's vessel from England is sighted, and we are waiting to know whether she brings us good news or ill. A few years ago my furlough was nearly due, and I was looking forward to getting back to see my old father in Ireland. Then the ship came and I found he had died nine months before."

The equanimity with which Mr. Stewart could speak, within the very confines of Fleet street itself, of his banishment from the news of the world came as something of a shock to the interviewer.

"We get on quite well without news," the exile declared, "and I find I can pick up the threads of everything that matters within a week after I get home."

For the last eighteen months Mr. Stewart has had a colleague to share his solitude, but for twelve years before that he carried on the work single-handed.

The missionary's preaching includes the gospel of cleanliness, and he backs it up in a practical way with cakes of soap.

"Unfortunately," he remarked, "I gave them scented soap to start with, and they ate every cake they could get hold of. Now I have taken to carbolic, and they say they don't like 'medicine soap,' so they use for the purpose it was meant for."

Mr. Stewart is going back to the peace of Ungava as soon as he has found friends to defray the cost of a motor-boat that will rival his "twelve-dog-power Eskimotor" in keeping him in touch with his scattered congregations. He is looking forward with lively anticipation both to the experience of sailing the boat up from Newfoundland, and to the reception it is likely to be accorded by his parishioners.

Fort Pelly To Be Preserved.

Fort Pelly, Saskatchewan, for many years the headquarters of the Northwest Mounted Police, has been reserved by the Government as an historic spot, and will likely be converted into a public park. It was at Fort Pelly that the first Northwest Council sat in 1875.

Dead, Buried and Embalmed is the G.O.R.A.B.

Who was it when the nights were dark,
Lured men away upon a lark,
And sent them home with many a mark?
The G. O. R. A. B.

Who took us from our nice warm cots
To ope' the door at three o'clock,
It made us shiver at the thought,
The G. O. R. A. B.

What broke so many bones to mend,
Disjointed thumbs without an end;
Home to their wives the well did send?
The G. O. R. A. B.

Who was it with the broken chest,
Who always tried to do his best,
And nobly fought among the rest?

Who are these men of widespread fame?
Bill Ewing is of one the name.
And all are men of widespread fame.
The G. O. R. A. B.

How is it now we get our sleep?
No more at night we sit and weep,
For now good hours our men do keep
Since its dead.

Why is it that no more they go!
On guileless heads to bring such woe,
Or to the world such pranks to show?
They're dead.

(The Lament)

O, no they never speak of it,
The name is never heard,
Their lips have now refused to speak
The once familiar word.

They hurry up about their work,
To banish their regrets,
And if they hear you speak of it,
They jump upon your neck.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

R. Shombo, foreman of one of the Lake Lauzon lumber camps of the John Harrison & Sons Co., Limited, of Owen Sound, sends the following recital of the adventures of sealer Ed. McKay to the Thessalon Advance :—Ed. McKay, sealer for the John Harrison and Sons Co., had an experience last Sunday that will bear upon his mind for a few weeks time against starting out in a blinding snowstorm to cross nine miles of lake. He would not heed the warning of his advisers, but said he never saw the storm that would stop him if he wanted to go. So leaving camp at two o'clock he struck out for Algoma Mills across Lake Lauzon. When he got out from land about three miles he lost his bearings and having no compass it was impossible for him to take any direct course, so he wandered around till four o'clock in the hope of sighting land. But in wandering around in the storm he came to thin ice and broke through. But having presence of mind struck his scale rule into the ice and finally succeeded in pulling himself out. After getting out the snowstorm raged and his feet commenced to freeze, so he pulled his rubbers off, and wandered around in his stocking feet, but could not find shore. Then he remembered that the wind was blowing off the shore when he left, so he headed right into the storm and after an hour's walk struck the north shore, and following it for about three miles he landed at my lumber camp about ready to give up. He was making up his mind to give up when he saw the light of the camp. He was out about eight hours and was coated with ice and nearly perished.

LIVING TO A HUNDRED.

The decrease in the death rate during the last century has been remarkable, but as every well informed physician will tell you, it has been brought about chiefly by lessening the number of deaths among infants and persons under thirty-five years old. After the latter age the danger of death is greater than ever, in spite of all that medicine and surgery can do.

The famous British physician, Sir James Sawyer, believes it is by no means a difficult matter for any human being to live to be 100 years old. He has recently declared that anybody can attain this age, unless killed by accident, if he or she will religiously keep the following eighteen "commandments of health":—

Eight hours sleep every night.
Sleep on your right side.
Keep your bedroom window open.
Have a mat at your bedroom door.
Keep your bed away from the wall.
No cold bath in the morning, but a bath at a temperature of the body.
Exercise before breakfast.
Eat little meat, and be sure that it is well cooked.
Drink no milk — this applies to adults only.
Eat plenty of fat to feed the cells which destroy disease germs.
Avoid intoxicants, which destroy the cells that combat disease.
Allow no pet animals in your living rooms, for they carry disease germs.
Live in the country if you can.
Watch the three D's — drinking water, damp and drains.
Have change of occupation.
Take frequent and short holidays.
Limit your ambitions.
Keep your temper.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

NOT INOCULATED.

During a session of the Supreme Court of Maine a tedious and complicated suit had well-nigh exhausted the patience of counsel on both sides. One of the lawyers engaged was a certain Appleton, said to be the wittiest lawyer in all New England.

Opposing him was a lawyer of pompous mien and much avoirdupois who committed blunder after blunder, until even the judge became irritated. After the commission of a particularly aggravating error, this lawyer said :

"I beg Your Honor's pardon—but that was another mistake. I seem to be inoculated with dulness today."

"Inoculated, brother?" asked Appleton. "Why, I thought you had it in the natural way."

COPYING A HEROINE

The Result Was a Hero

By HELEN ARMSBY

Young Mrs. Hathorne, recently married, was sitting at one end of the library at her home reading, while her husband and his friend Chenoworth sat at the other end smoking and chatting.

"What so interests you, Bet?" asked Hathorne.

"A splendid novel."

"What's it all about?" asked Chenoworth lazily.

Chenoworth was a big, handsome fellow with lots of strength, of which he seemed unconscious. He was a favorite with women, but bestowed his attentions on all he happened to fall in with, and only a keen insight into the nature of the softer sex and an able diplomacy kept him out of trouble. It was said of him that he could pass through more affairs of the heart without blame than any other man in America. Replying to his question, Mrs. Hathorne said:

"The heroine is a remarkable woman. She married a man whose character was far inferior to hers. They had scarcely passed the honeymoon when he began to show by his manner that he was becoming tired of her. Then he began to pay attention to another woman. What would a wife naturally do under such circumstances? Upbraid the husband, of course, and thus drive him away from her and into the arms of her rival. What did this woman do? Without showing any distrust of her husband she gave him every facility to be with his new attraction. She even planned to have the two go abroad together. After a long absence from his wife he began to realize that after all he loved her and returned to her voluntarily."

"Noble man," grunted Chenoworth, blowing a ring of smoke.

"Noble man!" exclaimed Mrs. Hathorne indignantly. "You mean noble woman."

"Sensible woman, noble man," persisted Chenoworth. "She played her rival admirably. If the man had not been a fine fellow, instead of going back to her he would have left the second woman for a third."

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed the lady. "That's the most diabolic view of the case that could be conceived."

"My dear," interposed Hathorne, "don't consider anything he says.

HIS WIFE THREW HER ARMS AROUND HIS NECK.

Treat him as one without a conscience. He doesn't know the meaning of the word constancy; he was born without any such bump in his cranium."

"Dick," said Chenoworth, "I have a mind to throw you through the window."

"You won't do anything of the kind, Bob."

"Why not?"

"Because you're too lazy."

Mrs. Hathorne retired from this war of words, leaving the two friends together. Neither man seemed to regard the question that had momentarily held his attention of sufficient moment to call forth further comment, and both passed to a discussion of questions of the day.

Some months passed, at the end of which Hathorne, being called away, asked his friend Chenoworth to see that his wife was not lonely during his absence. Chenoworth promised to do what he could in the matter and made it a point to call two or three times a week and escort the lady to some place of amusement. When Hathorne returned he thought he noticed a change in his wife's bearing. It would only have been perceptible to a lover, for outwardly at least it was very slight. He received the same enthusiastic embrace, but he thought the enthusiasm did not last quite so long as formerly. Then, too, he found Chenoworth at his house when he returned, and the latter did not seem overjoyed at meeting him.

I OWE MY LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

They Did Me More Good Than All Other Treatments Combined

Mrs. H. S. WILLIAMS

PALMERSTON, ONT., June 20th, 1913

"I really believe that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives". Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctors' bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old stomach trouble and distressing headaches nearly drove me wild. Some time ago I got a box of "Fruit-a-tives" and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use. "Fruit-a-tives" completely cured me.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked me the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives". He said, "Well, if "Fruit-a-tives" are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can".

Mrs. H. S. WILLIAMS.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

PARCEL POST.

Started February 10th.—Some of the Regulations.

In the regulations for the parcel post, which commenced on February 10th, the Postmaster-General has given specific suggestions how the various articles should be packed for safe transit through the mails.

For instance, in regard to eggs, it is recommended that a papier mache, wooden or other box of a rigid material with a tight fitting lid be used —that each egg be wrapped separately in newspaper or other protecting material and fill up the vacant spaces carefully. In addition the parcel is to be clearly marked as containing eggs.

Specific regulations are given as to the method in which liquids, oils, or fatty substances must be packed in order to be sent through the mails. Strong wooden or heavy cardboard blocks or tubes are necessary, with a cushion of some absorbent material to take up the liquid in case the container should break. Further, every precaution must be taken to make the block or tube watertight. Manufacturers or dealers who intend to send such articles in quantities, are recommended to submit a sample package to the officials, so that the conditions are seen to be observed.

Further, all parcels have to be prepared in such a way that the contents can be easily examined, and the senders' name and address should appear on the cover of the parcel.

Apparently the intention of the department is to use the ordinary mail bags for the parcels post and not to introduce baskets, which are used to a great extent in England. It is interesting to note that in England some time ago, there were vigorous protests against the disuse of baskets as it was found after a very short trial that tremendous damage was done to countless packages through the lack of protection afforded by bags. The same condition may pertain here if there is a wide use of the parcels system without adequate facilities for more careful transportation than that usually afforded by the use of the bags.

Six pounds is the limit for parcels during February, March, and April, and during the same period an extra charge of five cents is made on all parcels to be delivered by letter carriers.

DON'T GROW BALD

Use Parisian Sage

If your hair is getting thin, losing its natural color, or has that matted, lifeless and scraggy appearance, the reason is evident—dandruff and failure to keep the hair roots properly nourished.

Parisian Sage applied daily for a week and then occasionally is all that is needed. It removes dandruff with one application; almost immediately stops falling hair and itching head; invigorates the scalp and makes dull, stringy hair, soft, abundant and radiant with life. Equally good for men, women or children—every one needs it.

A large bottle of this delightful hair tonic can be had from F. S. Pickering or any drug counter for 50 cents. You will surely like Parisian Sage. There is no other "Just-as good."—Try it now.

Lanark County Council has strongly objected to the proposed scheme of Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of public Charities, who, by authority secured by an amendment to the statutes, proposed transferring the harmless and quiet inmates of Provinvial Hospitals of Insane back to Houses of Refuge in the counties from whence they came.

That Mrs. Hathorne had become used to having Chenoworth about her and that Chenoworth had become used to being about her soon became evident. When Chenoworth called to spend an evening with his friends Mrs. Hathorne was animated; when he did not call she was dull.

One evening while Hathorne was with his wife, she being without animation or anything to talk about, took up a book. It proved to be the novel that had excited the brief dissension with which this story opens. He finished it before going to bed. Without saying anything to his wife on the subject he resolved to apply the expedient adopted by the heroine of the novel to his own case.

One morning he announced to his wife that he was obliged to make a long business trip, and the same evening, when Chenoworth was present, told the latter that he would rely on him, as he had done once before, to see that Mrs. Hathorne should not be left to mope alone. Chenoworth again promised to give all of his time to the lady she desired, though there was an undercurrent of embarrassment between the trio that did not appear on the surface.

When the husband departed he had no idea of swerving from the plan adopted by the heroine of the novel, whose action his wife had so much admired. In that case there was no attempt on the part of the wife to spy on her husband. She left him free to act in accordance with his own pleasure, and when he returned it was because he had discovered that he loved his wife better than the other woman. A man would not be apt to play such a part, and Hathorne's original intention was turned awry by a desire to discover on his return the status between his friend and his wife. Chenoworth had been used to complaining that Sunday evening was the loneliest to him of all the evenings of the week, and his calls at that time were frequent. Hathorne wrote that he would return on Monday, at the same time intending to walk into his house about 9 o'clock Sunday evening. He would contrive to enter without being heard.

Arriving in the city, he started for his home—brisk at first, but soon slowing his pace. As he drew near the house he almost stopped altogether. His nature revolted from what he was about to do. He was about to play the spy on his wife and on his best friend. He balked in his purpose.

Supposing these two had become attached to each other, were they not, like all other human beings, amenable to what we call temptation? He thought of the words in the Lord's Prayer, "Lead us not into temptation."

Hathorne could go no further with his reasoning. He felt that he was not immaculate, but was as liable to yield to a temptation as either his wife or his friend. What he would do he would decide when a decision became necessary. One thing he would not do —he would not demean himself by becoming a spy upon his wife and his friend. Walking up to his front door, he put the key in the lock, took plenty of time scraping his boots on the rug in the vestibule and was about to open the inner door when it swung on its hinges, and his wife threw her arms around his neck with all the old time fervor.

The embrace lasted some moments, not a word being spoken, but each knew that the same matter influenced both. When they entered the living room Hathorne expected to see Chenoworth. He was not there. But Hathorne made no comment on his absence. He stammered an explanation as to his coming a day earlier than he had expected, but it is difficult for an honest man to lie, and he had not thought to frame an excuse before entering.

"Never mind the reason, dear," said his wife, who with woman's keen intuition had divined the true one. "You intended to surprise me and Dick, but you couldn't bring yourself to do it. I have tried you, dear, because I was obliged to do so in order to try your friend. To deceive one it was necessary to deceive the other. Sit down and listen to me."

He seated himself, drew her down on his lap and she continued:

"You remember our conversation about the heroine in the novel who reclaimed her husband by leaving him with her rival and Dick's singular comment? Well, I resolved to test Dick to see whether he was as unprincipled as he pretended. Fortunately you were called away"—

"No; I went intentionally to apply your heroine's device to you."

"You don't mean it? Well, it helped me amazingly in what I was intending to do. I soon saw that you were jealous, but I didn't think it best to take you into my confidence, and it wouldn't be for long. Since you have been away this time I have put a severe test upon Dick."

"And the result?" asked Hathorne eagerly.

"He is not at all the man he is supposed to be and that he permits others to think him. I have proved to my satisfaction that he has a high regard for women and deep sympathy with one attempting to maintain her loyalty to her husband."

"You have, eh? What did you try to do with him?"

"I tried to make him love me. I offered to run away with him before your return."

"And what did he do?"

"Fled, as if Satan were pursuing him."

"And you consider that he did this out of reverence for your sex?"

"I do; he told me so."

"The liar! He acted through loyalty to me."

WHO DOES YOUR THINKING?

The business of agriculture is too important to the man engaged therein to permit of his being the dupe of men engaged in other occupations, and who have more time to exercise their minds and less work for their hands to do than has the busy tiller of the soil. Every man, no matter what occupation he is engaged in, should do his own thinking. This is especially true of the manager of a business like farming. Too often the man on the land sees himself as nothing more than a laborer, never allowing his mental faculties to become developed to such an extent as to very materially lessen his manual labor. He seems to think that it is enough for him to work with his hands. True, a man who works at hard, bodily labor, long hours each day, has not the same opportunity to do studying of important questions as has the man whose business is to do nothing else but turn such matters over in his mind. However, busy as the farmer may be, he has still time to think. In fact much of his work should inspire thought. Driving a team in the field gives him plenty of opportunity to turn various matters over in his mind. He is right on the spot, and who is in a better position to weigh carefully in his mind what the farm needs in the way of cultivation, general management, and various other items connected with its operation? Then, too, he should be able to ponder in his own mind the large public questions of the day. The average farmer of the twentieth century is, comparatively speaking, and certainly ought to be, a well-read man. Very often he knows much more about public affairs and the large questions which are puzzling the minds of parliamentary leaders than do many of his city cousins, but many people are readers who are not thinkers. Good papers, magazines and books may do much and do accomplish a great deal in molding public opinion, but the man who passively takes the thought of another, word for word, does not dissect and weigh it in his own mental balance and form his own unbiased judgment can never hope to be anything more than a mendicant in the realms of thought. It is the man with ideas that is making most out of life for himself and for the community at large. Good judgment does not proceed from mental inactivity, and great success is not accomplished by men who allow others to form their opinions for them. We would urge the readers to digest more of what they read; ponder it in their minds, in other words think for themselves. Getting other people's opinion is a valuable asset to a thinking man, but acting upon his own, if good judgment is used is far more important and valuable. Use good reading to aid in thinking, and by all means think.—Farmers' Advocate.

Thin-Blooded Men and Women

Need the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Thin-blooded people do not remain so from choice, but from indifference; in some cases from despair. People who are pale, languid, with palpitation of the heart, some difficulty in breathing and a tendency to be easily tired are suffering from thin blood. They need only the resolution to take the right treatment and stick to it until cured. The remedy that can be relied upon is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. With every dose they make new blood, and new blood means health and strength. The red cheeks, good appetite, increasing weight and strength that follow the use of these Pills prove their great value to thin-blooded people. Here is an example. Mrs. R. Steele, Afton Road, P. E. I., says: "Following child-birth I took a pain in my head which grew so bad I had to call in a doctor. He told me that my blood had turned to water and that I was in a serious condition. He treated me four months, but still the pain remained, and my condition was growing pitiable. I lost my appetite, and was so weak and rundown that I could no more than walk across a room. I was as pale as a corpse, and the doctor told my friends he had but little hopes of my getting better. A cousin who came to see me urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I sent and got a supply. In about a month after beginning their use I had much relief, and by the time I had taken six more boxes I was fully cured and felt as well as ever I did in my life. I have never had a twinge of the pain since, and feel that I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after the doctor had failed."

LIVED WITH HEAD OFF.

Having cut the head off a chicken one evening last week, Mr. Wm. Weber, hostler at the Queen's Hotel, Walkerton, threw the bird into the snow and proceeded to lop the head off another fowl. Carrying the two headless birds into the shed, where he left them over night, he was startled on opening the door the next morning to find the first chicken that had lost its head doing a lively turkey trot on the floor. Calling the parties who had seen him shed the heads the night before, he had them examine the hen and view the moving picture that they might bear witness when he sprang the tale about town. The snow it seems had frozen the clotted blood on the end of the neck, and prevented the life stream from further oozing out. The windpipe was doing its work, and left to itself the only thing the hen needed to fear was a thaw that would start the ice moving at the end of the neck. But a lot of hungry boarders had to be fed and the headsman was obliged to take biting to the block the second time.—Times.

FINISHING THE SUBJECT

Mrs. Hiram Higgins was speaking her mind to Hiram in a manner that was emphasis long-drawn-out. From the room where they were, Hiram could see the front porch, and when he observed the parson come in and pause at the steps within ear-shot, he told his wife of the visitor, and went out to meet him.

"Ah, good-morning, Brother Higgins," said the parson in pleasant greeting. "I hope I didn't interrupt a family conversation. Didn't I hear your wife talking?"

"That's all right, Parson. Come right in," said Mr Higgins, glad enough.

"I hope I didn't disturb her before she finished her subject, said the parson, taking a chair.

"I'm glad you did, Parson," said Mr. Higgins cheerfully.

"What was the subject?" laughed the Parson. "Woman suffrage?"

"No sir; it was me."

Whereupon both of them began to laugh, but suddenly quit as Mrs. Higgins came out smiling.

Breathing Impure Air Poisoning the System

Particularly during the winter season the blood becomes loaded with poisonous waste matter as the result of artificial foods and the breathing of impure air in stuffy, overheated rooms.

Elimination of poisons from the blood depends entirely on the condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels, and by awakening and invigorating these filtering organs, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of inestimable value as a means of purifying the blood and thereby removing the cause of much pain and serious disease.

By curing constipation of the bowels and sluggish, torpid condition of the liver and kidneys this treatment removes the cause of indigestion, headaches, biliousness, backache, kidney derangements and liver complaint. Besides being a cure for the most complicated disorders of this kind Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are invaluable as a family regulator to overcome the annoying everyday ills which if neglected are sure to bring serious disorders such as appendicitis, rheumatism, and Bright's Disease.

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers. Sample box mailed free if you mention this paper. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

GERMAN DOGS.

An Englishman sat at a New York boarding house table. One of the boarders was telling a story in which a "dachshund" figured. She was unable for a moment to think of the word.

"It was one of these—what do you call them?—one of these long German dogs."

The Englishman dropped his fork, his face beamed. "Frank-furters!"

NOT HIS FAULT.

Two London cabbies were glaring at each other.

"Aw, wot's the matter with you?" demanded one.

"Nothin's the matter with me. Why?"

"You gave me a nasty look," persisted the first.

"Me? Why, you certainly 'ave a nasty face, but I didn't give it to you."

UNPROMISING.

A retail dealer in leather goods, doing business in Baltimore, wrote to a firm in Southern Massachusetts, ordering a carload of the merchandise. The firm wired him:

"Cannot ship your order until the last consignment is paid for."

"Unable to wait so long," telegraphed the leather merchant. "Cancel the order."

COBB'S ADVICE.

A tramp called at Mr. Cobb's house one morning.

"I've walked many miles to see you, sir," he said, "because people told me you were very kind to poor unfortunate fellows like me."

"Indeed!" said the old gentleman. "And are you going back the same way."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Well," said Mr. Cobb, "just contradict that rumor as you go, will you? Good morning."

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS — YOUR BEST FRIEND

How Good Roads will benefit You

THEY BENEFIT THE FARMER, because they increase the value of his farm; enable him to raise more profitable crops; his cost of hauling will be low; he can reach markets when prices are best; his children can go to school every day in the year, and he will have more social life and better conditions generally.

THEY BENEFIT THE CONSUMER, because they reduce the cost of living in proportion to what the farmer saves, and by bringing new industries to the community, enable a larger proportionate amount to be paid out in wages, and with increased population, more amusements and better stores.

Public roads are commercial feeders of the city, and every improvement of these roads means a greater prosperity through increased agricultural production and greater stimulus to all industries.

Economical Good Roads

Concrete roads are best from the start and cheapest in the end. They are free from ruts, mud and dust. They give good footing to horses and easier traction to every class of vehicle, but most important is the fact that they require practically no expenditure for upkeep.

Complete information of concrete road construction is yours for the asking, without cost or obligation.

UNDER THE OCEAN

Changes in the Sea Floor From Shore to Shore.

THE BIG MID-ATLANTIC RIDGE.

It Starts at Iceland and Bisects the Ocean Down Almost to Cape Horn. In Places It Rises Above the Surface, Forming Groups of Islands.

A sketch of the "landscape" of the ocean bed is given by Dr. A. E. Shipley in an article in the Edinburgh Review:

"The passengers and the crew of a liner racing over the surface of the Atlantic are apt to imagine that under them is a vast layer of water of varying depth sparsely inhabited by a few fish. As a matter of fact, the whole of this great ocean is teeming with life. If instead of taking ship we could take to the water and walk across the bed of the Atlantic to America, starting from the shores of western Europe, we should in effect be traveling through a succession of new countries. Not only would the surrounding physical conditions vary as we advanced, but the animal and plant life would vary in correlation with the altering physical conditions.

"Walking farther and farther toward the depths of the Atlantic, we should soon lose all sight of the algae, and the shallow water fish—the plaice and sole, whiting, skates, dogfish and others and cod—would give way to the megrim and the hake. The sea floor would gradually change from rock or gravel or stones to sands and ultimately to mud or oozes of various tints, their original colors often modified by the action of the decomposition of organic particles in them and on them. All these finer deposits are derived from the neighboring land and are blown seaward by offshore winds or washed down by rains and streams and carried out to the sea by rivers.

"The distance to which fine matter in suspension may be carried is very great. The Kongo is said to carry its characteristic mud as far out to sea as 600 miles, and the Ganges and the Indus as far as 1,000 miles.

"Except in the neighborhood of such great rivers a subaqueous traveler would soon pass beyond what Sir John Murray has called the 'mud line,' a line that limits the terrigenous deposits everywhere surrounding dry land. Having reached this limit, we must proceed warily, for at the mud line, at an average depth of a hundred fathoms, we shall find ourselves at the edge of the continental shelf, that rim which extends seaward to a varying distance from all land areas, the rim on which Great Britain rests. Beyond lies the continental slope, a precipice more or less abrupt and more or less high, descending by steep declines or terraced cliffs until depths of 2,000 fathoms are reached.

"The Atlantic, compared with the other great oceans, has an unusually large area of comparatively shallow water. Of its total area 27.5 per cent. is covered by water less than 1,000 fathoms deep; 18 per cent lies between 1,000 and 2,000 fathoms and 47 per cent between 2,000 and 3,000 fathoms; the remaining 7.5 per cent is still deeper.

"At the foot of the continental slope lies an illimitable plain of a uniform dull, grayish buff color, flat and featureless as the desert, and only diversified by an occasional as yet uncovered rock or wreck or the straight line of a recently laid cable. This plain continues with scarcely a change in scenery or in level until we approach the great mid-Atlantic ridge. As Bruce has shown, this ridge, which roughly bisects the Atlantic, extends from Iceland as far south as fifty-three degrees of south latitude, with a slight and quite inexplicable break just under the equator. The ridge runs almost parallel with the eastern contour of North and South America, which, in turn, as the ordinary map will show, roughly corresponds with the western contour of Europe and Africa. From time to time the ridge rises above the surface of the water, as in the Azores group, St. Paul's rocks, Ascension, Tristan da Cunha and Gough Island.

"Having ascended the eastern and descended the western slope of this mid-Atlantic ridge, we should again traverse plains of grayish ooze far more extensive than any level land tract known to geographers, and as we approached the American coast we should gradually pass through, in reverse order, the zones of life traversed when leaving Europe. On the eastern coast of America the slope is much more gradual than on the western coast of southern Europe and Africa."

Told the Truth.

A few days after the new farmer had purchased a horse from a thrifty Scot he returned in an angry mood. "You told me this horse had won half a dozen matches against some of the best horses in the country. He can't trot a mile in six minutes to save himself. You lied to me!" he denounced.

"I didna lie. It was in plowin' matches he took sax prizes," calmly replied Sandy.

TWO HOME WOMEN TALKED ABOUT HAIR

Two women met in our store the other day, when one of them said:

"My, how pretty your hair looks! What have you been doing to it?"

"Why, I have been using Harmony Hair Beautifier for the past two weeks," was the reply.

"Why, indeed!" replied the first woman, "that is just what I am using. Isn't it great, and don't you think my hair shows a lot of improvement?"

Harmony Hair Beautifier is becoming all the rage among both men and women who are particular in the care of their hair. It is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft, and easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay put." Contains no oil, and will not change color of hair nor darken it. Simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich, foaming lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. It is washed off just as quickly, the entire operation taking only a few moments. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. T. F. & T. J. BROWN, Druggists, Orangeville, Ont.

PERFECT CANDOR.

Tom MacPhearson, a Scotchman, who does carpentering for a living, asked his foreman for a day off, which was readily granted. Later the latter was informed that the workman had taken the holiday to get married, and upon his return to work questioned him about it.

"Aye, sir; I was awa' gettin' marri'd."

"That's fine!" replied the foreman. "I hope you got a richt good wife, Tom."

"Weel, I maun say she is God's handiwork, but she is nae His masterpiece," answered the bridegroom, with the air of one determined to do perfect justice and yet adhere to the truth.

POOR WORM.

Grace was a country girl, whose parents sent her to the city to attend college. When the holidays came around and she came home, her mother gave a reception in her honor.

Some of the girl friends asked Grace to show them her new gowns. Obligingly, she brought out several modish gowns, and, holding up a particularly pretty one of silk, she said:

"Isn't this one perfectly beautiful? And, just think, it came from a poor insignificant worm!"

Her hard-working father was seated near, watching the performance, and he replied:

"Yes, darn it, and I'm that worm!"

TOO MANY FOR A BOSS.

One of the bosses at Baldwin's Locomotive Works had to lay off an argumentative Irishman named Pat, so he saved discussion by putting the discharge in writing. The next day Pat was missing; but a week later the boss was passing through the lathe. Going up to the Irishman, he demanded fiercely.

"Didn't you get my letter?"

"Yes, sur, Oi did," said Pat.

"Did you read it?"

"Sure, sur, Oi read it inside and Oi read it outside," said Pat, "and on the inside yez said I was fired, and on the outside yez said, 'Return to Baldwin's Locomotive Works in 5 days.'"

Whether this drakeship will manage to propel himself in the water has never been tested his owner says.

FOOLS.

A former pastor of the First Baptist Church at Nashville accepted a call to a church in St. Louis, where he was to deliver a lecture.

One of the foremost pastors in the city was asked to announce the lecture from his pulpit. This is the way the pastor made the announcement:

"The Reverend Doctor Whitman will lecture on 'Fools' in the Kent Street Baptist Church on Tuesday evening, and I trust a great many will attend."

Rev. W. K. Wrighton, of Kenilworth, has accepted a call to the Goderich Baptist Church.

ORANGEVILLE AND SHELBURNE.

WITH THE OURLERS

Shelburne curlers evidently believe in the wisdom of the old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." They have had a good deal of hard luck in their attempts to lift the Bankers' Trophy, but they are keeping right at the job and it is a pretty safe guess that one of these fine days the trophy will take another trip northward. The Northerners have made two unsuccessful attempts to wrest the trophy from the local Club since last week's Banner went to press. The first attempt was made last Thursday, when A. W. Watson brought down a rink. The visitors put up a strong game until the last three ends, when they went to pieces and the defenders got a big lead, winning out by 20 to 9. The players were :—

Orangeville—	Shelburne—
C. V. Jeffers	L. Tupling
J. M. Rowan	W. H. Calhoun
B. B. Brown	F. Shepherd
J. D. McMillan 20	A. W. Watson 9

This made the second win for the McMillan rink and the task of defending the trophy was therefore turned over to W. M. Green. The Green quartette was given its first opportunity on Monday afternoon, when Frank Shepherd brought down another Shelburne rink in quest of the shield. The game was keenly contested and very close, but victory again rested with the defenders. The players and scores were :—

Orangeville—	Shelburne—
D. McCallum	J. Matthews
H. F. Reid	A. Skelton
A. A. Smith	T. J. Harrison
W. M. Green sk.16	F. Shepherd 12.

Two rinks visited Erin on Tuesday and played morning and afternoon games. They won the morning game by 2 shots, but were 11 down in the afternoon. The players were — A. Dalgleish, A. E. Annis, J. E. Smith, C. V. Jeffers sk.; Jas. Duncan, D. McLean, J. M. Rowan, D. B. Brown, sk. Jeffers won both his games by margins of 4 and 3. Brown was down 2 in the morning and down 14 in the afternoon.

The Bankers' Trophy took its departure on Tuesday evening. Its destination was Grand Valley and not Shelburne. Archie Ramsay brought down the rink that did the trick. The defenders, skipped by Marshall Green, gave the visitors a great game, but the last end found them on the short end of a 16-13 score. The game attracted a lot of interest and the play was followed by a large gallery. The rinks were :—

Grand Valley—	Orangeville—
Wm. McClelland	D. McCallum
W. G. Jenkins	H. F. Reid
J. J. Reith	A. A. Smith
A. G. Ramsay 16	W. M. Green 13.

GRAND VALLEY WON.

Orangeville Got Short End of 7-6 Hockey Score.

Orangeville's hockey team played another exciting game in Grand Valley on Tuesday night. On the occasion of their last visit the local hockeyists held the Grand Valley team down to a tie. Under ordinary conditions Tuesday night's fixture, which was really a return match, should have been played here, but as Orangeville is without a hockey or skating rink this year it was necessary to play both games in Grand Valley. The match attracted a large crowd. The great majority of the spectators were Grand Valley people, who rooted lustily for the home seven. The game was fast, exciting and very closely contested. Both teams showed better condition than in the former game and the result was seen in a faster and cleaner exhibition of hockey. Toward the close of the match it looked like another tie, but Grand Valley forged ahead and managed to win by the close score of 7 to 6. The best of feeling prevailed between the opposing players and the game was devoid of unnecessary roughness or other unpleasant incidents. The line up was :—

Orangeville—Goal, A. Scott; point, B. Booth; coverpoint, R. Scott; rover, H. Keith; centre, W. Ewing; left wing, W. Holmes; right wing, H. Wilcox.

Referee—W. R. Johnston.

After the game the visitors were banquetted in Mutrie's, where hot coffee, oysters, ice cream and other refreshments were served. A programme of toasts followed, Dr. McClellard officiating as toastmaster. Some of the speakers, in addition to the chairman, were Messrs. Brawley, McDonald and Britton, Grand Valley, and Bert Booth, R. Scott, G. Morrison and H. Keith, Orangeville.

PRUNING BY RAIN.

One of Nature's Many Methods of Thinning Her Forests.

Nature has many ways of thinning and pruning and trimming her forests —lightning strokes, heavy snows and storm winds to shatter and blow down whole trees here and there or break off branches as required. The results of these methods I have observed in different forests, but only once have I seen pruning by rain.

The rain froze on the trees as it fell and grew so thick and heavy that many of them lost a third or more of their branches. The view of the woods after the storm had passed and the sun shone forth was something never to be forgotten. Every twig and branch and rugged trunk was encased in pure crystal ice, and each oak and hickory and willow became a fairy crystal palace. Such dazzling brilliance, such effects of white light and irised light, glowing and flashing, I had never seen, nor have I since.

This sudden change of the leafless woods to glowing silver was, like the great aurora, spoken of for years and is one of the most beautiful of the many pictures that enrich my life. And besides the great shows there were thousands of others, even in the coldest weather, manifesting the utmost fineness and tenderness of beauty and affording noble compensation for hardship and pain.—Atlantic Monthly.

Red as a Cure.

In England, says the London Globe, apothecaries for many years were firm believers in the efficacy of the color red as a combatant of disease. Patients, especially those suffering from rheumatism, were frequently wrapped in red blankets and dressed in red clothes. "Let your nightcap be of scarlet," recommended Andrew Borden in his discourse on sleep, "and petycote of scarlet also," while a physician in the sixteenth century advised that the face be washed once a week and then wiped with a red cloth. Upon this latter item of the prescription great stress was laid—no doubt the color of the cloth was intended to act as an antidote against the chill of such frequent ablutions.

ONE DEATH EVERY FOUR HOURS

"Consumption" the Cause

from Tuberculosis—at the rate of one person every four hours—a total of over 2300 deaths every year—equivalent to the wiping out and loss to the community of a good sized town.

An appalling loss of life. The pity is that this continual sacrifice is unnecessary. These lives, or most of them might be saved.

Pioneer work in the Crusade against Consumption has been done by the National Sanitarium Association. The hospitals at Muskoka and Weston are to-day standing evidence of the magnificent achievements of the Association.

One branch of the Association work —a free Illustrated Lecture with 70 lantern views—is delivered by Rev. J. H. Dyke, Field Secretary of the Association.

This lecture will be given on Sunday evening, 22nd inst., at 8 o'clock, in the Town Hall, Orangeville, Ont. A collection will be taken at the close in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The lecture explains in a simple, interesting, and complete way exactly what the disease is, how to avoid it, and how to treat it.

Parents especially should know how to protect themselves and their children. Every private individual — man, woman, and child—is in danger and should know how to combat it.

It is not too much to say that this lecture has been the means of saving many lives. It answers questions everybody is asking. It is simplicity itself—a child can understand.

To attend such a lecture is a privilege. We heartily commend it to our readers.

His Influence Failed.

Judge Drysdale, of Nova Scotia, tells a story of a meeting of the Bar Society of one of the Eastern Provinces where the point was raised whether law students did or did not, as a general rule, adopt the political ideas of the lawyers with whom they were articled.

"Well, I studied in Judge Blank's office," said a member, "and while he was a strong Liberal, yet he did not make me a Liberal."

"And I studied with the late Mr. Brown," retorted another member when the Tory cheers had subsided, "and while he was a staunch Conservative, he did not make a Conservative out of me."

It was now the Liberals' turn to applaud, when a vinous looking member arose in the rear of the hall.

"Gentlemen," he announced a trifle unsteadily, "I studied law with good old lawyer White, and while he was an ardent Prohibitionist, I am glad to say that he did not make a Prohibitionist out of me."

FILLING THE LUNGS.

Correct and Deep Breathing is Essential to Good Health.

No piece of advice the physician can give will bear more frequent repetition than the pithy sentence, "Breathe deeply." It is a perfectly simple rule of health, yet it is constantly broken.

There are two ways to learn to breathe. If our powers of self discipline are poor, as is the case with most insufficient breathers, it is a good plan to join a gymnasium or calisthenic class and learn to use the lungs as a baby learns to use its feet and hands. But remember that lessons in breathing will do no good if the scholar thinks he is absolved from his task except when he is in the class.

A simpler method for those who have not time or opportunity to attend a gymnasium is to turn life's daily routine into a continuous discipline in breathing. If the poor breather takes the trouble to watch himself carefully he will find that when he is engaged upon any work that calls for close attention he does not even breathe as deeply as usual; he almost invariably holds his breath. Thus the blood current is vitiated when it ought to be cleansed, and the worker exhausts himself, not so much by his labors as by his neglect.

Draw in deep drafts of air every time you take a breath, and every little while stop everything else and fill your lungs a few times with breaths that test their capacity. You will be surprised to see the improvement that it will make in your general condition. —Times Reader.

Different Viewpoints.

Duncan Macpherson was playing golf. Going out he drove brilliantly over a stream in a hollow. "My, but yon wis a fine drive owre the bonny wee burn!" he remarked to his caddie. Coming home he had to play over this same "burn" for another hole and drove right into it. "Gang ye an' fish th' ba' oot o' yon dirty sewer!" he growled.—Argonaut.

Use For His Head.

Old Gotrox (to his fashionable son)—You and your set thoroughly disgust me. You could get along as well without a head on your shoulders as with one. Algy—Aw, fawther, how wediculous! Why, whenh would a fellah weah his hat?—Puck.

His Delicate Touch.

"That Muller is a peach at borrowing. At the dance last night he put my tie straight, and when he had finished I was 100 marks poorer."—Fliegende Blatter.

Next to acquiring good friends the best acquisition is that of good books. —Colton.

MOSBY FLED WITH HIS MEN.

An Attack That Wholly Demoralized the Partisan Rangers.

Colonel John S. Mosby, commander of the Partisan rangers, who gave such dashing service in the southern cause, told of an amusing incident in which he figured.

In the summer of 1864 when General Phil Sheridan was in the valley of the Shenandoah he found himself annoyed harassed by Mosby, who was continually cutting off his supply trains. An army cannot fight on an empty stomach, and Mosby knew it. One bright morning Mosby heard that a long supply train was winding its way down the valley. By noon the rangers in their gray uniforms were gathered at the forks of the valley pike, watching for the head of the wagon train to appear.

Presently a cloud of dust was seen rising far up the road, and as the wind blew it aside the Confederates caught sight of a line of men in blue escorting a caravan of lumbering wagons drawn by mules. Instantly Mosby gave the order to run a little howitzer up on the side of a hill and unlimber it. As soon as the gun had opened fire the rest of the men were to make a cavalry charge and throw the train into confusion.

The rangers jerked the gun into position and began to swab it out. Suddenly the man with the swab gave a shrill yell, seized the seat of his pantaloons and fled down the hill and out into the road. Almost in the same moment the other man at the gun abandoned it. He seemed to be fighting at the air as he disappeared over a stone wall.

The sutler's wagons were creeping nearer, and Mosby did not know what to think of such extraordinary conduct. He ordered four more men to the gun, but hardly had they reached it when they, too, yelled, began to beat the air madly with their hats and took to flight.

Spurring his horse over the stone wall, Mosby rode toward the gun, but his stay was short. The howitzer stood just over a hornets' nest, and those busy insects were resenting the intrusion. They had repelled the invaders on foot, and now they swarmed on Mosby's horse till the maddened animal tore off down the pike on a run. Then they turned their attention to the rest of the troop.

Their attack was so vicious that the rangers gave up any idea of standing by the gun. They scattered far and wide, and it was an hour before they returned. When they did the wagon train had safely vanished in the distance. So the hornets saved the day for Sheridan.—Youth's Companion.

Where Science Fails.

Science has wrought many achievements, but it has not cleared up a single elemental mystery, and it has created a thousand lesser mysteries that never were imagined until science came. Science has demonstrated that this oak of a world used to be an acorn, but how that acorn came into existence or whence it obtained the latent elements that now have become an oak science has not suggested. Science has made it possible for a manufacturer to cut down three trees in his forest at 7:35 in the morning, to have them made into paper at 9:34 and to have them selling on the street as newspapers at 10:25, but whether the manufacturer himself is a brain that has a mind or is a mind that has a brain science cannot even guess.—Atlantic Monthly.

Iron Mold Stains.

Iron mold stains spread in any fabric they come in contact with in the wash. To remove them stretch the stained part over a basin nearly full of boiling water, so that the steam may penetrate the fabric, and apply with a feather a teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a dessertspoonful of lemon juice. When the marks disappear dip the material well into the hot water, afterward rinsing very thoroughly in cold water.

Proved It Was Simple.

In a registration booth in San Francisco an old colored woman had just finished registering for the first time.

"Am you shore," she asked the clerk, "dat I'a done all I has to do?"

"Quite sure," replied the clerk; "you see, it's very simple."

"I'a ought to knowed it," said the old woman. "If those fool men folks been doin' it all dese years I might 'a' knowed it was a powerful simple process."—Life.

He Plagued Him.

The catcher was having an argument with the umpire.

"I'll fix you so you won't be an epidemic any longer!" threatened the umpire, beginning to lose his temper.

"What do you mean by I won't be an epidemic any longer?" asked the catcher.

"I'll send you to the bench," returned the umpire, "and then you won't be catchin'."—Pittsburg Press.

Welcomed.

"I'll have to arrest you," said the policeman.

The man who was having trouble with his wife threw both arms around the officer and exclaimed:

"This isn't any arrest. This is a rescue."—Washington Star.

A LACROSSE REVIVAL

Big Awakening of Interest Predicted for Coming Season.

Lacrosse is surely coming back to its own, and next season promises to see the greatest revival in amateur lacrosse that has ever been witnessed in Canada, and as an evidence of this fact the beautiful Gold Cup which Sir Donald Mann donated, and which has been recognized by the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association and the C. A. A. U. of Canada, as being emblematic of the Amateur Lacrosse Championship of the World, is very much sought after. Mr. G. W. Grimston, secretary of the Pacific Coast Amateur Lacrosse Association writes to Mr. P. J. Lally, Chairman of the Mann Cup Trustees, advising him that he has had several letters from the English Union in regard to a trip which they intend taking next summer in quest of the Cup, and asking if lacrosse teams from England are eligible to play for the Mann Cup.

When Vancouver won the Mann Cup from the Young Torontos on the occasion of their second trip East, they evidently were of the opinion that this trophy was intended for the Amateur Championship of Canada only, but now since lacrosse is being played in almost every country in the world, and the Britishers in particular are getting to be expert lacrosse players, the Coast Champions are becoming uneasy as to the possibility of the men of England coming to Canada and taking this Cup across the water.

In England lacrosse is strictly amateur, and has developed in a remarkable degree within the last few years; in fact when the Canadian Olympic team played the Olympic games at Shepherd's Bush, London, England, for the World's Amateur Lacrosse Championship in 1908, the Britishers threw a scare into the Canadians' Camp, among whom were Canada's foremost Amateur players of that time, the team being composed of such well-known players as Charlie Fyon, Clarrie Mackerrow, Gus Dillon, Dick Duckett, Paddy Breman, Ernie Hamilton, Henry Hoobin, of Montreal; Dan McLeod, of Calgary; Robt. Dixon, of St. Catharines, Andy Mara, Toronto; John Broderick, Cornwall; Dr. G. H. Campbell, Orangeville, and Tommy Gorman, Ottawa, and at one time during the progress of this World's Championship Match the score was tied at 9 goals each.

Since that event the English players have greatly profited by the Canadians' close passing and boring-in tactics, and when they come to Canada the chances are even as to whether or not they take this coveted trophy across to the British Isles.

In any case, they are coming across the water to make the try, and if any of the above players were asked their opinion as to what they thought the Britishers' chances were, they would readily assure you that it would be good betting to place your money on the men from across the "Pond."

Mr. Lally has replied to Mr. Grimston advising him that the Cup represents the Amateur Championship of the World, not Canada only, and that a challenge from the Amateur Champions of England, or in fact any other country where lacrosse is played, will be quite in order. It is therefore up to all good Canadians and supporters of Canada's National Game, to give the helping hand to their different teams, and for all players of the defending team to give their very best efforts in order to keep the Cup in Canada, and prevent its being taken across the water by the English Challengers.

This challenge of the Englishmen will do more than anything else to add zest to lacrosse, as it will open the eyes of all supporters of the game as to the possibility of losing to Canada the highest trophy emblematic of lacrosse—The Mann Gold Cup.

S. S. CONVENTION

Peel County Association Held 56th Annual Meeting in Bolton.

The fifty-sixth annual Convention of Peel County Sunday School Association was held in Bolton on Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 27 and 28. Delegates were present from all over the County. Addresses were given by Rev. J. W. Rae and Provincial Secretary Rev. R. W. Halpenny, of Toronto, and by several of the local ministers and Sunday School workers. The programme was of a very practical character and should be helpful to all who attended. Reports of the work as brought out by the reports of the different township organizations show the Sunday Schools of the County to be progressing toward the goal of "Golden Jubilee" standard, which they are aiming to reach by 1915. All the departments were shown to be in working order though it will be necessary for a swift advance in some to reach the goal. Mr. J. P. Burbridge, of Malton, the president, presided at all the sessions in a very acceptable manner, except that at the evening session, the newly elected President, Mr. J. F. McDonald, Belfountain, took the chair. A united choir rendered good service in the song service at the evening meetings and the church was well filled at all sessions and crowded at some. The officers elected for the next year were:—President—J. F. McDonald, Belfountain; 1st vice-pres.—W. J. McKinney, Brampton; 2nd vice-pres.—W. J. McKinley, Caledon East; Secy.-Treas.—T. H. Graham, Inglewood. Superintendents:—Elementary—Miss M. Rayson, Brampton; Secondary—H. A. Spratt, Inglewood; Adult Bible Class—T. J. Lundy, Brampton; Home Department—Miss J. McMullen, Malton; Teacher Training—Rev. J. H. More, Caledon East; Missionary Dept.—Miss V. Hewson, Tullamore; Temperance Dept.—Lorne Davidson, Meadowvale; Provincial Representative—Mrs. L. A. Wakely, Bolton.

St. Mark's Banquet

St. Mark's Men's Banquet will be held on Tuesday evening, Feb. 24th, under the direction of The Women's Auxiliary. Rev. Prof. Hallam, M. A., B.D., of Toronto, will be the speaker of the evening. Subject, "Cash and Credit."

Caledon Dramatic Club.

The Caledon Dramatic Club will present their popular Play, "The Old New Hampshire Home," in the English Church Hall at Mono Mills on Friday evening, Feb. 20th. The Play will be given under the auspices of St. John's Church, Mono Mills. A good programme of music, addresses etc. will be provided before and between acts. Curtain will rise at 8 o'clock. Admission, 25c and 15c.

Militia Changes

The Brampton Conservator states that the officers of the Halton Rifles and the 36th Peel Regiment will go to Ottawa shortly to take up with the Minister of Militia the question of making several changes in connection with both battalions. The most important proposal, it adds, is to enlarge the area covered by the two regiments by transferring the Fort Credit and Brampton companies of the 36th to the 20th (Halton) Regiment and shifting the Newmarket and Aurora companies of the York Rangers to the 36th.

TAMARACK COMMERCIALLY EXTINCT.

Insect Threatens Tree's Extermination.

"The large larch sawfly," says the Dominion Entomologist, "has destroyed between fifty and one hundred per cent. of the native larch, or tamarack." Every farmer in Eastern Canada has observed this mysterious killing off of the tamarack in the low-lying portions of his woodlot. Mr. J. B. Tyrrell, who recently explored the new District of Patricia for the Ontario Government, reports on the large numbers of the tamarack in that region, but says, "Unfortunately most of the trees are dead." Through the continued attacks of a single forest pest, whose ravages it is now impossible to control, one of the most valuable timber trees of Eastern Canada is now in danger of extinction.

In British Columbia, forest insects have destroyed in some places over twenty-five per cent of the timber crop. Technical foresters in the employ of the Dominion Forestry Branch have noticed similar depredations, when conducting forest surveys in the Northwest. Similar conditions prevail in the United States, where on some of the National Forests the damage done by insects last summer far exceeded that done by fire. H. S. Geaves, Chief Forester of the United States, says: "A few isolated trees attacked by insects may form the nucleus of a devastation quite as serious as that from forest fire."

It is very likely that in Canada as much damage is done to the standing timber by forest pests as by forest fires. Fortunately the former are largely dependent for their existence on the latter, for fire furnishes the chief feeding and breeding grounds to the insect foes of the forest. Thus the Dominion Forestry Branch, by reducing the fire-burnt area on Dominion forest reserves last summer to less than two one-hundredths of one per cent (0.02 per cent.), has succeeded in "killing two birds with the one stone." One of the foresters, describing how this is accomplished, says:—"Fire minimizes the vitality of the tree and climate takes advantage of the weakness, thereby creating a condition favourable to insects and fungi. By minimizing the damage done by fire and handling the various stands according to one of the silvicultural systems suitable to that type the result can only be strong, vigorous trees better equipped to withstand all natural enemies."

Hospital Notes

The following donations are gratefully acknowledged by the Hospital Board:—Camilla Women's Institute, $10; Mrs. W. H. Lugsdin, $5; Town Council, $75.

Keen interest is being evinced in the forthcoming production of "Alice in Wonderland," which will be given in Orangeville Opera House on Thursday and Friday evenings under the auspices of Lord Dufferin Chapter, Daughters of the Empire. Reserve seats have been fixed at 50c and rush seats at 35c. There has been a good sale of the reserve plan, which opened at The Banner office on Saturday afternoon. It is only recently that the fascinating story of "Alice in Wonderland" has been set to music and dramatized, but the operatta, as dramatized by Miss D. Hope Leonard, bids fair to become just as popular as the story. The production is splendidly staged and requires from one hundred and fifty to two hundred people to assist the principals to present the various scenes.

McLAUGHLIN MOTOR CARS

The enthusiasm with which McLaughlin Buick cars have been received in the past, the growing demand for that luxury of motion, flexibility and power that can be produced on a "Six" cylinder car, is the reason for the New McLaughlin Buick (B. 55).

The fact that Six Cylinder automobiles are now made even lighter than Fours, and handled with the ease of small cars, has developed a constantly increasing number of enthusiastic adherents of the Six.

In this Silent Big Six we have produced a car which justifies the belief that we have outclassed everything in Six Cylinder construction.

Flexibility unequalled. As vibrationless at sixty miles as at four, due to the perfect balance of every part.

The ultra-exclusiveness of this McLaughlin-Buick Six places it alone for beauty of design and finish.

Altogether it isn't too much to say that the introduction of this car opens up a new era for the Motorists of Canada.

FACTS TO BE ESTABLISHED

We do not intend to convey anything to the mind of the buyer that we do not back up with the car that we "sing" about. There are four essential facts that a purchaser of a "Six" should establish before reaching a decision, namely :—

(1) He should determine the stability and the permanency of the manufacturers.
(2) He should prove by actual demonstration, how slow the car in question will run in "high gear," and whether the power developed is sufficient to carry a full load.
(3) If the results are satisfactory with reference to how slow the car will run in high speed, he need not make the test as to how fast it will run, because the slowness with which it will operate with a full load in high speed will demonstrate its power, and if you have sufficient power at slow speed, you can rest assured you have it at high speed, because power and speed in a properly designed gasoline touring car go hand-in-hand. You can't have one without the other.
(4) He should satisfy himself as to gasoline consumption; especially on a Six Cylinder pleasure car.
(5) The efficiency and dependability of the electric starter and whether he can depend on it to start the motor under all conditions at all times.

Should Insist Upon a Substantial Guarantee

When a prospective buyer has satisfied himself on the foregoing, he need have no hesitancy in making his purchase. He should, however, insist on a substantial guarantee and not promises, which are frequently and oft' times unreliable.

The manufacturer of the McLaughlin-Buick Six Cylinder Car guarantees that the "Six" will travel a given distance in high gear with a full load at a speed of not less than fifty-five miles per hour, without vibration, and carry its load at all speeds and under all conditions, with perfect comfort to the passengers.

We further guarantee it will do all this on less gasoline than any other Six Cylinder manufactured.

We absolutely guarantee that the McLaughlin Buick Six Cylinder Car with five passengers will tour over ordinary country roads on one gallon of gasoline to every seventeen miles travelled, and frequent road tests have assured us that it is possible to get as high as twenty miles per gallon.

You don't have to believe these statements, as seeing is believing. What we want you to do is to give us the opportunity to prove to you that every statement we make in reference to our 1914 cars is absolutely correct.

Write us for 1914 catalogue, showing cuts and specifications.

CANADA ONLY YOUNG NATION.

Census Figures Prove It.

More Than 80 Per Cent. of Population Under 45 Years of Age—Women Outnumber Men.

The eighteenth bulletin of the census of 1911 contains the statistics of ages of the people by single years, by totals for Canada and for each of the provinces, also comparative statistics for the distribution of the people by age periods in 1911 and 1901.

The largest proportion per 1,000 of persons under ten years is found in the province of Quebec, with 273,508, as compared with 271,456 in 1901, when it also held the premier position. The lowest proportion is found in British Columbia, with 166,345, followed by Ontario, with 200,316 per 1,000; these two provinces occupying the same relative positions in 1901, the former having 169,374 and the latter 208,393 per 1000. The provinces which show a betterment at this age are Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec. The great falling off is shown by Manitoba, which has dropped from 270,090 to 248,677, and by Prince Edward Island, which has fallen away to 214,440 per 1000.

The western provinces are the regions of young men and women, as is shown by the large per cent. of the population between the ages of 20 and 45. It is an interesting fact that the highest proportion for this age period is to be found in British Columbia and that as we come eastward the proportion assumes a constantly decreasing figure.

The provinces showing the largest proportion over seventy years old are Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario, with 52.9, 46.6, 38.1 and 34.7, respectively, per 1,000, while those showing the lowest are Alberta, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Manitoba, with 8.2, 8.8, 12.3 and 13.3 per 1000 respectively.

That Canada is pre-eminently a country of young people is evidenced by the fact that 812.9 persons in every 1000 of the population of known age, are under 45 years. As there are only five persons in every 1000, or ½ of 1 per cent. of the total population for whom an age is not given, computations on the basis of known ages are not presented.

The proportion of divorces is given as six in 10,000. Of the total male population 62 per cent. are single; 34.85 married, and 2.33 widowed. Of female population, 57.37 per cent. are single, 36.97 married, and 5.30 widowed. One man and 15 women of under 15 years are married. From 15 to 19 years 1.20 per cent. of males and 6.9 per cent. of females are married.

Of the total population 12.31 per cent. were under five years of age in 1911, as against 11.07 per cent. in 1901, whilst those who had attained the allotted span of life reported only 2.81 per cent. in the last census, as compared with 3.04 per cent. in the preceding one.

There were 30.03 per cent. of the population between the ages of five and nineteen, as compared with 32.57 per cent. in 1901. It is also worthy of note that only 14.02 per cent. of the total population were fifty years of age and over in 1911, as compared with 14.42 in 1901.

The influence of immigration on the relative standing of the sexes is shown by the fact that in 1911 there were nearly 113 men to every 100 women, as compared with 105 to 100 in 1901. For the population under 15 years of age the proportion of males to females is fairly level, with the former having but a slight advantage. In the population between the ages of 20 and 45 this influence is strikingly shown—the aggregates for this period giving 124 males to 100 females. At the age of 70 the ratio of males to females assumes again its normal proportions. From eight years of age and upward, the female population exhibits a greater tenacity of life than do the males.

In all eastern cities the female population outnumbers the male in very nearly a corresponding ratio to the extent that makes preponderate over females in the west. Montreal is the only Canadian city where the numbers of males and females are in fairly true proportions.

WHEN YOU'RE SICK YOUR WAGES STOP

You know what that means—misery—worry—big bills—debt!

You know you can't afford to get sick. Keeping in good health means food and clothing for you and your family. It is up to you to take care of yourself. It is up to you, whenever you don't feel right, to take something to make you right, to strengthen you, build you up, ward off worse sickness—protect you and your family. That thing we have in Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. In offering it to you, we protect you against money-risk, by personally promising you that, if it does not restore your health, we will give back your money without word or question. We believe it is the best builder of health, energy and strength you can get. It is helping many of your neighbors. If it don't help you, we will give back your money.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is composed principally of pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites. Each has long been endorsed by successful physicians. Here they are for the first time combined. The result is a remarkable nerve, blood and strength-building remedy that is both food and medicine. For all who are nervous, rundown and debilitated—no matter what the cause; for old people; for convalescents; for puny children, we know of nothing that will give health and strength as quickly as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a real builder of good blood, strong muscles, good digestion. Pleasant to take, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. If you don't feel well, economize both money and strength by beginning to-day to take Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. Sold only at the Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. T. F. & T. J. PICTURES FOR THE DOGS.

A Cinematograph Show Only Interested the Animals in Spots.

A moving picture show was recently given in London to determine what effect a cinematograph picture had on the intelligence of animals. A series of motion pictures was reeled off in a darkened room before an audience of prize dogs. First some pictures of a dog show were run through. The dogs walked up and had a look at it and turned away, obviously bored and uninterested. Evidently the subject was too familiar.

They woke up, however, when an elephant came splashing into a pool of water and appeared to be walking into the room. A massive bulldog made a dash for the screen. With his head up and ears pricked, he got ready to attack, and the whole audience barked and bayed in blood curdling discord. Pictures of birds also irritated them, but when other animals were shown they quickly recognized that they were not looking at the real thing and in a few seconds quieted down completely.

The general result of the experiment seemed to be that dogs do not understand still pictures, but that they appreciate motion, though it very largely depends upon the nature of the thing moving. Pearson's Weekly.

SALT A-PLENTY IN PERU.

A Natural Factory That Is Operated on an Automatic Plan.

About a hundred miles north of Lima, near the town of Huacho, is one of the great curiosities of nature, a salt factory on an automatic plan.

When the tide comes in it fills a lot of shallow basins, and the water is prevented from flowing back into the sea by closing the gates. The atmosphere is so dry that the water evaporates rapidly and leaves a sediment of salt in an almost pure state, which is scraped up, packed into sacks and shipped to market.

Within the coast a little farther the percolation of sea water through the porous rocks into pits and hollows has caused immense deposits of salt to accumulate. The salt is taken out in blocks six or eight inches square and sold in that form. As soon as the salt is excavated the water comes in again and in a year or two has solidified and is ready for the market.

Wells driven into the sand disclose strongly impregnated water at a depth of twenty-five feet, which seems to be a great deal heavier than the sea water, and is drawn off into vats for evaporation.

Did She Keep Her Temper?

Mr. Biles is a very hasty tempered man, but he is also one who keeps his promises to the very letter. Therefore Mrs. B. extracted from him a promise always to count twenty before he speaks if he feels rage coming upon him. Last Sunday he rushed into the back drawing room spluttering with fury and red in the face. Mrs. Biles rose and laid a gentle hand on his stammering lips.

"M-Mary, I—I—I"—

"Hush, dear," said the sweet woman "Count twenty and conquer yourself, and I shall be more proud of you than if you had conquered the world."

"Eighteen, nineteen, twenty"—

"Now tell me, dear."

"It's that new hat of yours that you paid 6 guineas for, and the new servant's gone out in, and it's raining hard—that's all"—London Express.

Too Much Sex In Literature.

Literature is oversexed. If we were to believe the fictionists and the playwrights, sex is the one morbid, absorbing and exclusive topic of thought and conversation. It is a misrepresentation of fact. When God created man he made him to the likeness of God. Male and female, he created them. The revolt against the order of being and the blurring of natural and inevitable distinctions by a would be new species of women-men and men-women is surely a melancholy sign of decadence both intellectual and moral.—From the Universe.

BLUE AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Hamilton Tells How She Finally Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Warren, Ind.—"I was bothered terribly with female weakness. I had pains and was not regular, my head ached all the time, I had bearing down pains and my back hurt me the biggest part of the time, I was dizzy and had weak feelings when I would stoop over, it hurt me to walk any distance and I felt blue and discouraged.

"I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now in good health. If it had not been for that medicine I would have been in my grave a long time ago."—Mrs. Annie E. Hamilton, R. F. D. No. 6, Warren, Ind.

Another Case.

Esmond, R. I.—"I write to tell you how much good your medicine has done me and to let other women know that there is help for them. I suffered with bearing down pains, headache, was irregular and felt blue and depressed all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to gain in a short time and I am a well woman today. I am on my feet from early morning until late at night running a boarding house and do all my own work. I hope that many suffering women will try your medicine. It makes happier wives and mothers."—Mrs. Anna Hansen, Esmond, Rhode Island.

THE EAST LUTHER TELEPHONE COMPANY.

There was not much excitement at the annual meeting of the East Luther Telephone Co., held a week ago, compared with other occasions, but the financial report showed a reduction of liabilities of over $132. All the net earnings were put into extensions of lines, and thus no dividend was declared. The Directors have secured a splendid system of local and rural phone connections, with prompt efficient service, and the outlook for the future is encouraging. The following officers were elected:—Wm. McKinley, president; Thomas Townsend, vice-president; Robt. Dixon, sec.-treas.; directors—S. Tate, E. A. McDougall, W. E. McArthur, John Dickson, John Holborn, R. A. Duffy; auditor, A. S. Ramsay.—Star & Vidette.

5,000 FACTS ABOUT CANADA.

Do you know Canada? A novel and unique mine of information is found in the popular booklet, "5,000 Facts About Canada," just issued for 1914, and compiled by Frank Yeigh, the well-known statistical authority on things Canadian. This new edition shows a marked advance over previous issues in an increase of new data, a handsome cover, a revised map, and improved paper. The publication contains all the essential facts of Canada's progress in a year, under such chapter heads as Agriculture, Area, Banking, Census, Mining, Manufacturing, Trade, etc., while striking tables of comparisons present a measuring rod of our national development. Its wide circulation is easily understood when its value is realized, for it presents the Dominion in a nutshell, a ready reference encyclopedia of facts and figures. It may be had by sending 25 cents to The Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 588 Huron St., Toronto, or from news dealers.

Just One More Woman Rises

To Tell Her Sisters They Can Find Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. John Cabot, After Six Years' Suffering, Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Found New Life and Energy.

White Head Perce, Que., Feb. 16th. (Special).—One more woman has risen to tell her suffering sisters they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. That woman is Mrs. John Cabot, well known and highly respected here, and she expresses her enthusiasm in these words: "I certainly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is nothing better."

Asked to give her experience, Mrs. Cabot continued: "My trouble started in a cold, and I suffered for six years. Rheumatism, neuralgia, stiffness of the joints, cramps in the muscles and heart flutterings were among my symptoms, and finally Bright's Disease developed. It was then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they helped me almost from the start. After taking four boxes I feel like a new woman."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Healthy kidneys strain all the impurities and poisons—all the seeds of disease—out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure the disease but by ensuring good blood give new life and energy to every part of the body.

THE BANNER, FEB. 26th, 1914.

THE USE OF TOBACCO

Federal Act Will Probably Supersede Provincial Measure.

Latter Applicable in Cases of Minors Letween 16 and 18 Years.

The Methodist Parsonage,
Kleinburg, Feb. 20th, 1914.

The Editor, Orangeville Banner.

Dear Sir:—In a recent issue of your much valued paper you manifested your usual public spirit in printing a copy of "An Act to restrain the use of Tobacco by young persons" passed by the Dominion Parliament, July 20th, 1908, and in force in all the Provinces. I am enclosing herewith a copy of "An Act Respecting the use of Tobacco by Minors" passed by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, and in force July 1st, 1892, and a copy of a communication with respect to the two above mentioned Acts received by me from the Department of the Honorable, the Provincial Secretary. My wife was making use of copies of the above mentioned Acts for distribution through the W.C.T.U., and the question arose with us as to which is in force in Ontario. I wrote the Hon. W. J. Hanna and received from his Department the enclosed reply.

"Ontario Department of the Secretary and Registrar. License Branch. Toronto, Ont., 17th February, 1914.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of the 2nd instant to the Honorable the Provincial Secretary was duly received enclosing a copy of an Act passed by the Ontario Legislature dealing with the sale of tobacco to minors and asking which of the two Acts is in force. This is a very difficult question to determine, as where there is co-ordinate jurisdiction the rule is that the Federal legislation takes precedence. As an example of this I may cite to you the Local Option law and the Canada Temperance Act, the former being a Provincial Act and the second an Act of the Parliament of Canada, and wherever the latter law comes into force the former is superseded for the time being. It is quite possible that in certain cases both Acts may be in force and you will notice that in the copies you sent that the age of the person in one is 16 years and in the other 18 years. It is clear, therefore, I think that with regard to persons over 16 years of age and under 18 that the Ontario Act would apply, but whether the latter would apply in cases where the person was under 16 years it is impossible to say, there having been no judicial determination on the point.

Herewith I return you the copies which you sent.

Your obedient servant,
E. SAUNDERS,
Chief Officer.

The weekly visits of The Banner bring us news from Laurel and Orangeville in which we are much interested.

Gratefully Yours,
THOMAS R. WHITE.

The following is the text of the Provincial Act :—

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows :—

1. Any person who either directly or indirectly sells or gives, or furnishes, to a minor under eighteen years of age, cigarettes, cigars, or tobacco in any form, shall on summary conviction thereof before a justice of the peace be subject to a penalty of not less than $10, or more than $50, with or without costs of prosecution, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding thirty days, or to both fine with or without costs and imprisonment to the said amount and to the said term, in the discretion of the convicting magistrate. And in case of a fine, or a fine and costs being awarded, and of the same not being upon conviction forthwith paid, the justice may commit the offender to the common gaol, there to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding thirty days, unless the fine and costs are sooner paid.

2. This Act shall not apply to the sale to a minor for his parent or guardian under a written request or order of the parent or guardian.

3. A person who shall appear to the magistrate to be under 18 years of age, shall be presumed to be under that age unless it is shewn by evidenre that he is in fact over that age.

4. This Act shall go into effect on the 1st day of July, 1892.

"FATHER" HOGAN'S DEATH

Was a Pioneer Missionary in Northern British Columbia

Canon Rix Gives Interesting Incidents of His Life and a Graphic Account of the Funeral on Graham Island.

The Banner has been favored with another delightful letter from Canon Rix, of Prince Rupert, B.C., formerly rector of St. Mark's Church here. Our readers will find the letter welll worth their careful perusal.

Prince Rupert, B.C.,
Feb. 9th, 1914.

Dear Banner :

It was my privilege to have a very interesting trip last week and it may be that the readers of The Banner would care to hear something of it. But before giving an account of the trip it will be necessary to say something of a very unique man, whose name has been a byword along the British Columbia coast for years. The Rev. "Father" Hogan (an Anglican missionary) was known to nearly everyone in northern B.C., whether Indian or white man, landsman or sailor. Over twenty years ago he came out from Ireland, where he had been educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and where he had done service for the Irish Church missions. But he heard the call of the west, and like the good soldier that he was, did not hesitate to obey and arrived in this part of B.C., when there was little but Indians and an occasional trading vessel. He was particularly fitted for the work, being a man of gigantic stature and of immense physical strength, as well as having a heart corresponding to his great body and being kindly, jovial and sympathetic in the extreme. When white settlers began to come in there were many occasions when his great strength was a very necessary qualification for successful work. Many stories are told of him in this regard. For example : On one occasion a certain mining camp had among its numbers a desperado, who boasted of his prowess, and who declared that no preacher would come there with his —— foolishness, and he would show that man Hogan what he would do with him the next day when he was expected. Well, "Father" Hogan arrived and as he drew up his boat on the shore the fighting miner went down to interview him and asked with much profanity what he wanted there. Meanwhile the whole camp was watching from a distance what was taking place. The big parson said nothing, but when he had his boat secured he walked over to his questioner and suddenly reaching out his great hands he grabbed him by the shoulders, lifted him up, and tossed him round, vigorously hustled him up the incline before him, until he reached the room where the service was to be held and finally bumped him down on a front seat and said, "I came here to bring such men as you to church, now sit there." The humiliated braggart sat there and received the benefit of a fine sermon with a glorious Irish brogue. A score of such stories are told of him. He was absolutely devoid of fear. A story of another kind is told of him. More recently, he was surprised when he went into his pulpit at Port Simpson, where he once ministered, to preach one Sunday morning, to see sitting in the front seat no less a person than Sir Richard McBride. I appears that the Government had not been treating the Indians in a way that was satisfactory to "Father" Hogan, so he at once turned his whole attention to Sir Richard and to that question and it is said that the popular and able Premier of British Columbia never heard plainer truths in more vigorous language. On another occasion he saw in his church a prominent white man, who had acted the libertine in the Indian camp and the great preacher turned on him and pointing his huge hand at him denounced the fiend in language which made him cower like a whipped animal before him.

But I cannot go on with these stories. On Sunday, Feb. 1st, a wireless message came across from Graham Island, 80 miles out in the Pacific, announcing that "Father" Hogan was dead—cut off by pneumonia when only sixty-two years of age. In Prince Rupert the news was passed from lip to lip until by Monday morning everyone was saying, "'Father" Hogan is dead.' Flags were hung at half-mast and columns were given in the newspapers to an account of his life. A message was received from Ottawa granting the use of the Government fishery patrol steamer to take those who wished to go the eighty-mile journey to Masset on Graham Island to the funeral. The accommodation on the boat was not sufficient to carry those who wished to go, but I was fortunate in being specially asked by the Bishop to be one of the party. I will not say much about the trip over only to say that for the first time in my life I was sea sick, but if my worst enemy in Orangeville could have seen the ocean and have seen me he would have excused and pitied me.

It may be of interest to some of your readers to hear something of the funeral. Masset is an Indian mission, the Indians being of the Haida tribe. They have a church seating about 300. It was draped in black and packed to the doors. The coffin was the most striking casket I had ever seen. Some of the Indians had wanted to send for a fine one from Prince Rupert, but the young men asked to be allowed to make one, and it would have been a shame not to have allowed them to do so, for the result of their labors was a splendid piece of workmanship. It was made out of alternate narrow strips of red and yellow cedar glued together and varnished and shaped in the usual casket style. It was certainly much more suitable for the remains of the sturdy old pioneer than any modern factory made article. The service was most impressive, the address being given by Bishop Du Vernet, and the Rev. Heber Greene, known to many in Mono, and myself taking part. The singing was led by a choir of fifteen men who would do credit to any church. After the service the coffin was placed on an imitation gun carriage, appropriate for the old soldier he was, and it was covered with the Union Jack, suitable for the ardent old Imperialist he was, and a procession of between three and four hundred preceded by an Indian brass band of twenty-five pieces, proceeded to the cemetery, where the body was laid where he had asked that it might be, "at the southwest corner of the cemetery, where the winds from the ocean would sweep over it and where the breakers would almost reach it." He was buried at the foot of a government lighthouse, a fit emblem of the man who had let his light so shine that men had seen his good works and therefore given glory to the Father in Heaven.

Masset, on Graham Island, is a village of the Haida tribe, who consider themselves, and I believe they are, the highest type of Indian on the continent. The dock to which our ship drew up would be a credit to any city, and the contractor and laborers were Haidas. The shore was lined with sailboats, steamboats and launches, built, owned and run by Haidas. They have a town hall, nearly as good as the one Orangeville used to have, and where, I understand, they conduct the business of their community in a most orderly and intelligent manner. They have splendid homes. I and four others were entertained over night at the home of Mr. Henry Edenshaw, a leading Indian. He had a large house, as you will understand, when he with a family of eight children could still entertain five visitors and give each a separate room. In the sitting room was a sectional book case with all of Dickens' works ; all of Marion Crawford's works, Shakespeare, Tennyson and a large number of religious books. When we were invited into the dining room we found a table properly and tastefully set, and were given a four course dinner that would do credit to any white hostess. I sat at the right of a hostess who could not talk English, and had never been off Graham Island. She could understand English, however, and I managed to carry on some conversation by being careful to say things to which she could respond with yes or no. The host can not only converse in English but is a good platform speaker in English, and that evening at dinner he was certainly the best dressed man in the party, and there was a Bishop, a Canon, a Bishop's Chaplain, a Harbor Master and a Past Master of one of the most important Orders in the west present. The surprising part of it all is that thirty-eight years ago, that host was a little bare legged and bare headed Indian boy running around in a red blanket, the son of a fierce chief, whose greatness consisted in the fact of his having many scalps to his credit. That host's father was the man who drew up with his war canoe at the side of Admiral Prevost's anchored ship, and when he was asked to remove a certain covering from part of the canoe it disclosed a heap of gory heads of his Indian enemies. No one denies that this wonderful change has been due to the fact that in the year 1876 a lone missionary with his young wife and two-year old baby started out from the mainland in a large canoe with all their earthly belongings and after the terrible 80 miles of open sea landed at Masset, and began a work and preached a gospel which has wrought the miracle which we see before our eyes to-day. The white man is to-day beginning to pour into Graham Island and it is a sad commentary upon our boasted civilization to say that our prayers are now more than ever needed, that these really noble red men may be kept from the white man's vices.

Yours most truly,
G. A. RIX.

Pleasant Social Evening

A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cullen, 3rd line, east, Mono, on Thursday evening last, when between 65 and 70 of their neighbors and friends assembled and spent the greater part of the night in dancing, card playing and other amusements. Splendid music was provided by Messrs. Harrison, Delaney, McLean and Shimmaman. The floor managers were Messrs. Jackson Holmes and Elwood Sutton. A dainty lunch was served at midnight, after which the floor was again cleared and the dancing continued. A good time was spent by everyone present and all departed for their homes with delightful memories of the kindly hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Cullen.

ANNUAL BANQUET

Men of St. Mark's Church Held Successful Social Gathering on Tuesday Night

On Tuesday night the men of St. Mark's Church held their annual Banquet in the school room of the church. The function was under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary, whose members contributed in an important measure to its success. Judging from the sumptuous repast provided, the ladies of the Auxiliary must be staunch believers in the old saying that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach." There was a gathering of probably 125 of the "mere men" of the congregation, who did ample justice to the delicious dishes of many varieties made and served by the ladies. An excellent toast list, printed on a dainty servisette, was provided the banquetters. The toastmaster for the evening was Mayor Island. The opening toast, "The King," was honored by the hearty singing of the National Anthem by all present. "The County of Dufferin" was responded to by Sheriff Endicott and Mr. Michael Leighton. Mr. A. Firth, Principal of the Public School, replied to the toast "Our Town." "Our Diocese and Parish," brought a bright and witty speech from Rev. G. W. Tebbs, who presented an admirable review of the work and problems of the church. Coupled with the toast "Our Guest" was the name of Rev. Prof. Hallam, B.A.,B.D., of Toronto, who was the chief speaker of the evening. The distinguished guest discussed the subject, "Cash or Credit." He enumerated a number of the evils of the credit system from the standpoint of the wage earner, emphasizing the difficulty and uncertainty of being able to meet his payments, when he has adopted the plan of furnishing his home on the instalment plan. He argued that the cash and credit system entered into the church work and divided members into three classes—workers, representing cash, shirkers, representing credit and quirkers, who were designated as the auditors. The workers tackled all kinds of church work and problems, no matter how difficult ; the shirkers hung around and bobbed up only on the easy jobs and the quirkers did nothing but audit the work that the others were doing. Prof. Hallam touched on the subject of church union and its possibilities and paid a glowing tribute to the noble work which the missionaries of all denominations are doing in the remote parts of the Master's vineyard. Concluding, he expressed the hope that all church members would use the cash system in their religious duties and not endeavor to get the benefits and blessings which Christianity and the Church has brought them on credit.

Prof. Hallam is an eloquent and scholarly speaker and his address was keenly relished. Before the gathering adjourned he was tendered a hearty and unanimous vote of thanks. The banquetters also showed in an unmistakable manner their appreciation of the services of the ladies of the church, who had worked so zealously to make the banquet the success that it was. The church orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. E. H. Smith, played a few selections during the evening.

A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Is Your Baby a Good Baby?

Mothers, ask yourself the question. Is your baby a good baby? If not he is not well, for it is the nature of all babies to be good—only the sickly baby is cross and hard to mind. If baby is cross and cries continually give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be happy again. The Tablets act as a gentle laxative, regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and cure all the minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. J. P. Richard, St. Norbert, N.S., writes : "I have found Baby's Own Tablets all that is claimed for them. My baby suffered from his stomach and bowels and the Tablets cured him." They are sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Choral Union Concert.

The concert to be given by the Orangeville Choral Union on Friday evening March 6th will, without doubt, be the best musical treat ever provided by local talent. Some knowledge of the wondrous possibilities of a United Choral Society in Orangeville was given those who were present at the Concert on New Year's night. The part-songs, so beautifully rendered on that occasion by the newly organized Society, were the result of less than a month's preparation. Now, after three months under the able leadership of Mr. J. E. Jessop, this Choir of 30 voices, chosen from all the various choral organizations of the town, will present a Concert such as few can afford to miss.

Admission, 35c. All seats reserved. Plan of Hall opens at The Banner Office, Saturday next at 2 p.m. Mark your seats early. Watch for programmes.

'Alice in Wonderland'

Orangeville Amateurs Give Successful Production of Popular Operetta

Large Audiences Crowd Orangeville Opera House for Three Successive Nights

Many captivating stories have been written for the purpose of furnishing entertainment for the children. One of the most popular is the beautiful fairy tale of "Alice in Wonderland" by Lewis Carrol. Almost every mother and every child is familiar with the strange and wondrous dreams of Alice, one of the chief characters in this captivating tale. Although the story is an old one, it was not until quite recently that it was dramatized and set to music for the stage. The operetta, which promises to become quite as popular as the story, was given in the Orangeville Opera House on Thursday and Friday nights under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire. The production, which was magnificently staged under the direction of Miss Scott, who also took charge of the rehearsals, presented a variety of features, spectacular and otherwise, all delightfully and admirably calculated to permit the performers to display their talents to advantage. That the play had been eagerly anticipated was evidenced by the size of the audiences. On Thursday night the Opera House held what was practically a capacity audience. On Friday night the auditorium was again well filled. In response to a general demand for a third performance, the operetta was presented again on Saturday night at popular admission prices. The Saturday night audience was also large. The audiences were markedly appreciative on all three nights, the applause being most enthusiastic and individual comment being of a most favorable character in every instance.

That the preparatory work must have been exacting was apparent and, in view of the short time spent in rehearsal work, one must express unqualified surprise and admiration at the successful manner in which the many details incident to such an elaborate performance had been mastered. The play ran along with remarkable smoothness and if there were any hitches they were not apparent to the audience. The operetta has a rhythm and an absence of formalism that gives it an irresistible charm and attractiveness. Its music is tuneful, the drills, marches and dances are fascinating and its choruses have a charm that seems to fit in with the beautiful costumes and the superb stage setting.

Judged collectively the artists who took part in the production acquitted themselves in a manner that left little room for criticism. A number of the roles were decidedly difficult, but they were filled with a grace and facility that indicated not only a pleasing aptitude, but conscientious and intelligent work in the rehearsals. It may be said in a word that the performance equalled the most sanguine expectations of those interested and was more than satisfying to the members of the organization under whose auspices it was given.

Miss Birdie Leighton, who appeared in the title role, acted her part in a charming manner, and showed considerable dramatic power combined with a natural freedom of manner that quickly won the good opinion of her audience. Miss Winnifred Bennett, who filled the difficult part of "Queen of Hearts," looked queenly in her splendid robes and spoke her lines with real dramatic ability. The part of "King Ruler of Wonderland," was capably taken by Mr. Frederick Lewis, who gave a realistic portrayal of the august character he was selected to represent. Miss Beatrice Harshaw appeared to splendid advantage in the dual role of "Britannia" and "The Duchess." Her singing was excellent and her interpretation of her part revealed a just appreciation of the requirements of the role. As "The Cook" Miss Ruth Shaw displayed a vivacity and verve, which won the admiration and at the same time excited the risibility of her audience. Ross McPherson made a model "Tommy Atkins," looking and acting the part to perfection. As an Indian Princess and an Indian Chief, Miss Kathleen Stevenson and Mr. Percival Harding fairly excelled themselves and won the unstinted applause of the large audiences. James Dawson, who essayed the difficult part of "The Mad Hatter" is a natural born actor and spiced the performance with comedy that was keenly appreciated by everybody. Miss Muriel Laverty did herself credit in the part of "Mother Goose. Other characters, which were uniformly well taken were:—March Hare, Wm. Henderson; Dormouse, Frederick Golden; White Rabbit, Willie Allen; Cheshire Cat, Harry Firth; Wolf, Walter Dahl; Eagle, Aurie Aiken; Fox, Earl Hewson; Rooster, Bert McKay; Frog Footman, Herb. Laverty; Fish Footman, Will Porter; Caterpillar, Oscar Robinson; Spades, George Campbell, Grant Hyland, Gordon Smith; Executioner, George Leighton; Jurymen, Bert McKay, Cecil Fields, Oscar Hayes; Jap Doll, Marguerite Young; Fairy Queen, Louise McGuire.

In addition to the characters named scores of children took part in the fairies' songs and dances, which were among the most delightful features of the programme. Another pleasing specialty was the March of the Nations and Flag Spectacle in which a pretty and cleverly executed drill was presented by a number of girls. The coster specialty with song by Miss Bernice Leighton, provoked unrestrained mirth and the youthful actors, who were dressed to represent grown-ups, were encored time and again. The Cherry and Heart Girls were prettily dressed and their attractive specialties met with a hearty reception. The Cherry Girls were Misses Vera Hogg, Ruth Shaw, Daisy Morrison, Cora Irwin, Frarey Dodds and Mildred Guest and the Heart Girls, Ina Porter, Gladys Ewing, Mrs. T. Brown, Rebie Winterton, Mary Mossop and Ethel Sanderson. A double sextette, "On a Beautiful Night with a Beautiful Girl," was another number that everyone enjoyed to the fullest extent. Those taking part were Misses Hilda Irwin, Greta Golden, Gladys Hogg, Edna Keith, Ruby Allen, and Tillie Harmon and Messrs. Herbert Tuck, Ross McPherson, Earl Stevenson, Clifford Henderson, Ewart McPherson and Ernest White.

An appreciated feature of the entertainment was the fine orchestral music furnished by St. Mark's orchestra under the leadership of Mr. E. H. Smith.

The greatest credit is due all who took part in the performance. The production was an unqualified success in every way and the performers have good reason to congratulate themselves upon the success and generally acceptable character of their efforts. The proceeds for the three nights amounted to $260 and a tidy sum will go to swell the hospital fund after defraying all expenses.

MONO CENTRE.

The monthly meeting of the Mono Centre Branch of the Women's Institute has been postponed until Wednesday, March 11th. It will be held at the home of Miss Barclay, commencing at 2.30 o'clock.

The weather having moderated a little your scribe thought he might venture out of his retreat and give your readers a few notes on some of the principal events of the day.

Quite a number of our sports have taken to hunting and trapping since the mild weather came in again. Mr. Wm. Lawson shot a beautiful fox recently.

Our school teacher, Miss G. O. King, has severed her connection with S. S. No. 10. We are sorry to lose her as she has given ideal satisfaction in the section.

Miss May Carson, of Allenford, has been visiting friends in this locality during the past week.

Owing to the number of mail routes which have been mapped out for this township a change will take place on March 2nd, when a rural route will be run north from Mono Centre to Violet Hill. Mr. A. Beatty, who has been carrying the mail from Hockley to Mono Centre for the past 17 or 18 years, will terminate his contract on that date by order of the Postmaster-General. Mr. Beatty has been a courteous and obliging carrier, who has won the esteem of all the people along his route. He will be very much missed and there is general regret over the fact that his services will be no longer available in this capacity.

The Valentine Social on Feb. 14th turned out well. There was a good attendance and a varied programme was furnished to the satisfaction of all present.

The debate for Saturday night, Feb. 28th, will be on the subject, "Resolved that a limited Monarchy is a better form of Government than a Republic." The affirmative will be taken by Messrs Frank Theriault and Norman Lindsay, while the negative will be upheld by Messrs. J. A. McFadden and Ernest Arthur. A good time is expected.

Mr. Ernest Arthur took a trip to the Queen City last week.

J. A. McFadden has just finished storing away his summer's ice supply and expects to be in a position to furnish his customers with cool and refreshing drinks when most needed.

Mr. Garfield Lawson is paying an extended visit to friends in Mulmur, Hockley and other points.

Mr. Elmer Avison, of Edmonton, Alta., also is visiting in the neighborhood of his former home in Mono, and a visit to friends in this locality.

Mr. J. J. Geary spent ten days with friends in Toronto recently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Conn paid a visit to the former's parental home at Elder one day recently.

Mr. A. N. McQuilkin, who has been spending the past three weeks in Toronto, arrived home the other day looking hale and hearty.

Mr. Stuart Parascal spent the week end at John Aikens', of Elder as the guest of Miss Ethel Aikens.

HILLSBURG.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 20th, the members of the Baptist congregation met at the Parsonage to have a social time and bid good-bye to their esteemed minister, Rev. Mr. McCormack. A very pleasant social time was spent together, a fine programme of music, recitations and stories being furnished. The members presented Mr. and Mrs. McCormack with a beautiful plush couch, accompanied by an address, in which was set forth the love, reverence and respect in which Mr. and Mrs. McCormack are held by all. Mr. McCormack made a very feeling reply. Miss Louie Hall, the organist, was also presented with a wrist watch. Rev. Mr. McCormack has accepted a call to Port Elgin Baptist Church. The rev. gentleman came to Hillsburg direct from Scotland and during his sojourn here has endeared himself to the whole community on account of his sincere Christian character and his fearless denunciation of evils of all kinds. The people of all denominations represented in this community are very sorry to lose him. Mr. McCormack and family are leaving for their new home in Port Elgin on the 25th.

On Friday night about 9.30 fire broke out in the barn of Mr. John McFee, 9th line, Erin. Mr. McFee returned home from Hillsburg about 7 to 8 o'clock with a load of chop and drove it into the barn. After a short time he left to attend the Bachelors' Ball in Hillsburg, his father being the only person left at home. When the old gentleman first saw the fire it had made considerable headway, but he succeeded in getting two colts and two pigs out of the building. All the other stock, including 28 head of cattle, some horses and a number of hogs perished. The implement building, adjoining the barn, with all the implements, was also consumed. G. Smith and J. Milloy were soon on the scene, but were unable to save any more stock. Mr. Smith had to use force to restrain Mr. McFee sr. from entering the stable again as it had become too dangerous to do so. The loss is in the neighborhood of $5000 and there is only about $2600 insurance. The McFee Bros. have the sympathy of the whole neighborhood in their misfortune.

We believe Mrs. Faulkner is going to build a brand new house on Main St. this year.

Mr. W. J. Smith's storehouse is nearing completion. It will be a great addition to Main St.

The February meeting of the Women's Institute will be held at Mrs. J. H. Lacey's on Thursday afternoon.

D. & A. Corsets are Ritchie's special line.

BOWLING GREEN.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Whaley on Thursday last, when the Women's Institute gave a social evening. The programme, which was an excellent one, consisted of readings, recitations, music and speeches. Mrs. Lyman Potter delighted everyone with her humorous recitations, while Miss Minnie Durkin gave a splendid reading entitled, "Entertaining the New Minister." Miss Andrews, our popular school teacher, gave a very instructive Paper on "Our Schoolhouse, is it Ideal?" The Paper was much appreciated. Mr. N. B. Hinton made a very witty and humorous speech, which was well received, while Mr. R. H. Wansbrough spoke warmly in favor of Women's Institutes, referring in very generous terms to the splendid work they have done in the past. He said he believed that they had only begun their work. Mr. Geo. Gier gave a very interesting and instructive address on "How to make the Farm Home more Attractive," advocating labor saving devices, which he believed would help to keep the boys and girls on the farm. In all Mr. Gier made a very forceful and convincing speech, which was listened to with interest. A good oldtime spelling match was enjoyed by all, old and young taking part. This served to bring back to the older people memories of their good old school days. Miss Minnie Durkin and Mr. R. H. Wansbrough were the captains, Mr. Wansbrough's side being victorious. Mr. N. B. Hinton remained last on the floor, proving able to cope with the largest words. Supper was served during the evening. Needless to say everyone did justice to this part of the entertainment. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Whaley for the excellent manner in which they extended their hospitality to all present.

ALTON.

Mrs. Geo. McIntyre and her two sons from Oklahoma are visiting her mother, Mrs. Wm. Algie.

Mr. Geo. Strong, of Toronto, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Geo. Ward.

The hockey match between Alton and Melville Cross on Monday night furnished the spectators with a fast, clean exhibition of this popular winter pastime. The Melville boys won by a score of 6 to 3.

While coming out of the Methodist Church a week ago Monday night, Miss Young, a niece of Mr. Wm. White, had the misfortune to fall and dislocate one of her hips. As a result of the accident she will be confined to her bed for several weeks.

The carnival held on Alton Skating Rink on Wednesday night, Feb. 18th, was a splendid success. There was a large attendance of skaters, young people being present from points as far distant as Orton, Hillsburg, Erin and Caledon East. The prize winners were:—Best negro aswell, Oscar Hill, John Collier; best

MONO MILLS.

Messrs. G. A. Putnam, Supt. of Farmers' Institutes, and W. H. Tisdale, District Representative for Peel, have arranged for a general meeting for Mono Mills to be held in the English Church hall on Tuesday, March 3rd, afternoon and evening. A splendid list of subjects is to be taken up and speakers from Simcoe, York, Peel and Dufferin will be present. Each address will be accompanied by demonstrations. Meetings will commence at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.. Everyone should take advantage of these meetings. Ladies are cordially invited to the evening meeting.

Mr. Geo. Howitt, lot 8, 7th line, Mono, has decided to give up farming and will hold a clearing auction sale on Tuesday, March 3rd. See posters for particulars. Mr. Geo. Adair, of Mono Mills, has rented the farm in place of Mr. Howitt.

Quite a number of cattle were disposed of at good prices at Mr. Geo. Duke's sale in Mono Mills on Saturday last. Mr. Jas. A. Patterson wielded the hammer in his usual good style.

A large audience listened with pleasure to the recital of the Play, "My Old New Hampshire Home," by Caledon Dramatic Club in the English Church hall on Friday evening last. The Play certainly has some splendid parts and they were well taken. The Club will be well received should it decide to come to Mono Mills again. The English Church, under whose auspices the Entertainment was given, realized about $45.

VIOLET HILL.

Wood bees are the order of the day in this burg.

Most of our young people took in the dance at Jos. Haddock's last Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowers, of Toronto, are visiting here.

Mrs. John Newton, who is under the doctor's care, is improving.

Quite a number took in the races at Shelburne on Friday night.

Mr. John Bowers spent Sunday at Wm. Bell's.

Mr. Cleve Wooder was the guest of Miss Rachel Allen on Sunday.

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines written in memory of James Pierson, who departed this life, Feb. 7th, 1914.

They're gathering homeward from every land,
One by one, one by one.
As their weary feet touch the shining strand,
Yes, one by one.

They rest with the Saviour, they wait their crown,
Their travels and garments are all laid down.
They wait the white raiment, the Lord shall prepare,
For all who the glory with Him shall share.
We must come to the river side
One by one, one by one.

We are nearer its waters each eventide,
Yes, one by one;

We can hear the noise of the dashing stream,
Oft now and again thro' life's deep dream;
Sometimes the dark floods all the banks overflow,
Sometimes in ripples and small waters go.
Oh, Jesus, Redeemer, we look to Thee,
One by one, one by one.

We lift up our voices tremblingly,
Yes one by one,

The waves of the river are dark and cold,
But we know the place where our feet shall hold,
O Thou who did'st pass thro' the deepest midnight,
Now guide us and send us the staff and light.

By his sister Mary,
Wisconsin.

THE ROMANCE OF OIL

Is Canada Destined to See Sights Like these?

Oil Wells Which Date Back to Pre-historic Times.

Much has been heard of late of discoveries portending the presence of oil in Western Canada. Should the expectations of those engaged in the prospecting for oil be realized our own country will witness the spectacular features attending the development of this industry, which are the subject of an article in the World Wide Magazine.

Imagine a three hundred foot torch of flame, shooting up into the sky, capped with a great column of smoke and soot, and you have a burning "gusher" one of the most striking sights of the Californian oil fields.

Fires in the oil fields, as a matter of fact, are not at all uncommon. A few months ago a big one occurred near Bakersfield, California. It started in the engine-house of a property adjoining that of the Pacific Crude Company, upon which a "gusher" was spouting at the rate of seven thousand barrels a day. It takes very little time for flames to spread over this oil-covered ground, and soon the "sumps," or oil storage holes, of this company were ablaze, and from them the great "gusher" itself became ignited. It was a wonderful spectacle at night, for the flames would sink and at times almost disappear; then they would suddenly spurt upward with a roar, hurling a finger of flame far into the sky.

In face of an outbreak of this kind, of course, ordinary methods of fire-extinction are useless. Seventeen portable steam boilers were rushed to the ground, and great volumes of steam were injected into the heart of the fire, but in spite of every effort it burnt viciously for over a week before it was finally smothered. The conflagration covered an area of [illegible] acres, eating up the contents of [illegible] storage basins of crude oil, the engine houses, the cook houses, and whatever lay in its path. The loss was over $30.000.

Very often big fires occur when what is called the "gas belt" is entered. These usually come unexpectedly, from the ignition of the inflammable vapor, and in one case the "strike" was announced by a deafening explosion, followed by flame, the gas having ignited from a light on the derrick. It took several days to extinguish this blaze, and the well was then capped. the owners intending to use this natural gas for domestic purposes as well as for fuel for the boilers. As soon as the vent was closed, however, the gas pressure became so strong that it tore away the guage, throwing a column of mingled sand and gas upwards for many hundreds of feet with a force estimated at over a thousand pounds to the square inch.

Perhaps in no other sphere of activity do such a variety of startling events happen as in the oil fields. For days and weeks and months the work of drilling goes steadily on, without results—heart sickening monotony for the owners, who are spending small fortunes in development. Then suddenly, the tools may be shot from the hole with great violence, by the force of the gushing oil, driving up through the top of the derrick and making kindling wood of the great frame that supports the machinery. Even this may not be so satisfying to the owners as might be imagined, for such circumstances often find the company unprepared with basins or trenches in which to store the oil produced in such large quantities, and much expense and waste is the result.

By far the most spectacular oil-well in California, and probably in the world, is the Lakeview. This wonderful well "gushed" steadily for eighteen months at the rate of thirty thousand barrels a day. The story of the "coming in" of the Lakeview is very vividly told by one of the mine owners.

At midnight on March 15th, he states, the oil-sand was centred in well No. 1, which started to "gush," choked up in a few minutes, following which nothing was done until seven o'clock on Tuesday morning, when the bailer was dropped down the hole to loosen the sand. Suddenly, during the progress of the churning, the bridge was broken up, and the bailer shot out of the hole with terrific force, lodging halfway through the crown block at the top of the derrick. Until eight o'clock on Tuesday evening, when it again sanded up, "twenty-four gravity" oil shot out of the hole at the rate of thirty thousand barrels a day. Then, after being quiet for an hour and a half, the well again broke loose with greater force than ever, shooting stones the size of doubled fists, mixed with sand and oil, up through the casing, which was over six inches and a half in thickness. These missiles literally wore out and tore loose the crown block and cap timbers, releasing the bailer. The well next spouted rapidly, but with a geyser-like action, through this opening, hurling the oil about two hundred feet high. The spectacle on Wednesday morning was plainly visible to passengers on the train twenty-three miles east of Maricopa. During a windstorm on Wednesday afternoon the spray ruined all wearing apparel exposed at Maricopa, two miles away.

The following day the flow was measured both by the standard and independent guages, and between the hours of eleven a.m. and three p.m. thirty-two thousand barrels were pumped through one six-inch and one four-inch pipe into the tanks, the oil being caught in a series of reservoirs, the last of which is of a million barrel capacity.

On June 22nd, one hundred days after the well was "brought in," the estimate was made that four million barrels of oil had been produced, worth about two and a half million dollars. The flow had not diminished at the end of this period, and the well went on "gushing" for eighteen months. This was two years ago. At last they succeeded in capping the well, and it then went on producing in a steady and dignified manner. In November, 1912, it again broke loose, and at the moment of writing is "gushing" at a tremendous rate.

There is nothing more spectacular in the oil industry, probably, than the sudden rise to wealth of many who have struggled along in poverty for years. When, after many hardships, a well "comes in," it frequently brings riches to the fortunate owner. There are countless stories of this kind told on the fields.

During the last few years the "jumping" of oil claims has caused as much excitement as similar events in the old gold mining days, and armed men are often detailed to protect properties in dispute.

A very amusing feature—at least, to the outsider who is merely looking on—is the race which is sometimes run in sinking a well. Two derricks are raised side by side, owned by different parties, and the drilling begins, each spurred on by rivalry and often hatred for the other side. According to the mining laws, the first to secure oil is the rightful claimant to the property.

Although the oil boom in California is only a score of years old, yet indications have been discovered that oil was worked in very early times, even as far back as the days of the Spanish colonists. In fact, there is one oil pit or swamp dating back to prehistoric times. Near this pit, a few miles from Los Angeles, a large tooth was found about five years ago and sent to the University of Berkeley. It was identified as that of the sabre-tooth tiger—an animal supposedly unknown to the country.

For many years the pit has been abandoned, and when scientific men became interested they found around the pit bones that had been dug out by ignorant workmen, who had no idea of their interest or value.

This pit, as left by the laborers 20 years ago, is three hundred feet long, one hundred feet wide, and sixty feet deep, and is now full of black water to within ten feet or so from the top. The scientists have taken possession of it, and are excavating fossils of prehistoric animals, birds, etc., that have apparently been collecting there for hundreds of generations. Many complete skeletons are being taken out of animals that were not known to have existed on the American continent. The theory of the scientists is that the marshy nature of this land has been much the same throughout the ages, and that liquid asphaltum formerly covered the area as it does today. Little pools of water lured animals and birds into the sticky fluid and held them prisoners, for every struggle to free themselves sank them more hopelessly into the bog. These accidents occur at the present time, and birds, ducks, and small animals are often found helpless, but still alive, in this prehistoric death trap.—Maclean's Magazine.

HAVE PRET Y HAIR

Thick, Soft, Fluffy and no Dandruff—Use Parisian Sage.

If your hair is losing its natural color, coming out and splitting, or lacks that enviable softness, gloss and beauty, do not despair—pretty hair is largely a matter of care. If it is too thin make it grow. If it is harsh and brittle soften it up—lubricate it. If you have dandruff it is because the scalp is too dry and flakes off. Freshen up the scalp with Parisian Sage — all dandruff disappears, falling hair and itching head cease, your hair is doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage, sold by F. S. Pickering and at all drug counters, is just what you need—a large bottle costs but 50 cents. It surely makes the hair lustrous and seem twice as abundant. You cannot be disappointed in Parisian Sage.

PONDEROUS SEA ELEPHANTS.

They Have Two Foot Trunks and Flippers Tipped With Claws.

That which is believed to be the last herd of sea elephants known to exist is to be found at Guadalupe island, off the west coast of Mexico. In the herd there are now only about thirty specimens.

The sea elephant is an important link in the chain of evolution and is the largest of all fin footed animals. The adult male is about twenty-two feet in length and is about eight feet high when propped up on his front flippers in a natural position. These great bulls weigh from two to three tons and have a trunk, or proboscis, which, when relaxed, hangs down over the mouth about two feet. In the end of this the nostrils are placed rather wide apart, and when they breathe their whole mass trembles in tiny undulations to the very end.

The flippers are thick and tipped with heavy claws. There is a tail about one foot and a half long, separated horizontally in two divisions. This tail acts as a propeller, to resist the huge creature when he comes in through the breakers. He hoists his back flippers and tail so as to catch the full sweep of the waves, and then allows himself to be washed up on the beach.

Coarse, bristly hair grows sparsely from the back along the body, and a tough protecting crust of flesh reaches like a shield from the lower jaw down over the chest and round to the back of the neck. This biblike affair is nature's provision for protection in time of battle. The male fights viciously in the mating season, and the chest protector prevents much loss of life

Sea elephants live on various kinds of small fish and use the trunk to seize them with. Afterward the food is transferred to the mouth precisely as elephants manage it.

EGGS BY THE YARD.

Korea Also Produces Oysters That Weigh Ten Pounds Each.

While in the orient a correspondent had occasion to call on friends who dived near Seoul, the principal city of Korea. He tells the following story:

One morning my hostess, while giving orders for the necessary things from the market for the day, mentioned four yards of eggs. I accompanied the steward that day on his marketing trip, and when the eggs were asked for the grocer reached down in a barrel and brought out the end of a large straw rope. He measured off the required length on the counter, just as a dry goods store clerk would measure off cloth, rolled it up and put it in the basket without a smile. The eggs were inside of this hollow straw rope, with a string tied on the outside of it between each egg. This effectually protected the eggs from being broken while handling.

Another day my hostess ordered two "small" oysters for dinner. This order caused me to wonder a little, for I knew that there would be seven to dine, besides the servants, but when the oysters arrived all was explained, for one weighed four and a half pounds, and the other five pounds. On inquiry I was informed that some of the oysters on the northern side of Korea weigh as much as ten pounds.—Christian Science Monitor.

THIS NEW MEDICINE SAVES YOU MONEY

To give your hair that gloss and lustre and wavy silky-softness, use Harmony Hair Beautifier. It takes away the dull dead look of the hair, and makes it bright—turns the stringiness into fluffiness—overcomes the oily odors and leaves a sweet, true-rose fragrance—makes the hair easier to put up neatly and easier to keep in place. It is just exactly what it is named—a hair beautifier, and whether your hair is ugly now or beautiful, it will improve its appearance. You'll be delighted with the results. Simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it: Contains no oil; will not change the color of hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruffless and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure, liquid shampoo is most convenient to use, because it gives an instantaneous rich, foaming lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few minutes. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet smelling cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo 50c. TO PREVENT CAR SHORTAGE

Car Efficiency Best Promoted by Co-operation.

The Board of Trade News of Toronto recently printed an article on how best to prevent car shortage, and among other things points out that car efficiency can best be attained in the following manner:

1. By the satisfactory handling of traffic with the least number of cars, which can best be accomplished by the ordering of cars of suitable dimensions and loading same to their full capacity.

As an illustration: Assuming a tonnage of 3,000,000 tons is loaded and transported in 250,000 cars, or twelve tons per car, an increase in the load to 15 tons would result in the same traffic being transported in 200,000 cars, thereby freeing 50,000 cars for other service. A firm shipping 5 cars of 12 tons each per day for 300 working days, by increasing the average load per car to 15 tons, move the same volume of traffic in 120 instead of 150 cars.

2. Handling the business in the smallest number of car days. The railways should transport the freight quickly, supplemented by prompt loading and unloading of cars by their patrons. The full free time permitted by the Car Service Rules should not be taken advantage of unless actually necessary.

3. Shippers and consignees should ascertain whether their facilities are amply sufficient to ensure the prompt handling of their freight, and the ordering of cars for loading and unloading should be so arranged as to lose no time in handling when placed.

The News believes that the public as well as the railways have duties to perform to prevent a shortage of cars.

BAFFLED THE BEAR

Exciting Domestic Event in the Early Days of Vermont.

TALE OF AN ALL NIGHT SIEGE.

An Ugly Visitor That Gave Herself a Warm Reception in a Settler's Cabin, a Quick Retreat by the Inmates and a Display of Presence of Mind.

Two of the first English settlers in the town of Addison, Vt., were John Strong and Zedok Everest. Early in the fall of 1776 Strong and Everest had to go to Albany for provisions. Pioneer women seldom worried, but for some reason Molly Strong felt uneasy after her husband had gone. She and her sons got in a good supply of fuel and did the chores early.

When they came back to the cabin the baby was crying for his supper, and Mrs. Strong gave him a cup of warm milk and set him down in front of the fireplace. She had just swung the kettle of samp from the fire when she heard a noise. Looking round, she saw the blanket that served for a door swing aside as a great bear thrust her head into the room. The children screamed, and the bear backed out in haste, but Molly Strong knew that she would return.

"Quick, children!" she said as she caught up the baby. "Climb the ladder. Let sister go up first, now Johnnie, now Frank—hurry, hurry!"

When the others were safe in the loft Mrs. Strong climbed up with the baby and drew the ladder after her. She laid it across the hole, and then she and the children sat down and waited. The floor of the loft was made of round poles laid closely together, but not fastened. It was dangerous to move about on it.

Peering down through the pole floor, they listened and watched for the bear to come back. They could hear her moving round the house, and once a big paw crashed through the oiled paper at the window hole. Finally she came to the door and, after blinking uncertainly at the fire, walked in. Two cubs followed her. The old bear presently upset the pan of milk on the table, and the cubs began to lap it up eagerly.

"I'd like a taste of that myself," Frank whispered.

"So would I," Johnnie replied. "I'm awful hungry."

Next, the bear found the pudding kettle and took a mouthful of the boiling samp. Jumping back with a cry of pain and rage, she broke the pot with a swift blow of her paw, and then sat up on her haunches, growling and whining, and began to dig the pudding out of her mouth. The cubs sat and watched her in grave wonder.

That was too much for the children, who burst into laughter. Instantly the bear gave a loud roar and rushed toward the hole with the ladder across it. Mrs. Strong gave hurried orders:

"Get me a pole, Frank, quick! Now, get another. Punch her if she tries to climb up. Be careful. Don't fall through."

The baby, awakened by the noise, began to wail, and Mrs. Strong soothed him with one hand while with the pole in the other she warded off the bear. The little girl clung crying to her mother's skirts, but the boys each had a long pole and prodded the bear through the rungs of the ladder. The big brute finally shuffled off toward the door. She pulled down the blanket and tore it into shreds; then she went out, followed by her cubs.

"She's gone!" Johnnie said. "Do you think she'll come back, mother?"

"I expect she will, son, but we can manage her—if we keep awake."

"I won't go to sleep!" groaned Johnnie. "I'm too hungry!"

Nevertheless, the silent wait in the dimly lighted loft made them all drowsy, and before the bear returned Mrs. Strong knew by their heavy breathing that the children were asleep. It was near midnight when the bear came in and renewed her efforts to reach the loft. Mrs. Strong rapped her sharply with her pole, and there was a roar that brought the boys to their feet.

Dazed and only half awake, Johnnie ran across the loft. His foot slipped into a gap between the poles, and as he fell other poles spread apart. Down he went into the room with the bear and her cubs. The bear did not see him fall, but she faced about at the noise and started toward him.

Quick as a flash, Mrs. Strong brought her pole down on the nearest cub and pinned him to the floor. The bear turned to rescue her squealing offspring, and Frank drew his brother up into the loft unharmed.

No injury to herself could have weakened the old bear's courage like the attack on her cub, and although at intervals she slouched in and out of the cabin, she made no further attempt to reach the loft. As it grew light, Mrs. Strong, watching through the chinks in the wall, saw her lead her cubs across the clearing into the woods.

As soon as she thought it safe she lowered the ladder and the family came down. They saw no more of the bear, and when Mr. Strong came home he made the cabin secure with a door made from basswood slabs and hung on wooden hinges.—Youth's Companion.

Beware of the man who does not return your blow. He neither forgives you nor allows you to forgive yourself.—George Bernard Shaw.

TORTURED WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Walk, Until "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Him

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd, 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continual exposure, left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk. My bowels were so constipated that I only had one passage a week until I got to using "Fruit-a-tives". They cured me of both the Rheumatism and Constipation. In my regular employment, I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health. No more Rheumatism or Constipation. Could only Walk From Chair to Bed

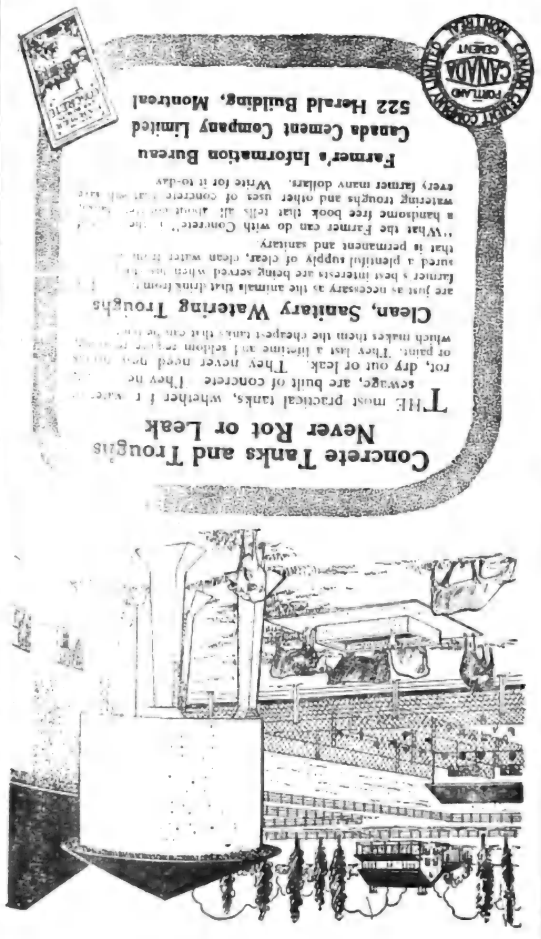
What thousands of people are crippled by lumbago and rheumatism arising from derangement of the kidneys. Many, very many, have obtained relief and cure by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Others continue to suffer, not knowing the efficiency of this extraordinary prescription of the famous Receipt Book author.

Mr. Mosher.

Mr. W. H. Mosher, South Augusta, Gronville Co., Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and firmly believe there is no medicine to equal them. I was troubled for years with kidney disease and this treatment has cured me. When I began the use of these pills I had Rheumatism so bad I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field and work like any man. I cannot speak too highly of so excellent a medicine."



This statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister of Brockville, Ont.

There is proof like this in almost every town and village in the Broad Dominion. There is no doubting the exceptional value of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a means of regulating the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels and thereby removing from the body the poisonous impurities which cause pain, suffering and helplessness. At all dealers, 25c. a box, 5 for $1.00. Try a sample box at our expense. Just say where you saw this advertisement. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The point of interest is thus—that whereas the American cooks and waiters who had aforetime been employed by the company were for the most part unreliable, leaving after two or three months' employment, the men found in London remained the whole season; and at this moment of the entire number 600 are still in the employment of the company. Some left to better themselves; a few went back; but the greater bulk are at work quite contented, as the commissioner, sent out recently "Answers" and who talked with the men, avouches. These men are Swiss, Scandinavian, Germans to some slight degree, and British. The Swiss speak at least three languages, and are most adaptive. This matter of help on the dining cars is one of the serious problems to be faced by Mr. W. A. Cooper, the manager of the sleeping and dining car service—the difficulty of getting and then retaining the right men; but the experiment of going to London and advertising for them has proved an unqualified success. It seems unthinkably remote to consider the big posters of the early days which announced rather riotously the advantage of the C.P.R. in the matter of gastronomic enjoyment. The delicate aestheticism which the company now provides marks the apogee of advance and elaboration.

THE WEREWOLF

An Adventure In a Chinese Temple

By CLARISSA MACKIE

In front of the wretched Chinese inn John Thornton made his decision. His bearers had paused in the gateway leading to the filthy, ill smelling courtyard, while the landlord of the inn peered distrustfully at the foreign devil who had applied for a bed.

"Len Ho!" called Thornton, and his guide and interpreter stood forth.

"Hi?" shrilled the man.

"I cannot stop in this place. I will go back and sleep in the ruined temple we passed beyond the city wall; better rats and bats than—vermin and other evils."

"As my lord wishes. But the temple is a most wretched abode," said Len Ho doubtfully, "and the bearers would refuse to go with you."

"Let them remain here. You may accompany me and bring one who can carry my food and bedding. I will cook my own food. Hasten." Thornton strode away down the narrow street darkening in the twilight.

He had reached the city wall and the gate by which they had entered a short time before ere Len Ho and the reluctant bearer caught up with him.

"I AM NOT AFRAID," REPEATED THORNTON WEARILY.

"My lord is determined to go on?" asked Len Ho after they had passed through the gate and plunged into the darkness of the rutty road beyond.

"Yes. I prefer the sky for a roof if I cannot find a more cleanly place than the best inn of the city," said Thornton severely.

"Better the open sky than the fallen roof of a temple," said Len Ho darkly.

"What do you mean?"

"Spirits lurk in the ruins of the Temple of the Thousand Eyes and Ten Thousand Ears."

"I'm not afraid of spirits, Len Ho! I am more wary of a merciless Chinese pirate than of a dozen ghosts."

"This is a fearsome one. My lord has never heard of the werewolf?" whispered Len Ho, afraid that some evil spirit might hear his slandering words.

"Of course. One can't travel in China for eighteen months without being introduced to the werewolf and all the dragons that infest land and sea," returned Thornton.

"This is worse than dragons, worse than the fox faced wisecan! 'Tis the wolf man. He devours humans," shuddered Len Ho.

"I am not afraid," repeated Thornton wearily. "All I ask is a cleanly bed and a night's rest."

"If my lord looks on the face of the werewolf he will rest forever," predicted Len Ho gloomily.

"I'll take a chance on it," said the traveler grimly, as they turned into the grass grown path that led up to the ruined temple on the hilltop.

A full moon was doubling the heavens and the ruins were plainly visible in its white light. At the foot of the hill the river Soo rushed through its gorges, and its passing sent up a dull, reverberating roar that was soothing.

"I can fancy I am sleeping down on the Quanxtot shore," mused Thornton. He was from New England and loved the rugged Atlantic coast.

As the two Chinamen climbed the hill in advance of him Thornton thought rather grimly that it might be difficult to imagine oneself listening to the Atlantic's roar amid these insidiously Asiatic surroundings. He was glad that his journeying was nearly over and that within three months at the latest he would be back in New York relating his adventures to the interested members of the Travelers' club.

Len Ho and the bearer disappeared through a broken archway and Thornton found himself climbing crumbling stairs to follow after them. On either side of the steps were large stone figures of dead and gone priests of the temple, and as they stood in various menacing attitudes the American imagined that they looked at him with glaring eyes.

Len Ho had made a faint light, and as he swung the paper lantern in the archway to light his master through the darkness Thornton felt a strange presentiment of impending evil.

It seemed that he was surrounded by unseen enemies. He almost felt the impact of their crowded forms as he moved forward.

"I will sleep in the courtyard," said Thornton decisively, as Len Ho would have entered another dark archway through which the bearer had disappeared.

"The spirits will be displeased," warned Len Ho.

"Rubbish! Let me hear no more of this talk," said Thornton.

The two Chinese moved to and fro preparing some cooked rice and preserved fish for their own supper. Thornton lighted an alcohol stove, made coffee and ate some tinned meat and dry biscuits. Then, lighting his pipe, he flung himself on a blanket spread over a slab of stone and smoked dreamily.

Presently Len Ho brought him a pillow and a can of cold water, and then, the Chinese having withdrawn to the darkened cloisters of the temple, Thornton composed himself for slumber.

From his stony couch he could command a view of the archway through which they had entered the temple courtyard, as well as the cloisters, in the gloom of which the trusty Len Ho and his countrymen were resting more or less timidly, for in the face of the supernatural the native Chinaman is an arrant coward. He will stolidly meet acute physical suffering, but the mental anguish of encountering a spirit from another world is more than his courage can endure.

Thornton slept heavily while the shadows changed on the flagstones of the courtyard. Once or twice the face of Len Ho or the terror stricken countenance of the bearer peered fearfully from the cloisters, where they were passing a sleepless night.

Suddenly Thornton awoke with a start. Something wet and cold had dragged itself across his hand.

It was only a snail traveling slowly over his body, but the contact thoroughly awakened Thornton.

He watched the moon floating across the dark sky spaces, and then his glance fell to the black mouth of the arch.

While he looked something pale came into the black opening.

What was it? Was it the face of one of his men or the sneaking form of an intruder? He stared intently.

The thing grew larger and took form. Was it a man walking on all fours or was it a beast walking on two legs?

Thornton asked himself these questions, for the creature, whatever it was, walked sometimes on two legs and sometimes on four.

When it reached the middle of the courtyard it uttered a short barking yelp and turned its head toward the moon.

Then the American saw what the thing was. The upper part of the body was that of a gray wolf, sharp furry head and body. From the knees down it was a man with stout bare legs and feet that pattered on the stone as it went.

Again it lifted its head and howled, and a muffled scream of terror came from the cloisters, where Len Ho and his companion were sheltered.

Thornton kept very quiet. It was evident that the creature had not spied him.

There was no doubt in his mind that this was the werewolf, the spirit which Len Ho had warned him haunted the spot; the werewolf, part man and part wolf.

What an adventure to relate to the Travelers' club!

Thornton half lifted himself, and as he did so the thing turned and launched itself at him, with another yelping howl.

Thornton's revolver was always handy in these China prowlings, and he had whipped it out and fired it at the werewolf without recollecting that spirits care nothing for material bullets.

But the werewolf stoped short in his tracks, screamed lustily with a human note of pain in his voice and fell to the paving stones.

From the black arch there poured a number of dark clad forms, yelling with the shrill hysteria of a Chinese mob.

By this time Thornton had reached the cloisters where Len Ho, though shivering with dread, grasped him by the hand and was fleeing with him through the darkness. By some rare intuition Len Ho guided his master safely through tortuous passages, up and down broken steps and finally through a narrow arch that gave upon the other side of the hill.

Silently they fled down the hill, the friendly moon drawing a dark cloud over her face and hiding their escape from the murderous eyes of the band of Chinese pirates who made the ruined temple their headquarters and whose chief, wearing a wolfskin, terrified all unwary intruders by assuming the spiritual role of the dreaded werewolf.

Thornton and his guide reached the American mission just at dawn, and the weary American decided that his adventure with the werewolf was a fitting close to his journey through central China.

As for the Travelers' club, when it heard the story it asked to a man:

"How do you know that the thing wasn't a werewolf after all?"

And Thornton couldn't find an answer to that question.

TO MAKE YOUR HAIR MORE BEAUTIFUL

We are druggists right here in your town and making a living out of the drug business, but it is because people have to have drugs and not because we like to see people suffer—we don't. Our duty is to render the best service we can, and when someone is ailing, we are interested in seeing them take the best medicine there is for their particular trouble. We don't recommend "cure-alls," as we don't believe there are such things. We don't want you to spend more than you have to. Some of you get small wages, and when you're sick, none at all, and you should get the most you can for your money.

We recently came across a new remedy for increasing strength and building up people who are run down and emaciated. We know that a slight trouble sometimes grows into a serious one, and to stop it in the beginning, will save you money in the end. This new compound is called Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is the best remedy, when you are run-down, tired out, nervous—no matter what the cause. It doesn't merely stimulate you and make you feel good for a few hours, but takes hold of the weakness and builds you up to a healthy, normal condition. It is a real nerve-food tonic and builder of good blood, strong muscle, good digestion. It contains Hypophosphites which tone the nerves, and pure Olive Oil, which nourishes the nerves, the blood and the entire system. Pleasant to take. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. We promise that if you are not perfectly satisfied with it, we'll give back your money as soon as you tell us. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. T. F. & T. J. The Godless Church Basement.

A Methodist minister of the new school, who has come under the modern broadening influences which have failed as yet to touch the leading members of his flock in a small Ontario town, was telling his troubles to an understanding friend.

"Some of them are inconceivably narrow and restricted in their viewpoint," he said, "and especially the members of the executive board. We have in the church some twelve or fifteen young girls of whom any pastor and congregation might be proud—healthy, clean-minded, vigorous and talented girls in their teens. They wished to give a Christmas concert, and they asked me if they could have the use of the church instead of the Sunday school, which is in the basement. I promised to do what I could, and when I laid the matter before the board, I strongly recommended that their request be granted. But the members were dubious, and the chairman—a fine fellow, but one hundred years behind the times—would have none of it.

"'No,' he said; 'it must not be. We cannot let the church be used for these affairs. The church is a sacred edifice. Why, God himself is there! They must use the basement.'"—Saturday Night.

How Alberta Has Grown.

A recent census bulletin issued from Ottawa deals with agricultural statistics for the Province of Alberta. It shows that on June 1, 1901, the number of farm holdings were 9,486, of which 9,429 were holdings of five acres and over, as compared with 50,353 holdings of five acres and over, and 1,143 holdings of less than five acres, making a total of 61,496 holdings of between 100 to 200 acres increased from 6,577 to 34,555 in the decade, while those of over 200 acres increased from 2,587 to 24,023. The average size of the holdings has not varied from 1901 to 1911, being 288 acres at each census period.

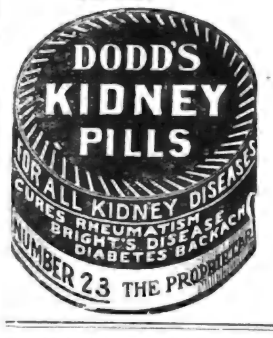
In 1911, of the total land area, 10.96 per cent., or 17,747,739 acres, were occupied as farm lands, as compared with 1.69 per cent. or 2,735,630 acres in 1901. There were therefore in 1911 over 144,000,000 acres in Alberta not occupied for agricultural purposes.

In common with the other provinces of the west, Alberta is seriously beginning to make adequate provision for the feeding of animals in the winter season. In 1901 no land producing cultivated grasses was reported. The records of the last census show for 1910 149,973 acres of hay and clover and 2,592 acres of alfalfa, and these figures were increased to 162,411 acres of hay and 7,780 acres of alfalfa in 1911. In addition to 125,662 tons of cultivated hay and 5,133 tons of alfalfa, the records show that 100,849 tons of prairie hay were gathered in the census year.

Horses increased by 314,492, milch cows by 101,586; other horned cattle by 315,304, sheep by 46,488, swine by 197,441, turkeys by 60,782, geese by 18,063, ducks by 21,945, hens and chickens by 2,102,181.

ONE AND ONE MAKE TWO?

Not Always, by Any Means, According to Sir Oliver Lodge.



Sir Oliver Lodge has attracted a tremendous amount of attention by telling scientists (of whom he is one) that he believes in immortality in spite of science. This is not the first time he has locked horns with scientific dogma. In his book, "Modern Problems," he affirms that one and one do not always make two. And this is the "almost frivolous" way he makes his point:

"I would contend that, whereas the proposition that one added to one makes two is abstractedly beneath controversy, it need not be true for the addition of concrete things. It is not true for two globules of mercury, for instance, nor for a couple of colliding stars; not true for a pint of water added to a pint of oil or vitriol, nor for nitric oxide added to oxygen, nor for the ingredients of an explosive mixture; not necessarily true, either, for snakes in a cage, or for capital invested in a business concern, flourishing or otherwise, nor is it true, save in a temporary manner, for a couple of trout added to a pond. Life can make havoc of arithmetic.

"The moral of all which is that propositions can be clear and simple and sure enough, indeed absolutely certain, as long as you deal with abstractions, but that when you come to concrete realities and have all the complexities of the universe behind you—not only behind but in front and among and intermingled with every simplest thing—then we perforce step out of the realm of positive dogmatic security into the region of reasonable and probable inference, the domain of pragmatic conviction, of commonplace intuition, of familiar faith."

Took a Mean Advantage.

Returning from South America, a New York man vouches for the ingenuity of the city officials in Rio de Janerio. The householders on a certain street received notices that the city fathers had heard complaints of the high tax rates along that particular thoroughfare, and in order that justice might be done the residents were asked to submit their own valuation on their property. When the prompt and joyful responses had all been received the lots were condemned and bought for a contemplated public improvement.—New York Tribune.

ORANGEVILLE AND SHELBURNE.

The Missing Ones.

One summer evening, for a part of our family worship, I read the fourth chapter of 1 Thess. Before retiring to rest I seated myself in my easy-chair, and mused on the last few verses of the chapter, and as I mused, I fell into a deep sleep, and had a most wonderful dream. My mind seemed to be clear and distinct; and my intellectual faculties stronger and brighter than in my wakeful condition.

I thought I had awakened in the morning, and was somewhat surprised to find that my wife was not beside me as usual. Supposing, however, that her absence was temporary, I waited, expecting her speedy return to our chamber; but after the lapse of what I considered a reasonable time, as she did not make her appearance I arose and dressed.

My wife's apparel was where she had placed it on retiring, and I felt confident she was somewhere about the house. So I went to my daughter Julia's room, thinking she might know the whereabouts of her mother; but after knocking several times, without response, I entered and found that she also was missing.

"Strange, passing strange!" said I to myself: "where can they both be!" Then I went to the room of our son, Frank, and found him up and already dressed, which was something quite unusual for him at an hour so early. He said he had passed a very restless night and thought he had better get up. I told him of the absence of his mother and sister from their rooms, and requested him to look around and see if he could find them. In the meantime I hurriedly completed my toilet, and soon Frank returned and said the missing ones were nowhere to be found, and that every door leading outward was securely locked, as on the preceding evening. We were at our wit's end, and what to make of this strange occurrence we did not know. On again visiting Julia's room we found on a stand her well-marked open Bible. One prominent verse attracted my attention. It read: "Be ye also ready, for IN SUCH AN HOUR AS YE THINK NOT THE SON OF MAN COMETH." This passage, my wife had always declared, referred to the coming of Christ for His saints, the redeemed Church, according to 1 Thess. 4: 14, 17, while I insisted that it meant only the preparation for death. But I am digressing. Frank and I concluded that, without waiting for breakfast, we should each take a different route, and visit some of our most intimate friends, in quest of our dear ones.

I first called on my wife's sister, Mrs. F., who, with her husband, were good respectable people, members of a Christian church; though rather worldly minded. After I had rung several times, and waited somewhat impatiently, she appeared, and apologized for her dilatoriness by saying that she was "in a peck of trouble," and had to prepare breakfast herself, for her colored servant girl, whom she had always considered to be a real good Christian, had played her "a mean trick." She had gone off somewhere, without even putting the kettle on the range, or saying word to any of us. But what puzzles us to know is how she got out of the house, for the doors are all locked and the keys inside, just as we left them last evening on our return from Mrs. B's. progressive euchre party."

"Indeed," said I, "It is exceedingly strange," and then I explained to her the object of my morning visit. When she heard of the mysterious absence of my wife and Julia, she became so very nervous that I was glad to change the subject by saying that, as I had not yet breakfasted, I would join them in their morning repast. When her husband heard my story he treated it with a good deal of levity, and declared that my wife was only playing me a practical joke, to induce me to rise earlier in the morning. He was sure the missing ones had secreted themselves somewhere about the house and when I returned home I would find them all right.

As we seated ourselves at the table Mrs. E. said we would have to take coffee without milk, as her milkman, who had heretofore been very reliable had failed to make his appearance.

Presently the door-bell rang, and Frank entered in a state of great excitement, saying he had been all over inquiring for his mother, and that in almost every house he found trouble similar to our own. Almost every family was anxiously searching for missing ones.

He had just come from our home where he found the servant girl alone, but much agitated in consequence of the numerous calls she had had to answer about missing friends. He also stated that the streets were thronged with excited people hurrying to and fro, many of them weeping bitterly. At this announcement, Mr. E. showed evident signs of alarm, and related a conversation he had held yesterday with a friend, whose religious ideas he looked upon as quite heretical.

His friend insisted that a vast majority of church members, in these days were but nominal Christians, "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God," and that the love of the masses for religious things had reached a very low ebb. "My friend also assured me," said Mr. E., "that the Scriptures clearly taught that, when the elect number of Christ's Church would be completed, Christ would come as unexpectedly as a thief in the night, and call His saints, both dead and alive, to meet Him in the air. The transformation would be effected in the twinkling of an eye; and although the call would be made with a shout and the sound of the trumpet, yet none would hear it but those for whom it was intended. Then would be realized the import of Christ's words, 'Then shall two be in the field, one shall be taken, and the other left; two women shall be grinding at the mill, the one shall be taken, and the other left.' I fear that time has NOW come, and, sad to say, we are among the left ones."

Now as the morning was far advanced, it was suggested that we go down to our business places. Frank had already gone to his office, and I, with a heavy heart, wended my way along the avenue among the unusual throng of men and women, where faces betokened intense sorrow.

In the business part of the city I observed that many stores were closed, and those that were open did not appear to be doing any business. Every saloon that I passed was open, as usual, with groups of men outside, apparently engaged in serious discussion. As I passed by the City Hall, there was no perceptible diminution of the usual crowd of political "hangers on" around the building.

When I reached my own store, I found that my bookkeeper, and the faithful old porter who had served me so many years had not put in an appearance. My two other clerks were on hand, doing nothing; nor did I feel like asking them to do anything.

Yesterday I agreed to sell a worthy mechanic a small piece of land which I owned in the outskirts of the city, and had an appointment to meet him at my lawyer's office to sign the contract, but he failed to come, and I presumed he also joined the absent ones. I then went to the Chamber of Commerce, and found the largest gathering of merchants that I had seen there in many months. Instead of the lively, noisy bustle of buying and selling, and of clerks and messenger boys running to and fro there was a solemn gloom pervading the whole assembly. By unanimous consent, and in consequence of the great calamity that had overtaken the community, it was voted that "three days grace be allowed on all contracts falling due on this day." I will not attempt to set forth any of the reasons and speculations that were advanced as to the cause of our present troubles, but all agreed that the visitation was a supernatural one, and that in some way, we, who were left on earth, were blamable for it.

In the evening almost every church in the city was open, with overflowing congregations. Everybody was anxious to know the cause and meaning of the "Great Visitation," and to learn how lost hopes might be regained. Many of the pastors had gone with the missing ones, but some were present in their churches. All order of service was dispensed with, and noisy confusion prevailed; crimination and recrimination were bandied to and fro between the pastors and the people, the latter asserting, that, if the pastors had done their duty, and taught their flocks the plain truths of the Bible, instead of lulling them to sleep with philosophical and moral essays, they would not now be in their present sad condition. In my own church the pastor was present with scores of persons whom I had rarely seen at meetings.

The pastor was speaking when I entered the room, and was entreating the audience to endeavor to allay their feelings, while he would attempt to speak to them a few minutes. Quiet being somewhat restored, he said, "The pastor's heart is bleeding at every pore in sympathy with his sorely afflicted people. The anguish which I experience at being, in a measure, the cause of our present condition, is indescribable. None of you can realize the keen disappointment I endure at this result of my labors. I am accused of having preached too much about the affairs of this life, and too little about the heavenly state, and the things to come; and of having kept you in ignorance of the imminency of the awful visitation which has manifested itself among us this day. In reply to all these accusations, I can only say that I have taught you the same theology that was taught me in college, and which I, in common with the great majority of our ministerial brethren, firmly believed to be the teaching of God's Word.

"But now I have to confess that I was sadly mistaken, for, after what has occurred, I cannot help believing that God's Word means just what it says. My pastoral labors, during the time I have been with you, have been excessive, and in consequence I have not been able to devote to the study of prophecy the time which a subject so deep demanded."

Many remember that during the last fifty years some of the faithful watchmen have kept ringing into the ears of the church the warning, that this event was hastening upon this generation. Christ himself said, "As the days of Noah and of Lot were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be." Yet those in ignorance of the prophecies have denounced God's faithful watchmen as croakers, sensationalists, and lunatics. But now the Lord has vindicated their teachings by fulfilling this Bible truth. W.

* * * * *

Here the electric light suddenly went out, and there arose such fearful screams that I sprang to my feet in terror—and—awoke!

My wife, who was in the adjoining room, hearing my sudden uprising, hastened in to see what was the matter. Oh, how glad I was to see her, and to realize that my terrible experience in my easy chair was only a dream. But the more I thought of it afterwards, the more solemn seemed the Scripture truth which it contained, and the more was I impressed with the importance of having our lamps trimmed and burning, ready to go out and meet the Bridegroom.—J. W., in the "Episcopal Recorder."

Read 1 Thess. 4: 15 to 18.

Shenk-La Rose

A very interesting wedding took place at the bride's home on Shaw St., Toronto, on Wednesday, Feb. 18th, when Miss Florence La Rose became the wife of Mr. Ezra T. Shenk, of Camilla. The Rev. Dr. Campbell, pastor of Centennial Church, officiated. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of marquisette over cream silk, trimmed with shadow lace and brilliants and carrying a bouquet of white roses, lillies of the valley and orange blossoms. She wore the groom's gift—a gold bracelet. Miss Myrtle Beamish, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Dr. Fall, wore Copenhagen silk poplin. The groom was supported by Mr. Horace La Rose. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold brooch and to the best man a set of cuff links. The happy couple will make their home in Toronto.

Norris-Buchanan

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Buchanan, 5th line, west, Caledon, was the scene of a quiet but pretty event on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 11th, when their daughter, Marjorie May, was united in marriage to Mr. Angus Norris, The Maples. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Armstrong, pastor of Alton Presbyterian Church, at the hour of four o'clock. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father. She wore a white silk dress, trimmed with lace. The only guests present were the members of the bride's and groom's families. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold bracelet. She was also the recipient of many useful and costly gifts. The happy couple left in the evening for their future home at The Maples, where they start out in life accompanied by the hearty good wishes of a wide circle of friends.

Mr. James Pierson

Mr. James Pierson, a lifelong resident of Mono, died at his home, lot 12, con. 3, east, on Saturday, Feb. 7th. Deceased, who was in his 66th year, was a widower. He had been a sufferer from anaemia for the last three years. He was treated by different physicians, but medical aid and the gentle ministrations of those about him were alike powerless to stay the ravages of the insidious disease. He is survived by a family of three sons and three daughters—Robert, Joseph and John Pierson, Mrs. Robert May, Elora, Mrs. Irad Allen and Miss Jennie at home. Joseph Pierson, Mono, is a brother and there are three sisters surviving—Mrs. Isaac Bagnell and Mrs. John Patterson, Froude, Sask., and Mrs. Robt. Wilson in Wisconsin. Mr. Pierson was a man, who possessed many excellent qualities, and his memory will be warmly cherished by the community in which he lived. The funeral, which was conducted under the auspices of the Orange Order, of which the late Mr. Pierson was an active member, was attended by a large number of neighbors and friends. The burial took place on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 10th, in Mitchell's Church burying ground. Rev. A. J. Fowlie conducted the services at the house and the grave. The pallbearers were John Pierson, of Kincardine, James Pierson, of Toronto, two cousins, David Still, Alex. Still. Thos. White and Jos. Jeffers.

Peel Liberals will meet on Saturday, Feb. 28th. Wm. Proudfoot is announced as the speaker.

Rev. Principal Scrimger was nominated by Lanark and Renfrew Presbytery for Moderator of the General Assembly.

PUZZLED THE DRIVER.

How He Believes the Policeman Is a Real Mind Reader.

A certain truckman in the habit of using the new Manhattan bridge on his morning trip to Brooklyn has abandoned that route because of superstition.

Several days ago while the truckman was taking a load of chicken crates to Brooklyn a fine cap dropped down before him just as his team had passed under the Manhattan tower. He looked around, and, seeing that none of the teamsters ahead of him or behind him was bareheaded, he picked up the cap and put it under the cushion of his seat.

Now, it chanced that the cap had been blown from the head of one of the engineers of the bridge department who was high up in the tower at the time. On reaching the tower base he called up the policeman at the Brooklyn approach on the telephone, described the teamster and his wagon and told how he had lost his cap.

As the long file of trucks passed by the policeman the latter halted the thieving driver, saying: "I'll trouble you to hand over that cap you picked up on the Manhattan side. It's a black and white check, and you've got it right there under your seat."

Amazed and frightened at the cop's demand, the driver pulled out his hidden find and tossed it to him. "Here you are," he said. "You're a mind reader or one of them guys what can see around corners."—New York Tribune.

MASSENET'S HOBBY.

A Story of the Composer and His Dear Friend, the Bookbinder.

In the recollections of Massenet a story is told, says the Hamburger Nachrichten, illustrating the composer's passionate admiration for beautiful bindings. Not a week passed without a visit from him to his bookbinder when he brought a new book or a new edition to be bound. In the course of time he and his bookbinder became the best of friends, and when Massenet arrived the talk was at first of everything on earth except the real object of his visit.

"Look here!" Massenet would say eventually, giving the man the volume to be bound.

"Splendid!" replied the bookbinder, and then for his customer and friend he would devise some fresh wonder in the art of binding.

One morning Massenet suddenly learned that his friend was giving up business. He hurried to his shop. "Heavens! Is it true you are leaving Paris?" he asked.

"Why, certainly! I have bought a charming little country house near Nantes."

"What! A country house! And in the provinces!" And he added sadly, "Ah, my poor friend, I am partly responsible for that!"

Who Am I?

Last leap year I did not want to embarrass my best girl to make her propose to me, so asked her to be my wife, and she said, "I would rather be excused," and I, like an idiot, excused her. But I got even with the girl. I married her mother. Then my father married the girl. Now I don't know who I am.

When I married the girl's mother the girl became my daughter, and when my father married my daughter he is my son. When my father married my daughter she was my mother. If my father is my son and my daughter is my mother, who in thunder am I? My mother's mother (which is my wife) must be my grandmother, and I being my grandmother's husband, I am my own grandfather.—National Monthly.

"Count," said the young woman one evening, "you can't imagine how my love for you distresses my parents. My father told me he would give $10,000 if I would never see you again."

"Ah, darling," said the count, "ees your fazaire in hees offees now, you sink?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Very Complimentary.

Mrs. Greene—It's very kind of you, but you must really excuse us. You see, we've never been in the place before, and we're only here for a few days, so, of course, we must make the best use of our time.—London Express.

The standard length of time in Europe for a long time farm loan is fifty-four years. For such a loan at the present time the rate is 4.85 per cent divided as follows: Interest 4 per cent, administration .35 per cent and amortization (payment on principal) .50 per cent. This rate will pay both principal and interest and repay all charges due to the bank in fifty-four years. As this will seem almost incredible to some students, I will give a concrete illustration of how it works. It does not depend upon compound interest, but upon the fact that, though the rate of yearly payment remains the same, the charge for interest and administration is constantly decreasing because they are computed on the principal sum which is constantly being repaid; therefore the proportion which is applied toward the repayment of the principal is always increasing.

For illustration, if the debt is $1,000 the debtor will pay $25.25 every six months. Of the first payment, $20 will go for interest, $1.75 belongs to the bank, and $2.50 is applied to the repayment of the principal. When the debt is half discharged, however, this distribution will be greatly changed. The borrower will pay $25.25, as usual. Of this amount only $10 will go for interest, 88 cents will be retained by the bank, while $13.37 will be applied to the discharge of the principal. The final payment will be almost wholly to the payment of principal, as the first one went largely to the payment of interest. In this way one-half of 1 per cent will repay the principal in fifty-four years, provided a constant payment is maintained on the principal for interest during the entire period.—Representative Ralph W. Moss in World's Work.

ORIGIN OF THE HARP.

Evolved From the Lyre of the High Priest of Osiris.

The history of the piano counts as a day compared to the harp. We have authentic records that as early as 1800 B. C. the first lyre was evolved from the mind of the high priest of Osiris, who in one of his daily walks along the banks of the river Nile found an empty tortoise shell spanned with dried ligaments. Happening to strike it, he noticed that it gave forth pleasing sounds, and he at once made an instrument on the plan of the tortoise shell.

From the lyre it was but an easy step to the harp, now the most famous instrument in the world. Milesius, one of the Phoenician priests, carried it with him in his conquest to Ireland, and there he planted it among the music loving Celts in 1200 B. C. The royal instrument became a controlling feature in druidical worship, and the harpist or bard ranked with royalty, the prophet and the priest. The druids advanced the harp from eleven to thirty-two strings and crowned their efforts in its improvement by the evolution of the pillar, which has ever since found universal adoption.

Our modern harp consists of forty-five or forty-seven strings, seven pedals—one for each note in the octave—and the wonderful instrument shares with the piano and organ the faculty of being autonomous—that is to say, it needs no accompaniment and furnishes both melody and harmony.—Miss Loretta De Lone in New York Tribune.

Two Ideas.

Uri, a candidate for congress, said to Jonathan, another, during a heated debate: "I think, sir, you have but one idea in your head. It is a very small one, and if it should swell your head would burst."

Jonathan, looking at the bare and venerable head of his opponent, replied: "Well, I think you haven't one in your head and never had. There has been one scratching around the outside, trying to get in, till it has scratched all the hair off your head. But it didn't get in, and it never will." Uri was silent.—Chicago News.

Hindu Confectionery.

Like the American girls, Hindu girls are passionately fond of sweet things. One of their candies, sadu, is very much like our plain sugar candy. It is made of sugar and milk and flavored with attar of roses. Buddhikabal, or "nir of Buddha, is one of their most popular sweetmeats. It is so called because it is in fine, long strings like vermicelli. This is made of sugar and cream from buffalo's milk, which is exceedingly rich.

Earth and Moon.

The diameter of the earth is 8,000 miles. The diameter of the moon is 2,162 miles. The nearest approach of the surfaces of the two bodies is 240,177 miles. The mean distance from the earth is 238,850 miles, the maximum distance which may be reached being 252,830 miles. The moon's surface contains about 14,685,000 square miles, or nearly four times the area of Europe.

Still Sadder.

"What could be more sad than a man without a country?" feelingly asked the high school literature teacher of her class.

"A country without a man," responded a pretty girl just as feelingly.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Surgical Operation.

The customer raised his hand, and the barber, pausing in the operation of shaving him, inclined his head. "Sir?" "Give me gas," said the customer.—London Globe.

You will like the rich strength and full flavor.

Red Rose Tea "is good tea"

The Widow's Dower.

It is certain that "dower," the estate for life which the widow acquires at her husband's death, was not known among the early Saxons. In the laws of King Edmund the widow is directed to be supported wholly out of the personal estate. Dower is generally ascribed to the Normans, but it was first introduced into the feudal system by Emperor Frederick II., who was contemporary with the English Henry III., about 1250.

The Usual Way.

"It would never do for the farmers to get into the financial business of the nation."

"Why not?"

"From force of habit they would always be waiting to water their stock."—Baltimore American.

Home Finance.

"Wombat, loan me $5. It's for an investment you are interested in."

"What investment of yours am I interested in?"

"My daughter wants to buy a birthday present for your son."—Pittsburg Post.

—Messrs. C. B. Wheelock, C. R. McKeown, M.P.P. and O. Wilder represented Orangeville Board of Trade at the third annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade held in Toronto this week.

HARRIS LODGE.

Orangeville Masons Entertained District Deputy Grand Master.

Rt. W. Bro. W. H. Day, of Guelph, District Deputy Grand Master, of Wellington Masonic district, paid Harris Lodge, Orangeville, an official visit on Friday night. The coming of the distinguished visitor created lively interest and he was greeted by a splendid tournout of the members of the local Lodge. After the close of the business meeting the "fourth degree" was exemplified in a most pleasing manner in the spacious banquetting hall adjoining the lodge room. After justice had been done to the refreshments provided under the supervision of the stewards, a short programme of Masonic toasts was duly honored in bright and witty speeches. Dr. T. A. Carson, W. M. of Harris Lodge, filled the role of toastmaster in an admirable manner. The opening toast "King and Craft" was honored by the entire company singing "The National Anthem." Rt. W. Bro. W. H. Day, Rt. W. Bro. R. Irvine and Rt. W. Bro. J. A. V. Preston responded to "The Grand Lodge of Canada." "Harris Lodge" brought appropriate responses from W. Bro. J. B. Adamson and Bros. A. Firth and A. E. Annis. Rev. Bros. W. M. Morris, G. W. Tebbs and J. R. Bell and Bro. V. A. Statia upheld "The Professions," and Bro. R. H. Neilson, who had been initiated earlier in the evening, replied to "The Youngest Member." The programme was brought to a close with the Junior Warden's toast, followed by the singing of Auld Lang Syne..

A PRESENTATION

C. P. R. Maintenance of Way Employes Do Honor to Roadmaster A. Frost.

About 50 of the Maintenance of Way employees of the Owen Sound and Walkerton divisions of the C.P.R. banquetted their late Roadmaster, Mr. Andrew Frost, who was recently promoted to the Muskoka subdivision, in Mr. M. E. Henry's oyster parlor on Friday night. During the evening Mr. Frost was presented with a gold watch chain and fob and the following address:—

Mr. A. Frost,
Roadmaster.

We, the Maintenance of Way employees of the Owen Sound and Walkerton sub-divisions, desire to take this opportunity to congratulate you on your well merited promotion to the Muskoka sub-division. We also wish to show our appreciation toward you for your many acts of kindness and courtesy toward us, while you occupied the position of Roadmaster on this Division. You were always willing to overlook all slight mistakes we were likely to make and would cheerfully correct us, and instruct us as to the best way to perform our duties as trackmen. We will miss your genial smile as you came among us but we know that our loss will be the other men's gain. We respectfully request you to accept this gold watch chain, and fob as a slight token of our esteem for you. We trust that you will be spared many years to wear it and also to occupy the responsible position you now hold.

Signed on behalf of the Maintenance of Way Employees of the Owen Sound and Walkerton Sub-Division.

James Ashdown
W. J. Neil
Isaac Moore.

Mr. B. Tansley sr., of West Toronto, occupied the chair and Mr. 'S. Lackey read the address. Mr. Robt. McIntosh, of Owen Sound, made the presentation. Mr. Frost, who was greeted with the familiar refrain "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," upon rising to respond, made a short reply, in which he expressed his hearty appreciation of the kindness and good will of the men. Short addresses were also made by Mr. W. J. Neil, Orangeville, Mr. J. Miller, West Toronto, Mr. Telford, Brockville, Mr. Thos. Lackey, Dundalk, Mr. J. Hewitt, Alton, Mr. M. E. Henry and others. Mr. Henry provided an excellent repast and left nothing undone that would add to the comfort and entertainment of his guests.

A Successful Sale

Mr. E. Hamilton, Township Clerk of Amaranth, realized over $2000 from his auction sale on Wednesday of last week. There was a big crowd in attendance and the bidding was spirited. Cows brought from $75 to $90 each, calves sold for $30 and cattle rising two years realized over $60. Horses also sold well, one bringing $174. Mr. Geo. McAlister had charge of the sale.

Citizens' League Meeting

A public meeting of the Orangeville Citizens' League will be held in the auditorium of the Public Library on Wednesday evening, March 4th, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of appointing officers and transacting general business. All interested in the temperance cause are requested to attend.

SERVANTS OF ROYALTY.

In England They Are Supplied by a Regular Employment Agency.

Even royal palaces have their servant problems. The general opinion seems to be that the servants who attend upon kings and queens are of a race apart, but such is not the impression given by a remarkably frank interview given in London by a registry agent who has frequently had dealings with Buckingham palace.

"We are held responsible for the people we send to the royal household," he said, "and we send no one who has not lived in good houses and has had at least two years' 'character.'

"Only British servants are engaged. The men must be between twenty-two and twenty-eight years old, and the women between eighteen and twenty-two.

"The wages are no better, to begin with, than in other households, but there are better allowances—in liveries and in plain clothes. There is the chance, too, of promotion to something better.

"A head housemaid might get $250 a year, and of course there is a pension for every servant who has served a certain number of years.

"Ten years is generally considered the minimum time for a pension, but when a case of misfortune occurs an application is made to the king, who approves a special grant.

"The servants have plenty of work to do in the palace, but ample leisure and very good quarters and living. The maids are required to dress alike—in the same colored prints. The state porters and marshal men are engaged directly by the king on warrant.

"The ordinary household servants are resident, with the exception of a personal housemaid, who travels with the royal family."—New York Press.

AMATEUR LACROSSE

Widespread Movement to Revive Interest in National Game.

C.A.L.A. Planning to Organize School and Industrial Leagues.

The following communication from Mr. Frank Doyle, Secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, should prove interesting reading for local lacrosse enthusiasts:—

Editor The Banner,

Dear Sir:—The Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association which was organized in 1912 for the purpose of increasing the interest in lacrosse strictly along amateur lines, has started a campaign to place Canada's National game where it properly belongs—the National and leading game of Canada in reality instead of name only—and I write you to lend us your personal valuable assistance, and also your support through the medium of your paper, in assisting us in our good work.

We wish to establish School Lacrosse Leagues as well as Industrial Leagues in every town where the population is large enough to justify the two, and where it is not we wish to have you write me as to what the prospects would be for the successful launching of our scheme in your town, and at the same time be good enough to send me the names of say six of your most enthusiastic men who have in the past been good followers of the game, or the names of any gentlemen who are likely to become interest in the game in the future, to whom you would recommend my writing with the object of having them assist us in our movement.

Our Association has arranged with Mr. Lally, Lacrosse Manufacturer, of Cornwall, to supply us with lacrosse sticks at less than one-half the ordinary price paid for lacrosses, and besides granting us the above concession, he has agreed to present to every town throughout Canada where a sufficient number of teams can be organized, twelve really beautiful gold medals for competition.

If a league can be formed in your town, I will be pleased to have a representative of this Association visit you if you can arrange for him to have a talk with the boys in your schools with a view of organizing a League. I will be pleased if you would put your shoulder to the wheel, and assist us in every possible way that lies in your power.

Will you oblige me by letting me have your reply at an early date, so that I may communicate further with you and get into touch with the gentlemen whose names you will be good enough to send me to enable me to arrange with our representative to visit you and show you what can be done in the way of establishing lacrosse in your town.

Thanking you in anticipation of a favorable consideration of the above, believe me,

Sincerely yours,
FRANK DOYLE,
Sec.-Treasurer.

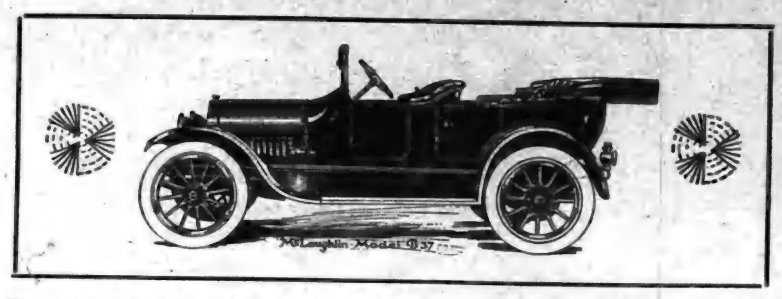
McLAUGHLIN BUICKS

150,000 BUICKS NOW IN USE.



Many have been in service for nine years, many have records of over 100,000 miles.

THIS SHOWS BUICK DURABILITY

It is the Car of POWER, the Car of STRENGTH, the Car of SPEED, the Car of SERVICE

There is a model for every man, from the $1250 Runabout to the "Six" Cylinder, our rich man's Car at a BUSINESS MAN'S PRICE.

This year with the Delco lighting, cranking and ignition system at NO ADDITIONAL COST, the demand is still greater.

We make claims for the McLaughlin-Buick line, BIG CLAIMS, some of them too big for the average person to believe. The people who DO BELIEVE are the people who HAVE driven Buicks, ARE driving Buicks, and WILL drive Buicks. They know that the statements we make are borne out by their OWN EVERY-DAY EXPERIENCE.

Put in your order now for early spring delivery; if you wait there will be many ahead of you.

STRENUOUS WORK STILL TELLS ON YOU

Business Men and Breadwinners the Victims of Nervous Exhaustion.

When worry is added to overwork men soon become the victims of nervous exhaustion—neurasthenia— the doctor calls it. Some have no reserve strength in their systems to bear the strain; others overtax what strength they have. If you find that you are nervous and not sure of yourself, that you sleep badly, and wake up tired and aching, your nerves are out of order. Other signs are inability to take proper interest in your work, your appetite is fickle, your back feels weak, and you are greatly depressed in spirits.. One or more of these signs mean that you should take prompt steps to stop mischief by nourishing the nerves with the food they thrive on, namely, the rich, red blood made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills have cured thousands of cases of nervous disorders, including nervous prostration, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance and partial paralysis. Here is an example. Mr. Jas. A. McDonald, Springhill, N.S., says: "In the summer of 1912, as the result, I think, of hard work, I was completely run down and found it necessary to quit work. I slept poorly, and what sleep I did get did not seem to rest me, as I was constantly tired. My appetite was poor and fickle, and my nerves unstrung. I had treatment from a doctor and for some time, but it did not seem to help me, and having heard a great deal about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I decided to try them. In the course of a few weeks after beginning the Pills I picked up wonderfully, and was able to return to work feeling like a new man. I have not had a day's sickness since, and naturally am now a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will work the same beneficial results in any other tired, worn-out worker if given a fair trial. If you cannot obtain the Pills from your dealer they will be sent post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Choral Union Concert.

The concert to be given by the Orangeville Choral Union on Friday evening March 6th will, without doubt, be the best musical treat ever provided by local talent. Some knowledge of the wondrous possibilities of a United Choral Society in Orangeville was given those who were present at the Concert on New Year's night. The part-songs, so beautifully rendered on that occasion by the newly organized Society, were the result of less than a month's preparation. Now, after three months under the able leadership of Mr. J. E. Jesson, this Choir of 30 voices, chosen from all the various choral organizations of the town, will present a Concert such as few can afford to miss.

Admission, 35c. All seats reserved. Plan of Hall opens at The Banner Office, Saturday, Feb. 28th, at 2 p.m. Mark your seats early. Accommodation limited.

A $40,000 LOAN.

Brampton Asked to Make Heavy Advance to Copeland-Chatterson Co.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held on Monday evening in the Municipal Offices to consider the proposition from the Copeland-Chatterson Company. It will be remembered that when the factory was established here the company received a loan of $25,000 to be paid back in twenty annual instalments. The agreement also called for a pay roll of $40,000 per annum. The company established their factory here, has met the annual payments regularly, and has paid more than $100,000 in wages annually instead of the $40,000 agreed. Changing conditions of trade and the demands of the west necessitate an increase in the plant of the factory. Mr. Chatterson, speaking for the company, explained that it is their intention to move their office staff to Brampton and concentrate all their energies here or to establish a new factory at Winnipeg. In order to have the full force at Brampton and the necessary increased equipment the town is asked to loan the company another $40,000 to be paid back in twenty annual instalments without interest. The matter will be submitted to the ratepayers in the course of a few weeks. No matter what the action of the people may be, it is not suggested that there will be any decrease in the operations of the factory here.—Conservator.

A SAD INCIDENT.

A sad incident occurred at Eugenia last week. Alfred Holmes married one, Sarah Leppard, there two or three years ago. They lived in a hovel at the outskirts of Eugenia town plot, and it is said the conditions were filthy in the extreme. Holmes and his wife and two children, the mother-in-law, Mrs. Leppard, two children belonging to a dead relative and a couple of other men all lived under the one shanty roof, with a cow and pig housed in a lean-to. The county Children's Aid Society was notified and Mr. Trout came down Thursday last to take the children in charge and to convey the mother to the hospital. Entering Friday morning he found that so far as the Holmes' woman was concerned his services were not required, she having died shortly before his arrival. He took the children away. Dr. Roszell, of Maxwell, gave a certificate of death from neglect and want of attention, which practically means that the woman was starved to death. It seems to us that a certificate of this kind should have carried with it a coroner's inquest, so that the party or parties responsible for this neglect could have had the crime brought home to them, if criminal neglect there was.—Flesherton Advance.

A GIRL ALL RIGHT.

Mark Twain, so the story goes, was walking on Hannibal street, when he met a woman with her youthful family.

"So this is the little girl, eh!" Mark said to her as she displayed her children. "And this sturdy little urchin in the bib belongs, I suppose, to the contrary sex."

"Yessah," the woman replied; "yasseh, dat's a girl, too."—Exchange.

SHILOH ... and heals 25 cents.

SHADE TREES SUFFER.

Municipalities Careless of Important Asset.

Dr. Fernow says that in "walking along the streets of any city one will find at least from 25 to 50 per cent. of the trees in a damaged condition." In the small towns of eastern Canada, it is safe to say that at least 75 per cent. of the shade trees need attention, for, unlike the cities, these towns employ no "tree doctors" to guard the health of the trees, and even trimming is done but irregularly, and often carelessly. Yet if the shade trees in many of these towns were destroyed one of their attractions would be gone.

There are several reasons why the trees in these old towns require special attention. The chief is probably due to defective crown development, the result of overcrowding. Misshapen and weakened crowns result in excessive windbreak, and ragged breaks, if left untrimmed, provide the best possible entrance for fungi and insect pests, so that a great number of these fine old shade trees, which, because of their very age, are unable, unassisted, to shake off these foes, are slowly dying through neglect.

Mature trees of whatever species should be at least thirty feet apart, and the municipal act empowers municipal councils to remove trees within this limit without the owners consent. If this provision were judiciously acted upon in the old towns of eastern Canada, the remaining shadetrees would be given a new lease of life. The Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, has on its staff a skilled silviculturist whose services are available to wood lot owners. Municipal shade trees are not, strictly speaking, wood lots, but municipalities so desiring could doubtless secure the advice of this expert regarding the trees requiring removal.

HAVE BEEN AN UNTOLD BENEFIT

New Brunswick Woman Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She Suffered for Four Years, and the Doctor Could Not Help Her, But Dodd's Kidney Pills Gave Her a New Lease of Life.

Porton, Carleton, Co., N.B.—Feb. 23. (Special).—"I find Dodd's Kidney Pills the best kidney medicine I have ever used. They have been of untold benefit to me."

The speaker is Mrs. John S. Dickinson of this place. She is enthusiastic in her praises of the great Canadian kidney remedy, and not without reason.

"I suffered from kidney trouble that started in a cold," she continues, "and for four years I was never free of it. I was treated by a doctor, but he did not seem to be able to do me much good.

"I had rheumatism and neuralgia, and my joints were stiff; my muscles cramped, and I was always tired and nervous. I perspired freely with the slighest exertion. I was depressed and low spirited, my limbs swelled, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"Nine boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me."

Are not Mrs. Dickinson's symptoms those of any run-down, wornout woman? They are also the symptoms of kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills give new life to run-down women by curing their kidneys.

SAVED HIS TREASURE.

Clever Ruse of a Blind Man Who Had Been Robbed.

"My great-uncle, who was blind," said a Frenchman, "once buried $4,000 in gold louis under a pear tree in his garden. His neighbor saw him do it and in the dead of night came and stole the money, replacing the earth carefully.

"Some days later my uncle brought fifty more louis down to the pear tree for burial. He soon discovered his loss, and, silently weeping, he, too, replaced the earth.

"He knew whom to suspect, and that night he called on his neighbor. He seemed thoughtful and distrait, and the neighbor asked him what oppressed his mind.

"'Well, I'll tell you,' said my great-uncle frankly. 'I have 1,000 louis hid away in a safe place, and today a tenant paid off a mortgage, and I have another 1,000 louis in cash on my hands. I don't know whether to seek out another hiding place for this money or put it where the other is. What do you advise?'

"'Why,' said the neighbor eagerly, 'if your first hiding place is safe—and you declare it to be so—I should certainly put this money there too.'

"My great-uncle said firmly that that was what he would do on the morrow. It was the wisest course. Then he took his leave.

"And when next day he went to the pear tree again there, sure enough, was his lost 1,000 louis, all put back again."—Exchange.

Landseer's Persistent Woeer.

Charles Landseer was a brother of Sir Edwin "and for some years," says the writer of "Leaves From a Life," "was the victim of the most extraordinary persecution that I should think any man ever met with. An eccentric woman fell desperately in love with him and used to pester him first with the most extravagant love letters and then by lying in wait for him whenever he left the house. Finally she issued invitations to the wedding, prepared breakfast and an enormous cake and called for poor Mr. Landseer in a carriage and pair, the horses decked out with white satin streamers and she herself dressed most gorgeously as a bride. But that was the end of the persecution. Her friends took her away, and Mr. Landseer remained a bachelor to the day of his death."

Just For a Starter.

"What are you going to call the new baby?"

"Reginald Claude," replied Mr. Biggins.

"Isn't 'Reginald Claude' a rather affected name?"

"Yes. I want him to grow up to be a fighter, and I fancy 'Reginald Claude' will start something every time he goes to a new school."—Washington Star.

The Irresponsible Child.

Small Boy (noticing the Phi Beta Kappa key hanging from the minister's watch chain)—Did you find it again, or is this another?

Minister—Why, my little man, what do you mean? I never lost it.

Small Boy—Oh, mother said you had lost the charm you had when you were young.—Judge.

Alike In One Way.

"He's quite wealthy and prominent now," said Mrs. Starvem, "and they say he rose practically from nothing."

"Well, well!" remarked Mr. Boarder. "That's just what I rose from—at the breakfast table this morning."—London Answers.

Diplomacy.

The Fussy Patron—Why, mercy, this shoe is a 6! The Tired Clerk—Pardon me, madam, you have it upside down. It is really a 9—child's size. What a perfect fit!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Find the cause of each wrinkle on a man's face and you will find it was put there by worrying over something that worrying could not help.

WOMAN A GREAT SUFFERER

Tells How She Was Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Tilbury, Ont.—"I could praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all around the world because it has done so much for me. For two years I was so run down that I was unable to do my work. I had female weakness and dreadful periodic pains, constipation and backache, but now I am well of all these things. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Liver Pills and Sanative Wash. I give you permission to publish this letter to help others."—Mrs. WILFRED MARCHAND, Box 464, Tilbury, Ontario, Can.

Case of Mrs. Tully.

Chicago, Ill.—"I take pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with such awful periodic pains, and had a displacement, and received no benefit from the doctors. I was advised to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am now as well as ever."—Mrs. WILLIAM TULLY, 2052 Ogden Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

KEPHALDOL

The positive, safe cure for Headache and Neuralgia.

Sufferers from these torturing ailments will welcome the coming to Canada of the well-known European remedy, Dr. Stohr's Kephaldol.

Hitherto the use of most so-called remedies has been attended with the gravest danger on account of the r injurious effect on the heart and other organs. Kephaldol may be taken with absolute safety.

In thousands of cases Kephaldol acts instantaneously—acts where other remedies have proved useless. Yet its use is never attended by any ill after effects. It has been recognized as a perfectly harmless remedy by the medical profession, who have made regular and prolonged trials of it in their clinics, on thousands of patients.

If you would get quick and safe relief from those distressing pains and aches, get a 50c tube of Kephaldol tablets from your druggist to-day, and never be without a supply. Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour St., Montreal.

Choral Union Concert.

The concert to be given by the Orangeville Choral Union on Friday evening March 6th will, without doubt, be the best musical treat ever provided by local talent. Some knowledge of the wondrous possibilities of a United Choral Society in Orangeville was given those who were present at the Concert on New Year's night. The part-songs, so beautifully rendered on that occasion by the newly organized Society, were the result of less than a month's preparation. Now, after three months under the able leadership of Mr. J. E. Jessop, this Choir of 30 voices, chosen from all the various choral organizations of the town, will present a Concert such as few can afford to miss.

Admission, 35c. All seats reserved. Plan of Hall opens at The Banner Office, Saturday next at 2 p.m. Mark your seats early. Watch for programmes.

It has been decided that St. Peter's Cemetery in Thorold, a tract of five acres owned by the trustees of St. John's Episcopal Church, will be needed for the Welland Ship Canal.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

Business at Monday Night's Meeting Largely of Routine Variety.

$6,000 Additional Insurance May Be Placed on Opera House Building

The Town Council held an uneventful sitting on Mouday night. All the members were in attendance. The following accounts were examined and their payment authorized :—J. C. Darraugh, $22.20 ; C. C. G. Hannah, $5.90 ; Adamson Hardware Co., $5.-33 ; O. Herman, $1.00 ; Lathwell & Son, $47.60 ; Sarah King, $15 ; Samuel Street, $3.92 ; W. O. Thomas, $2.04 ; Isaac Hughson, $5 ; John Norris, $25, services as auditor ; T. J. Bennett, $25, services as auditor ; J. Kearns & Son, $5.93 ; Municipal World, $9.77 ; J. Kearns & Son, $4.-20 ; Jas. A. Arnott, $2 ; Canadian Surety Co., $35.

An account from Lord Dufferin hospital for $14 was referred to the Finance Committee for report.

The National Sanitarium Association acknowledged the receipt of $10.-80, proceeds of the collection taken at the public meeting held in the Town Hall a week ago Sunday night.

No action was taken on a communication from Rev. J. H. Dyke, Field Secretary of the Muskoka Field Hospital, asking for a donation.

An application from H. and E. Moody for a reduction of taxes was referred to the Court of Revision.

The Industrial Committee was instructed to furnish certain statistics asked for by the Contract Record.

The Mayor presented the auditors' report, which was referred to the Finance Committee for report. If found satisfactory the Committee will have the report printed.

Council adopted the Finance Committee's report recommending payment of S. White's account of $17.50.

The Fire & Water Committee was given until next meeting to report re. the procuring of electric power for the new pump in the Fire Hall. The Committee was also empowered to make arrangements for a horse for the Fire Brigade and a driver.

The Council voted down a motion by the Reeve and Coun. Darraugh to charge the Women's Institute $1.00 a day for the use of the old Council Chamber. An amendment by Councillors Henderson and McGuire to charge $4 for the use of the Chamber two days per week for five weeks met a similar fate. An amendment to the amendment by Couns. Holmes and Johnston making the charge $5 instead of $4 was also lost on division. After failing to agree on the question of rental, the Council put through a motion empowering the Property Committee to have the old Council Chamber downstairs cleaned and put in order.

The Property Committee was instructed to report as to the cost of placing $4000 or $6000 additional insurance on the Opera House building.

Chief Marshall complained that the new furnace in the Opera House was not doing its work properly. The Clerk was instructed to notify the Adamson Hardware Co. to instal the furnace properly so that it will heat the building to the satisfaction of the Council and in accordance with the terms of the contract.

PEEL LIBERALS

Annual Meeting of County Association was Held in Brampton on Saturday.

The annual meeting of the County of Peel Liberal Association was held in Brampton on Saturday. Mr. J. G. Anderson, M.P.P. for South Bruce, was present, and gave a very concise statement of the Liberal attitude under present developments to an enthusiastic audience—eager for work. A great many resolutions were passed, among them resolutions of confidence in their worthy leaders in both the Federal and the Local Houses. One of the important resolutions was as follows :—

"That this meeting notes with concern the encroachments of the interests upon the rights and property of the plain people, as shown in the new bank act passed at Ottawa, the stallion enrollment act, and also the new taxation authorized on court suits and Surrogate Court fees authorized by the Legislature."

This was the best and most enthusiastic meeting the Liberals have had in many a day, and it was agreed that a convention be held on March 21 to nominate candidates for both the Federal and the Local Houses.

The new officers are :—President, Benjamin Petch; 1st Vice President, James Laidlaw ; 2nd Vice-President, J. M. McKimm ; Secretary, J. H. Beck ; Treasurer, Wm. Bowsfield.

WANT RADIAL RAILWAY

Grand Valley Would Like to Get on Line of Proposed Guelph to Georgian Bay Railway

The Star & Vidette states that Reeve Menary called a special meeting of Grand Valley village council a few nights ago to consider the question of petitioning the Hydro-Electric Commission to run the proposed electric railway from Guelph to a point on the Georgian Bay through Grand Valley. From Grand Valley those who are interesting themselves in the matter suggest that the road should be run to Shelburne then to Honeywood and along the valley east of the Blue Mountains to Collingwood. This they point out would open up a fertile tract of country that is badly handicapped at present for the want of proper railway facilities.

The matter, the Star & Vidette states, came before Grand Valley council on a petition from Melancthon township and it met with a hearty response. A survey of the route has already been made, but this fact does not mean that this is necessarily the route that will be adopted. Generally a number of surveys are made and the route selected is one that offers the greatest advantages in grades and revenue under operation.

A HOTEL COMPANY

Grand Valley Temperance People Take Steps to Solve Problem of Hotel Accommodation Under Local Option

Grand Valley is not going to suffer for want of hotel accommodation, after May 1st when local option comes into effect. Accommodation for the travelling public is just as essential to a progressive place as enterprising merchants, and much of the opposition to local option in the past resulted from the lack of this need and the refusal of the temperance people to close up the breach when the former hotel keepers practically closed up their houses. Just what the local bonifaces will do is not known, but such an action is not expected. For some months it was understood the Forgrave boys would not occupy the Dominion Hotel another year ; and Mr. Harper is not averse to disposing of The Commercial. The Grand Central will no doubt continue as it has during the past year or so, although Mr. Swain is anxious to go West.

Houses run by temperance people have proved a financial success in addition to giving an improved service in several places in this province and when the organization was effected prior to the vote on local option the temperance cause scored.

Locally, it is proposed to have a Limited Company capitalized at $10,-000, of which $7,000 will be paid up. An honest effort will be made to secure one of the existing houses, which if procured at a satisfactory price will be put in shape to meet the changed conditions, and under capable management. Failing to make a satisfactory agreement, the people interested, if occasion demands it, propose to build a new hotel. Revs. C. L. Poole and D. J. Lane have been circulating the stock sheets and report a very generous response.—Star & Vidette.

Division Court.

Two cases were tried by Judge Fisher in the Orangeville Division Court on Tuesday.

Jno. S. Graham sued Watson McCluskey for $12 for the services of a horse. Plaintiff got judgment for $12 without costs. J. L. Island for plff.; P. M. Pattullo for deft.

Wm. Allen, a farmer on the 5th line, Mono, sued Geo. H. Duke, one of his neighbors, for $15, the sum at which he valued a 10 days' calf, which he swore Duke had taken from his premises. Duke bought a cow from Allen at the time and his defence was that the bargain was for the calf as well. Allen was given judgment for $10 and costs. W. J. L. McKay for plff.; J. L. Island for deft.

Rabinovitch vs. Booth.

The appeal by J. E. Booth, of the Queen's hotel, from the order made by His Honor, Judge Fisher, on Dec. 5th last, was argued before Chief Justice Meredith and Justices Maclaren, Magee and Hodgins of the Appellate Division of the High Court last Thursday. The order Booth appealed from was made in proceedings taken under The Overholding Tenancy Act and directed the Sheriff of the County of Dufferin to place Rabinovitch in possession of the Queen's hotel and further ordered that the tenant pay the costs of the proceedings. After hearing argument their Lordships reserved judgment. W. M. Douglass, K.C. and W. J. L. McKay appeared for the appellant and H. H. Shaver and A. A. Hughson for the owner.

Death of Mrs. Jephcott.

Mrs. R. H. C. Jephcott, formerly Miss Kate Wiggins, of Chinguacousy, died at her home in Kremlin, Montana, on Sunday, Feb. 15th. Her husband predeceased her by an interval of about four years. She leaves to mourn her loss a son, Clarence, one daughter, Myrtle, and her father, who lives in Chicago. Mrs. Dale, of Dundalk, Mrs. Wm. Beatty, Carlyle, Sask., Mrs. W. J. Little, Shelburne, and Mrs. John McConnell, of this town, are sisters.

Mrs. John Gillespie.

Mrs. John Gillespie passed away at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cruikshank, West Broadway, on Saturday night after a long and trying illness. Deceased was taken ill a few months after her marriage two years ago last January and had been under the care of a physician almost continually since then. She fell a prey to the ravages of that dread and insidious malady, tuberculosis. She bore her long confinement cheerfully and displayed remarkable fortitude. By her friends she was both loved and esteemed and her removal so early in life has occasioned the sincerest sorrow. Profound sympathy is also felt for the young husband, the parents and sisters. The surviving sisters are Mrs. Gorrell, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, Miss Annie Cruikshank, Toronto, and Miss Jennie Cruikshank in Guelph. The funeral was held from her parents' residence to the Forest Lawn cemetery on Monday afternoon. Rev. G. W. Robinson conducted the services and was assisted by Rev. W. M. Morris. Numerous floral offerings bore mute but impressive testimony to the grief of many friends. The remains were borne to their last resting place by Messrs Wm. and Chas. Gillespie, W. J. Cruikshank, Dr. Carson, Geo. Beswick and J. D. McMillan.

Inglewood Anniversary

Sunday School Anniversary Services will be held in Inglewood Methodist Church on Sunday, March 8th. Rev. G. N. Grey, of Alliston, formerly pastor of this church, will preach on Sunday at 10.00 a.m. and 7.00 p. m. All are cordially invited.

There will be no Monday entertainment this year.

Axe Glanced on Clothesline

Mr. T. Hepton, a well-known citizen, had a close call while splitting some firewood last Friday morning When he placed the first stick on the splitting block he failed to notice that someone had moved the clothesline from its usual position. As he swung the axe back it struck the clothesline and glanced striking Mr. Hepton a terrific blow on the forehead directly over the right eye. The force of the blow well nigh stunned him and the wound bled profusely, but he managed to stagger to the house, where he succeeded in checking the bleeding. Dr. Kyles, who was hurriedly summoned, found it necessary to use four stitches to close the gash. Mr. Hepton had a very sore head for two or three days, but is now going about again as usual.

GOD SAVE THE KING!

CAMILLA.

Mr. Moon, our popular merchant, is retailed in the King Edward.

Mr. Lloyd Banks was the guest of Miss Vera Bremner over Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. Rayfield visited Grand Valley friends last week.

Mr. Fred and Miss Robina Thompson visited Shelburne friends Sunday.

Mr. Mabel Neil has returned from Cundy.

The Camilla Dramatic Club drove to Orangeville where a fowl supper was served and a very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Banks.

Misses J. and M. Moore have returned after an extended visit with Mrs. Wm. Wilson, Corbetton.

Mr. H. Banks, of Oxbow, Sask., was the guest of Mr. Geo. Rayfield last week.

Miss Ella Campbell is engaged as clerk at Mr. Alex. Mann's.

Two very interesting debates were held on Saturday night in the basement of the church. The juvenile debate "Resolved that an automobile is more enjoyable than a horse and buggy," was ably handled for the affirmative by Janey Howard and Allan Marsball and for the negative by Evelia Buchanan and Lawrence Marshall. The affirmative won by two points. The judges were Miss Aldcorn, Messrs. J. Ledlow and S. Martin. The young debaters showed much ready wit. The senior debate, "Resolved that the Present Generation is Degenerating," was supported by Mr. N. Rayfield and Mr. S. Martin, while the negative was taken by Messrs. Fred Buchanan and W. Rintoul. The negative won by a narrow margin. The judges were Misses Robina Thompson and Victoria Parks and Mr. Ralph Bremner. A large number were present. The debate next Saturday. "Resolved that Edison has done more for the world than Marconi," is under the leadership of Messrs. Ralph Bremner and Fred Thompson. It will be held in the King Edward hall and will be well worth hearing. Come one and all.

MONO MILLS.

About 10 o'clock on Saturday morning last Mrs. Robert Cobean, lot 6, 7th line, Mono, noticed smoke issuing from the barn and a few minutes later the whole building burst into flames and was quickly destroyed, together with a large quantity of hay and straw, about 300 bushels of oats, a quantity of wheat and barley, all the implements and fowl and some hogs. Mrs. Cobean, assisted by a small boy, succeeded in saving four horses and the cattle. Neighbors were quickly on the scene and succeeded in keeping the fire from spreading to other buildings, but as it is the loss is serious and the sincerest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Cobean and a young man named Reggie Maples, who was working the farm and was absent at the time the fire started. There is only a small insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

The local Amateur Dramatic Club has been engaged to put on its play "The Country Squire" for the second time in Mono Mills on Tuesday evening, March 10th. The play this time will be given under the auspices of Mono East Presbyterian Church and will be given in the English Church hall. St. Mark's orchestra, of Orangeville, has been engaged to furnish music. Mr. H. A. Dorrance, of Orangeville, will be present and contribute to the program. Addresses will be delivered by local speakers. Program commences at 8 o'clock. Admission 25c and 15c. This will likely be the last opportunity to see this popular play.

Mr. Geo. Howitt, who had intended to give up farming, has purchased Mr. Wm. Irwin's farm on the Mono Adjala townline. We unkerstand the price paid is about $5000. We wish Mr. Howitt success in his new home.

The local branch of the Farmers' Institute has had some splendid meetings this winter. Some of the members have been conducting experiments with commercial fertilizer during the past summer and the account of these has been interesting. Mr. Charles Crombie and Mr. Wm. Allen have been having some experience in blasting stone and it is well worth a long journey to hear Mr. Crombie telling about it. Quite an interest is being taken in co-operation and about twenty-five members of the Club have signed an agreement to grow at least one acre of one kind of potato with a view to co-operative selling. Another proposition at present being discussed is the holding of a co-operative stock sale every spring and a committee has been appointed to make arrangements for this. Mr. D. N. Potter and Mr. Wilson Duke will lead a discussion on "Clover Growing" at the next meeting, which should certainly be both interesting and instructive. These meetings are being attended by many who are not members and should be attended by everybody. Anyone who wishes to receive the Government bulletins issued from the experimental unions will have their names sent in by the secretary on receipt of 25c, and will also receive a ticket entitling them to members' privileges at the Guelph stock shows. Once a year the Department of Agriculture sends out its speakers to address the meetings and keep in touch with the needs of the people and the district representatives, Messrs. Dorrance, of Dufferin, and Tisdale, of Peel, are always ready and willing both to assist and advise.

Mr. John E. Jackson has been disposing of some fine males from his herd of registered Shorthorns at remunerative prices.

Mono Mills Branch of the Women's Institute will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. G. J. Lemon on Wednesday evening, March 11th, at 7 o'clock.

Women's Institute Socials.

The Orangeville Branch of the Women's Institute purpose holding several parlor socials to further various projects they anticipate carrying out in the near future. The usefulness of Institute work has been demonstrated successfully in the past and is now admitted by everybody. These social events are open to all. Men and women are cordially invited to them and to enjoy the delightful programs that are given largely by our talented younger people. The first of the three or more that the members of local Institute have arranged to hold —and a most successful Sociable it was —took place at the home of Mrs. J. D. Torrie, First Avenue, last Friday evening.

The Presbyterian orchestra, led by Mr. Thos. Presley, and accompanied by Miss Alberta Kearns, a gifted young pianiste, quite charmed all present with their splendid music and their generous responses to encores throughout the evening. Other appreciated numbers were a very fine duet by Messrs. Don and Ross McPherson, a humorous reading by Miss Ruth Shaw, piano duets by Misses Patterson and King, a solo by Miss Robinson, recitations by Miss Verlie Smith and two solos by Miss Vera Hogg. Sandwiches, cake and coffee brought a very enjoyable evening to a close. Mr. and Mrs. Torrie entertained their guests in a delightfully hospitable manner.

The next social will be given at the home of Mrs. Leighton, Zina St., on March 17th. Watch for notices later.

Sunday's Windstorm.

The March lion was in terrifically bad hun or this year if one may judge from the furious storm which swept over this part of the province Sunday night and Monday. It was the worst blow experienced in these parts this winter and the only thing that prevented a complete tie-up was the comparatively light snowfall. Sunday morning was comparatively mild, although there was a brisk wind, blowing from the northwest. As the day wore on the temperature fell rapidly and the velocity of the wind increased. By nightfall a high north wind was driving the light snow in blinding sheets. During the night the wind increased to a rate of 60 or 70 miles an hour. The storm continued until late Monday afternoon, when the wind subsided quite suddenly. Highways and railway lines were badly blocked. Orangeville was without any railway service until late Monday evening, when the trains from the south managed to get through. The lines north and west of here were not opened until Tuesday, when passengers and freight trains were able to resume the suddenly interrupted time schedule. The gale does not appear to have done a great deal of damage. In the country a number of barn doors were wrenched from the fastenings, and several windmills were wrecked. John Staveley, Whittington, Fred. Cooney, Laurel, James Woulfe, Amaranth Station, and Jos. Dermott, lot 5, Prince of Wales Rd., were among the farmers, whose windmills were wrecked. A section of the roof about eighteen feet in length was torn from Arthur Avison's barn near Mono Centre. The gale is attributed to the meeting of two storms, which came together over the eastern part of Canada and the United States. West of Lake Huron there was no wind and Alberta and Saskatchewan were revelling in balmy, springlike weather during the time that Ontario was in the clutch of the blizzard.

Mr. J. B. Irwin, lot 24, 2nd line, east, Caledon, will hold a clearing auction sale on Friday afternoon, March 13th. Sale will be in at one o'clock and will be on the usual terms. For list and full particulars see advt. or posters. Jas. A. Patterson, Auctioneer.

SEEDS AND SEED TESTING

At this particular season of the year, farmers are beginning to pay more or less attention to the question of the purchase of seed for the coming seeding time, and there are some things that should receive attention. The seed selected should be free from weed seeds, because, the weed problem is one of the most serious with which the farmer has to contend. Weeds cause an actual loss to the farmers of this County to the extent of many thousands of dollars each year. The extent of the loss is not realized. Every farmer understands the importance of weed eradication in his growing crop, but very few pay particular attention to preventing weeds from getting on their farms.

There are many natural agencies that aid in the spread of weeds. Weed seeds are carried by wind, water, animals, birds and by man himself, and one way in which weeds are brought on the farm is by sowing seed, which has mixed with it, many weed seeds, and it is a well known fact that a large percentage of weeds are put on the farm by actually planting weed seeds with the farm crops. In most cases the farmer should be familiar with the more common seeds as he is with the seeds of wheat, oats or barley. It is not necessary that he know the name of all the weed seeds, but he should know whether his grain contains seeds or not, and he should have a copy of the Seed Control Act, so that he will know the standards required for the various seeds.

ALL SEEDS SHOULD BE TESTED.

One of the first steps in the direction of good farming is the sowing of pure seed. No farmer should sow seed until he knows what he is planting. He should know just what the seed contains, how much inert matter such as chaff and dirt, broken seeds, etc., and the percentage of weed seeds. Furthermore, he should know what percentage of the seeds will grow when put into the ground. These facts can only be ascertained by testing the seed both for purity and germination before planting or, better still, before buying.

METHODS OF TESTING.

There are two kinds of tests:—A home test and a laboratory test. The home test can be made by the farmer himself. The laboratory test can only be made by the seed analyst of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. It will pay to have the laboratory test made if any quantity of seed is to be purchased or if one has seed for sale, in order to be sure that it is up to the standard required by law. A sample of the seed may be sent to the laboratory and both purity and germination tests will be made and report returned.

The farmer may test his own seed before sowing if he desires. All the apparatus needed is a small tripod lens and a small forceps. To make a very accurate test, a pair of small scales must be added to the equipment. A purity test should disclose the following facts:—

1. Percentage of pure seed.
2. Percentage of weed and other seeds.
3. Percentage of dirt.

In making a purity test, care should be taken, first of all to get a good average sample of the seed which is to be tested. The trial sample should be quite large and taken from the top, middle and bottom of the bin or sack. This should be thoroughly mixed, then placed on a flat surface and divided by a thin piece of cardboard or tin. One pile should be divided again if it is still too large. About a small teaspoonful is right for the test sample. The test sample is now ready to be divided into pure seed, weed seeds and dirt as described above. If scales are used the test sample can be weighed and each part weighed as separated and the percentages obtained. If no scales are available estimates of the percentages can be made nearly enough for general purposes. This completes the purity test unless identification of the seeds can be made. This, however, can hardly be done outside the regular laboratory. One thing more needs to be known, however, before the seed is sown. A germination test should be made as it is necessary to know how much of the seed in the sample will grow.

GERMINATION TEST.

In order to germinate a seed needs proper conditions of heat, air and moisture. The different seeds require different conditions for the best results of germination. For instance large seeds germinate best between folds of canton flannel kept moist, but not dripping; smaller seeds germinate best between moist blotting papers and very small seeds germinate best on top of moist blotting paper. The reasons for these differences are found in the fact that large seeds would not get sufficient moisture on top of the blotting paper and the very small seeds would get entirely too much if placed between the folds of canton flannel. From various tests the following division of seeds for germination has been made.

Between Folds of Moist Canton Flannel—Corn, peas, beans, pumpkin, squash, water melons.

Between Moist Blotting Papers—Brome grass, buckwheat, hemp, millet, muskmelon, onion, oats, beets, alfalfa, red clover, wheat, rye, barley, rape.

On Top of Moist Blotting Paper—Timothy, flax, alsike clover, white clover, red top.

The flannel and blotters should always be kept moist but not dripping. It has been found that some seeds germinate best when a variable temperature is used, but for ordinary home tests good results can be obtained when a temperature of 68 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit is used. The ordinary living room temperature is alright. Behind the kitchen range is a good place to germinate seeds.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS AND SETTLERS' TRAINS TO THE WEST.

Those taking advantage of above Excursions should bear in mind the many exclusive features offered by the Canadian Pacific Railway in connection with a trip to the West. It is the only all-Canadian route. Only line operating through trains to Western Canada. No change of depots. Only line operating through standard and tourists sleepers to Winnipeg and Vancouver. All equipment is owned and operated by Canadian Pacific Railway, affording the highest form of efficiency.

Homeseekers' fares will be in effect each Tuesday, March 3rd to October 27th inclusive, and round-trip second class tickets will be sold via Canadian Pacific Railway from Ontario points (Azilda and East) at very low fares—for example, from Toronto, also West and North of Toronto, to Winnipeg and return $35, to Edmonton and return $43. Other points in proportion. Fares from points East of Toronto will be slightly higher. Return limit two months.

Homeseekers' trains leave Toronto each Tuesday during March and April.

Each Tuesday during March and April, the Canadian Pacific will run Settlers' trains to Winnipeg and West, and for the accommodation of settlers travelling with live stock and effects, a colonist car will be attached to the settlers' effects train. This car will leave Toronto on regular train at 10.20 p.m., and on arrival at West Toronto it will be attached to settlers' effects train as mentioned above.

For those not travelling with live stock and effects, special Colonist cars will be attached to regular trains from Toronto, running through to Winnipeg without change. No charge is made for accommodation in Colonist cars.

Tourist sleeping cars are also operated on regular train leaving Toronto 10.20 p.m.

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS.

You Can Only Recover From Its After Effects by Enriching the Blood.

Few diseases so shatter the health as la grippe, or influenza. Its victims all tell the same story. They are left despondent, tired, weak and wretched in every way. They have no appetite, ambition or strength; cannot sleep and suffer from headaches, backaches and nervousness. In this weakened condition lies the real danger. The body falls an easy prey to bronchitis, pneumonia, and even to consumption. Nearly every form of nervous trouble has been known to follow an attack of la grippe. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give the quickest and most thorough relief from the after effects of this trouble. They build up and purify the blood, drive the poisons out of the system and give strength and tone to the whole body. The following is an example of their power in cases of this kind. Mrs. R. A. McLean, Wentworth Station, N.S., says: "Two years ago Herbert E. Freeman, a young boy living with us, was attacked with la grippe. At the time he did not have a strong constitution, and we feared the trouble was settling on his lungs. He was not able to walk fifty yards without being out of breath, and his general vitality was very low. For months he continued in this condition, notwithstanding all we did for him, and it was at this crisis that we got Dr. William's Pink Pills for him. By the time he had used three boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and this was followed by his being able to do light work, and later he had all the strength of a growing boy. His cure was looked upon as remarkable by all who knew him, and I am giving the result in the hope that it may be of benefit to someone else."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

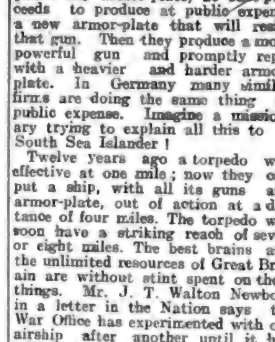
THE BIG GUN.

And the Amazing Patience of Mankind.

When the average persons reads about a 12-inch gun on a battleship it only conveys to his mind the idea of a great cannon—one of the most formidable in existence. But the 12-inch gun which could hurl an 850 pound projectile a distance of five miles has been entirely outclassed. It has been superseded by the 13.5 and by the 15-inch. The meaning of this will be better understood when it is explained that the 12-in. threw an 850 pound shot, the 15-in. throws a 1,950 pound shot. At a distance of five and a half miles it is claimed that this mass of metal would crash through fourteen inches of the best armor plate ever made. A correspondent writing to the Nation says that while the British Dreadnoughts now under construction are to carry these 15-in. guns, these are not deemed large enough by the armament makers; and he knows of one firm that is busily engaged on a monster 16-in. weapon, and only awaits the authorization of the Admiralty to have it brought into use. There is apparently no end to the cost of armaments.

Each year sees bigger guns throwing heavier projectiles. As the guns grow larger their cost increases, and with each addition to the power of of shot there must be heavier armor plate. The builders of battleships are engaged, at the public expense, in trying to produce guns that will pierce any armor-plate and in producing armor-plate that no guns can pierce. The same people are awarded both contracts, at the public expense, and need we wonder that they are busy and prosperous people? If the people of one nation were trying to make the irresistible gun, while another nation were trying to produce the impervious armor-plate, one or other might win and end the matter, or doubt might arise and each feel confident that it had the best of it, and so both would feel satisfied. But no termination of that kind may be looked for. The British firm that produces at public expense a new gun that will pierce any armor-plate, at once proceeds to produce at public expense a new armor-plate that will resist that gun. Then they produce a more powerful gun and promptly reply with a heavier and harder armor-plate. In Germany many similar firms are doing the same thing at public expense. Imagine a missionary trying to explain all this to a South Sea Islander!



Twelve years ago a torpedo was effective at one mile; now they can put a ship, with all its guns and armor-plate, out of action at a distance of four miles. The torpedo will soon have a striking reach of seven or eight miles. The best brains and the unlimited resources of Great Britain are without stint spent on these things. Mr. J. T. Walton Newbold in a letter in the Nation says the War Office has experimented with one airship after another until it has solved the main problems of flight. Now it abandons the field to private companies and orders are being placed with private firms to which its own experts have transferred their services. "And," he adds, "these airship and warship firms have works of their own or part interests in factories and yards in Japan, Brazil, Argentina, Canada, Spain, Italy, Hungary, Turkey, and Russia.

Is not the armament business a wonderful business? The British yards in which Dreadnoughts are being built to carry 15-in. guns are building similar ships for Italy, the ally of Germany; and no doubt if the Admiralty does not adopt the new 16-in. gun for British ships they will be put on the Italian battleships and Britain will be forced—purely out of necessity and in self defence—to build greater Dreadnoughts mounted with 17-in. guns.

The amazing patience of mankind in connection with all this is what puzzles those who view the facts.—Toronto Star Weekly.

PEEL CONSERVATIVES.

Select Dr. Graham, of Mono Road, as President of Their Association.

Large and Representative Attendance at Annual Meeting a Week Ago Saturday.

If a large and representative attendance, keen interest and general harmony are indications of strength and vitality then the Conservative Association of the County of Peel is as strong and agressive as at any time in its history. These elements were all in evidence at the annual meeting held in the Concert Hall on Saturday last, Feb. 21.

In the absence of George Downey, who during the past two years has filled the position of president, Dr. Graham, of Mono Road, the vice-president, took the chair. He explained the absence of Mr. Downey, congratulated the association upon the large attendance and Mr. Fallis upon his election.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Dr. Graham, Mono Road.
Vice-president, L. H. Pallett, Dixie.
Secretary, J. J. Donaghy, Brampton.
Treas., F. J. Jackson, Meadowvale.

The newly elected officers thanked the meeting and promised true and faithful service.

The business of the meeting having been promptly transacted, addresses were listened to from A. H. Pratt, M.P.P., South Norfolk; R. Blain, M. P., and others.

Mr. Pratt paid a glowing tribute to Sir James Whitney personally and to the character of his administration and expressed the hope that he would soon be able to take charge of affairs in the Legislature. He told of the work accomplished along agricultural and educational lines and explained the unwarranted charges made against the Prime Minister and Hon. W. J. Hanna.

Mr. Blain, after congratulating the newly elected officers upon the favorable position they occupied in the party, discussed the beneficial effect of the tariff from the standpoint of the Canadian farmer. The Conservative party had at all times been true to the interests of the farmers and mechanics and the tariff policy of the Borden administration would continue to protect the interests of the Canadian people. Speaking of the temperance agitation he reminded the audience that some years ago the Conservative candidate in Peel had given an unequivocal "yes" to the question that was submitted by the then temperance organization. The Liberal candidate had not done so. But at the very first meeting the Secretary who had written the question was on the platform supporting the Liberal candidate. The point of the story was that Grits are Grits first, temperance people afterwards. Mr. Blain was heartily applauded by those who have supported him so long and so enthusiastically.

Mr. Fallis contented himself with thanking the Conservatives for their support and for the large majority they had given him on November 3rd last. He would do his best, he said, to merit the confidence of the people and judging by the heartiness of the reception which he received, those present have faith that he will do so.

Canon Walsh spoke briefly.

The following resolutions were passed amid general applause:

Moved by J. J. Donaghy, seconded by W. S. Morphy, "That this meeting of delegates of the Conservative party of the County of Peel in annual convention assembled hereby express our confidence in the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden and the Government led by him in the House of Commons of Canada, and we also express our unbounded confidence in the popular member for the County, Richard Blain, who has so long and so successfully fought the battles of the party in the County, and for whom we have the greatest respect and admiration

Moved by Robert McCulloch, seconded by L. H. Pallett "That the representative delegates of the Conservative party from all parts of this County of Peel hereby again express our unbounded confidence in the Hon. Sir James Whitney, and our great pleasure and delight in his recovery from serious illness, and express the hope that he may long be spared to serve and honor the people of Ontario with his presence and his gifted statesmanship and we also express our confidence in James R. Fallis, and bespeak for him the continued support of the people of the County."—Conservator.

Mr. J. J. Gillem, Bricklayer, Weston, Ont., writes: — "Dr. Chase's name has been a household word in my family for over thirty years. We came from England to Canada in 1870 and soon after that I began to suffer from pain across the loins and derangements of the kidneys which often interfered with my work as bricklayer. A brother workman who had suffered in the same way as I was cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills gave me half a box of these pills for trial. These were of very great benefit to me and a second box made a cure and took all the pains out of my back. I well remember with what comfort and pleasure I did my work after that.

"From that day to this we have kept Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house as a family medicine and have found that they keep the kidneys, liver and bowels regular and the system healthful. It is evident that great care is taken in the composition of these pills to judge by their uniform action on the human body."

Sad Death of Willie E. Patton, of Euphrasia.

On Wednesday last, February 18, Willie E. Patton, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Patton, of Euphrasia, aged 22 years 7 months, deliberately ended his life by taking poison. It appears he had given way to disappointment in failing to win the affections of a neighbor girl, and had procured strychnine, and even threatened some weeks ago to end his life, but was prevailed upon not to do so. On Wednesday last he was about his work as usual, wrote a note and retired about 10 o'clock. Some fifteen minutes later his little brother, George, his bedfellow, gave the alarm that Willie was sick, and his father hastened to the room to find him in a death struggle which lasted but a few minutes.

Coroner Dr. Bell was notified and after a short investigation decided that a post mortem examination was unnecessary, as every circumstance pointed to a deliberate determination to end his own life. He had even made his will, and bequeathed his chattels and money in the bank to his parents equally. A note was also found on his person giving directions as to his burial.

Interment took place at Ebenezer cemetery, Hill Dale, Euphrasia, and the funeral was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Beamish and Mr. Wilkinson officiating. The obsequies were under the auspices of the Orange Brotherhood, of which he had been a member. The parents have the sympathy of the community in their sore affliction.

Concrete Roads Exceed Farmer's Expectations

THIS LETTER FROM MR. GEO. W. BURT, of Redford, Wayne County, Michigan, shows how well satisfied the farmers of that section are with concrete roads. Nearly one hundred miles have been built in Wayne County.

"Mr. Edward N. Hines,
Board of County Road Commissioners,
Wayne County, Detroit, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Our concrete roads are far ahead of the expectations of the majority of us farmers. Where we used to be two days marketing fifty bushels of produce, we now market twice as much in one day and can go to the city anytime we want to. We do not have to wait till the roads are good so we can go. Also, our horses and waggons will last twice as long.

Hoping you will keep right on building these roads, and that the county will stand back of this movement, I remain,

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) Geo. W. Burt
Redford, Wayne County, Mich.

Concrete Roads

are the cheapest and most satisfactory roads that can be built. Because they permit bigger loads, increase land values and improve conditions generally. Cheapest, because they are permanent and require practically no repairs, which permits road taxes to be spent on building more good roads. Most satisfactory, because they are open to traffic every day in the year, lower cost of marketing and cost of living and increase the farmer's profits.

Good Roads literature telling all about concrete roads will be sent, free, to everyone interested. Write to

AN ACT OF KINDNESS

And Its Infinite Results

By ALAN C. TROWBRIDGE

Being in for a siege of typhoid fever, I was taken to a hospital, thinking that I would receive better care there than anywhere else. Indeed, it was necessary in my case, for I was boarding at the time and had no home to go to. For several weeks I was too ill to realize much and after that convalesced very slowly. My nurse was an unattractive person, who did not seem to me to be fitted for her calling. She was snappish, tyrannical and devoid of that sympathy that a nurse should show for her charge.

How I wished that I had a mother or sister to come in and see me once in awhile, to take my hand in hers, smooth my hair and look down with kindly eyes into mine! But my mother had been dead several years and my only sister had a family of her own in a distant city to look after and could not come to me. Not having either of these comforts, my next wish was that my nurse would keep away from me.

When I became well enough to read I was given newspapers and periodicals. I knew where they came from, for I had seen the boxes at railway terminals with a notice painted on them, "Please deposit newspapers here for patients in the hospitals." Many a bit of reading matter had I thrown into one of these boxes after being done with it, but too much occupied with my own affairs to think about the possible comfort it might give to some discouraged invalid.

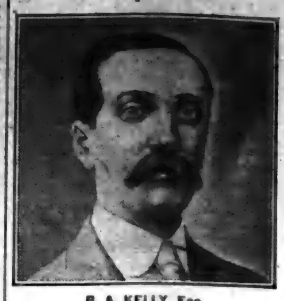
One morning I was given a newspaper to read, and on the margin of the first page was written in pencil, the handwriting being feminine, the following:

My Dear Invalid:—How I pity you confined in a hospital this bright morning when I am so well and so contented! It seems that I must go and spend a part of the day taking your burden and giving you my comfort. Keep up a good heart.

The writer had signed her initials and written something below it, which she had marked out, evidently on second thought, by running her pencil over it.

I strained my eyes trying without success to read the postscript through the lines that had been drawn over it.

SHE SAW THE MESSAGE WRITTEN IN HER OWN HANDWRITING.



I held it up between me and the window and saw enough of it to convince me that the donor and written her initials and her address. I could make out the initials E. D. C., but the address had been too faintly written to be legible through the scratches. However, I tore off the message and hid it under my pillow, and when the ward was deserted except by the patients it contained I got out of bed and, going to an electric lamp, held the paper up between me and the light. Then I read the address, 63 Prospect avenue.

I was as full of glee as if I had discovered a gold mine, for, though no city or town was given, I was sure of where Prospect avenue was. It was a prominent dwelling street in B., a suburb of the city in which I was at the time. I lived in B myself and was employed in town, coming and going every day. I had myself dropped newspapers into the very box that this woman had dropped the one that had reached me.

I had new light on the subject in another respect. The postscript read, "If I can be of service to you let me know." If an elderly woman had written this she would have been likely to let it stand. If a young girl had written it she would naturally be fearful that it might bring a complication with some man and would be inclined to erase it. Indeed, it would be like a girl to write it and then erase it. I did not doubt that when I recovered I and kept a watch on 63 Prospect ave-

LIFE THREATENED BY KIDNEY DISEASE

His Health In A Terrible State Until He Took "Fruit-a-tives".

B. A. KELLY, Esq.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work, and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

"My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever had".

B. A. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Kidney remedy in the world. It acts on the bowels and the skin as well as the Kidneys and thereby soothes and cures any Kidney soreness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FALLING HAIR AND ITCHING SCALP

Needless—Use Parisian Sage

Now that Parisian Sage can be had at any drug counter it is certainly needless to have thin, brittle, matted, stringy or faded hair. No matter how unsightly the hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, Parisian Sage is all that is needed. Frequent applications and well rubbed into the scalp will do wonders—it acts like magic. The hair roots are nourished and stimulated to grow new hair, itching scalp, dandruff and falling hair cease—your head feels fine. Best of all, the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life and beauty.

You will be surprised and delighted with Parisian Sage. Try at least one fifty cent bottle from F. S. Pickering. He will refund the purchase price if you are not satisfied.

London In 1784.

In 1784 M. La Combe published a book entitled "A Picture of London," in which, inter alia, he says, "The highroads thirty or forty miles round London are filled with armed highwaymen and footpads." This was then pretty true, though the expression "filled" is somewhat of an exaggeration.

M. La Combe in another part of his book exclaims: "How are you changed, Londoners! Your women are become bold, imperious and expensive. Bankrupts and beggars, coiners, spies and informers, robbers and pickpockets abound. The baker mixes alum in his bread. The brewer puts opium and copper filling in his beer. The milk woman spoils her milk with snails."

Honest Surprise.

"King Lear is a great character," remarked the friend.

"Yes," answered the actor. "I suppose you remember my performance last season?"

"No, I must confess I have never seen you in the part."

"Indeed!" was the rejoinder, in a tone of gentle surprise. "Then how on earth did you know it was a great character?"—Liverpool Mercury.

ARE YOU ONE OF THE UNFORTUNATES

With Backache, Headache and That Tired Feeling.

If So Listen to the Story of George F. Stander, and Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Handsworth, Sask., Mar. 2. (Special).—If you are one of those unfortunates who suffer from sore back, headache and that tired, listless feeling that makes work a hardship and life worth living, the story of Geo. F. Stander, a well known young man of this place, will interest you.

"For nearly ten years," Mr. Stander says, "I suffered from sore back and headache. I had a bad taste in my mouth in the morning, and I was always tired. I finally decided that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, and decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got half-a-dozen boxes, and before I had finished taking them I was completely cured.

"I advise anyone suffering as I did to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Healthy Kidneys strain all impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. Weak Kidneys leave these impurities in the blood, and the result is nervousness, tired feeling and pains and aches that often develop into Diabetes and Bright's Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills make weak Kidneys strong and healthy.

A TRIP TO THE COAST.

Great Variations in Scenery Along Line of C. P. R.

Vancouver a Busy, Bustling City of Many Nationalities.

The following interesting descriptive letter is from the pen of Mr. Clifford McBride, of Vancouver, B. C. The writer, who is only 15 years of age, moved from Orangeville to Vancouver some months ago.

• • •

The train for the West was due to leave the Union Station, Toronto, Monday night, 22nd September, at half-past ten o'clock. the train, which I was to go on, was called the Vancouver Express. It was a through train, that is, it only stopped at the big places along the line and when necessary to take water. After a few inquiries I found the number of my coach and when I arrived there, I found the porter standing outside ready to assist the passengers on, He immediately helped me on and carried in my suit cases. I might say here, that I travelled Pullman or first class. You have more privileges travelling Pullman than you do Tourist or second class. In travelling this class you have the use of the Observation Car. This car is always at the last of the other cars. It is like the other coaches, only the sides are all large windows and the floor is covered with rich carpet, and big, easy, roomy, upholstered chairs. At the end of the coach is a large platform, with chairs, and here you can sit on warm days and placidly survey the beautiful scenery to your heart's content. You also have the use of the magazines and books in the observation car. Everything is scrupulously clean. Your bed-clothing is changed daily. In the dining car the floor is laid with costly carpet and the waiters change the tablecloths and napkins for each setting of the table. At the end of the meal, the waiter brings a little silver bowl in which you are to dip your fingers and dry them on your napkin. You can see that in travelling, everything is first-class and the service very classical. But I must return again to where I left off. After I got my suitcases in kind of decent order, I began to survey my new quarters. If you have never been in a sleeper before, the sight is quite a novelty. The seats slide together and that forms the bottom of your berth, over which is spread the necessary clothing. At each end of the berth, a wooden panel is slid in and that divides off your berth from the others along the same side of the coach. Near the top of the ceiling is a wire and curtains are fastened to this so that they can be made to slide in either direction. This curtain screens the occupant of the berth from the view of anyone in the aisle. It was not very long till with a gentle start the train drew out, and I was off on my long journey across western Canada. Next morning about a quarter to seven o'clock we arrived in Sudbury. We stopped here for about 15 minutes and then started on again. From here on till you arrive at Winnipeg the country is a wild, desolate land. It is wild in appearance, very rocky, and nothing in sight but rough land, rocks, burnt trees and stumps. As far as the eye can see, you see the same desolate waste of land. We arrived in Fort William at 2.25 Wednesday morning and left at 1.35. You wonder how this can be. You change your watch here; moving it back one hour. The train finally rolled into Winnipeg at two o'clock that afternoon. As the train stopped here for an hour I thought I would take a walk around the station and a little piece up the main street. The station here is a magnificent building; also very clean and tidy. About three o'clock we again resumed our journey.

From Winnipeg on, the prairie begins. To look out of the car window and see the smoke curling up from the chimney of some homesteader's shack is very picturesque. The houses on the prairie as seen from the car windows, are at the very least a mile apart. From Winnipeg to Medicine Hat, the scenery is not so dreary as you see small shrubs and clumps of trees; but after you pass Medicine Hat you don't see a tree, and you soon get tired of looking at the same dreary, lonely scene. From Moose Jaw on, the prairie begins to roll, that is, it is rolling in appearance; but I am getting ahead of my journey in trying to describe the prairie. At Broadview you again change your watch by putting it back another hour. We passed through Regina and Moose Jaw in the early hours of Thursday morning. About noon that day, we arrived in Medicine Hat. After stopping here for fifteen or twenty minutes, we again commenced our journey. That evening about half-past six o'clock, the train rolled into Calgary. From here in the far off distance you can see dimly the mighty Rocky Mountains. Next morning about seven o'clock we stopped a few moments at Revelstoke and then again resumed our travel. During the night at Field, the time again changed and you once more move the hands of your watch one hour back. You can now see that time out in British Columbia is three hours slower than back in Ontario. At this stage of the journey you are right in the heart of the Rocky Mountains. I can't begin to describe the scenery or mountains, and I think the best thing you can do is to take a trip to Vancouver and then you can see for yourself the scenery and the mountains. To see the sun shining on the mountain tops, which are covered with snow, is a very pretty sight. To go whizzing round a sharp curve and through a dark tunnel is one of the many experiences in travelling over the Rockies. From Toronto right through to the Pacific coast, the train travels at a good rate. They can do this safely on account of the length of the train; the train mostly consisting of at least ten coaches. Shortly after leaving Revelstoke you strike the Thompson River and travel along beside it for hundreds of miles. After a time the Thompson joins the Fraser River and you travel along beside it for a considerable distance. For a person who has never lived near water or in fact for any one, it is a sight one never tires of, to sit and look out of the car window at the water as mile after mile rolls along. As we are nearing Vancouver, the porter comes along with his whisk and brushes your clothes after which you are supposed to slip him a tip. About 11.15 that night the train rolled into the depot at Vancouver. My, the tumult and noise there was great! Japs with push-carts calling to take your trunks and valises to where you are staying; drivers of automobiles and hotel busses shouting out the names of their hotels were some of the many noises that greeted my ears as I stepped off the train. I might say here that Vancouver has a great future ahead of it. In this city of many prospects, one finds every nationality under the sun; Chinese, Japs, Hindus, Italians, Jews, Danes, Norwegians, Swedes, Greeks, Bulgarians, and English, Irish and Scotch, along with a few French, Swiss and Spaniards are to be found. In fact there are people here from every part of the world, hence you might say Vancouver is a cosmopolitan city. Since I have arrived at my destination, I might say that I have enjoyed my four days' trip across Western Canada to the Pacific Coast greatly.

FARMERS AND AUTOISTS.

Farmer Pays Heavy End of Taxes and Latter Gets Most Use of Roads.

Councillor Morton Makes Stashing Answer to "Mulmur Farmer."

Editor of The Banner,

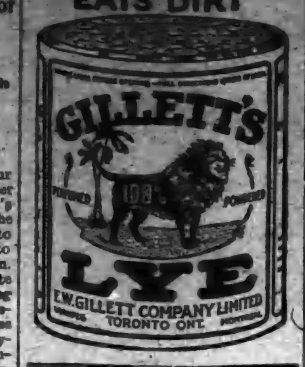
Dear Sir:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to reply to the letter by "Mulmur Farmer" in last week's Sun. Neither this writer nor the cause he advocates can amount to very much, when he is ashamed to sign his name to the communication.

This writer dares me to dispute one word in his letter. I am going to accept the challenge and take issue with him as to the correctness of several of his statements. If everybody has a right to run on the highways why arrest murderers, or burglars or drunkards? If my Mulmur friend's argument is any good these men should get leave to run. Because some man used dynamite to blow up a bridge and thereby wreck a train and kill a number of people why not allow him to continue in his mad career as it is proposed to do with the autos? The writer speaks of blocking the wheels of progress, but I would prefer to call them the wheels of destruction. All that is necessary to prove that I am right is to read the daily newspapers. I am told that if I meet an auto on the road and my horse takes fright all I have to do is to hold up my hand. The auto would then come to a standstill. I know as well as my critic does that there are some autoists who will do this, but I also know from experience that there are some who will not. I had one of them run into me and break a wheel of my cart despite the fact that I held up my hand. In this case the man with the auto neither gave an inch of the road nor slackened speed. You say that ten miles an hour is the speed limit. Well, sir, this man must have been going 50 miles. I am told that if I could afford an auto I would have one before the 1st of May. I could afford one if I wanted it, but I would not take one as a gift, run it and keep it in repairs. What use are they to a farmer anyway? They will not plow, or harrow, or pull a binder with any satisfaction to anybody. Even if they would do this they are no use in winter time. One would have to keep horses for winter use and the autos for summer use. No ordinary farmer could afford this nor would it pay any of them. An auto costs at least $1000. They only last about three years, that is if you were to use them every day as you do a horse. That would mean $300 a year without counting anything for running expenses. How many farmers could afford this?

Now about those six persons who were killed near Rosemont. Was Mr. Marshall one of them? If he was, Dr. Gowan's auto frightened his horses and caused them to run away, killing him. I have no doubt that if I were familiar with the other cases the facts would be similar, autos being the primary cause of the fatalities. I am asked what made England and the United States great nations. Was it because some person invented the auto? No. I will leave it to the cultured and educated people to judge as to that. You state that Wesley Penelton, of Sheldon, was thrown from his wagon one day and that an autoist conveyed him to the doctor's, a distance of 11 miles in 20 minutes. How does this correspond with what you said respecting the speed limit? This man broke the law, as the autoists are always doing. Would not a horse have taken the injured man to the doctor's in plenty of time to have his leg set? Why certainly. It seems foolishness for me to continue answering those silly questions of yours, so I will pass on to more important matters.

If a farmer pays say $50 a year taxes, which is about the average and one-half of this goes for school purposes and the other $25 goes to pay for making and keeping up roads and he does six days statute labor as well and only drives three horses on the roads he pays to maintain while the autoist drives a 20 or 30 h.p. car, how much should the latter pay to be taxed equally with the farmer? Seeing that these gentry claim equal road rights should they not pay an equal share of the taxes? Yet we find them grumbling at the paltry sum of 40c or 50c per horse power, when it is plain to everybody that they should pay more than the farmer, as they are harder on the roads. For instance the load drawn by the horses is distributed over the road, but not so with the auto as it is driven by the pressure of the four tires upon the roadbed, causing a suction and wearing out the road by friction. Couple this with the high death rate, the proportion being three killed by auto to one killed by wagon and then tell us in your next letter if you think the autoists should not pay three times as much taxes as the farmers. This would mean $75 a year instead of $6 or $7 which they now pay. I know as well as "Mulmur Farmer" does that there always will be accidents, but is it not the duty of all true British subjects to do all in their power to prevent all of these accidents that they can and not be the cause of unnecessary loss of human life and then trying to shield themselves by crying out that we are not to stop the wheels of progress, for it was the inventions of man that made England great. Does it not appear to you that you are on the wrong track and need someone to help you out? Did you ever stop to think that the law needs changing? Look at the physician exhausting his brain and searching land and sea in an effort to find some remedy that will cure all diseases, even killing a mud turtle to find a cure for the white plague. Then the next day he goes out with his auto, scares some poor fellow's horses and they run away. The occupants of the vehicle are killed according to law. The physician autoist cures them according to law and kills them according to law, so that you see it is all done according to law and your "wheels of progress" travel along unchecked. Now, sir, it is up to you as a good man and true to your country to do something to put a stop to these things of which I complain, and thereby remove the ill-feeling that now exists between the farmer and the autoist. In this way you may make a name for yourself that will go down in the history of your country, long to be remembered by the friends of those you killed with your auto. The figures compiled by the National Roads Commission of New York show that three people are killed by auto to one killed by wagon. This should be conclusive proof that the auto is a curse and should not be allowed on the same road as a horse. In conclusion I would just say that if you write any more you should tell us something new, as your great inventions and wheels of progress are worn out. For my part I do not intend to answer any more of your letters unless you sign your name and post office address.



Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of your space I remain

Yours Faithfully,

J. A. MORTON.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

TO REVIVE LACROSSE

Important Meeting in Brampton in Connection with Movement to Place National Game on an Amateur Basis.

The Brampton Conservator states that a meeting of unusual interest and importance from a lacrosse standpoint was held in Dr. Sharpe's rooms a week ago Monday night. It was the first of a series of meetings to be held for the revival of Canada's national game on a purely amateur basis. Having this in mind the promoters of the movement intend organizing school leagues for boys of different ages; and also for young men in every town and city.

James L. Hughes was the speaker of the evening. His words were glowingly in praise of lacrosse. As a player himself he spoke, and he spoke earnestly of the value of the great game as a character maker or boys, making them into great and straight men if they proved fit to pass the temper tests and the tests of stamina, mental, moral and physical, that are inseparable from the national game as it ought to be played. "Live right if you would play lacrosse," was one stirring message of Mr. Hughes. "Dodging evil never made a Christian, and dodging never made a lacrosse player," he declared. Earnestly he insisted on the importance not of mere thinking right, and of being taught how to choose right for boys, but rather of doing and deciding. Action, action, action every time, he demanded for the upbuilding of boyhood to worth-while manhood, and the action discipline of the lacrosse field is the training Mr. Hughes would have before all other athletic forms of character training for boys and girls, too. He concluded by quoting the great authority on athletic sports for boys, Dr. Sergeant, of Harvard. To Mr. Hughes not very long ago, Dr. Sergeant said without knowing that the Colonel was an old lacrosse player, "lacrosse is the very best game that was ever introduced into the world to develop men physically, intellectually and morally." "The man who said that," added Mr. Hughes, "stands at the very head of the physical trainers of the world."

Others who were in attendance from outside were Fred Sinkins, Pres. C. L. A., Joe Lally, Frank Doyle, Blaney McGuire, of Orangeville; J. Murphy, Pres. N.L.U., Fred Thompson, Secretary of the Torontos. The Brampton representatives were Mayor Mara, Dr. Roberts, F. W. Gillies, J. McClelland, Dr. Sharpe, A. G. Davis, R. Blain, D. Ingram, Percy Warr and others.

Mr. Thomas Mackle was chairman of a meeting organized after the principal speakers had left, to further the movement, and the committee appointed to press on with the organization of the new double league in Brampton, under the arrangement proposed by Mr. Lally, and his supporters in the movement consist of Dr. J. Roberts, chairman, Mayor Mara, Mr. F. W. Gillies (who has promised to give 25 medals), and Mr. David Ingram.

Another big meeting will be called soon in Brampton in connection with the lacrosse movement now started.

"DRYS" GAIN ONE

Official Scrutiny in Peel County Increased Majority for Canada Temperance Act.

Ballots Were Numbered in One Polling Sub-Division but They Were Allowed to Stand.

Just one more vote was added to the former "dry" majority of fifty-seven at the recent Peel County Canada Temperance Act contest, at the scrutiny conducted by his Honor Judge McGibbon in the Town Hall in Brampton on Monday, at the instance of Mr. W. E. Allen, Secretary of the Licensed Victuallers' Association on Ontario. Representatives of the temperance party were: Mr. B. F. Justin, K.C., and Capt. G. E. Young, of Brampton, while the opponents of the petition were represented by Messrs. James Haverson, K.C., of Toronto, and Mr. T. J. Blain, of Brampton.

The final figures are:

	For	Against
Brampton	421	444
Streetsville	51	86
Chinguacousy	510	305
Albion	262	291
Caledon	369	413
Toronto Gore	75	117
Toronto Twp.	649	641
Bolton	93	75
	2,430	2,372

Majority for —58.

The original count was: For, 2,426; against, 2,369, and the changes indicate the several losses and gains sustained by both parties. Brampton lost two "wet" votes, but being discarded they did not get into the hands of the "drys."

A peculiar incident characterized the afternoon session. When the ballot box containing the votes cast at No. 7 polling station (Palestine), Toronto township, was opened, it was found that each ballot paper bore the number which should have appeared upon the counterfoil. The Deputy Returning Officer at this booth was Mr. John Graham.

This individual count gave the opponents of the act a majority of 15. Mr. Justin submitted that the whole contents of the box be cast aside on the ground that every vote could be identified, as actually was the case with a few. Mr. Haverson, on the other hand, argued that positive identification was impossible without first obtaining the evidence of the Deputy Returning Officer. A compromise was effected satisfactory to both sides, and the count was allowed to stand, as it in no way affected the result.

Contrary to expectations, the scrutiny was accomplished in a few hours. Both sides were eager to accomplish the task as expeditiously as possible. Commencing at 11 o'clock, the boxes were rapidly opened and the contents counted. No arguments whatever punctuated the operations.

"Everything was accomplished in a regular manner," declared Judge McGibbon at the conclusion. "If there have been any irregularities they were due to the apparent neglect of the Deputy Returning Officers, who failed to tear off the counterfoils in many instances."

As an alleged justification of his plea that the opponents of the act should not pay the court costs, Mr. Haverson urged that the discoveries of irregularities already mentioned was sufficient to justify the scrutiny. It was afterwards decided that Mr. Haverson should pay just the actual court fees.

MONO CENTRE.

Please allow me space in your valuable paper, Mr. Editor, for an account of a few of the happenings in this locality. The debate on Saturday night last was a great success. The subject discussed was, "Resolved that a Limited Monarchy is a Better Form of Government than a Republic." The affirmative, which was championed by Messrs. Frank Therault and Norman Lindsay, won out.

Mr. Harry Simpson has a very successful wood bee on Friday of last week, getting in the neighborhood of 30 cords cut. The night was then spent in dancing and other amusements, which were continued until the wee, sma hours of the morn.

He thought perhaps he was growing old,
His heart seemed turning grey
And he sighed, "the hours will be lone and cold
Before we pass away."

But a maiden came with a happy laugh
And a merry smile for him,
And the years slipped by at a merry clip
For he was young and gay again.

He suffered from ache and from pain
One day he thought he was very ill,
His very heart was sore to the quick
He thought he would never be well again.

Then a friend came in with a lively word
And oh, such a cheery smile
And up he rose, when her voice he heard
He was well in a little while.

This man, who lives on the first line
Has thought well to change his mind,
He drives across east to the second line
In search of a girl more after his kind.

The lane is long and dreary and lone,
He makes the grade, but not before dark
But when he reaches that backward place
He finds the girl not of the same heart.

A widower he is, a widower he may be
He thinks he can handle two or three

Rich Indian teas blended with flavory Ceylons.

Personal Mention

Mrs. J. W. McMaster and Mrs. J. F. Smith are spending a week with friends in Toronto.

Mr. Walker Jenkins is home again after a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Island, of Erin.

Mr. Hamilton Ferns, of Berlin, a former resident of Orangeville, spent yesterday renewing acquaintanceships in town.

Master Blaikie Fairbairn visited at the home of his uncle, Mr. Vrooman, Maple View Farm, Laving Springs, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Glassford, of Erin, spent Saturday and Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Montgomery, East Garafraxa.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross McGuire, of St. Thomas, were the guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. D. A. Hogg, and other relatives in town Monday night and Tuesday.

Miss C. G. Simpson has returned home after spending two weeks in the Royal Alexandra Hospital, where she was attending her niece, Mrs. Norman Reid.

Mr. A. McBride, Messrs. D. and Ross McPherson, Miss Blanche Cameron and Mr. W. C. McMillan attended the funeral of the late Peter McGill in Erin on Tuesday.

Mrs. John Rawn, of Mono Road, spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. John Patterson, First St., last and this week. On Saturday Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Rawn went to Fergus to visit their sister, Mrs. W. J. Henry, who is in the Royal Alexandra Hospital.

Women's Institute.

The ladies of the Orangeville Women's Institute purpose giving a Parlor Social at the home of Mrs. Geo. Leighton, Zina St., on March 17th, commencing at 8 o'clock p.m. A delightful programme, appropriate to the day, will be given. Light refreshments will be served. Admission 10c. Ladies will kindly remind their husbands that their presence is requested. All are invited to attend.

Miss Rattee Coming

Miss Rattee, of Toronto, who has charge of the Rescue Home in connection with the Social Service Department of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will address a public meeting of the women of the town in St. Andrew's Church on Tuesday afternoon next at 2.30 o'clock. Miss Rattee is a bright and eloquent speaker and her story of the work in which she is engaged has a special interest. All women are cordially invited.

Snow Plow Left Track

A snow plough, which was sent up the Owen Sound line to open the track after Monday's storm left the rails near Shelburne early on Tuesday morning, left the track. William Hall and Hubert Dale, two Orangeville men, who were members of the crew, were injured in the run-off. Hall was severely bruised about the body and will be pretty sore and stiff for some days. Dale had his nose broken, his back twisted and sustained a bad cut over the left eye. His right ear bled profusely, apparently from some internal injury. The injured men were attended by Dr. T. H. Henry. Dale was subsequently taken to Lord Dufferin Hospital, where he is resting comfortably. The friends of the young man will hope for his speedy recovery.

—J. R. Harcus has received this week another shipment of choice British Columbia salmon to sell at 10c per lb. I also have herring, sea trout, mackerel, haddies and cod fish at lowest prices. Phone 38, East Broadway.

—The Spring Assizes are due to open in the Court House here next Tuesday before Chief Justice Falconbridge. So far no cases have been entered for trial and the likelihood is that there will be neither civil nor criminal business for the Court.

—Mr. Peter McGill, widely known as Secretary of Erin Fall Fair Society, passed away at his home in Erin village on Sunday. A number from here attended the funeral on Tuesday. Mr. McGill was a cousin of Mr. D. MacPherson, of this town.

—E. C. Bingham, C. V. Jeffers, D. McCallum and Dr. Rooney journeyed to Grand Valley on Wednesday of last week in search of the coveted Bankers' Trophy. They gave the Grand Valley curlers a hard game but were obliged to return home with the small end of a 15-13 score.

—Last week Mr. W. H. Hunter, The Maples, made a trip to Kentland, Ind., where he purchased a purebred Hereford cow and calf and a two year old heifer. The cow is considered one of the best in the State. The purchases were made at a sale at which 75 cattle were sold, one bull bringing the unusually large sum of $3750.

—A Shelburne rink visited Grand Valley the other day and was successful in lifting the Bankers' Trophy. The winning players were Dr. White, D. Henderson, H. Cameron and F. H. Silk. As a consequence the closing bonspeil for the trophy, which takes place to-day, will be played on Shelburne ice. The local Club is sending up two rinks.

—Wm. Allen, 5th line, Mono, figured as complainant and Geo. H. Duke as defendant in an assault case, which was ventilated before P.M. Pattullo on Tuesday. Allen, his wife and hired man swore positively that Duke punched Allen on the nose making the blood flow freely. Duke and two men who accompanied him to the Allen place, where the trouble occurred, swore just as positively that he had not struck the complainant. The magistrate imposed a fine of $5 and costs.

Horses for Saskatchewan

Mr. J. E. Thompson, a well-known local horseman, is shipping a carload of horses to Eyebrow, Sask., to-day. The lot consists of 5 stallions and 4 registered mares, including a team of handsome matched hackneys, which Mr. Thompson bought some months ago. Mr. Thompson will start for the West on Friday and expects to dispose of the shipment in the Eyebrow neighborhood. One of the stallions "Dunure Bryan" has already been sold to a farmer near Regina. Mr. Thompson has only one stallion in his stables here now. This is "Dunure Postman" a handsome Clydesdale rising 6 years old, sired by the famous Marcellus. This horse has splendid action and conformation and tips the scales at 2000 lbs. He will stand at the Commercial House stables this year.

An Enjoyable Dance

Mr. Harris Buchanan entertained a large number of neighbors and friends to a most enjoyable dance at his home on lot 14, 2nd line, west, Mono, on Wednesday evening last. Between 50 and 60 guests graced the occasion with their presence. The greater part of the night was spent in dancing, card playing and other amusements. Splendid music was provided by Buchanan brothers, John Patterson and Messrs. Gooderham and Hunter. The floor managers were Fred Thompson and Will Smith. A dainty lunch was served at midnight, after which the floor was cleared and the dancing continued. A good time was spent by everyone present and all departed for their homes with delightful memories of the kindly hospitality of Mr. Buchanan.

A GRAND MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. D. L. McIntyre, McIntyre's Mountain, N.S., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are a grand medicine for little ones and I am well satisfied with the results obtained from them." Mrs. McIntyre's testimony is the same as that of thousands of other mothers. Once a mother has used the Tablets she will use nothing else for the results are sure and the Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be perfectly safe. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

S. A. EGAN DEAD.

Was Prominent in Albion Municipal Affairs and Also in Orange Order.

Following an illness which extended over several months, Samuel A. Egan, known to his familiars as "Father" Egan, passed away at his home in Bolton on Sunday night, Feb. 22nd. The serious nature of the disease from which he suffered and the fact that he was known to be gradually growing weaker rendered the announcement of his death less of a shock to his friends. The late Mr. Egan was born in King township and was in his 66th year. About thirty years ago he moved to his farm just east of Bolton and about twenty-five years ago he became a resident of Bolton, where he carried on the business of an implement agent. Since moving to Peel he has been prominently identified with municipal affairs. He served as councillor and reeve of Albion for many years and as reeve of Bolton for two years. He also represented the Albion-Bolton-Gore Division in the county council for several years, and was honored with the wardenship of Peel in 1903. Mr. Egan was also prominent in the Orange Association for years and held many offices of prominence in the Order. He was also for years connected with Court Bolton, I.O.F. He was a staunch Conservative in politics and had a reputation as a ready platform speaker. Last year he spent several months in the British Isles as a representative of the Immigration Department of the Dominion Government. He held the confidence and esteem of all and his death removes one of the prominent figures of the district. He is survived by his wife and son Charles, who lives in Toronto. The funeral, which took place on Wednesday, to Laurel Hill cemetery, was largely attended. Service was conducted at the house by Rev. A. N. St. John and at the grave the service of the Orange Order was conducted by the officers of the society.

Lindsay-Little.

St. James Church, Primrose, was well filled on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 25th, with friends who had gathered for the purpose of witnessing the marriage of Herbert A. Lindsay, son of Mr. George Lindsay, of Granger, and Miss Jemima Little, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Little, of Elba. The ceremony took place at the hour of 4 o'clock, Rev. J. R. S. Adamson, the pastor of the church, officiating. Miss Maggie Fleming, of Shelburne, cousin of the bride, presided at the organ. Miss Eva Dean was bridesmaid and Mr. Robert Lindsay, brother of the groom, was groomsman. After the ceremony and congratulations the near relatives of the contracting parties drove to "High View Farm," the home of the bride's parents, where an elaborate wedding repast was served. The remainder of the evening was spent in conversation, music, singing and dancing, the guests returning to their homes in good time. The bride was an active worker in the church and Sabbath School, was Secretary of the Women's Institute, and was deservedly popular in the community, as was abundantly evidenced by the numerous and costly presents. Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay will take up their residence in Kent County. The hearty good wishes of their numerous friends accompany them to their new home.

Automobile Enthusiasts:

DEAR SIRS:

The new McLaughlin-Buick Models can be inspected in our showrooms throughout Canada. Our representative will be delighted to have the opportunity to elucidate any questions relative to the construction and merits of these cars.

The McLaughlin-Buick is the car that holds the secret of the low cost of operation. It is the car that has cut down up-keep cost and gasoline consumption and made possible the automobile as a pleasure vehicle to the man of moderate means.

For years the Manufacturers of this automobile have striven to produce "the car of all the people"—the car for you and for me.

They have done it.

They offer you a service that is complete and up-to-date, that minimizes upkeep, retards depreciation, and insures constant motoring pleasure.

Every model is endowed with perfect riding qualities produced only in high-priced cars. The perfect balanced bodies on extra long and wide elliptic springs, modify side sway and eliminate jar.

All cars are electrically started and lighted, front compartment entered from either side. Bodies luxuriously finished and elegantly appointed; unusually commodious tonneaus and deep seats, which are tilted to give the most comfortable riding position.

The absolute silence and lack of engine vibration makes motoring a continuous pleasure and you are not jaded at the end of an unusually long run.

Yours very truly,

McLaughlin Motor Car Co.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.

Jacob Silk, of Melancthon, Passed Away on Feb. 22nd.

Was Born in Hamilton on March 7th, 1837.

Jacob Silk sr., Melancthon township's oldest settler and one of the most highly respected, died at his residence, west half lot 5, con. 3, Old Survey, on Sunday, February 22nd, within two weeks of his 78th birthday. Deceased had been in poor health for some time.

Deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Silk, and was born at Hamilton, on March 7th, 1837. He came to Melancthon with his parents the following year, and consequently witnessed the transformation of the township from a forest to its present condition of well tilled farms and prosperity.

Melancthon township's first settler was Louis Horning, after whom Horning's Mills was named, and whose son was one of the four children (the others being the son and two daughters of Mr. Van Meer) stolen by Indians from the Horning's Mills settlement in 1838 and never afterwards found trace of. The second settler was Wm. Silk, who had been working for Mr. Horning in Hamilton two or three years. The journey from Hamilton was made by ox team and took five days. The family consisted of the husband, wife and four small children—one of them the subject of this sketch—and they had only a few shillings and a scanty supply of household goods. They located on the east half of lot 8, con. 2, Old Survey, and proceeded to hew out a home for themselves. From these small beginnings they accumulated property until at one time they owned 700 acres of land in the township. Mr. Silk made the first wagon or cart in the township. It was a two-wheeled affair, built wholly of wood, and the squeaking of the wooden wheels on the wooden axle could be heard for a considerable distance when the vehicle was in operation. With this cart hitched to a yoke of oxen Mr. and Mrs. Silk set off one day in the early spring for Toronto and Hamilton with four hundred pounds of maple sugar, for which upon their arrival at their destination, they realized $40. With this money they purchased some leather, a barrel of salt, and other articles. The return journey was made with considerable difficulty. The hills being icy and the oxen unshod, they were obliged to unload the salt at the bottom of every hill, roll the barrel up, and then reload it again. It is estimated that in this way they rolled the barrel several miles before getting home. It took them three days and a half to go down and four days and a half to come back. Mr. Silk made the leather into seven pairs of boots—the first boots since coming to Melancthon. The disappearance of the Horning and Van Meer children had such a disheartening effect on the few settlers in Melancthon at that time that all but Mr. Silk and family returned to "the front," and although some of them eventually came back, for quite a long time Mrs. Silk was the only white woman in the township. Their nearest neighbor then was Squire Whitley, in Mulmur—a distance, as the road then ran, of probably fifteen miles.

Mr. Jacob Silk, the son, and subject of this sketch, remembered well the difficulties and dangers encountered in connection with the early settlement of the township. The market for this district at that time was either Hamilton or Toronto—sometimes the former and sometimes the latter. These places were reached by a road which led by way of Mono Mills, and two weeks were occupied in the making the round trip. Provisions sufficient for the journey were generally prepared before setting out, and sleeping accommodation was secured at houses of settlers along the route. For fifteen years Mono Mills was their nearest post office, and the rate of postage on a letter to the Old Country—where parents came from—was 25 cents. There was no post office at Orangeville, that place containing only one house, a store and a hotel. It was some years later that Mr. Jas. McGhee received the appointment of postmaster at Horning's Mills. When grown to man's estate Mr. Silk left the home of his father and settled on the west half of lot 5, con. 3, O.S., his brother, Henry, securing the east half of the same lot. On Oct. 7th, 1856, Jacob married Susannah Slack, daughter of Rich. Slack sr., who survives him. In 1853 Mr. Silk's father bought the first separator that threshed in Melancthon. After running this separator for six or eight years Jacob got one of his own and threshed with it for twenty-eight seasons. Mr. Silk was always fond of hunting, and in his early years he did not have to go far for game—in fact he stood at his own door and shot deer on several occasions. Bears too were quite plentiful and were frequently shot. One bear skin measured five feet in width and six feet in length. Mr. and Mrs. Silk were always very active in church work. They helped to build two parsonages and three churches, the churches being Horning's Mills, Gravel Road and Shelburne, and Mr. Silk held the office of steward in the Gravel Road Methodist church for many years.—Economist.

STRANGE ROBBERY AT MILTON

Robert R. Anderson, Farmer, Robbed While Family were at Church

An unusual robbery was committed at the home of Robert R. Anderson, a farmer residing within a mile of Milton, on Sunday morning.

According to Mr. Anderson all his household, except himself and a baby, went to church. He lay down on a lounge a little after 11 o'clock and went to sleep. An hour later he woke up and found himself on the floor with the baby beside him crying. His head felt sore, and the contents of the room were in confusion.

On investigating he found that $74 which has been paid him on Saturday by the Boyd Brick Co. for teaming had been stolen from one of his pockets.

About two dollars in his wife's shopping bag, over twenty dollars in the hired girl's room, and over seventy dollars in that of the hired man had not been touched.

Mr. Anderson believes he was stunned, while asleep, by a blow on his head. He has no idea who robbed him.

Detective Reburn, of Toronto, visited the premises on Tuesday to investigate the burglary. So far he is keeping his own counsel.—Acton Free Press.

Concert at Mono Mills

A concert will be given in the English Church hall in Mono Mills on Tuesday evening, March 10th, under the auspices of Mono East Presbyterian Church. Mono Mills Dramatic Club will give their popular Play "The Country Squire" and St. Mark's (Orangeville) orchestra will provide music before and between acts. Short addresses will be given by Mr. H. A. Dorrance, B.S.A., and local speakers. Programme at 8 o'clock. Admission, 25 and 15c.

The Guelph Carpet and Worsted Mills, which secured $35,000 damages against the city for flooding their premises, threatened to close down and discharge their 500 employees, when the City Council decided to appeal the case. This brought the city to terms and there will now be no appeal.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Sale Register.

Mr. J. B. Irwin, lot 24, 2nd line, east, Caledon, will hold a clearing auction sale on Friday afternoon, March 13th. Sale will begin at one o'clock and will be on the usual terms. For list and full particulars see advt. or posters. Jas. A. Patterson, Auctioneer.

Mr. W. J. McCague will hold a clearing auction sale of farm stock, implements etc. on lot 20, 6th line, east Mono, on Friday afternoon, March 6th. See bills or advt. for all particulars. Geo. McAlister, Auctioneer.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. COOK, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

STOPPING THE EARTH.

It Would Generate Heat Enough to Turn Our Globe to Vapor.

The stopping of a projectile always results in the generation of heat. The velocity and weight of a projectile being known, the amount of heat developed by its stoppage can be calculated. In the case of large bodies moving rapidly the result of the calculation is something astounding.

For example, the earth weighs 6,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons and travels in its orbit at the rate of over eighteen miles a second. Should it strike a target strong enough to stop its motion the heat developed by the shock would be sufficient not merely to fuse the earth, but also to reduce a large portion of it to vapor. It has been calculated that the amount of heat generated by a collision so colossal would equal that obtained from the burning of fourteen globes of coal each equal to the earth in size.

And should the earth after its stoppage fall into the sun, as it certainly would do, the amount of heat that would be developed by its impact on the sun would be equal to that generated by the combustion of 5,000 earths of solid carbon.

Two Waterloos.

It is a very curious fact that a good many people do not know that two battles were fought at Waterloo. Both of these were fought against the French, the first under the command of the Duke of Marlborough on Aug. 17, 1705, who on this date actually occupied the same ground as the Duke of Wellington did a little more than a century later, June 17, 1815, the only difference being that the former was marching on Brussels and the latter was marching from Brussels. In the first battle the French were defending Brussels. They marched out to meet Marlborough, but owing to the slackness on the part of Schlangenburg, the Dutch general, who was fighting with him, it was not a success, Marlborough only taking a few of the French troops as prisoners. The following one, fought against Napoleon by Wellington, proved to be one of the greatest victories ever recorded in the annals of England.

On a Monday Morning.

Monday morning is a hard test for the institution which we call life. Life may be all very well on Saturday night and Sunday morning, but how about Monday morning? If you wake up then with a pleasurable anticipation of the week of work which is ahead of you, you are a happy man. The instinct of the bad boy who plays truant never quite dies out of us. One dreams of a Monday morning when the sun is shining and the air is clear, of slipping quietly into one's clothes, of tiptoeing softly out of the house, of scaling the fence and crossing the meadow and losing oneself in the alluring woods, while time clocks remain unpunched and whistles blow in vain.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Improving It.

A foreigner meeting an American friend said to him, "How are you?" The latter replied, "Out of sight."

The man considered this very clever and decided to use the expression on the next occasion. Shortly after he was met by a friend, who asked, "How are you?" With visible pride he answered, "You don't see me."—New York Globe.

She Was Safe.

Little four-year-old Mabel was running downhill, holding her dress tightly.

"Be careful," called her mother, "or you will fall."

"Oh, no, I won't," replied Mabel, "'cause I'm holding tight to myself."

A Sewing Class

The Orangeville Women's Institute purpose forming a Sewing Class when the course of instruction given by Mrs. Altenburg of the Department of Agriculture (Institute Branch), will be demonstrated. Ten demonstrations will be given, commencing on March 16th. Two of the lessons will be on plain and fancy stitches, three on shirt waists, two on skirts and three on one piece dresses. Each lesson will continue for two hours once a week. The full course will cost $2.00. This course is open to all ladies, whether members of the Institute or not. Anyone wishing further information will kindly see one of the following:—Mrs. Wm. Gillespie, Mrs. J. H. Hulse, Mrs. W. J. Gordon or Mrs. Jas. A. Langford.

ROBBED IN HOTEL

Well-known Horse Buyer Has an Unusual Experience in Markdale.

Mr. Crozier Coulter, of Coulter Bros., the well-known horse buyers from Toronto, was the victim of a robbery last Wednesday night while stopping at the Markdale House. Mr. Coulter and his brother, Jim, retired early to their room, closing and bolting the door. When Crozier awoke in the morning he noticed the door was slightly open and at once becoming suspicious made an examination of his trousers' pockets when he found that $125 had been filched therefrom during the night. A roll of bills in his brother Jim's pocket was untouched. It is evident that the thief had been hiding in the room and sometime during the stilly night made his haul and decamped. We understand the affair has been put in the hands of a detective, and further developments are expected before long.—Markdale Standard.

WE HAVE FAITH IN THIS STOMACH REMEDY

A woman customer said to us the other day, "Say, you ought to tell everyone in town about Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. I would myself if I could." That set us to thinking. So many people have used them and have so enthusiastically sounded their praises both to us and their friends, that we had an idea you knew all about them. But, in the chance that some of you who suffer from indigestion, heartburn, dyspepsia, or some other stomach complaint, don't know about them—we are writing this.

They contain Bismuth and Pepsin, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe and comfort the stomach, promote the secretion of gastric juice help to quickly digest the food and convert it into rich, red blood, and improve the action of the bowels. We believe them to be the best remedy made for indigestion and dyspepsia. We certainly wouldn't offer them to you entirely at our risk unless we felt sure they would do you a lot of good. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets do not relieve your indigestion, check the heartburn, and make it possible for you to eat what you like, come back and get your money.

Sold only at the more than 7000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only at our store. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, and $1.00.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, MARCH 12th, 1914.

North Battleford's publicity commissioner is endeavoring to organize a Western Canada Colonization and Development League for the purpose of trying to attract 10,000,000 more people to Western Canada. Discussing the proposed move the Moose Jaw News states that there is room enough and to spare for the 10,000,000, but candidly admits that there is not work for any such number. Instead of trying to see how many people can be persuaded to settle in the West, the News thinks that it would be much better to regulate the immigration, so that it would be proportionate to the country's assimilative capacity. It is not enough to promote immigration and then leave the immigrants to care for themselves. The immigration machinery should be so organized that it will be able to direct immigration into channels of employment. Unless this is done the burden upon Western communities is bound to be enormous, whenever there is a period of dull times.

The temperance convention held in Massey Hall recently was in some respects a remarkable gathering. No other temperance convention of its size has ever been held in Canada. Its proceedings were characterized by enthusiasm and an earnestness that was impressive. Many questions were discussed, but there were two that were of special and outstanding interest. The Canada Temperance Act came in for a good deal of discussion. While there were those in the convention who favored this method of extending the benefits of prohibition, the majority of the delegates were undoubtedly in favor of the kind of prohibition which local option gives. The penalties under local option and the provisions for its enforcement are stronger and more complete than in the case of the Canada Temperance Act. The question of political action proved as difficult as usual and engendered one of the warmest debates of the Convention. Notwithstanding this the report was so wisely framed that it was found possible to reach a unanimous conclusion. The report reaffirmed total prohibition as the hope and ultimate goal of the Alliance, placed the principle of prohibition above partisan considerations, congratulated the Whitney government on its amendments to the Local Option law and its vigorous enforcement of the existing law and expressed approval of the Liberal party's "Banish the Bar" policy. The Convention furnished another convincing demonstration of the fact that the moral sentiment of the province is strongly opposed to the liquor traffic and in favor of effective temperance legislation that will further curtail this great evil.

SIR GEO. W. ROSS

Veteran Canadian Statesman Passed Away on Saturday.

Sir George W. Ross, LL.D., ex-Premier of Ontario and Liberal leader in the Senate, passed away in the Toronto General Hospital at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning. The end came peacefully after a severe illness of about six weeks duration. The funeral, which was private was held from his late residence, 3 Elmsley Place, Toronto, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery on Tuesday morning. The following are some of the outstanding facts in the career of the distinguished statesman :—

1841—Born on a farm near Nairn, North Middlesex.
1857—Secured first-class teacher's certificate (then aged 16), and taught school for ten years.
1865—Heard his first political speech, an address by D'Arcy McGee.
1867—After an unsuccessful effort to enter political life, bought and edited the Strathroy Age.
1869—Became inspector of schools, in addition to his newspaper work.
1871—Appointed inspector of Model Schools for the Province.
1872—Elected to the House of Commons for West Middlesex.
1883—Left Ottawa politics and joined Sir Oliver Mowat's Administration in Toronto as Minister of Education. Took his degree as LL.B. at Albert University that year.
1885—Amalgamated the Public School laws of Ontario.
1887—Was admitted to the Bar. Still as Minister of Education, he introduced Ontario's first truancy laws.
1899—Was called upon to lead the Liberal Government of Ontario, succeeding Hon. Mr. Hardy.
1905—Became leader of the Opposition.
1907—Summoned to the Senate.
1907—Was knighted.
1912—Appointed leader of the Liberal forces in Senate, succeeding Sir Richard Cartwright.

ARBOR DAY

It has been suggested that our citizens urge the Mayor to proclaim Arbor Day a public holiday, so that all who wish to do so may be in a position to volunteer their services in planting and rearranging the trees in our town park. A movement is already on foot to purchase a lawn mower to cut the grass during the summer and offers have been made to supply enough ornamental shrubs and perennials for the planting. This is surely a community interest in which we can all co-operate to advantage. If you think so, boost Arbor Day and help to make Orangeville more beautiful.

APPEAL DISMISSED

J. E. Booth Will Have to Vacate Queen's Hotel

Last week we noted the argument on the appeal by J. E. Booth, landlord of the Queen's hotel, from the order made by Judge Fisher on Dec. 5th last. The order appealed from was made in proceedings taken under the Overholding Tenancy Act and directed the Sheriff of the County of Dufferin to place S. Rabinovitch, the owner of the property, in possession of the hotel. Booth was also required to pay the costs of the proceedings. The argument took place a week ago Thursday and on Monday judgment was handed out dismissing the appeal with costs. This means that Booth will be obliged to give up possession of the hotel. W. M. Douglas, K.C. and W. J. L. McKay acted for the appellant and H. H. Shaver and A. A. Hughson, Orangeville, appeared for Rabinovitch.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Appeal in White vs. Anderson Case Argued on Monday

The appeal case of White vs. Anderson was argued before Chief Justice Mulock and Justices Riddell, Sutherland and Leitch on Monday. The appeal was taken by the plaintiff from the judgment of His Honour Judge Fisher, on Dec. 30th last. White sued Joseph Anderson, of the North Ward, for $50 damages for trespass on lands and for $10 for pasture for the years 1911 and 1912 and also for an injunction to restrain Anderson from making future trespass. The judgment at the trial in the County Court declared the defendant entitled to the use of a private lane to the east of his property in Block 8 in the town of Orangeville and allowed the plaintiff $10 damages for excessive use of the property in dispute. Each party was ordered to pay his own costs. After hearing the argument their Lordships reserved judgment. C. R. McKeown, K.C. for plff.; J. L. Island for deft.

MISS HEWITT WINS

Orange Mutual Ordered to Pay $1000 Insurance on Life of Late James Hewitt

On October 10th, 1913, Mr. Justice Kelly gave judgment dismissing an action which Miss Augusta Hewitt, of Toronto, brought against the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America to recover $1000 life insurance, claimed by the plaintiff under a policy carried by her father, the late James Hewitt, of Orangeville. When giving judgment His Lordship suggested that the Order should pay back with interest the premiums, that had been received from Hewitt. Counsel for the Order assented to this, stating that his clients were quite willing and had always been willing to return these premiums. No costs were allowed to either party. The chief points at issue were whether Hewitt had been acquainted with a change of rule calling for an additional $2 fee annually and whether he was in default or not at the time of his death. The plaintiff appealed from the finding of the trial judge and judgment on the appeal was handed out last Friday. This reverses Judge Kelly's decision and results in a complete victory for Miss Hewitt. The Order is directed to pay the sum of $1000 from its benefit fund to the executors of the late Mr. Hewitt's estate. The judgment of the Appellate Court is in the following terms :— "We are of the opinion that the judgment should be set aside. The trial Judge has intimated in his judgment what may well be done in case the defendants still put forward the contention that proofs have not been supplied in the terms of the contract or that the proper parties—namely, the executors of the testator—are not before the court to receive the moneys claimed. The defendants have been repudiating liability altogether and in that view would appear to have waived the necessity on the part of the plaintiff to furnish proofs in strict accordance with the contract when if furnished the defendants would still resist payment on the other grounds indicated. It is, we understand, contended on behalf of the plaintiff that strict compliance with the necessary proofs could not be made owing to the defendants refusing to give a certificate to the effect that the deceased was in good standing at the time of his death. Any necessary amendments may be made and the time extended for putting in further proofs if required. There will be judgment for the plaintiff, or the executors if they consent to be added as plaintiffs for the amount claimed with suitable interest and costs, or if the executors decline they may be added as defendants and payment made to them." A. J. R. Snow, K.C. for plaintiff; J. A. Worrell, K.C. for defendants.

CHORAL UNION CONCERT.

Large Audience Listens to a Delightful Programme in Opera House.

Conductor Jessop and His Choir Score a Decided Success

Orangeville's premier singing body, the recently organized Choral Union, delighted all music lovers privileged to be present when it gave its first concert in the Opera House on Friday evening last. The organization was under strength and many of the members were suffering from colds, but in spite of these handicaps the performance was highly satisfactory and won well-merited praise.

Some foretaste of what was in store was given the public last New Year's night, when the Choral Union contributed several splendid numbers to a miscellaneous program. Subsequent practice on a greater variety of music added much to the finish and effect of the choir. The excellent balance, the rich tones, the quick response to the baton, all paid tribute to the ability of the conductor, Mr. J. E. Jessop. Deserving also of high praise was the work of the soloists, and of those who participated in the vocal duets and quartettes. Miss C. C. Wright sustained her reputation as an accompanist and her piano duets with Miss Sprae Lathwell were well received.

The opening number, a glee entitled "Strike the Lyre" by T. Cooke, was a revelation to those who had not heard the choir at work. It was unaccompanied, as were all the numbers rendered by the whole body and the thirty voices were heard to splendid advantage. This was followed by a duet, "Flow gently, Deva," by Parry, sung by Messrs. Harding and Jessop. A madrigal written by Sir Frederick Bridge, the famous English composer and musician, was the choir's second number. The title, "It was a Lover," savored of old English minstrelsy, and the audience was loud in its applause of the music, or the sentiment, or both. Mrs. (Dr.) Bowles charmed all with her rendering of Denza's "Sing on." Orangeville's music loving public are at one in declaring that Mrs. Bowles is heard too little in solo work. Sir Arthur Sullivan's "A Regular Royal Queen," sung by Misses Harshaw and Bell, Messrs. Henderson and Jessop, received a long round of applause, and the quartette responded with a second number of a humorous character. Dr. Calleott's "O Snatch Me Swift," rendered by the choir, was the closing number of the first part.

The masterpiece of the evening was Dudley Buck's part song, "Hymn to Music." Opportunity for splendid tone effects and shading were taken full advantage of and the choir's right to attempt really good music was established. Misses Wright and Lathwell, who had supplied a missing number in the first part with a piano duet, now delighted the audience with another, "En route," a very martial piece, by S. Smith. At this point Mr. Jessop, the leader of the choir, was heard for the first time when he gave Jude's "The Mighty Deep," in excellent voice. Mr. Jessop has been a favorite with Orangeville audiences since the night he first sang here with the Royal English Hand Bell Ringers and has proved a very decided acquisition to town musical circles. His training and experience have been broad, as his work both as leader and soloist testify. "Two Cupids," a part song by A. W. Batson, was sung by the choir, and was followed by Carrie B. Adams' "Dreamland's Happy Shore," rendered by the ladies' quartette, consisting of Mesdames Bowles, Robinson and Green and Miss Bell. This quartette has a well established reputation and never fails to please. It deserved the hearty encore which the number elicited. Mr. Percy Harding was heard to advantage in "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," from Wallace's "Maritana." Mr. Harding has an excellent tenor voice, well-trained, and is deservedly popular with Orangeville audiences. Sullivan's part song, "The Long Day Closes," was the concluding number. It is a very pretty thing, which requires a high degree of finish to sound well, and it did sound well.

Those who were present at the concert will look forward with some impatience to the next appearance of the choir. This may not be until the fall. It is to be hoped that the choir may be recruited up to a greater strength by that time, thus giving it greater scope in the field of really good choral music.

The concert attracted practically a capacity audience.

5. Take off dew-claws; then split up inside of leg to knee. Cut through the knee joint; then strip back forelegs, taking off the foot. Hind legs should be treated in the same manner.
6. Split from hock to belly on all four legs.
7. Then skin both sides of belly and carefully sever the tail-bone, and start the hide at base of tail and remove by pulling and use of knife, as carefully as possible.
8. Spread hide out flat and cover with salt thoroughly.

This is the method followed in the great slaughter or packing houses of Chicago and also in all the leading slaughter houses east, west and south of Chicago. The value and popularity of hides that are taken off in this way is not only due to the excellent manner of flaying, but to the absence of cuts and jagged, useless pieces that are usually found on country hides.

THE 36th REGIMENT

Charges Against Col. Windeyer and His Officers Absolutely Groundless.

Militia Department Extends Commanding Officer's Term of Office for Another Year.

Militia Orders published at Ottawa this week contain the announcement that the Minister of Militia has been pleased to extend the tenure of command of Lieut. Col. R. C. Windeyer, commanding officer of the 36th Regiment, for one year dating from the 8th instant.

In this way does the Department declare to be absolutely groundless the malicious charges unfortunately brought against Col. Windeyer and his administration by a disgruntled officer of the Corps. The summing up of the Court of Enquiry, which investigated the affairs of the Regiment, makes it clear that nothing was adduced to reflect in any way on any officer or officers of the Regiment.

The 36th, which is one of the oldest and best known Regiments in Canada, is reported to be well above the average in efficiency, and it is to be regretted that owing to the misleading statements regarding the character of the charges, as published in the public press, a great injustice has been done Col. Windeyer and his officers.

That the Militia Department is perfectly satisfied with the past administration is evidenced by the fact that Col. Windeyer's term of command, which expires this month, is being extended, and no change, for the present at least, is being made in the organization of the Regiment. It will be seen at camp this year with every officer, non-com. and man full of enthusiasm to maintain its integrity.

The 36th Regiment will be one of the first of the rural corps to receive the new khaki serge uniform recently selected by Col. Hughes in England. The outfit is neat and extremely serviceable, and should be a strong inducement to recruits this year.

The following officers are now taking a qualifying course at Toronto, extending over a period of six weeks: Lieut. Hagyard, "A" Co.; Lieut. Medhurst, "C" Co.; Lieut. Sterling, "F" Co.

Lieut. John Graham, the well-known physician of Mono Road, having qualified for the rank of Captain, has taken over command of "D" Co., and will appear in the Gazette as a Captain very shortly.

The monthly dinner of the officers was held at the Military Institute on 6th March, when arrangements were discussed for the coming Camp. It is expected that the Regiment will go to Niagara about the 15th of June, and it is hoped that the employers of labor in the different localities from which the companies are drawn will co-operate with the local officers and see that each individual company is up to establishment.

Lieut. H. B. McGuire, of this town, leaves this week for Stanley Barracks to qualify as a Captain.

It is pleasing to note that the ability of the officers connected with this Regiment is recognized. Lieut. Col. John Knifton, who formerly commanded "C" Co., has been appointed to the command of the 14th Infantry Brigade, and he has as his "Brigade Major," Major F. J. Hamilton, of the 36th.

At the meeting of the Canadian Infantry Association held at Ottawa on February 27th., Lieut. Col. Windeyer was appointed one of the auditors for the ensuing year.

Officers of the local company are already on the lookout for suitable recruits. Applicants should send their names to Lieut. McGuire, care The Banner Office.

THE LATE PETER McGILL

Account of Death and Funeral of One of Erin's Prominent Citizens.

A gloom was cast over the village on Saturday last, when it was learned that Peter McGill had passed away after an illness of a little more than one week.

The deceased, who was the son of the late Peter McGill, was born in Erin Tp. in June, 1845. His wife, who was a Miss Cameron, predeceased him some 22 years ago. The family consisted of two daughters, one of whom died eight years ago; the other, Miss Maud McGill, resides at home, and to whom the sympathy of the whole community is extended in her sad bereavement. There are also two brothers and three sisters: Messrs. Dougall McGill, Toronto, and Archie, of Erin; Mrs. Kennedy, Manitoba; Mrs. Reid, Georgetown; and Mrs. Dick, Ashgrove.

Mr. McGill was an all round good citizen, genial, good humored and popular with everybody. He took a great interest in the Agricultural Society, of which he has been a most efficient secretary for a number of years. He was also Bailiff of the Division Court for this District. In politics he was a Conservative. But it is in Burns' Church where he will be missed. He was an active member of the Board, Secretary-Treasurer, and was always ready and willing to assist in every way, in the work of the church of his choice. He was universally respected and was a man of whom it could truthfully be said that he had not one enemy. He was also a member of the A.O.U.W.

For the past two years he had been troubled with cataract on his eyes and for a time he was almost blind, but after undergoing an operation his sight returned to him and he felt so bright and cheerful to think that he could see to read once more.

His death was caused by typhoid fever, after a short illness. The funeral took place to Burns' church on Tuesday, where his Pastor, the Rev. J. Lindsay, conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Scott, of Hillsburg, and Dr. McArthur, of Erin, a very large congregation being present, after which the remains were interred in Erin Cemetery.

The floral offerings were beautiful and consisted of a pillow from the Agricultural Society; wreaths from the Ladies' Aid of Burns' Church; from his daughter, Miss M. McGill; from Mr. and Mrs. McCullough, of Brampton; sprays from the choir of the church, from Mr. and Mrs. J. Justice, and from Mr. and Mrs. J. Small, of Guelph.

Large numbers were present from Hillsburg, Alton, Orangeville, Inglewood, Brampton, Terra Cotta, Georgetown, Guelph, Toronto.—Erin Advocate.

CAMILLA.

The Dramatic Club Holds an Enjoyable Banquet.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Banks, Second St., was the scene of a very pleasant gathering on Thursday evening, Feb. 26th, when the members of the Camilla Dramatic Club with their wives, sisters and sweethearts, numbering about 25 in all, met to partake of a bountiful dinner of roast goose and all other good things, and to spend a very enjoyable evening. After doing full justice to the sumptuous repast the remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in cards and dancing. Excellent music was furnished by Messrs. Buchanan, Canning, Large and Rintoul. At midnight another dainty lunch was served, consisting of ice-cream and cake. Everyone present will long remember the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Banks on this occasion. Before dispersing, the gathering was called to order by Mr. Wall Henry, Clerk of Mono, who moved that a vote of thanks be extended to Mr. and Mrs. Banks for their great kindness and hospitality shown that night and in times past. He said that great sorrow was felt by all the neighbors and people of Camilla at the removal of the Banks family from their midst, for their house was always thrown open to the people and they were always ready to help in any good work. The [illegible] heartily seconded by Mr. [illegible], who also spoke of the loss the Banks family to the Dramatic Club and community and expressed sympathy for Mr. Banks [illegible]. Mr. and Mrs. Banks [illegible] feelingly in reply, showing their appreciation of the goodwill manifested toward them and assuring the people of Camilla that it was [illegible] to them to open their [illegible] them and extended them an invitation to their new [illegible] and wishing them all success. [illegible] Short addresses [illegible] by Will Rintoul and [illegible], who also expressed [illegible] at losing three members of the Dramatic Club, and [illegible] much, besides the social [illegible]. In conclusion all joined hands [illegible] Auld Lang Syne and then dispersed to their [illegible] homes leaving the Banks [illegible] their best wishes for a bright and happy future.

ALTON.

Hockey is enjoying a great deal of popularity in our village this winter. Matches have been of almost nightly occurrence lately. Last Thursday about 350 people, a number of whom drove from Caledon, Orton, Hillsburg and other outside points, witnessed a rattling good game between Alton and Erin teams. The home bunch won out by a score of 7 to 5. The players were:—

Erin—Bush, goal; Walker, point; Chisholm, coverpoint; Small, centre; Woods, right wing; Bush, left wing.

On Wednesday night the Alton team defeated a Hillsburg septette by a score of 6 to 3. A week ago Friday night Alton won from Hillsburg by 10 to 2 and a week ago Wednesday night the local puck chasers won a well earned victory from Inglewood by 3 to 2.

LAUREL.

As we have not heard anything from Poet Bumble Bee for some weeks past we are beginning to wonder if he has left the community or is merely slumbering until the arrival of more springlike weather.

The Carnival on Laurel Skating Rink last Thursday night was a success from every point of view. It was an ideal night for skating and there was quite a large attendance. Some of the prize winners were as follows:—best dressed lady, Miss Rena Groskurth, who was costumed as an Indian; Miss Liddy and Miss Bertha Nelson, dressed as gold dust twins; best comic dressed gentleman, Mr. Harry Cooney, dressed as a Chinaman; Cecil Groskurth, representing the G.O.R.A.B. Following are the results of the races:—Open race, Warren Groskurth, John E. Maltby; Boys' Race, 18 years, Ernie Richardson, Joe Gordon; Boys' Race, 12 years, Tom Nelson, Roy Cox; Couple Race, Oliver and Millie Durkin, Nelson Langtree and Florence Durkin. Mr. Warren Groskurth gave an exhibition of barrel jumping, clearing seven barrels.

An interesting hockey game took place on the Skating Rink on Saturday night between The Maples and Laurel. Laurel won by a score of 3 to 0. The half-time score was a tie, neither team having managed to place any goals to its credit. Laurel got going in good shape in the second half and tallied three goals, while the visitors were still unable to score. The line up was:—

The Maples—Goal, E. Cook; point, C. Reid; coverpoint, W. H. Hunter; rover, Jas. Hunter; centre forward, Reggie Hoare; wings, Fraser and Groskurth.

Laurel—Goal, L. Walker; point, H. Maltby; coverpoint, C. Groskurth; rover, George Brown; centre forward, Oliver Durkin; wings, J. Maltby and Warren Groskurth.

Frank Gray officiated as referee and Jas. Langtree acted as timekeeper.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Robert Cobean.

The death occurred on Friday, Feb. 27th, at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Reg. Maddock, Cobean, of Mrs. Robert Cobean, wife of Mr. Robert Cobean, who has the farm rented to the Maddocks. Mrs. Cobean had been in poor health for some time, but was only confined to her bed for a few days previous to her death. She was a kind mother and a good neighbor, and will be sadly missed by her family and friends. She was in her 70th year. The funeral took place on Monday, March 2nd, to Knox Church, Cedar Grove, where a short service was held at the house and at the church by Rev. Mr. Fisher, of Bolton. The pall bearers were Messrs. Wm. Cobean, Jas. Cobean, Wm. Hall, Jas. Hall, Wm. Hall, jr., and Jas. Hall, jr. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was made in the Cedar Grove cemetery.

MARSVILLE.

A deep gloom was cast over this community on Friday when it was learned that Miss Maud McDougall had passed to the Great Beyond. Some two years ago she became seriously afflicted with throat trouble, but under careful medical treatment she apparently had recovered, and her relatives had bright hopes that her life would be prolonged. But lately she again became a victim of the dreaded malady. On the advice of her physician she, with enduring fortitude, decided to undergo an operation. This was performed on Wednesday in Wellesley hospital, Toronto, by Dr. Bruce, but in spite of the best medical aid her spirit took its flight on Thursday evening. The remains were brought to the residence of her mother in this village on Friday and the funeral was conducted on Sunday afternoon to Price's Cemetery; the service being conducted by the Rev. R. S. Scott. There was a large turn out of relatives and friends, who gathered to pay the last tribute of respect to one who had endeared herself to all, who had the privilege of her acquaintance. The deceased was 30 years of age and her untimely death is a shock to her widowed mother, with whom she had lived. Besides the bereaved mother she leaves a brother, a fireman on the Teeswater branch of the C.P.R., and five sisters, Mrs. Cowe, of Michigan; Mrs. Lowe, Rouleau, Sask.; Mrs. John Dyer, of Guelph township; Mrs. J. M. Moodie, of Mulmur township, and Miss Jessie, of Toronto.

Mr. Jas. Byers has leased his farm on the 13th line to Mr. Jos. Platt, and intends holding a clearing sale during the last week of March.

Mrs. Robt. Simpson, who has been in the vicinity for for the past six weeks, left on Saturday for her home near Red Deer, Alberta.

Mr. Henry Thompson has purchased the property of the late John King on the Erin and Garafraxa townline. The property consists of 200 acres and has excellent buildings. The price paid was $14,000.

Rev. Mr. Fish, of Owen Sound, organizer for the Orange Order, addressed a gathering in the Orton Town Hall on Tuesday evening of last week and we understand has organized a local Lodge in that village.

MONO CENTRE.

A large number of the friends of Mr. Alex. Beatty turned out on Tuesday night, March 3rd, and presented him with a handsome purse. The presentation took place in the hall at Mono Centre. Mr. Angus Warnica, organizer for the A. O. U. W., took the chair and after a brief address called on J. A. McFadden, who read the following address:—

To Mr. Alexander Beatty.

Dear Friend,

We, your friends and neighbors assembled here to-night, desire in some way to express our gratitude for the faithful services you have rendered as mail carrier during the time you have officiated in that capacity. During the time you have performed the duties allotted to you, you have always proved yourself very trustworthy and very obliging. By your genial manner you have made a host of friends, whose memory of you must be lasting. Your perseverance in stormy weather has set a standard for other mail carriers. It is to show you in a small way our appreciation for your services that we ask you to accept this purse as a small memento from your many friends, who join in wishing you health and prosperity; and rest assured that you will always have a warm place in our affections.

Signed on behalf of your friends

Jno. Maguire
Jas. Holmes
Samuel Quinn
Herman McFarland
J. A. McFadden.

The presentation was made by Mr. Herman McFarland. Mr. Beatty made a very suitable reply. Short addresses were delivered by A. N. McQuilkin, Arthur McCarston, W. J. Coleman, Gladstone Murphy, W. A. Henry and others. The remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in dancing, games and other amusements. All repaired to their homes in the wee hours of the morning well satisfied with the night's fun.

Ritchie's are now prepared to supply your demands in Millinery.

A BETTER REMEDY THAN NASTY SALTS

Few people like to take physic, especially salts, because they are so disagreeable to take and because of the griping and pains they cause. Rexall Orderlies enable you to take less physic, and all without griping, purging or excessive looseness. Salts and harsh physics usually give only temporary relief and often leave the bowels worse off than before.

Rexall Orderlies move the bowels promptly, and soothe, tone and strengthen the intestinal muscles, leaving them healthy and regular in action. They taste like candy, and the movement they cause is as easy and natural as though your bowels were in perfect health and you never had to take any physic at all. We have so much faith in Rexall Orderlies that we urge you to try them with the understanding that, if they do not satisfy you in every way, all you have to do to get your money back is to tell us. We honestly believe them to be the best bowel remedy made. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores, and in this town only of us. T. F. & T. J. Brown, Druggists, Orangeville.

CAMILLA.

A very pleasant surprise awaited one of our popular young ladies last Thursday evening, at the home of Miss Margaret Frame. A miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Lily South by a goodly number of her lady friends, previous to her departure from the realm of single bliss. About forty of the fair sex were present, and the time glided swiftly by. A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses of the evening, Misses Margaret Frame and Belle Buchanan. After lunch, various forms of entertainment occupied the time. Musical selections were rendered, several speeches were delivered, and toasts were tendered to the prospective bride. The reading of tea-cups by one of our experts proved a very entertaining form of amusement, and some of our innocents seemed on the verge of nervous collapse on hearing the weird tales contained therein. However, nothing tragic occurred, and after singing some old favorites, the guests returned to their respective homes, leaving with Miss South kindest wishes for a long and pleasant sojourn, and taking with them smiling faces and happy hearts at the recollection of having spent such an enjoyable evening.

In St. Andrew's Church.

In St. Andrew's Church next Sunday morning Rev. J. R. Bell, of Laurel, who attended the recent Social Congress in Ottawa, will speak on the Congress and the problems that were discussed. At the evening service the pastor, Rev. W. M. Morris, will continue the series of sermons on Moses, speaking on "The Call of Moses."

CHILDREN'S AID

Peel County Society Holds Monthly Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held in the Library on Thursday evening February 26th. Inspector C. W. Norton gave a report of work carried on during the month of February, which clearly showed that the Inspector had been busy. A number of cases were investigated and action taken against negligent parties. The Society has purchased a lantern and slides and purpose having a leoture at some date in the near future illustrating the work carried on by those interested in the Children's Aid. Mr. J. K. MacDonald, President of the C.A.S. of Toronto, has offered his services for the evening, and no one ought to miss attending this interesting and instructive lecture, further notice of which will appear later.

Facts About the Society.

Organized in Brampton October 1911. Has boys and girls now for adoption. Has regular monthly meetings; the work is talked over. Receives neglected and homeless children. Endeavors to save the home and not break it up. A constant friend of the friendless child. Supervises children by visits of the Inspector. Places homeless children in family homes. Investigates all complaints of neglect or ill-treatment. Constantly endeavors to better child life. Receives back children when necessary. Is helped by Municipal and Township grants, gifts, and membership fees. Is supported by good people. Do You contribute?

Six reasons why you should: 1, Because the sorrows of a little child must touch your heart. 2. Because you would not allow a child of yours to be illtreated. 3. Because the Society is a legally constituted organization for the protection of children. 4. Because thousands of children have been benefitted in the past, and still greater preventive work is possible. 5. Because the Society's aim is to educate parents to love and appreciate their children; to find homes for the homeless, and to befriend and uplift young people who have fallen into evil ways. 6. Because of the high character of the work and its reward: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these ye have done it unto me." Surely these are good reasons.

It is a great thing to save a soul at anytime, but it is the greatest thing to save a soul plus a life. When you save a man or woman, you save a unit. When you save a boy or girl, you save a whole multiplication table. No man or woman fulfils their duty to Christ to-day who does not do something, either privately or in public, to lessen the misery of the poor or the dependent neglected child; but remember your service should be, wherever it is possible, personal service, the giving of personal sympathy and energy to those who need it.

All contributions to this valuable work may be sent to W. S. Morphy, Treas. C.A.S., Brampton, Ontario. Any clothing that can be sent to the office of the Inspector, C. W. Norton, Church St., Brampton, will be gratefully accepted.

Nathan Henderson, President; W. S. Morphy, Treasurer; C. W. Norton, Secretary-Inspector.—Brampton Conservator.

WHY WE SHOULD GO TO CHURCH.

By Ven. Archdeacon Cody, D. D., Rector of St. Paul's Church, Toronto.

1. If we believe that One is our Master even Christ, we conclude that "all we are brethren." The Christian faith redeems us from selfish isolation and incorporates us into a society of the redeemed. It is a true instinct of the Christian soul which seeks for communion with other Christians. From earliest times Christians have gathered together in common worship, have worked together in common service, and have felt their hearts kindled by a common flame of love and devotion. An apostolic writer at the beginning of the Church's history warned Christians not to forsake the assembling of themselves together. The first glimpse a heathen writer gives us of the primitive church reveals a meeting of believers early on the first day of the week to sing hymns to Christ as God. Through every age the collective wisdom of Christendom has held to this weighty tradition of public worship as a Christian's privilege and duty. Even through ages of bitter persecution, when individualism and secretiveness might have seemed the path of safety, a sense of the vital value of common outward acts of worship and fellowship, compelled Christians to cling to their observance. This ancient unbroken and martyr-witnessed tradition cannot lightly be neglected. We follow a noble succession of worshippers. We link ourselves with a great multitude to whom the world owes its choicest moral and spiritual possessions, and its greatest religious and philanthropic uplift.

2. We go to church primarily to worship God. We believe that since man was made in the image of God, man needs God. He is made for God, to enjoy Him and serve Him in the service of His Kingdom and Family. He has not discharged all his duties when he has dealt with himself and his neighbor. He is under obligations to God. He does not come to his highest self realization until he has bowed head and heart before the Almighty. Social worship best helps the ordinary man to realize God. Public worship, with its elements of confession, thanksgiving, instruction, praise and prayer, (a) increases the individual's capacity of service, by enlarging his heart and widening his vision. (b) It puts us all on the same level before God. We all alike need God's forgiveness; we all alike have our share in God's love. The hearts of men are melted together, as they bow in prayer, speak in creed, and sing in praise. (c) It is a safeguard, never more needed than to-day, against sheer worldliness. The worst foe of faith is not intellectual doubt, but bare-faced materialism, and secularism. Our lives are so full of things, we are so dazzled by the present and the passing that we dare not afford to abandon the house of prayer, which witnesses to the spiritual and the eternal, which helps us to remember God and to come face to face with the maker and Lover and Judge of souls. (d) We get a rectified sense of the proportion of things. We see the temporal in the light of the eternal. We receive an unequalled spiritual uplift.

3. We join in public worship that we may share in the collective testimony which the Church gives to the community of its faith in God. A congregation devoutly engaged in worship is rendering a unique service to the community, a service not to be rendered by the state or by any other organization in the state. The question of spiritual power, the regenerating of human lives, is the work of the church alone, through the power of its Divine Lord. The attendance of Christians, therefore, at public worship is not an elective, it is an essential part of the confession which every follower of Christ ought to make to the world. A careless or dwindling congregation retards the progress of Christianity. No Christian can needlessly absent himself from church without damaging the influence of the Christian society. The Lord's army on the Lord's day should muster in full force. A disorderly or a decimated host suggests demoralization and invites defeat.

We come to church to realize that we are members of a great brotherhood. The central symbol of Christian faith is a common meal—to teach us for ever that we being many, are one in body in Christ. The central idea of Christianity is fellowship—not isolation. This is the ideal, however imperfectly it is realized. The Christian must cling to the outward worship of the Church, not because he always feels inclined to attend, or always enjoys the service, but his presence, his prayer, his praise and his faith, form links in that golden chain which binds the blessed company of all faithful people about the feet of God. A casual Christian who goes to church as he might go to the theatre, simply with reference to his own humor and personal pleasure, is only a camp follower in the Christian army. When we meet as fellow worshippers in the Divine Society we witness to our solidarity in all ages in all lands, and to our need of one another for the fulness of the sacrifice of praise of the service of man.

As the Church is a teaching body, and the members thereof "disciples"; or learners in the School of Christ, we go to Church to receive instruction in the things of God and the soul. There are many teachers and many schools to-day, but the Church is par excellence the teacher of the lovely oracles of God. Where else will the average man receive instruction in that Book of books, which in all the wide variety of its contents sets forth the highest morality and the purest religious basis, sanction and dynamic therefor? This sacred volume unveils as none other does, the heart of God. His seeking love and His redemption of sinners through Jesus Christ. These are the supreme things that men need to hear, and know, and live by. The book which proclaims them is the book which is read and expounded in worshipping assemblies.

6. The Church is a great evangelizing body. We go to church to pledge ourselves afresh to be evangelists. Every Christian is called to be witness for Christ. He may do this work most effectively by personal dealing with individuals, and there may be as many varieties of appeal as there are individual members; but in public worship each Christian receives a new call, a new inspiration and a new consecration to his task of evangelization. A non-worshipping church would speedily lose the spirit of conquest, and the whole world would be the poorer.

7. There are many philanthropic bodies to-day apart from the Christian church. But most of these are guided and supported by church members. Most philanthropics would fare badly but for religious inspiration and religious workers. The church still remains one of the greatest direct philanthropic agencies in the land. No matter what changes may be made in the social system or in economic arrangements, there will remain the need of philanthrophy. By going to church we publicly identify ourselves with this greatest of philanthropic organizations, which directly and indirectly serves the neediest of the race.

8. In spite of all its imperfections and failures to realize its own ideals, the Church is the greatest organized force in the world for moral reform and civic and national righteousness. We should not allow the faults of individual members to keep us apart from this blest available institution for the betterment of mankind. By going to church we give our public adhesion to those moral ideals which must be supreme in the individual and in the nation, if God's will is to be done on earth, as it is in Heaven. The Church is not called on to solve all social problems directly, but rather to provide the men, the principles and the public that will solve them. The Church is to be militant against evils, is to rouse souls to a sense of civic obligation, is to quicken the civic conscience, to keep moral problems before men's minds, to create atmospheres, sentiments and inspirations. This means that every member of the Church has his immediate responsibility for this work. He aids in this great effort by his constant attendance at public worship. He will be helped himself and he will help others, to put first things first, to teach the deep-seated moral causes of social wrongs and to supply the most lasting and effective remedy to the ills of human life.

9. In these days when we think in world terms and do business with all continents, we cannot be indifferent to the religious and moral conditions of non-Christian peoples. The greatest, and indeed the only institution which is seeking to send them the highest spiritual blessings is the Christian Church. By our attendance at the public worship of God we are enrolling ourselves as active and interested members of this army for world-wide Christian conquest. We are forwarding messages of good will and tokens of love to distant peoples and bridging the separations between the races.

10. Among all the organizations on earth the Church is central. On the organized and divine Christian society all efforts for the uplifting of mankind ultimately depend. No other institution can replenish the spiritual forces of humanity so that the material development of the community may not outstrip its moral growth. Mr. Begbie well says that "the pressing obligation of the Church is to save the world from materialism . . . Democracy is a greater peril than plutocracy, when its action is governed by principles of materialism." Is it not, therefore, worth while to be in the Church, to work and pray for the Church.

Because of what we can get for our own highest life, and because of what we can give to the community and to the whole world we do well to go to the house of God in company. Public worship is the chief agency for the cultivation and enrichment of the spiritual life of the world. "What greater calamity?" asks Emerson, "Can fall upon a nation than the loss of worship? Then all things go to decay. Literature becomes frivolous. Science is cold. The eye of youth is not lighted by the hope of other worlds, and age is in that humor. Society lives to trifle, and when men die we do not mention them."—Toronto News.

ROYAL YEAST MAKES PERFECT BREAD

"RALPH CONNOR" ON PREACHING

The February number of "The Homiletic Review" contains an interesting interview with Dr. C. W. Gordon, of Winnipeg ("Ralph Connor") on the subject of preaching, in the course of which he says some racy things:

"The great defect of our modern college training is that it fails to teach a man how to make effective use of his material. It fills him up with stuff to the neck; he has his Hebrew, and Greek, and apologetics, so that he is just reeking with information; but he is unable to bring it to bear. He has a great instrument, but it lacks a point; a fine axe, but without an edge—it goes bluntly battering at the trees."

"Very few professors can themselves preach. A professor who can preach is a kind of a white crow. No man should be appointed to the staff unless he can preach, and in every college there should be one or two outstanding preachers—men who would be like flames of fire. That is what is important. The colleges turn out men who will write books, compose essays, discuss problems to a nicety, but when these men come to face the people, they can't keep them from looking out of the windows or falling asleep. There never was a time when preaching met with the response that awaits it to-day. With all our literature, our magazine work, and what we are doing on educational and general improvement lines, there is a unique place, a place of tremendous power, for the man with the voice and the message. I am not belittling learning in ministerial equipment, but our colleges stop before they have finished their men. When I left college—and mind you, I had great men for professors—I should hardly have recognized a sermon if I had seen it coming down the street."

"For years I contented myself with preaching from texts, or passages of Scripture, and the line of my vision ended there. That is fatal to the best preaching. To-day the line of vision is lifted from the text, from the sermon, and runs out to the congregation; I gather all I know together and fashion it into an instrument with which to smite the congregation. That is the true course. The objective is no longer the text, or the sermon, but the people; the true preacher is after them all the time. One generally discovers that only after one has been preaching for some time, but why should not one be taught it from the first?"

On being asked whether he could re-preach old sermons, Dr. Gordon replied:—

"Yes, indeed, but I prefer to put it this way: I can use an old sermon but can never preach one; it has first to become as new as when I started at it. Some sermons grow upon a man the oftener he preaches them. Sermons I have preached fifteen or twenty times I love; I never realized it so much as lately. I could preach them again to my congregation to morrow and they would enjoy them more than they did at first. A sermon is a message; a message is something that is passing through you from somebody to somebody else. A sermon, therefore, should neither begin with a preacher nor end with him."

RHEUMATISM DURING MARCH

Victims can Cure Themselves With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

During the month of March people who are afflicted with rheumatism begin to have unpleasant reminders of their trouble. The weather is changeable—balmy and springlike one day, cold, raw and piercing the next. It is such sudden changes of weather that start the pangs and tortures of rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica going. But it must be borne in mind that although weather conditions start the pains, the trouble is rooted in the blood, and can only be cured through the blood. All the liniments and lotions in the world can't cure rheumatism. Rubbing may seem to ease the pain while you are rubbing, but there its value ends. Only by treating the disease through the blood can you cure rheumatism. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured so many thousands of cases of this trouble. The new, rich blood these pills actually make drives out the poisonous acid and rheumatism, lumbago and kindred troubles are banished. Among the many sufferers from rheumatism cured by this medicine is Mr. R. J. Sinclair, of Gosen, N.S., who says: "About two years ago I was laid up with rheumatism. For two months I could not walk and had to stay in an invalid's chair. My feet were badly swollen and my arms seemed to be paralyzed. I had been using doctor's medicine for a long time but it did not seem to help me, and the doctor finally told me that the only thing that would cure me would be a change of climate. At this time I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and got a supply. After I had taken them for a while I found they were helping me, and I got a further supply, and they completely cured me, and I have not been sick one day since. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this trouble."

If you suffer from rheumatism, or any other disease of the blood or nerves, begin to cure yourself to day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which under a fair trial will do for you what they have done for thousands of others. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHY THE FARMER SHOULD KEEP HENS

Writing in The Weekly Witness, Mr. M. A. Jull, poultry expert at Macdonald College, gives some practical poultry talk, which really forms part of a bulletin issued to the boys and girls of the Province of Quebec. Mr. Jull says in part:

"The breed which a farmer should keep will depend largely upon his nearness to the market, and what the market demands. The ruling price of eggs and poultry will also decide whether he will give his chief attention to eggs and poultry flesh. The egg-laying breeds produce good broilers, while the general purpose breeds excellent roasters. As far as the eggs are concerned, the general purpose breeds usually lay brown eggs, while the egg-laying breeds lay white eggs.

"The farmer is in the best position of all to make money with poultry; he usually has plenty of land so that his fowls can be kept on sweet soil year after year. He has plenty of room to give his plant a good location; he is generally in a position to house the fowls comfortable, and he can secure feeds cheaper than anyone else. Also with the small flock on the farm it requires comparatively little time and attention to make a success.

The following reasons are given why poultry should be kept by farmers:—

1. Because the farmer ought, by this means, to convert a great deal of the waste of his farm into money in the shape of eggs and chickens for market.

2. Because, with intelligent management, chickens ought to be year money makers.

3. Because poultry will yield him a quicker return for the capital invested than many of the other departments of agriculture.

4. Because the manure from the poultry house will make a valuable compost for use in either vegetable garden or orchard. The birds themselves, if allowed to run in apple orchards, will destroy many injurious insects.

5. Because, while cereals and fruit can be successfully grown only in certain sections, poultry can be raised for table use or for egg production in all parts of the country.

6. Because poultry raising is an employment in which the farmer's wife and daughters and sons can engage, and leave him free to attend to other departments.

7. Because it will bring the best results in the shape of new-laid eggs during the winter season, when the farmer has the most time on his hands.

8. Because to start poultry raising on the farm requires but little capital. By good management poultry can be made, with little cost, a valuable adjunct to the farm.

9. Because eggs and poultry are necessities on the farmer's table, and consequently he should produce these as economically as possible.

10. Because the poultry department can be made to pay better in proportion than most other departments on the farm.

Any farm is improved by a poultry department and few businesses can be operated in as wide a range of climate and in as varied conditions. Poultry raising, then, is more independent than almost any other business and few branches can be carried on with as inexpensive an outlay. The returns on the money invested in a poultry plant are immediate and regular.

KEPHALDOL

COMES TO CANADA

Originated by Dr. Stohr, a famous physician of Vienna, Austria, Kephaldol is known and used throughout Europe and Great Britain.

Now, backed by the endorsements of hundreds of physicians and hospitals, it comes to Canada to relieve pain and cure Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neurahgia, Neuritis, Headache, La Grippe, Fevers and similar troubles.

Kephaldol has received the highest commendation from the medical profession because of its direct strengthening action on the nerves, without injury to the heart, and its lasting regulative and curative effect upon the whole system.

Unlike other pain-killing remedies, Kephaldol is absolutely harmless. It causes no intestinal irritation, and has no depressing effects.

Kephaldol will now bring to pain-wracked Canadians the untold blessings which it has already conferred in the Old Country—joy of perfect life again to those who, perhaps for many years, have dragged through a tormented existence.

Get a 50c tube of Kephaldol tablets at your Druggist's. Kephaldol, Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

A STANDARD OIL COUP.

The announcement that the Standard Oil Company, of New York, and the Chinese Government had entered into a joint arrangement for the exploration and exploitation of the oil deposits of China is a most gratifying evidence of the enterprise and sleepless character of the matchless management of this corporation. The arrangement was entered into in the face of the known attitude of the Wilson Administration, which told the Morgan group months ago very plainly American capital would have to depend upon its own resources, and not expect support such as had been accorded in the past to big corporate interests. The Morgan international group took offence at this, and only recently President Straight, of the Asiatic Association, addressing a meeting of that body, emitted a loud outcry at the helplessness of the American capitalists in the face of such "discouraging conditions." Mr. Straight is the representative in the Far East of this group.

The conditions may have been discouraging in that particular field, where Government coddling and subventions have been a matter of common dependence for many years, but not in the case of Standard Oil. These oil merchants have been on the job, risking their own money and using the best brains available to discover and develop a profitable field, and they have won out. Even the president of the company has invented an oil lamp for use by the Chinese which has probably done more to spread the light of civilization and progress in China than all the diplomatic and missionary representatives in the Far East. Moreover, this official and subordinates have developed what is of equal importance, the most cordial and confidence-inspiring relations between his company and the Chinese people, and he pays a tribute to their universal sense of commercial honor when he announces that in the many years of trade relations with the Chinese there have been no defaults in payment worthy of mention.

Herein lies the secret of success in all trade intercourse, national and international. Trade cannot be developed by force, by military display or by diplomatic pressure. It is the result of mutual concessions by the two parties directly interested. The Standard Oil has shown the way how to do it and it now devolves on American enterprise in all directions to launch out and do likewise. The Standard's concessions give it the right to build railways as well as dig for oil, and it is far ahead in the race, and deservedly so. Just at present those interests which were pleading baby act and saying their non-progress was the fault of Washington, ought to feel just a little shamefaced in view of what the more enterprising Standard Oil capitalists have accomplished. Hats must certainly be taken off to the Standard Oil. They are thorough masters of that great civilizing art—trade.

DUTCH BELTED CATTLE.

Once Nearly Exterminated, They Are Now Bred by the Nobility.

Dutch belted cattle originated in Holland several hundred years ago. At the time of the great Holland wars they were nearly exterminated by the invading armies, and the few that remained became the property of the nobility, who have bred them pure ever since, but do not willingly part with them. They are known in Holland as Veldlargers, which name means "wrapped around with a sheet."

In color they are black, with a band of pure white entirely around the body. They may also have white fore feet, white hind feet and legs up to the gambrels and a white switch. The "belt" varies in width. On some it is but a few inches wide. On others it reaches back on the hips and forward on the shoulders. Usually it covers the body from just in front of the hips nearly to the shoulders.

They have the prominent eyes, thin neck, silky hair, soft skin, elevated flanks, broad hips, long, slim tails, shapely, well placed udders, prominent milk veins and so called milk form, which make up the dairy type of cow. They are very tame and docile, hardy and vigorous.—G. G. Gibbs in American Cultivator.

GOOD HUMOR IN THE HOME.

Women who ask how to make themselves charming can be given no better advice than to cultivate good humor, which is more than anything else the chief cornerstone of adaptability. The world is a mirror which reflects the aspect you present to it. True, it may not always give back a smile for smile, but it unfailingly returns frown for frown. Among all recipes, however, suggested for beautifying, the simple one of a good temper is left out, and yet there is nothing, short of actual deformity, so ugly and repulsive in a woman as a bad temper freely displayed.

In a man's eyes, bad temper is the unpardonable sin, and wisely so, since nothing so quickly creates and insures an unhappy home. Let the woman who take such pains to cultivate beauty remember the expression of a face counts for as much as does any feature thereof, and when they are willing to do and bear so much for the attainment of the power of beauty, brilliancy, or charm, it is surely worth while to give up one's own way for the acquirement of so great and lasting a charm as the merry heart which doeth good like a medicine charm.—Onward.

MODERN SUPERSTITION.

Owls and Skirts, Pigs, Dogs and Cats.

Pretty nearly everything under the sun seems to be connected with some superstition, from an owl to the hem of your skirt. Never hear of either? Well, if your skirt happens to be turned up a bit at the bottom, you can be sure someone is thinking of you. You can, however, make everyone think more, especially the men, if you wear a slit skirt. As for the owl, if it should come into the house, trouble is sure to follow. The best thing to do when you expect an owl is to put all the cut glass into the china closet and the china closet in the dining-room closet; and then lock that closet. For the owl you can then use anything; a broom is generally pretty handy.

The first time pigs cross your threshold, make them jump over your pants belt, or your wife's garter, or the maid's apron; then they will come home regularly. A plan now in use among up-to-date Canadian farmers is to keep the pigs in regular pens and feed them twice a day. It is regarded as a scheme more popular with the wife and the maid.

It is bad luck to hear a dog bark at night. This superstition has been found to depend on circumstances; it is a matter of whose dog. If it's the dog next dog, the best thing to use is a flatiron; but a good aim is even more valuable.

Women believe that, if they go somewhere on Monday, they will be on the go the rest of the week. That may be the explanation of the fact that women like to wash on Monday. Kill a cat, and you will have bad luck for seven years: there is, however, no special superstition as to kittens, so it is best to begin on your cats early.

The Germans believe that, if your right hand itches, you will get money; if your left hand itches, you will spend much. Canadians are the only people in the world who have both hands itching all the time.

Revealed.

An insurance agent was trying to induce a hard man to deal with to take out a policy on his house. After listening to him for an hour while he painted in vivid colors the extreme danger of fire consuming the house, the hard man to deal with said:

"Do you really think it likely that my house will burn down within the time that the policy will run?"

"Certainly," replied the agent. "Have I not been trying all this time to convince you that I do?"

"Then," said the hard man to deal with, "why is your company so anxious to bet me money that it will not?"

The agent was silent and thoughtful for a moment; then he drew the other apart into an unfrequented place and whispered in his ear:

"My friend, I will impart to you a dark secret. Years ago the company disgraced me before my sweetheart. Under an assumed name I have wormed myself into its service for revenge, and as there is a heaven above us I will have its heart's blood!"

Services Appreciated.

A popular doctor was not long ago much pleased with a certain aerated water, and by his assiduous recommendations procured for it a celebrity it justly deserved. The doctor acted solely in the interests of humanity generally and expected no return. To his surprise there came one morning an effusive letter from the company, saying that his recommendations had done them so much good that they "ventured to send him a hundred"—Here the page came to an end. "This will never do," said the doctor; "it is very kind, but I could not think of accepting anything." Here he turned the page and found the sentence ran —"of our circulars for distribution."

An Unreliable Doctor.

Mr. Seabury came from the office one night and told his wife he had been to see the doctor.

"He said I was all tired out," said Seabury, "and he thinks I ought to go away on a fishing trip."

"But, of course, you don't believe him," responded the wife.

"Why not?" queried Seabury in surprise.

"Well," said Mrs. Seabury, "you didn't have any confidence in him when he told me I ought to go to Europe."

No Cheating There.

In Athens goats are marched to housekeepers' doors and milked before the eyes of patrons. But this system does not prevent adulteration. The milkman wears a loose coat with wide sleeves. Around his waist is a rubber bag filled with water, and a tube runs down his arm. As he milks he presses the tube, and milk and water flow silently together into the milk-pail.

Not as Bad as It Might Have Been.

"Now that your boys have gone away to school and your daughters have got married I suppose you find it rather dismal around home, don't you, Mr. Cadgerley?"

"Well, it's not as bad as it might be. When I begin carving at dinner now I always know that it will be my turn to eat before everything is so cold that it is tasteless."

Ominously Strange.

The dear girl said to her father:

"Papa, George Beecham has proposed."

"Humph!" her father returned. "What's his income?"

The girl started.

"How strange! How very strange!" she said. "That's the very question George asked me about you."

His Realization.

"Did you ever realize anything on that investment?"

"Oh, yes."

"What did you realize on it?"

"What a fool I had been."

VITALITY REGAINED KIDNEYS CURED

Health Restored By "Fruit-a-tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys and liver were not doing their work, and I became all run-down. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them.

Their effect, I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the results all that could have been expected.

My liver and kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old time vitality. Today, I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever enjoyed, and I unhesitatingly give you this testimonial for publication if you wish"

B. A. KELLY.

In hundreds of letters received by the Fruit-a-tives Company, the same expression is used "Fruit-a-tives is the best kidney remedy in the world". At any rate, these tablets have proved the best to the hundreds of men and women who have been cured by taking them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

POOR SIRES USELESS.

We recently read in a leading dairy journal of a man who wished to purchase twenty head of registered Jersey cows. In the letter of enquiry he stated that these cows must have an average production of fifty pounds of milk each per day. He was right in setting a high standard. This may have been a little too high, but the ridiculous part of the proposed transaction was that to mate with these cows he asked for a bull to head the herd, said bull to be "a cheap bull." What a man with a herd of such high standing would do with a cheap bull no good dairyman could understand. It would cost a nice sum of money to purchase twenty cows of any breed that would average fifty pounds of milk each per day and it would certainly be the height of folly to buy a scrub sire, because as the sire is generally half the herd, it is more than likely that heifers from the mating would not produce more than thirty pounds daily and possibly the second generation would run down to twenty pounds.

Spending a large amount of money for females and then spoiling the whole outlook by purchasing inferior male animals is one of the worst forms of business the dairyman can try. Far better would it be to buy a few expensive females and spend extra money in the sire, looking to improvement through breeding and keeping the good heifers, than to spend a very large sum in a large herd of high-producing females and ruining all chances of raising the standard of the herd by selecting a "cheap," nondescript cull, from which it would not be advisable to keep females for breeding purposes, and it would do more damage in the herd in one year than could be repaired in several of judicious breeding thereafter. Many men starting in the dairy business operate upon a basis much like this man. It means greater expense to them and smaller returns in the end. By all means get the good cow, but never, whether the herd is large or small, or composed of the gilt-edged, high-producing females of the more common class, purchase an inferior sire. Look to him more than to the females for improvement.

SHE GOT SO SHE WAS ALMOST INSANE

And Then Found a Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills

That's Why Mrs. Wellington Dunlop Says Dodd's Kidney Pills are the Best of All Medicines.

South Waterville, York Co., N.B. Mar. 9th. (Special).—Mrs. Wellington Dunlop, an estimable resident of this place, has given an interview in which she states that she believes Dodd's Kidney Pills to be the best of all medicines. Mrs. Dunlop says:

"When I commenced taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I was in a terrible condition. I had been sick for over a year and had paid out more than one hundred and thirty dollars for doctors and medicine. I would get some better and then get just as bad as ever.

"The doctor said my trouble came from my stomach. His medicine relieved me for only a few minutes after I had taken it, and I got so that I was nearly insane.

"I had not taken Dodd's Kidney Pills two days till I was some better. I took twelve boxes in all, and I can truly say they have done me more good that any medicine I have ever taken."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are suffering woman's best friend. If you haven't tried them yourself, ask your neighbors.

STRANGE EXPERIENCES

ODD COMBINATIONS OF EVENTS WHICH RARELY OCCUR.

Two Men Reported Singular Phenomenon of Shadowless Ship—Sea Captain In Exactly Same Spot Two New Year's Nights In Succession—Literary Coincidences In Zangwill and Ward Novels.

In the lives of most of us coincidence has played a part. Probably nine out of every ten people can recall events and dates which, coinciding with one another, are a source of wonderment. There are some coincidences, however, which are of such a character as to call for more than casual comment.

In a recent issue of The Strand Magazine, for instance, there is a photograph illustrating a phenomenon only visible in the tropics—that of sunshine at noon when no shadow is thrown by objects exposed to the sun"s rays, the explanation being that the ship upon which the photograph was taken was at the moment in the exact nadir of the sun's zenith. The phenomenon was observed and recorded by Mr. W. B. Gibbs in latitude 15 deg. South, in February of last year, and it is a singular coincidence that precisely the same phenomenon was witnessed in 1881 or 1882 by Captain W. M. Gibbs of Cardiff, at about the same time of the year and practically in the same latitude.

An experience even more unique befell Captain W. M. Gibbs nearly twenty years later, when, by a really wonderful coincidence, his ship, on New Year's Eve, 1898, was in precisely the same spot as she had been at midnight on New Year's Eve the year before. Captain Gibbs got his chief mate to check the reckoning in order that there should be no mistake about the position, which was some thirty miles off the coast of Algiers.

There have, however, been many remarkable coincidences in regard to ships. On the day Lord Salisbury died a vessel called the Lord Salisbury was posted as missing at Lloyds, while the Czar's son, the Czarewitch, was born within forty-eight hours of the time when the Russian battleship, the Czarewitch, had a disastrous battle with Admiral Togo's fleet off Japan.

And this reference to the Russo-Japanese War recalls the fact that a horse called Togo beat Big Gun almost at the hour when Admiral Togo was defeating the Russian fleet outside Port Arthur.

The death of King Edward's aunt, Princess Alice, happened within a few weeks of the dreadful accident to the vessel, Princess Alice, in the Thames, while simultaneously with the wreck of the liner Delhi, off Tangier, on the coast of Morocco, when the Princess Royal and her husband, the late Duke of Fife, had such a narrow escape from drowning, the other Delhi was being created the capital of India.

Turning to other coincidences, there are some very curious literary parallels. The Crimean War was foretold 400 years before that event, the prophecy in verse being embodied in a little book published in 1453. It began:—

In twice two hundred years the Bear
The Crescent will assail,
But if the Cock and Bull unite
The Bear will not prevail.

When Guy de Maupassant, in one of his stories, described how an Englishman with three daughters, stood on the deck of a sinking vessel with a Frenchman, and all met their fate singing "God Save the Queen," not a few of the French critics pronounced the whole incident to be absolutely implausible. Nevertheless, many years later, in 1897, a similar patriotic scene was enacted on the deck of the doomed Aden.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of literary coincidences is that concerning Mrs. Humphry Ward and Mr. Israel Zangwill. Stories from the pens of these two novelists were simultaneously appearing in Harper's Magazine, and in the same issue both writers described a scene at Orvieto, the actions of which were also peculiarly similar. Yet Mr. Zangwill subsequently confessed that he had chosen Orvieto because he thought the place comparatively neglected by writers.

The story of an extraordinary coincidence is related by Sir W. Robertson Nicoll in "A Bookman's Letters." A lady sent her servant, a young man of about twenty, to a neighboring town with a valuable ring which required some alteration. On the way he unfortunately dropped the ring while looking at it. He thought it fell into the hollow stump of a tree under the water of a stream, but failed to find it. Afraid to return to tell the story of his loss, he ran away, went to the West Indies, and there accumulated a very fair fortune. Then he resolved to come home and clear himself with his mistress.

Arriving in London he ascertained that she was still alive, and purchased a diamond ring of considerable value, which he determined to present in person. Arriving in the neighborhood he met a former servant, to whom he unfolded the story of why he had left the country abruptly years before. As he was telling the story they came to the spot where he had dropped the ring. "There," said he, "it was just here that I dropped the ring, and there is the very bit of old tree into a hole of which it fell—just there." At the same time he put down the point of his umbrella into a hole in the tree, and, drawing it out, there appeared, to the astonishment of both, the very ring on the ferrule of the umbrella.

Among scientific coincidences there is nothing so remarkable as that concerning Darwin and Alfred Russel Wallace, who died recently. Both scientists, unknown to each other, evolved the theory which is now termed Darwinism.

Build Concrete Crib Floors and Supports

THEY keep the rats, squirrels and other rodents from carrying away your profits. Millions of dollars are lost to farmers each year through the ravages of rodents in cribs and granaries. Part of this loss is paid by every farmer whose crib floor isn't built of concrete.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

A rather peculiar accident which might have resulted in the destruction of Mr. William Flewelling's fine new residence near Cumnock, occurred on Monday morning. Mr. Flewelling had started the fire in the kitchen range, to which is attached the hot water tank located in the bathroom, a water pipe passing through the pot of the stove. During the night the water in the pipe had frozen, thus shutting off the circulation. When the section of the pipe running through the fire became heated there was no escape for the expanding steam, and an explosion soon followed. The stove was literally blown to pieces, fire being distributed all over the kitchen, and it was only by the prompt action of Mr. and Mrs. Flewelling that the fine new residence escaped being completely burned. The steam in the pipe must have attained very high pressure, as pieces of the stove were thrown with great violence to different parts of the kitchen, one piece just missing Mrs. Flewelling, who had a moment before entered the room. Fortunately, however, the price of a new stove is Mr. Flewelling's only loss.—Arthur Enterprise

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. POTATO GROWING

Big Opportunity for Farmers of Illinois

Demand in Central Western States is Far in Excess of Supply.

In the Chicago Sunday Record-Herald of March 1st, Prof. Harry G. Bell, a son of Mr. E. Bell, of Orangeville, has an interesting three column article on potato growing, which he argues offers the farmers of Illinois a splendid opportunity, for handsome profit making. In support of his argument Prof. Bell points out that within twelve hours ride of Chicago "there are resident over 26,000,000 people, 11,000,000 of whom reside in towns and cities. This 11,000,000 of city population is largely non-producing. Estimating on the basis of average consumption per capita, the Middle West requires, approximately, 95,000,000 bushels of potatoes per year. Of this 95,000,000 bushels we are at present raising about 65,000,000 bushels, leaving a shortage of over 30,000,000 bushels, which has to be supplied by imported material."

Our farmer readers will be interested in what Prof. Bell says the market is looking for. "The potato market," he writes, "puts a premium on fine textured, white fleshed, dry and mealy tubers of good flavor. Part of these characteristics are hereditary, therefore the farmer should pick out seed of a well-established and popular variety. The quality of tuber is also influenced to a large extent by the kind and quantity of plant food which has been available during the growing season. Immature potatoes are always wet and soggy. Potato merchants tell us that the question of pure variety is very important. If the shipper can guarantee a car load of true variety in nearly every case he can get a cash bid for his product. If, however, his car load is made up of promiscuous varieties, it is common practice to handle such stock on commission.

Besides being true to variety, potatoes should be uniform in size, especially where they are intended for use by hotels and restaurants. For baking purposes, these consumers prefer a smooth, clear-skinned tuber, oval in shape, measuring about 4 to 5 inches long, about 3 inches in width and about 2½ inches in thickness. The eyes of this tuber should be shallow and should be free from injury, either from disease or from rough handling. Potato merchants again assure us that, if a farmer could guarantee well-graded cars of potatoes, sound and of good quality, he could obtain a premium of from 5 to 10 cents a bushel over the average market.

Modern potato production is not the drudgery it was ten or twenty years ago. In preparing the soil, the farmer uses the same efficient machinery that he uses for other crops. He can obtain special potato machinery for planting, cultivating, spraying and digging the crop. The only operation that has to be performed by hand is the picking up of the tubers. Many of the foremost potato growers of the country are finding it profitable to grade their potatoes and to market them in specially prepared bags or barrels carrying grower's advertisement.

The Record-Herald of Feb. 22nd contains an excellent photo of Prof. Bell and also a group photo of a class in the Wendell Phillips High School in Chicago studying scientific agriculture under his direction. Prof. Bell, who is agronomist of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee of the National Fertilizer Association, was requested by the Chicago Board of Education to give a course of lectures before this class.

HOCKEY IN SHELBURNE.

Orangeville hockey team played a friendly game in Shelburne on Monday night. The locals were beaten by 3 to 1 in an exciting match, which was witnessed by a large crowd. The home team scored twice in the first half. Orangeville got one early in the second period, but Shelburne took another later in the game. Play was fast and keen, but the game was clean and the best of feeling existed between the rival teams. The 36th Regiment Band was in attendance and discoursed excellent music. The players were :—

Shelburne—Goal, Hall; point, Gallagher; coverpoint, McCormack; rover, Cameron; centre, Gallagher; r. wing, Silk; l. wing, Keys.

Orangeville—Goal, Booth; point, Scott; coverpoint, McLachlan; rover, Keith; centre, Ewing; r. wing, Wilcox; l. wing, Stevenson.

Gordon Cooper refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

Cured Diseases of the Kidneys

And Is Depended On to Right Stomach and Liver Disorders.

Once Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are introduced into the family and their efficiency becomes known they are usually found too valuable to do without. For everyday ills arising from liver and bowel disorders they bring relief promptly, and when complicated diseases of the kidneys and liver develop they often prove a successful cure after doctors have failed. As an illustration, you may read the following, which was received a few days ago:

Mrs. John Wright, 51 McGee street, Toronto, Ont., states: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for ten years, and would not be without them. My husband suffered from kidney trouble, and after taking treatment from several doctors without receiving any benefit, tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which worked a complete cure. Since that time we have used them for all stomach and liver disorders."

THE BANKERS' TROPHY

Dr. White, of Shelburne, Won Closing Bonspeil

Competition for the Bankers' Trophy was brought to a close last Thursday, when the curlers held the final bonspeil of the season. As a Shelburne rink held the trophy on March 1st, the bonspeil took place on Shelburne ice. Grand Valley, Orangeville and Shelburne clubs were each represented by two rinks. Both of the Orangeville rinks were drawn in the first round which was played at one o'clock, McMillan against Reilly, of Grand Valley, and Smith against Dr. White, of Shelburne. The ice was decidedly tough in the afternoon, but this did not seem to interfere with the quality of the curling, which was uniformly good. The results were :—

Grand Valley—		Orangeville—
H. McDonald		Dr. Rooney
E. Bennett		A. D. McKitrick
Dr. Reilly		Dr. Campbell
Ed. Reilly sk.	14	J. D. McMillan	11
Shelburne—		Orangeville—
F. H. Silk		D. McCallum
H. Cameron		J. D. Torrie
D. Henderson		E. G. Bingham
Dr. S. T. White	16	A. A. Smith	12.

Shelburne—Goal, Hall; point, Gallagher; coverpoint, McCormack; rover, Cameron; centre, Gallagher; r. wing, Silk; l. wing, Keys.

Orangeville—Goal, Booth; point, Scott; coverpoint, McLachlan; rover, Keith; centre, Ewing; r. wing, Wilcox; l. wing, Stevenson.

Gordon Cooper refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

White, of Shelburne, and McMillan, Orangeville, were pitted against each other in the second round. While they were playing Ramsay, of Grand Valley, and Ferguson, of Shelburne, were wrestling for supremacy on the other rink. The White-McMillan game was in doubt until the twelfth end, when a five end gave the home rink a lead, which it held until the finish. Ramsay had the better of Ferguson right from the start and won rather handily. The scores were :—

Shelburne—		Orangeville—
H. Cameron		A. D. McKitrick
D. Henderson		Dr. Campbell
Dr. S. T. White	22.	J. D. McMillan	18
Grand Valley—		Shelburne—
Alf. Menary		R. Smith
Wm. McDonald		A. Skelton
J. J. Reith		Dr. Frank
A. G. Ramsay	25	E. A. Ferguson	12

In the final game White and Ramsay had a great fight for the honor of holding the trophy. The Shelburne rink started off in front and held a small lead throughout the game, but Ramsay was always within striking distance and drew almost even several times. It was after three o'clock Friday morning when the game ended. The result :—

Shelburne—		Grand Valley—
F. H. Silk		Alf. Menary
H. Cameron		W. McDonald
D. Henderson		J. J. Reith
Dr. S. T. White	17	A. G. Ramsay	12

The result of the bonspeil means that the Bankers' Trophy will summer in Shelburne and that the bonspeil at the beginning of next curling season will be held on Shelburne ice.

SOCIAL SERVICE

Impressive Addresses by Miss Ratte, General Superintendent of Presbyterian Church Rescue Homes.

On Tuesday Miss Marie Christine Ratte, General Superintendent of the Redemptive Work for Girls carried on by the Social Service Department of the Presbyterian Church, addressed two meetings in St. Andrew's church here. At one o'clock Miss Ratte spoke to a meeting of men and later in the afternoon addressed a large gathering of the women of the town. The Superintendent, who is a converted Roman Catholic, is a small, dark eyed woman, who speaks with a pronounced French accent. She spoke with great earnestness and an eloquence that at times thrilled and deeply stirred her audience. Miss Ratte has the supervision of the nine Rescue Homes that the Presbyterian Church has founded for the care and winning back of the unfortunate girls who have been led astray. Her work takes her into all parts of Canada and the stories of shame and degradation which she told her audiences related to matters that had come under her own observation. Within the shadow of the tower of the House of Commons in Ottawa she had visited a house, where there were eighteen young girls who were kept there for immoral purposes. In the next house there were nine girls of the same class. She would not say who the men were who patronized these places, but she was positive they were not maintained for the poorer people of the capital. Out in the West houses of this class were found not singly, but in whole streets. On the Pacific Coast she had found houses of ill-fame built to look like hotels. There were not many windows in them because darkness was needed for the nefarious purpose for which they were used. In every crack of the Rocky Mountains, where there was a town or mining camp, a red light district was to be found. In one town of 4000 inhabitants, which the speaker visited, she found no less than fifteen houses of ill-fame. In the town of Fort George she visited one of the saloons with a bar 100 feet in length and the usual Western adjunct, a "smoke room," where men, who were no longer able to walk as God intended they should, either crawled or were carried to sleep off their drunken stupor. In this barroom at 7.30 o'clock one evening Miss Ratte counted no less than 350 men. The speaker gave several instances of the working of the organized white slave traffic and narrated some harrowing cases of poor, friendless girls who had been betrayed and then left to shift for themselves. She closed with a stern denunciation of white slave traffic and commercialized vice and a ringing appeal to the manhood and womanhood of Canada to set their faces sternly against the immorality and impurity that would drag down and debase the people of this young, vigorous and fast growing nation. The addresses made a profound impression and Miss Ratte was tendered the sincere thanks of her auditors at both meetings.

Drowned While Skating

Lewis Smith, a nine year old son of Capt. Chas. Smith, formerly of Orangeville, was drowned while skating on a creek at Moose Jaw, Sask., on Friday, Feb. 27th. The lad and two companions were skating on the stream, where it flows through Riverside Park. They decided to venthur up the stream and crawled under a wire fence, which had been built across the ice to keep skaters away from a section, where ice was being taken out. Young Smith was behind his comrades and when they turned he was not anywhere in sight. Retracing their way toward the fence, they found a freshly made hole, directly underneath which the body of their playmate was afterwards found. The lads gave the alarm and Fire Chief Barnes and some of his assistants were soon on the spot with grappling hooks. The first cast with the hooks brought the body to the surface. Life, however, had been extinct for some time.

GLENCROSS.

Her many friends are sorry to hear of the prolonged illness of Mrs. R. J. Pierson. A trained nurse is now in attendance and we trust that the patient will soon be on the road to recovery.

We are having a good steady winter, but excellent roads prevent any inconvenience in this neighborhood.

We hear that one of our young men has invested in a new cutter. There must surely be a girl in the case.

A few in the community are suffering from la grippe. Surely they will be better by the end of the week.

There have been a few successful parties around here this winter, but according to rumor there are prospects of a few more before long.

Mr. Jeffers, who had the misfortune to break a few ribs in a fall last week, is nearly better again.

Wood-bee season is here once more, and a busy time is expected for a couple of weeks.

Miss Parks, our teacher, is progressing finely. Quite a regular class is in attendance.

Hospital Notes

The following donations are gratefully acknowledged by the Hospital Board:—County Council, $200; two bags of potatoes and one bag of apples from Mr. John Mills, of Farmington; also a bedside table and back rest from Mrs. J. R. Bell, Laurel.

The regular monthly meeting of Lord Dufferin Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, will be held at the home of Mrs. J. A. V. Preston on Friday evening, March 13th, at 3.30 o'clock. A special meeting of the Executive will be held at 3 o'clock.

The Daughters of the Empire, under whose auspices "Alice in Wonderland" was staged, desire to express their sincere appreciation of the valuable assistance given them by all those outside the Society, who generously assisted with the Play. The Society felt, when the project was first undertaken, that it would prove of educational worth to those taking part and in this they were not disappointed. However, without the assistance of those who joined with the Society, the Play could not have been attempted and these, one and all, have the Order's hearty thanks. The ladies wish to thank Chief Marshall for his kindly assistance during the practices and at the concert.

Sale of Homemade Baking.

The Girls Auxiliary of St. Mark's Church will hold a Sale of Homemade Baking in the store adjoining the Adamson Hardware Co's. premises on Saturday afternoon next at 2.30 o'clock. Proceeds in aid of the Organ Fund of the church.

The Horticultural Society

The Horticultural Society has issued its third annual Premium List made up of vegetable and flower seeds, perennial and bulbous plants, roses, ornamental trees, vines and shrubs, fruit trees, grape vines etc. The membership fee of $1.00 entitles each person to a choice of one of the geraniums, together with the option of buying any or all of them at much reduced prices. In addition one is given a free ticket to the annual Horticultural Exhibition and the further privilege of entering exhibits free at this Show. This Society is planning for further improvements in our streets and public grounds and should have the support of every citizen in this undertaking. "Make beautiful Orangeville more beautiful" is the Society's slogan for 1914.

MISLEADING REPORTS

At the time of his death certain reports appeared in the Toronto Telegram and a number of other Ontario newspapers relative to the will of the late Congressman R. G. Bremner and the disposition of his estate. His brother, Mr. Will Bremner, writes The Banner stating that these are entirely wrong and the family do not understand how they originated. An article also appeared in a number of newspapers stating that the "rites of the Catholic Church" were administered to Congressman Bremner shortly before his death. This, his brother states, "was nothing short of deliberate lying—perhaps by the office-seekers trying to play into the hands of the Catholics." His brother, he adds, had arranged a most simple and beautiful service, which was as far removed from the Catholic service as it could possibly be. "Helen and I," Mr. Bremner states, "were with him constantly and while the days were sad ones for us they were gloriously bright for Rob, who talked so much and with such joy of going 'Home'."

Baby's Own Tablets Banish Castor Oil.

Once a mother uses Baby's Own Tablets she will never again use Castor oil, that barbarous purgative which all children loath. The Tablets are a gentle laxative; pleasant to take and are absolutely the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Hector Blanchette, Rouville, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets in place of castor oil and am well satisfied with them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wrestling Bouts.

Arrangements have been made to pull off two or more wrestling bouts in the Opera House to-night (Thursday). The principal event will be a Catch-as-Catch Can between Oscar Wasson, of Oklahoma, who is styled champion of the Middle Western States, and Charlie Fraser, of Toronto, heavyweight champion of Canada. A preliminary bout has been arranged between a couple of local boys. The first bout will start sharp at 8 o'clock. Fraser, who was in town yesterday looking after preliminaries, is a tall, athletic-looking young man and has the appearance of a clean sport. We understand he is a former Hillsburg boy.

Jim Kinch Runs Amuck

Jim Kinch, who lives near the C.P.R. station, loaded on a beautiful jag late Saturday night or early the next morning and about eleven o'clock Sunday forenoon became quarrelsome and started to abuse his wife. The woman came up town and notified Chief Marshall. When the Chief put in an appearance at the Kinch domicile, the husband went into hiding in the cellar. The Chief searched the cellar, but not finding conditions favorable for an arrest pretended not to have noticed Kinch and went upstairs to await his man. An hour and a half later Kinch emerged from his hiding place and was promptly collared by the officer. He put up a vigorous fight, but with the assistance of Walter Bailey, Marshall managed to land him in the lock-up. On Monday he was brought before P. M. Pattullo who remanded him until Saturday. He is out on bail in the meantime.

—Dufferin Spring Assizes were to have opened on Tuesday, but there were neither civil nor criminal cases awaiting trial. The jurors were notified not to attend and only two of them, who claimed they had not received their notices, put in an appearance. There was no judge on hand either, but Mr. Justice Latchford came up from Toronto yesterday and formally opened and closed the Court. Mayor Island appeared for the Crown and informed His Lordship that there was no criminal business.

Automobile Enthusiasts:

DEAR SIRS:

The new McLaughlin-Buick Models can be inspected in our showrooms throughout Canada. Our representative will be delighted to have the opportunity to elucidate any questions relative to the construction and merits of these cars.

The McLaughlin-Buick is the car that holds the secret of the low cost of operation. It is the car that has cut down up-keep cost and gasoline consumption and made possible the automobile as a pleasure vehicle to the man of moderate means.

For years the Manufacturers of this automobile have striven to produce "the car of all the people"—the car for you and for me.

They have done it.

They offer you a service that is complete and up-to-date, that minimizes up-keep, retards depreciation, and insures constant motoring pleasure.

Every model is endowed with perfect riding qualities produced only in high-priced cars. The perfect balanced bodies on extra long and wide elliptic springs, modify side sway and eliminate jar.

All cars are electrically started and lighted, front compartment entered from either side. Bodies luxuriously finished and elegantly appointed; unusually commodious tonneaus and deep seats, which are tilted to give the most comfortable riding position.

The absolute silence and lack of engine vibration makes motoring a continuous pleasure and you are not jaded at the end of an unusually long run.

Yours very truly,

McLaughlin Motor Car Co.

AN EMBARRASSING DEBUT.

Few thespians have cut a more ridiculous figure on their first appearance than did Tom Terris, the English actor now playing in America in a series of Dickens dramatizations. Mr. Terris is the son of the late William Terriss, a well-known player, who was last seen in Toronto in the role of King Henry the Second in Sir Henry Irving's production of Tennyson's "Becket," and whose assassination by a crazed actor in 1907 created a great sensation in the theatrical world. The debut of the younger Terriss, as amusingly described by himself, took place under the following circumstances:

"My father was in America with Irving, but had left strict instructions with the family that I was to be kept away from the footlights. I was at the time engaged in a broker's office, at sixteen shillings a week. I described myself as a stock broker, but my chief occupation was really licking stamps. However, what's bred in the bone will out in the flesh. I applied to Mr. F. R. Benson for a position, and to my delight was engaged at twenty shillings a week. My first role was Osric in 'Hamlet,' and my costume included a long, flowing crimson cloak of velvet, fastened with an enormous emerald buckle, of which I was very proud. I had requested several admiring friends to get seats as near the front as possible, and when the curtain ascended, disclosing me 'down stage' near the footlights, they were to applaud me vigorously. In my anxiety to be well forward, I got a little too close to the curtain, which was one of the old-fashioned kind, raised by rolling it around a heavy roller at the bottom. The consequence was that my cloak was caught by the roller, and I ascended with the curtain, amid the applause and laughter of not only my friends, but the whole audience. Fortunately the buckle broke when I was only about 6 feet in the air, and I dropped to the stage, a decidedly disconcerted young actor. My mishap, however, seemed to have won for me the good natured indulgence of the audience, and every subsequent speech of Osric's was greeted with gratifying applause."

Had a Stroke of Paralysis

And Found a Cure in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is always better to prevent serious diseases of the nerves. There are many warnings, such as sleeplessness, irritability, headaches and nervous indigestion.

Prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia only come when the nervous system is greatly exhausted. Even though your ailment may not yet be very serious, there is a great satisfaction in knowing that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will cure paralysis in its earlier stages.

Mrs. R. Bright, 215 Booth avenue, Toronto, writes: "Two years ago my husband had a stroke which left him in a weak, nervous condition. He started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and we saw the good results almost immediately. They have made a new man of m husband and we cannot speak too highly of them."

CHAPTER I.

The Carpet-Knight and the Lady.

The girl paused and steadied herself for a moment against a field gate. Her breath came fast in little sobbing pants. Her dainty shoes were soiled with dust. There was a great rent in the lace of her petticoats, gathered high up with her muslin skirt, and clutched with the fingers of her left hand. Very slowly, she turned her head. Her cheeks were the color of chalk, her eyes were filled with terror. If a cart were coming, or those laborers in the field had heard, escape was impossible. She must return then, and face this terrible thing. If any one had seen—or heard—or were coming now—God help her!

The terror faded from her eyes. A faint gleam of returning colour gave her at once a more natural appearance. So far as the eye could reach the white level road, with its fringe of elm trees, was empty. Away off in the fields the blue smocked peasants bent still at their toil. They had heard nothing, seen nothing. A few more minutes, and she was safe.

Yet before she turned once more to resume her flight she schooled herself with an effort to look where it had happened. A dark mass of wreckage, over which hung a slight mist of vapour, lay half in the ditch, half across the hedge, close under a tree from the trunk of which the bark had been torn and stripped. A few yards further off something grey, inert, was lying, a huddled-up heap of humanity twisted into a strange unnatural shape. Again the chalky pallor spread even to her lips, her eyes became lit with the old terror. She withdrew her head with a little moan, and resumed her flight. Away up on the hillside was the little country railway station. She fixed her eyes upon it and ran, keeping always as far as possible in the shadow of the hedge, gazing fearfully every now and then down along the valley for the white smoke of the train.

She reached the station, and mingling with the crowd of excursionists who had come up the river on the other side, took her place in the train unnoticed. She leaned back in her seat and closed her eyes. Until the last moment she was afraid. Not until the fields were flying past her, and the speed of the train increased every moment, did she dare to tell to herself that she had escaped. It was marvellous fortune! . . .

Arrived in Paris she remembered that she had not the money for a fiacre. She was in ill trim for walking, but somehow or other she made her way as far as the Champ Elysees, and sank down on an empty seat.

She had not at first the power of concealment. Her nerves were shattered, her senses dazed by this unexpected shock. She sat there, a mark for boulevarders, the unconscious object of numberless wondering glances. Paris was full and it was by no means a retired spot which she had found. Yet she never once thought of changing it. A person of somewhat artificial graces and mannerisms, she was for once in her life perfectly natural. Terror had laid a paralysing hand upon her, fear kept her almost unconscious of the curious glances which she was continually attracting. She forgot to pose, forgot to assume one of those studied but graceful little attitudes which showed off her lithe, piquant figure to its best possible advantage. She sat huddled up, for once genuinely regardless of effect, panic-stricken as though with the fear of some imminent danger. Every now and then she looked along the boulevard down towards the station. How much further she could see, what manner of grisly picture it was which now haunted her, who can tell! Yet at such moments her eyes were indrawn with terror, her fingers clasped frantically the sides of her chair. But though many people stared and whispered remarks loud enough to reach her ear, not one accosted her. For half an hour or more she sat there undisturbed.

Then there came briskly along the path towards her, an Englishman. He was perhaps forty-five years of age. He was dressed with the utmost care, and he set his feet upon the broad walk as though the action were in some way a condescension. He was alert, well-groomed, and yet—perhaps in contrast with the more volatile French type—there was a suggestion of weight about him, not to say heaviness. He too looked at the girl, slackened his pace and looked at her again through his eyeglasses, looked over his shoulder after he had passed, and finally came to a dead stop. He scratched his upper lip reflectively.

It was a habit of his to talk to himself. In the present case it did not matter, as there was no one else within earshot.

"Dear me!" he said, "Dear me! I wonder what I ought to do. She is English! I am sure of that. She is English, and apparently in some distress. I wonder——"

He turned slowly round. He was inclined to be a good-natured person, and he had no nervous fears of receiving a snub. The girl was pretty, and apparently a lady.

"She cannot be aware," he continued, "that she is making herself conspicuous. It would surely be only common politeness to drop her a hint—a fellow-countrywoman too. I trust she will not misunderstand me. I believe—I believe that I must risk it."

He stood before her, his hat in his hand, his head bent, his voice lowered to a convenient pitch.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but you appear to be a fellow-countrywoman of mine, and in some distress. Can I be of any assistance? I can assure you that it would give me very much pleasure."

Her first upward glance was one of terrified apprehension. When she saw however that this man was a stranger, and obviously harmless, her expression changed as though by magic. A delicate flush of colour streamed into her cheeks. Her eyes fell, and then sought his again with timid interest. Her natural instincts reasserted themselves. She began to act.

"You are very kind," she said hesitatingly, "but I don't remember—I don't think that I know you, do I?"

"I am afraid that you do not," he admitted, with a smile which he meant to be encouraging. "You remind me of the story they tell against us over here, you know—of the Englishman who refused to be saved from drowning because he was unacquainted with his rescuer. Permit to introduce myself. My name is Ferringhall—Sir John Ferringhall.

There was genuine interest in her eyes now. Sir John saw it, and was flattered.

"You are Sir John Ferringhall," she repeated. "Yes, I remember you now. You were pointed out to me at—a few nights ago."

He was not in the least surprised. A millionaire and a knight, even though his money has been made in carpets, is used to being a person of interest.

"Very likely," he answered, "I am fairly well known here. I must apologize, I suppose, for speaking to you, but your appearance certainly indicated that you were in some sort of trouble, and you were becoming—pardon me—an object of comment to the passers-by."

The girl sat up and looked at him with a curious twist at the corners of her mouth—humorous or pathetic, he could not tell which. As though accidentally she swept her skirts from a chair close drawn to her own. Sir John hesitated. She was marvellously pretty, but he was not quite sure—yet—that it was advisable for him to sit with her in so public a place. His inclinations prompted him most decidedly to take the vacant chair. Prudence reminded him that he was a county magistrate, and parliamentary candidate for a somewhat difficult borough, where his principal supporters were dissenters of strict principles. Prudence reminded him also—as an afterthought—that the things which are told of a man in this city of temptations are always believed. Sir John temporized, and the girl raised her eyes once more to his.

"You are the Sir John Ferringhall who has bought the Lyndmore estate, are you not?" she remarked. "My father's sisters used once to live in the old manor house. I believe you have had it pulled down, have you not?"

"The Misses Pellissier!" he exclaimed. "Then your name——"

"My name is Pellissier. My father was Colonel Pellissier. He had an appointment in Jersey, you know, after he left the army."

Sir John did not hesitate any longer. He sat down.

"Upon my word," he exclaimed, "this is most extraordinary. I——"

Then he stopped short, for he began to remember things. He was not quite sure whether, after all, he had been wise. He would have risen again, but for the significance of the action.

"Dear me!" he said. "Then some of your family history is known to me. One of your aunts died, I believe, and the other removed to London."

The girl nodded.

"She is living there now," she remarked.

"Your father is dead too, I believe," he continued, "and your mother."

"Two years ago," she answered. "They died within a few months of one another."

"Very sad—very sad indeed," he remarked uneasily. "I remember hearing something about it. I believe that the common report was that you and your sister had come to Paris to study painting."

She assented gently.

"We have a small studio," she murmured, "in the Rue de St. Pierre."

Sir John looked at her sideways. Her eyes were fixed upon the ground, the pink colour coming and going in her cheeks was very delicate and girlish. After all, this could never be the black sheep. He had been quite right to sit down. It was astonishing how seldom it was that his instincts betrayed him. He breathed a little sigh of satisfaction.

"Come," he continued, "the world after all is a very small place. We are not altogether strangers, are we? I feel that under the circumstances I have the right to offer you my advice, and if necessary my help. I beg that you will consider me your friend."

She looked at him with fluttering eyelids—sweetly grateful. It was such an unexpected stroke of good fortune. Sir John was not used to such glances, and he liked them.

"It is so difficult," she murmured, "so impossible to explain. Even to my own brother—if I had one—I could not tell everything, and you, although you are kind, you are almost a stranger, aren't you?"

"No, no!" he protested. "You must not think of me as one. Try and consider me your elder brother, or an old family friend, whichever you like best."

She thanked him with one of her shy little glances. More than ever Sir John was glad that he had sat down.

"It is very, very difficult," she continued, looking steadfastly at the ground. "Only—I have come face to face—with something terrible, an wholly unexpected trouble. I want to leave Paris to-day—this very day. I want to leave it for ever."

He looked at her very gravely.

"But your sister," he asked. "What of her?"

The girl shuddered—at least if it were not a shudder it was a good imitation. She kept her eyes fixed upon the ground. She spoke slowly. She was thinking out her way all the time.

"I wish to leave my sister. We cannot agree. It is not possible for us to live together any longer. I want to get away from this hateful city, and if I can—to forget."

Sir John began to see daylight.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

YOU CAN'T EARN MONEY WHEN YOU'RE LAID UP

There are a lot of people in this town who cannot afford to be sick. Perhaps none of you feel that you can, but certainly some of you can't, for as soon as you are sick, your wages stop and worry and debts begin to pile up. The sensible thing for you to do, as soon as you feel run-down and worn out, no matter what the cause, is to take something just as quick as you can to build up strength and health. Make yourself more comfortable and provide against serious sickness.

We don't believe there is any other medicine made that will do as much towards saving your health and thus helping you save your money as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a medicine that gets right at the trouble and relieves it by toning the nerves, enriching the blood, and giving new strength and health to the whole body. It doesn't do this by means of alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. Its strength and health-giving power is due to pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites, long endorsed by successful physicians, the one for its food value, the other for its tonic value. Here, for the first time they are combined, and the result is a real nerve, blood and body-building medicine—a real strengthener that we are proud to tell you about. You don't need to hesitate in using it, because if it doesn't do all we say it will and satisfy you in every way, it will cost you nothing. If it doesn't make you strong and well again, come back and get your money. It will be given to you without word or question. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. T. F. & T. J. Brown, Druggists, Orangeville.

Bread Cast Upon Water.

When it came to his turn to give his mite in the Sunday collection, says The Glasgow News, he fumbled among his pocket's contents (a florin and some pennies) for the customary copper and, dropping it in, passed the open box to his neighbor. As he handed the box over he noticed, to his horror, his shining florin among the coins it contained. He had given it in mistake for a penny. Without a moment's hesitation he seized the box ere it had gone too far, picked out the two shilling piece, substituted a penny for it and, blushing, but relieved, allowed the collecting to proceed. Later, on making a chance inspection of his money, he found he had two florins.

Harding Soft Iron.

To harden soft iron wet it with water and scatter over its surface powdered yellow prussiate of potash; then heat to a cherry red heat, which causes the potash to melt and coat the surface of the soft iron, then immerse quickly in cold water and repeat the operation. A white heat must not be used, as this would not harden, but oxidize the iron. Care must be taken not to use red prussiate of potash instead of the yellow; it will not answer.

For Eczema

UMBRELLAS ARE ANCIENT.

But They Were Ridiculed When They First Appeared in London.

Umbrellas were described in one dictionaries as "a portable penthouse to carry in a person's hand to screen him from violent rain or heat."

Umbrellas appear in the carvings of Persepolis. Nieuhr saw a great Arabian prince returning from a mosque, and each member of his family having a large umbrella carried by their side. Old chinaware shows the Chinese shaded by umbrellas. They were first used in this country in Baltimore, brought from India, in 1772. It is said that the first person who commonly carried an umbrella in London was the benevolent Jonas Hanway, who died in 1780.

John McDonald, a London footman who wrote his own life, said that he had "a fine silk umbrella which he brought from Spain," but he could not go with any comfort to himself nor it, the people calling out: "Frenchman! Why don't you get a coach?" The hackney coachmen and chairmen were clamouring against their rival. The footman says he persisted for three months till they took no further notice of this novelty. Foreigners began to use theirs and then the English.—Kansas City Star.

ARTIFICIAL DAYLIGHT.

New Process Revolutionizes Many Trades by Permitting Night Work.

The new process of making artificial daylight at night is quite simple, according to Arthur St. George Joyce, who writes on this subject in The Technical World Magazine. All that is needed, he explains, are two color screens and a strong incandescent light. Then the artificial light rays are passed through the screens, which draw out the excess of colorings that are foreign to daylight, and there remains true, pure and unvarying daylight.

Various cabinets, lamps and lights to produce daylight have been manufactured, but none has stood the test, continues the writer. In this latest invention a cabinet is employed. The cabinet is constructed in various sizes, but the one which is most convenient is 18 inches deep, 30 inches wide, and 28 inches high.

An incandescent gas light is placed at the top of the cabinet. There is a metal reflector to throw the light downward through the delicate screens which filter out the rays of red, orange and yellow, which are foreign to daylight except in a small way. In other words, the screens extract from the light excess of these colors.

The invention has a great field of usefulness in surgery and certain industries. Surgeons depend upon the color of the tissues to tell whether they are diseased or not. A great deal of surgery is done at night. In artificial light the tissues have not their true color. The invention will remedy that, in that operations may be performed by aid of daylight at any hour of the night.

In textile manufacturing, dyeing and color printing daylight at night will have many uses. In color printing, for instance, the presses can be run only so long as the ink put in by daylight lasts. With the aid of the invention presses can be run all night. In the sorting of cigars it is impossible to tell their color by artificial light. Likewise in dental work the exact color of artificial teeth cannot be determined at night. In paper manufacturing and in the manufacture of flour daylight is needed to differentiate the various grades.

Gossip In the Club.

Only one thing is fatal to the happy social life of any country community, and that is gossip. If the women in their clubs cannot find in the wide field of housekeeping, chicken raising, preserving, care of children, public schools, music, art, reading, public improvements, good government, health, sewing, entertaining and all other delightful household tasks enough material to lift the meetings above petty personalities, then the little club or whatever it is called is doomed. Whenever gossip is allowed to creep into any organization people will begin to break up into little cliques or circles or groups, and the whole thing falls.—Hilda Richmond in Farm and Fireside.

YOUR HAIR NEEDS PARISIAN SAGE

Just because your hair is full of dandruff, thin, streaky, dull and never will do anything to look pretty, do not despair. Beautiful hair, thick, fluffy, lustrous and absolutely free from dandruff is only a matter of care.

The building it is said will be erected at a cost of $100,000 and will be of the most modern construction.

Mr. McMurchy has sold eight acres of his property adjoining the C.P.R. in Brampton to Mr. McIntyre, of Toronto. It is the intention of the purchaser to use the property for greenhouse purposes. Mr. King, of Toronto, who laid out the Dale plant is making arrangements for the erection of the buildings.

A Real Nerve and Body-Building Medicine

We believe Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is the best remedy made for toning the nerves, enriching the blood, building up wasted tissues, renewing health, strength and energy—best medicine you can use if you are run-down, tired-out, nervous and debilitated, no matter what the cause. It doesn't depend for its good effect upon alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. It may not make you feel better in a few hours, but it will make you feel better, we are sure, just as the tonic and properties it contains have a chance to get into the blood and, through the blood, into the rest of the system. Pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites have long been endorsed by successful physicians, but here, for the first time, they are combined into one preparation which, as a nerve food and a builder of strength and health, we believe, has no equal.

If you don't feel well, begin taking Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to-day, and build your health and strengthen your system against more serious illness. To convalescents, old people, puny children and all others who are weak, run-down or ailing, we offer Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion with our personal promise that, if it doesn't make you well and strong again, it will cost you nothing. If we didn't have the utmost faith in it, we wouldn't offer it with this guarantee, nor even recommend it to you. We are sure that once you have used it you will recommend it to your friends, and thank us for having recommended it to you. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, MARCH 19th, 1914.

THREE IMPORTANT MATTERS

On Thursday next, March 26th, a monster deputation representing the Waterways Union and the Radial Railway Unions will interview the Ottawa Government upon three very important matters. The decision to send the deputation to Ottawa was reached at a conference in London on Thursday, March 5th, attended by about four hundred delegates representing practically every municipality west of Guelph. This meeting endorsed three very important projects, namely an ocean waterway via the Great Lakes to Port Arthur and Fort William, increased power for the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in the Niagara district and a subsidy of $6,400 a mile from the Federal Government to assist to build Hydro-Electric railways. Resolutions dealing with all three matters were submitted and carried without a dissenting voice. The three projects relate closely to the prosperity of Canada and particularly of Ontario. It is estimated that freight can be transported by water at a cost of about one mill per mile, by railways at an approximate cost of one cent per mile and by wagon at a cost of 25 cents per mile. It follows then that an ocean waterway via the Great Lakes to Port Arthur would lower freight charges on all goods shipped east and west. It would cost the farmers of the West less to get their grain to the great markets of the world and it would cost the manufacturers of Eastern Canada less to ship their goods to the West. The farmers of Western Canada would therefore receive more for the products they sell and pay less for the goods they have to buy. The Ontario farmer would also benefit in the same way, although probably not to the same extent. It is from electric railways that the people of Ontario, and particularly the farmers, would stand to derive the greatest benefit. Because of the fact that electric cars can stop almost anywhere to pick up freight and passengers, the electric railway is specially suited to cheapen and facilitate transportation. A network of electric railways would greatly lessen the necessity of long and expensive wagon hauls. They would also make it possible to market perishable products in less time. Experience has demonstrated that electric railways greatly increase the value of farm lands. In some places farm values have more than doubled because of their introduction. They tend to promote intensive farming, which means that more people will live on the farms and earn their livelihood from the land. The great drawback under which Ontario has been laboring for the last twenty or twenty-five years is the steady exodus from its farms. The last census showed that there were almost 100,000 fewer people on the land in Ontario than ten years before. What this Province needs and must have if it is going to retain the premier position it now occupies is a larger rural population. Electric railways will help to increase the number of people on the farms because they will cheapen transportation, make travelling easier and more pleasant and in that way make farming more profitable and conditions on the farm more satisfactory.

The Hydro-Electric Commission has been vested with extensive powers in the matter of the construction of hydro-electric railways. The Act provides that the Commission may inquire into the feasibility of any line and report thereon with particulars as to the probable cost of construction, maintenance and operation and also the probable revenue. This inquiry will be undertaken if a number of interested municipalities ask for the report. If the report is unfavorable the Commission will bear the expense of the survey, so that the municipality is at no expense unless the proposed line is found feasible. One very important and far-reaching benefit from the construction of electric railways operated by the Hydro-Electric Commission will be the electric power that will be available for use in the districts tapped by these roads. Farmers and others who wish to do so will be able to obtain electric power from the wires along these lines for a distance up to eight miles on each side of the line. The importance of this can scarcely be overestimated. It means that if these electric railways become general throughout Ontario, farmers will be able to have electric lighting, electric washing machines, electric cleaners and electric power for chopping, pumping etc. The demand for a Federal subsidy of $6400 a mile to aid in the construction of these hydro-electric railways is unusual in one respect. The people of Canada are accustomed to the practice of granting railway subsidies. Those who have investigated the matter make the statement that the Dominion Government has granted $218,000,000 to private railway companies and has given away land equal to the whole of the Maritime provinces. To put the matter differently, it is the people of Canada who really built and paid for the railways, but when they were built it was the private companies who owned them and pocketed the profits from their operation. In this case the Government is being asked to subsidize a system of electric roads that will be built by the people and owned and operated by the people after it is built. Instead of assisting to enrich private corporations, the Federal Government will be asked to aid the people of Ontario in an enterprise that is fraught with great possibilities for the welfare of the province. "It is your own money," Hon. Adam Beck told the meeting in London. "You made it. You want to invest it, not squander it. By using it as you propose, you will make Ontario ideal from the standpoint of agriculture, industry and living conditions."

Rural School Fairs in Dufferin County

One of the most important and interesting features of the work of the Dufferin County Branch of the Department of Agriculture has been the Rural School Fairs held in the County during the past two years. The purpose in holding these Fairs is to create a deeper interest in rural life among the pupils in the Rural Schools.

The manner in which this aim is accomplished is to give the child some work to do along these lines and seeds, roots etc., are grown by the child from material supplied by the Department of the best varieties obtainable. The child takes this to his own home and there he grows the crop according to the best plans he can learn for growing his crop. During the summer the plots are visited by an Inspector and prizes given for the best kept plots of the various seeds supplied. In the Fall a Fair is held at a convenient centre where the children exhibit the products from their plots and poultry flocks, and in addition they show collections of weeds, weed seeds and insects, and classes are made for the girls for baking, preserves, sewing, etc. During this year the movement in the County will be extended to hold four Fairs in the coming autumn. These Fairs will be held at Laurel, Horning's Mills, Mono Centre and Marsville, and in these will be included some fifty-four schools with a total number of some seven hundred children. Each of these Fairs will be controlled by a Rural School Fair Association, composed of a Board of officials similar to an Agricultural Society, working under the management of the Representative, thus having a real Fair conducted by the children exactly like the grown-ups. This movement has done much good in the way of introducing new sorts of farm crops into the locality, in training the powers of observation of the children, in showing the possibilities of many crops, and above all, in teaching the child to depend on his own ability. The movement is a very important one and one that should receive the support and encouragement of the people in the localities where the work is being carried on.

Now that rural mail delivery has become general, farmers would do well to make haste in the good work of building wire fences along the highways. This has been an exceptionally favorable winter in the matter of drifted roads and consequently the mail carriers have not experienced any serious difficulty in making their regular rounds. Usually, however, there are periods of the winter when the roads are so badly drifted that it is impossible to keep them open and in many places temporary roadways are made through the fields. Most of the drifting is due to the rail fences, which afford a shelter for the driving snow and cause it to pile up in great banks. Where wire fences are built there is little or no drifting and it becomes a comparatively easy matter to keep the roads open for traffic no matter how stormy the weather may be. Farmers, who have rural delivery, are agreed that it is a great boon. Many of them state that if they had to lose either, they would prefer to do without the rural telephone rather than be deprived of rural mail delivery. If they are to derive the full benefit of the rural delivery system, the roads must be kept open in the winter and this can be best done by the building of wire fences.

CORRUPTION

Whether Social or Political Means Decay and Ultimate Downfall

Rev. G. W. Robinson Speaks on Present Day Dangers and Evils in Canada.

In the Methodist Church on Sunday night the pastor, Rev. G. W. Robinson, addressed a large congregation on the subject, "Corruption, Social and Political," taking as his text Ps. 26:1.

"Judge me O Lord, for I have walked in mine integrity; I have trusted also in the Lord; therefore I shall not slide."

Corruption, the speaker said, brought decay and inevitable downfall. It was of profit to consider the fate of great empires such as Babylon, Greece, and Rome, because of the corrupt practices which led to their downfall. It was the quality rather than the number of people within its borders that made a nation great. So soon as a nation becomes socially and politically corrupt, that nation is in danger of falling, whether it be young or old. The fact that Great Britain had stood the test and retained her proud position for centuries was attributable largely to purity of life and the influence of Christianity. Coming to present day Canada, the speaker instanced the Evanturel case, the Trent Valley canal investigation, the recent disclosures connected with the subsidies to a New Brunswick railway and cases of municipal graft in Toronto and Montreal to show the prevalence of corruption in the general and municipal politics of this country. Mr. Robinson commended the attitude of Leader Rowell on the Evanturel exposure and also spoke in praise of the manly attitude of the Dominion member, McLeod, on the New Brunswick railway steal. When Canadians reached the stage, where they loved righteousness, honesty and purity more than their political party it would mean a great deal to the country. Reference was made to the growing influence in Canadian affairs of the great corporations and their intimate association with many of the members of Parliament, who used their positions to benefit these powerful private concerns. Instead of defending the interests of the people who elect them, there were members who abused their positions and sacrificed the interests they were elected to represent. The speaker discussed the evils of the patronage system and then dealt with a number of social evils and dangers of the present age. His conclusion was that it was the people themselves who set the political and social standards of the country. If society demands a certain standard of life and conduct, no person can maintain his place and flagrantly disregard that standard. Parents should take a firm stand themselves and train their boys and girls so that when they go out into the world they will live honest, straightforward and pure lives. It was a treat to find men who would not slide. These were the kind of citizens who were needed to raise the level of social and political life. Blessed is the man who will stand unalterably for right and purity in the home, in society and in our public life.

A Good Medicine For Little Ones

Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent remedy for little ones. They are a gentle laxative which sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, banish constipation, worms, colds and simple fevers, and make the child happy, healthy and strong. Concerning them Mrs. Pierre Tousignant, Ste. Sophie de Levrard, Que., writes: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets an excellent remedy for my little ones and would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

—St. Andrew's Young People held a Burns' meeting on Monday night. Views illustrating The Cotter's Saturday Night, an address by Miss Lillian Macintyre, solos by Ross MacPherson and A. G. MacGregor and a reading by Miss Frarey Dodds made an excellent programme.

TOWN COUNCIL

At its meeting on Monday night the Town Council authorized payment of corporation accounts as follows — S. Street, $6; J. Mallroy, $2.89; J. Matson, $2.04; S. Street, $2.47; Thos. Campbell, $4.09; W. O. Thomas, $2.13; Geo. King, $1.10; Bell Telephone Co., $1.40.

Chas. King was paid $110 for services as architect and work on the new Opera House. The Pine River Light & Power Co's account of $138.53 was passed at $120.41 and another account for $35 from the same company was referred to the Street Lighting Committee for report.

A letter by G. B. Ryan, of Guelph, to Jos. R. Lathwell, re an electric railway from Gdelph to Orangeville was laid before the Council. Mr. Ryan was sent an invitation to address a public meeting here at an early date and the Industrial Committee was authorized to take the matter up with the Board of Trade with a view to having representatives of the other municipalities present at the meeting. Mr. Ryan has since intimated that he will be here on Monday evening, March 30th, and a public meeting is being arranged for that date.

After hearing Mrs. W. J. Gordon and Mrs. J. A. Langford, the Council decided to grant the Women's Institute the use of the old Council Chamber for five weeks for the sum of $5.

The F. & W. Committee was instructed to report on Engineer Chas. King's application for $100 increase of salary.

The Mayor, Reeve and Town Solicitor were authorized to appear before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature in connection with the bill to confirm the Dods by-law. The matter was considered by the Committee yesterday.

The Orangeville Choral Union was rebated $5 for the use of the Opera House for its concert a couple of weeks ago.

The question of securing power for the electric pump in the fire hall caused a lengthy discussion, which ended without any definite action being taken. Messrs. Huxtable and Deagle, representing the two local electric light and power companies, addressed the Council on the subject.

The Property Committee was instructed to place $4000 additional insurance on the Opera House.

A by-law was put through changing the hours during which the night-watchman will be on duty. Under the new by-law the hours are from 10 p.m. until 7 a.m. from Oct. 15th to April 1st and from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. during the remainder of the year.

The Adamson Hardware Co. was paid $325 on its contract for the heating of the Town Hall building. The balance will be paid when the furnace is made satisfactory to the Property Committee.

4. Cut from the throat along the centre of the belly to base of tail.
5. Take off dewclaws; then split up inside of leg to knee. Cut through the knee joint; then strip back forelegs, taking off the feet. Hind legs should be treated in the same manner.
6. Split from hock to belly on all four legs.
7. Then skin both sides of belly and carefully sever the tail-bone, and start the hide at base of tail and remove by pulling and use of knife, as carefully as possible.
8. Spread hide out flat and cover with salt thoroughly.

This is the method followed in the great slaughter or packing houses of Chicago and also in all the leading slaughter houses east, west and south of Chicago. The value and popularity of hides that are taken off in this way is not only due to the excellent manner of flaying, but to the absence of cuts and jagged, useless pieces that are usually found on country hides.

CAMILLA.

(Intended for last week.)

The Literary Meeting on Saturday night was, as usual, well attended. There were two debates—juvenile and senior. The juvenile debate was, "Resolved that History is more interesting than Geography." The affirmative was taken by Frank Turner and Norman Parks, while Angeline Patterson and Lillian Mayfield had the negative. The judges, Mr. Jos. Marshall, Miss Muriel Howard and Stanley Martin, decided in favor of the negative. The senior debate was interesting. The affirmative of the subject, "Resolved that it would be to the best interests of Canada to prohibit Foreign Immigration," was well taken by Mr. Fred Thompson and Mr Will Parks, while the negative was skilfully handled by Mr. Ralph Brenner and Mr. John Spence. The judges were Miss Mary Aldoorn, Messrs. Jos. Marshall and Norman Mayfield, who, after a lengthy discussion, came to the conclusion that the negative had the better of the argument. Other numbers on the programme were speeches by Reeve Marshall and Mr. Will Rintoul. Mrs. Alex. Lundy and Miss Corona Lundy gave recitations. There were also several readings. There will be a debate on Saturday night under the leadership of Mrs. Lundy and Mr. Stanley Martin.

Our last week's reporter was slightly twisted when he used the term popular. He only forgot the prefix "un."

Mr. Wm. McKim, who has been seriously ill for the last couple of weeks, was taken to the Toronto General Hospital on Saturday.

Mrs. A. Brenner, who has been in Passaic N.J. for the last month, returned home on Tuesday.

Mrs. A. E. Fowler and family left on Monday for a visit her parents in Plainfield, N.J.

Miss Ella Campbell has returned home after spending a week at Camilla.

CHELTON.

The social given by the Swastika Lacrosse Club on Mar. 5th was a complete success. The programme was a mixed one, the invited guests having a contest for the ladies, the making of a button-hole—and the ladies a contest for their escorts in the matching of a piece of cotton cloth, a "three cornered patch." The ladies' contest was won by Mrs. [illegible] who received a handsome [illegible]. The gentleman's contest was won by Mr. [illegible] Other contest was Dr. Thomas [illegible] received a fine pair of gloves [illegible] given by Messrs. Harrison and Lindsay and instrumental [illegible] Misses Vogan and Stubbs. A dinner, toasts were proposed and heartily honored to Our King, Our Country, Our Town, Our Club, and Our Escorts. The Club is to be congratulated upon the success of its efforts in the art of Embroidery.

The Swastika Club hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Miss Rutledge on Thursday, March 12th. All report a pleasant and profitable evening.

The Old Dramatic Club gave their new Play, the "White Oak Tavern" in the Town Hall on March 13th, under the auspices of Warnock Orange Lodge. It was announced the very best Play that has appeared here in years.

MONO MILLS.

The second appearance of the Amateur Dramatic Club in their play, "The Country Squire," on Tuesday evening of last week drew another crowded house. Long before the curtain went up all the available seating room was packed and a large number were standing. The presentation of the play was even better than the previous one here. Each of the young people taking part in it showed improvement gained no doubt by their experience during the winter and certainly should be congratulated on their successful efforts to provide a good entertainment. St. Mark's Orchestra, of Orangeville, including nine pieces under the leadership of Mr. E. H. Smith, rendered excellent music. Mr. H. A. Dorrance, representative for Dufferin for the Dept. of Agriculture, was present, and gave a pleasing address. Rev. J. A. Black occupied the chair.

The members of the Mono Mills Branch of the Women's Institute held their March meeting at the beautiful new residence of Mrs. Gavin Lemon, 5th line, Caledon. The ladies of the Institute entertained the members of Blount Institute and a large number of other guests in an open meeting followed by a social evening. The principal feature of the programme was a debate on the subject, "Resolved that the women of fifty years ago worked harder than the women of to-day." The debate was limited to women engaged in farm life under local conditions. Mrs. Black and Mrs. Wilson Duke on the affirmative paid a worthy tribute to the women of fifty years ago, emphasizing the self sacrifice and hardships endured in the settling of the country and in establishing the first homes, thus building up the splendid inheritance which they have passed on down to the following generations to be enjoyed by the women of to-day. Miss Edna Atkinson and Mrs. Lemon took up the negative side and were awarded the decision on points by a narrow margin. Messrs. W. J. Mills, John Crozier and John A. Vance acted as judges. The program also included a paper on "Our Canadian Birds," by Mrs. D. N. Potter; solos by Mr. Forster, of Oakville, duets by Mrs. McManus and Miss Helen McManus, duets by Mesdames Black and Duke, a recitation by Miss Ella Taylor, violin solos by Miss Laura Henry and a dialogue by two young men. Refreshments were served and an altogether pleasant evening was spent.

Mr. Forster, of Oakville, spent a few days the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Wilson Duke, last week.

Messrs. Wilson Duke, W. A. Dowling and W. J. Jackson are making preparations to build silos this summer.

Mr. Geo. Adair is removing to his new home at Lucille this week.

Mr. James McCutcheon has commenced his duties on the new mail route to Hockley via the townline.

LAUREL.

Our rink could not countenance the weather man, pointing at number 40 on the thermometer scale and so became soluble.

Rev. J. R. Bell attended the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge in Guelph last week. We are pleased to see his name on the officers' list for the ensuing year.

Misses Gertrude and Mida Hamilton are visiting in Corbetton.

The W.H.M.S. held a very successful meeting at the home of Mrs. Olive Jelly last week. Four sewing machines and many hands were kept busy all afternoon making garments for the missions.

Our Irish citizens all wished us the "Top o' the mornin'" last Tuesday and we all wore a sprig of Shamrock.

Bumble Bee is indolent,
Queen Bee has sought repose,
Nothing left for Busy Bee
But mischief I suppose.

Since Queen Bee penned her essay,
We have scarcely been alive,
For Father Bumble Bee used the cane
Keeping order in the hive.

But now we're convalescent,
You may find us by the score,
All sitting on the counter,
In Laurel's general store.

Our minds are busy ever
Planning mischief "by the yard,"
And should a joker enter,
We hit him rather hard.

You've read about the city slides,
But they never can compare,
With the many exhilarating rides
In bread box down a stair.

Short is our first attempt you see,
In the Literary sphere,
We hope a poem from Bumble Bee
In the next edition, will appear.

Amaranth Farm Deals

Councillor Geo. W. Hepton, of Amaranth, is a land dealer alright. A few days ago he sold his 200 acre farm, the w½ lot 19 con. 4, and the e½ lot 19, con. 5, to John Hammond for $10,000 and took a quarter section in the West as part payment. He then bought the Samuel Ewing farm of 100 acres, part of lot 12, con. 6, Amaranth, and almost immediately afterwards traded this place to Thos. Whaley for part of lot 13, con. 6. The latter property he has since sold to Geo. Johnston for $3700. Having disposed of this farm Mr. Hepton is now arranging to hold a stock sale on Monday March 23rd.

—Mr. John J. Smith, of Relessey, fell off a strawstack one day a short time ago and had the misfortune to break his collar bone. Dr. Blair, of Rosemont, set the fractured bone. Mr. Smith is doing as well as can be expected.

Drama in Alton

Alton Epworth Leaguers have made arrangements with the Caledon Dramatic Club to present the Play, "The Old New Hampshire Home," in the Alton Methodist Church on Friday evening, March 27th. All seats will be reserved. Admission 25c.

It will pay you to go to Ritchie's for Your Millinery.

MELANCTHON.

Our inhabitants are now becoming tired of the cold, dreary winter with its volume of snow, and are longing for the warm, inviting rays of sunshine to usher in welcome spring.

Mr. James Watson is visiting at West Toronto.

George Merkley jr., has gone to the Canadian West for the summer.

Messrs. Albert Sawden and Alex. Porterfield, of Caledon, visited Mr. and Mrs. James Sawden, here, recently.

Township Clerk T. R. Slack had a trip to the county town the other day.

Mr. John Bates and family have moved from the Gravel Road to the farm over in the McCue settlement, which they purchased from Mr. James Watson last year. Messrs. Carson & Sons have moved to the farm vacated by Mr. Bates, having purchased it from Mr. John F. Breen recently.

Henry Stoddart and Adam McKibbon have each had a successful auction sale, and will move to Shelburne, having rented their farm.

Our general merchant, Mr. Chas. O'Neill, had a business trip to Toronto recently.

We notice considerable wood is being piled in the C.P.R. station yard ready for the spring market.

Our obliging and efficient mail carrier, W. J. Campbell, on the north east route, says he encountered some hardships in the storms and snowdrifts a few weeks ago, but he is now able to make the trip alright and arrive home in good time in the evening. Billy is the right man for the job.

Boy Scouts

Rev. G. W. Tebbs has received an invitation to meet H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught in Toronto on Thursday. The Governor General is Chief Scout for Canada.

The following have passed their Tenderfoot Tests and have been sworn in since the last report:—A. McPherson, O. Robinson.

The third Patrol has been formed, and has selected as its name "The Otter." Allan Preston is Patrol Leader with the following Scouts, Bert Mackay, H. Firth, F. Wilcox, A. McPherson, O. D. Hayes, R. Corbett, T. McKeown.

At the meeting on Friday night "Signs and Signals will be explained and the Indian plan of lighting fires without matches demonstrated. Boys please bring notepaper and pencils.

The "Wolf Cubs" will organize their Patrol next week.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR YOUR HOUSE

A TREE often lives several hundred years. Nature has protected the wood by covering it with bark to shield it from the elements.

When trees are sawed into lumber, Nature's protection is lost. Therefore, the wood used in your house must be paint protected to insure it against wear and weather.

"100% Pure" Paint is a good life insurance policy on your house. It protects against decay—pays for itself, over and over again, in the repairs it saves—adds value and beauty to the building as well as long life to the wood.

Martin-Senour "100% Pure" Paint is what we recommend for all outside and inside painting. "100% Pure" is genuine White Lead, Oxide of Zinc, purest Colors, and Linseed Oil — ground to extreme fineness by powerful machinery—the combination of which produces a paint that is greatest in hiding, covering and wearing qualities—and makes it the cheapest to use as well as the most satisfactory.

Let us help you in selecting colors for your spring painting.

FORESTALL SORE SHOULDERS.

Spring work will soon be here with the accompanying sore necks and sore shoulders. This is customary where heavy work is done, but much of it may be forestalled by a little thought, a little care and a little preparation in early spring. The young horse may go into the collar for the first time or the old horse may go back into the old collar which has been used for several years. The stuffing may be worked out of place and the face flattened out, and in both these instances sore shoulders are likely to result. Now is the time to begin to prepare the horses' shoulders for a good long siege in the spring. If a new collar is necessary, get it now, so it will become shaped to the horse's shoulder. A new one should fit snugly against the shoulder, not on the shoulder point. It should fit about as snug as it can be without hindering the breathing, and a good hard leather collar will prevent a good many nasty sores.

The horses which are most troubled are soft in nature and some are predisposed to this form of trouble, but much of it may be attributed to the lack of intelligence on the part of the driver. Procure the collar now that the horse is likely to work in during the spring.. Have it fitted to the neck by doing some work in it every day and have the flesh on the shoulder become hardened, for it must first lose its original sensitive character and become hardened like a man's hand before it will stand the hard work. After the collar is taken off massage the shoulder in order to restore the circulation which has been prevented by a prolonged pressure on those parts. The hame-straps should be fastened tight on top, so the collar cannot be continually slipping down. When the horses stop let the collar in order to let the air circulate underneath. If these few precautions do not prevent sores, have a solution of one ounce each of acetate of lead and sulphate of zinc in a quart of water ready and rub the shoulders with it daily. Every time before putting on the collar apply a little oxide of zinc ointment. Have the collar in the sun for a time in order that it may thoroughly dry out, then rub and clean it before putting it back on the horse. A few little exercises of this kind may forestall many troubles in the spring.

Concrete Adopted as Road Standard

WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, WHERE nearly one hundred miles of Concrete Roads have been built in the past six years, during which time nearly every method of road construction has been tested, now comes out flat-footed and adopts concrete as the road standard.

The story is best told in the following paragraph which has been taken from the latest report of the Board of County Road Commissioners of Wayne County, Michigan.

"With the completion of Plymouth Road, we have abandoned every other form of construction and have adopted concrete as our standard. We feel that our experience of the past six years warrants us in arriving at this determination, based on its general satisfactoriness and its annual cost as compared with other forms of construction. In addition to the economy in hauling, the pleasure in driving and touring, and the increase in land valuation, the concrete roads of Wayne County have been the means of bringing tens of thousands of dollars to this locality".

Concrete roads will benefit any locality proportionately as they have benefited Wayne County, Michigan.

The fullest detailed information about concrete roads will be sent to anyone interested, without cost or obligation. Address:

HEALTHY HAIR--NO MORE DANDRUFF

It's entirely needless to have unsightly, matted, thin or faded hair. A little care is all that is needed to make it thick, soft, pretty, perfectly healthy and free from dandruff.

Use Parisian Sage—it supplies hair needs and is absolutely harmless. It quickly stops itching head and falling hair, and is one of the best tonics to invigorate the scalp and make the hair grow long and beautiful.

Get a bottle of Parisian Sage today from F. S. Pickering or at any drug counter. It costs but 50 cents. Rub it into the scalp—all dandruff disappears—your head feels fine—the hair is pretty and perfectly healthy.

RURAL DELIVERY.

Six Hundred New Routes Established During Past Year.

Government Annuities Apparently Not Well Known.

Steady growth in the post-office business of Canada is indicated by the annual report of the department. There has been an increase of 319 post-offices during the year, while the estimated number of letters and post cards sent during the fiscal year is estimated at 73,252,000, or nearly 12 per cent. more than in 1912. The expenditure during 1912-13 was $1,-710,769 larger than the preceding year, but the surplus amounted to $1,177,671. Rural mail delivery increased in extent and volume more rapidly during 1912-13 than in any previous year. Six hundred new routes were established with a total of 22,250 boxes.

During the first seven months of the present fiscal year there were added still another 600 routes, with a total of 23,000 boxes. All Eastern Canada is now clamoring for rural delivery and it is stated that at no distant date these demands will be all met.

During the year the Government annuities branch was transferred to the Post-office Department, and on March 31, 1913, there had been a total of 3,084 annuities issued, for which there has been received $1,686,-659.

During the last fiscal year, a total of 3,768,525 letters was received at the Dead Letter Office. Of these, 5,934 contained money to a value of $33,529.55, while 7,118 contained cheques to a value of $1,226,019.

There was the usual variety of odd and curious articles contained in the dead letters, ranging all the way from accordians to wigs and yarn.

NEW ZEALAND'S PROGRESS IN DAIRYING.

The New Zealand Dairyman, the largest dairy journal published there, recently made the reference to what Canadians thought of the rapid increase in cheese making in that country. The reason Canadians doubt the figures given in this increase, they give as the fact that we in this country must stable our cattle, at least, six months out of the twelve. The increase in cheese production in New Zealand has been astounding. The output, according to the journal named, has increased by 770 per cent. in the last seven years, and no man seems able to foretell how much this may increase during the next seven. In New Zealand the soil is very fertile and the cattle remain outside the year round, but they do not give these two reasons as being the only ones affecting cheese production. Dairymen in that country have for years foreseen the inroads which the margarine trade was likely to make on the butter demand, and during the last few years, and at the present time, factories proposed have been nearly all cheese factories, and very few butter factories.

Dairymen in that country look for a wider market, and a greater increase in the demand for cheese than for butter. Right here we might mention that this is another good indication of what would happen in this country if Oleo and butterine were permitted to enter here or manufacturing concerns get the right to put this product on the market. For the safety of our butter industry this imitation product should never be allowed in this country.

Judging from the figures on the increase and the rapid strides cheese production is making in New Zealand and also from conditions in this country where the cheese factory is being gradually driven out of business, it would seem that our dairymen must turn their attention strongly to butter. Of course, a good deal of cheese will still be made, and perhaps in a few years when people have been educated to eat more cheese, there will be a greater demand, as the New Zealand producers believe. But for the present the butter business seems to be gaining favor, seeing that it leaves the dairyman skim milk for his calves or hogs which he is beginning to see is a very important consideration in the general welfare of his farm.

If firms in this country depend more largely than heretofore upon the butter end of the business, it is doubly necessary that all imitation products be excluded. Competition in dairy products is already keen, and from the fact that such countries as New Zealand and Australia are rapidly developing their dairy industries and the climatic conditions in those countries make it possible to turn out a cheaper product at a profit, it is readily seen that our dairymen and heads of dairy industries in this country must be wide awake, doing their best to keep the Canadian dairy industry one of the leading industries of this country, and second to that of no other country.

Bowels Out of Order? We Guarantee Relief.

You know us—and, when we guarantee Rexall Orderlies to satisfy you or your money back, you know it is because we have faith in them. We want you to come to us and get a package of them. Use a few or the entire box. Then, if not entirely satisfied, come back and we will give back your money. You promise nothing, sign nothing. We accept your mere word.

We believe Rexall Orderlies are the best bowel remedy made. They taste like candy. Soothing and easy in action, they do not cause griping, nausea, purging or excessive looseness, as harsh physics do. Rexall Orderlies tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and promptly relieve constipation, helping to overcome its cause, and at the same time removing the chief cause of sick headaches, biliousness, bad breath, nervousness and other ills caused by inactive bowels. In vest pocket tin boxes: 10c, 25c, 50c.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores, and in this town only of us. T. F. & T. J. Brown, Orangeville Ont.

BLIND IN BRITAIN.

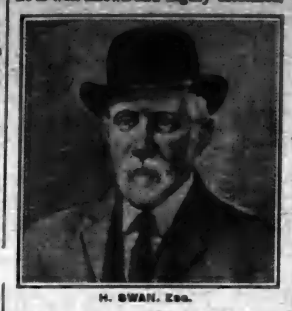
Government to Appoint a Committee to Consider Their Welfare.

Those Who Are Capable Will be Helped to Support Themselves.

The announcement was made in the House of Commons recently that it was the intention of the Government to appoint an inter-departmental committee to consider the welfare of the blind, of whom there are 34,000 in the British Isles. A sympathetic discussion ensued on the motion, Mr. Wardle, a Labor member, calling attention to the inadequacy of voluntary effort and suggesting that the State make provision whereby those who are capable be helped to support themselves, the incapable being maintained in a humane manner.

The pathetic plea of Mr. Wardle showed that there were 5000 in workhouses, 5000 in receipt of parish relief and 700 begging, while the workers were sweated. The only objection was raised by Sir John Rees, on the ground that the effect of the motion would be an incalculable expenditure on the already burdened ratepayers.

Mr. Lewis intimated that a forthcoming announcement of the Board of Education would be a scheme for the blind, and the Government recommended that general action by an enquiry committee was first desirable.



The new premises of the National Institution for the Blind will be opened shortly by the King and Queen.

COULD NOT EAT— FAILING FAST

Captain On Great Lakes Restored To Health By "Fruit-a-tives"

For thirty years, Captain Swan followed the Great Lakes. He has now retired and lives at Port Burwell, where he is well known and highly esteemed.

H. SWAN, Esq.

PORT BURWELL, ONT., May 8th, 1913.

"A man has a poor chance of living and enjoying life when he cannot eat. That was what was wrong with me. Loss of appetite and indigestion was brought on by Constipation. I have had trouble with these diseases for years. I lost a great deal of flesh and suffered constantly. For the last couple of years, I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" and have been so pleased with the results that I have recommended them on many occasions to friends and acquaintances. I am sure that "Fruit-a-tives" have helped me greatly. By following the diet rules and taking "Fruit-a-tives" according to directions, any person with dyspepsia will get benefit".

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CO-OPERATIVE BANKS.

The experiment in Saskatchewan in establishing some form of agricultural credit will, no doubt, be watched with interest. It is the only province that has taken the matter up in an extensive way. Quebec made a beginning in 1900, when a public-spirited individual of Levis founded a co-operative bank. At that time there was no law providing for such an institution, and until the passing, in 1906, of the Quebec Syndicate Act, it remained simply a voluntary association, kept together and managed by its founder. This Act was designated to realize the formation of co-operative societies, in the form of production, consumption, and credit associations, the territory within which such an association was empowered to operate being the limits of the provincial electoral district. It is interesting to note, too, that the responsibility of members is limited to the amount of their respective shares, and only people within the electoral area can become members. However, the system has certainly flourished. At the end of 1913, no less than 141 banks of this character had been established in Canada, of which 122 were in Quebec, and 19 in Ontario, with a membership of 65,700. The movement has also spread to the United States, and there are 23 such banks in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, organized by the originator of the movement in Quebec, M. Desjardins. While comparatively small affairs these banks have done a large volume of business. An estimate of the amount of yearly loans made is over $3,560,-000, while the general turn-over now reaches $8,700,000 per annum. Since the inception of the scheme 15,000 loans have been made. Take the original bank, that at Levis, Que. After an existence of thirteen years, it had on Nov. 15th, 1913, a general turnover of $1,830,211, with a total asset of $242,055. During that time, 6,200 loans had been made, totalling $1,197,049, and without a single cent of loss. Up to date none of the other banks have lost anything, a striking proof of their success.—Canadian Farm.

He was immediately rushed to Grace Hospital in a special engine, where he is progressing favorably.

Twice Proven Cure for Nerves

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.

There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down nervous systems. Sleepless nights, much irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms.

You may not realize the nature of your ailment until nervous prostration comes upon you. But, in whatever stage you find yourself, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is ready to help you.

Mrs. W. J. May, 88 Annette street, Toronto, writes: "Some years ago I suffered from nervous trouble, and took Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which completely cured me. About six months ago I received a shock which again shattered my nervous system to such an extent that I was irritable and hysterical, and could not sleep nights. I began to use the Nerve Food again and was not disappointed. Improvement was apparent from the first box, and now I am entirely well."

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Gertie Walker Run Into by Reckless Drivers While Driving Into Markdale.

An occurrence that might have resulted fatally happened on Tuesday evening of last week as a result of which Miss Gertie Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker, of the suburbs, lies in a precarious condition. Miss Walker, accompanied by her cousin, Mr. Frank Dinsmore, was driving to town to attend the skating rink. Ahead of them drove Everett Walker and a Miss McDonald. When near the Barrhead Mills they turned out on the side of the road to allow John Shea to pass, and while they were in this position two single horse cutters driven at a furious rate came down the road from the village and drove between the above mentioned rigs. The shaft of one of the cutters hit the horse driven by Gertie and her cousin, and also struck Gertie, knocking her out of the cutter, tearing part of her clothing into shreds, and carrying her for a distance of twenty or thirty feet. The second horse ran over her also and she was struck on the right temple, rendering her unconscious. The reckless drivers, who were evidently under the influence of liquor, never stopped to see what damage they had done, but drove off at a rapid rate. Gertie was placed in a cutter and driven home, when Dr. Brown was summoned. She remained unconscious for over half an hour. The doctor's examination revealed a couple of broken ribs, collar-bone injured, her back severely bruised and she is suffering considerably from pain and shock. It is certainly a marvel that she escaped being killed outright, and if the reckless drivers are located they should be given stiff punishment. Furious driving has been altogether too common on our streets of late, and prompt action should be taken by the authorities to put a stop to it.—Markdale Standard.

The Canadian Northern Railway contemplate building a line from Port Dover, on Lake Erie, to a Georgian Bay point, probably Owen Sound or Meaford.

Eighteen Englishmen marched to the office of the mayor of Wingham and demanded work or bread. They all refused to take work on the farm. One man said he would accept work if the stables were removed as he objected to the odor of manure. Nearly every applicant has deserted the farm for town life.

DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Bradley's Health—Her Own Statement.

Winnipeg, Canada.—"Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth. The doctors said it was a tumor and could not be removed as it would cause instant death. They found that my organs were affected, and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in.

"After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper, and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. ORILLIA BRADLEY, 338 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Can.

Why will women take chances or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, suffering three-fourths of the joy of living when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Chapter I.—continued.

"May I ask," he said, "if you have quarreled with your sister?"

She shook her head.

"No," she answered. "I have not quarreled with her. It is simply our point of view which is altogether different. I want to get away—to go to London. I cannot explain beyond that."

"Then I am sure," Sir John declared, "that I shall not ask you. I know nothing about the matter, but I feel convinced that you are right. You ought to have had better advice two years ago. Paris is not the place for two young girls. I presume that you have been living alone."

She sighed gently.

"My sister," she murmured, "is so independent. She is Bohemian to the finger-tips. She makes me feel terribly old-fashioned."

Sir John smiled and congratulated himself upon his insight. He was seldom wrong.

"The next question, Miss Anna," he said, "is how am I to help you? I am wholly at your disposal."

She looked up at him quickly. Her expression was a little changed, less innocent, more discerning.

"Anna!" she repeated. "How do you know—why do you think that my name is Anna?" He smiled in a quietly superior way.

"I think," he said, "that I am right. I am very good at guessing names."

"I am really curious," she persisted. "You must have heard—have you—oh, tell me, won't you?" she begged. "Have you heard things?"

The tears stood in her eyes. She leaned a little towards him. Nothing but the publicity of the place and the recollection of that terrible constituency kept him from attempting some perfectly respectful but unmistakable evidence of his sympathy.

"I am afraid," he said gravely, "that your sister has been a little indiscreet. It is nothing at all for you to worry about."

She looked away from him.

"I knew," she said, in a low despairing tone, "that people would talk."

He coughed gently.

"It was inevitable," he declared. "It is not, of course, a pleasant subject of conversation for you or for me, yet I think I may venture to suggest to you that your sister's—er—indiscretions—have reached a point which makes a separation between you almost a necessity."

She covered her face with her hands.

"It—it—must come," she faltered.

"I do not lay claim," he continued, "to any remarkable amount of insight, but it is possible, is it not, that I have stumbled upon your present cause of distress."

"You are wonderful!" she murmured.

He smiled complacently.

"Not at all. This is simply a chapter of coincidences. Now what I want you to feel is this. I want you to feel that you have found a friend who has a strong desire to be of service to you. Treat me as an elder brother, if you like. He is here by your side. How can he help you?"

She threw such a look upon him that even he, Sir John Ferringhall, carpet-merchant, hide-bound Englishman, slow-witted, pompous, deliberate, felt his heart beat to music. Perhaps the Parisian atmosphere had affected him. He leaned towards her, laid his hand tenderly upon hers. For the first time since he had sat in that chair he utterly and entirely forgot that he was a new-fledged county magistrate and parliamentary candidate for the borough of Tunbridge Wells.

"I hope you realize," he went on, in a lower and less assured tone, "that I am in earnest—very much in earnest. You must let me do whatever I can for you. I shall count it a privilege."

"I believe you," she murmured. "I trust you altogether. I am going to take you entirely at your word. I want to leave Paris to-day. Will you lend me the money for my ticket to London?"

"With all the pleasure in the world," he answered heartily. "Let me add too that I am thankful for your decision. You have somewhere to go to in London, I hope."

She nodded.

"There is my aunt," she said, "The one who used to live at Lyndmore. She will take me in until I can make some plans. It will be horribly dull, and she is a very trying person. But anything is better than this."

He took out his watch.

"Let me see," he said. "Your best route will be via Boulogne and Folkestone at nine o'clock from the Gare du Nord. What about your luggage?"

"I could get a few of my things, at any rate," she said. "My sister is sure to be out."

"Very well," he said. "It is just six o'clock now. Supposing you fetch what you can, and if you will allow me, I will see you off. It would give me great pleasure if you would dine with me somewhere first."

She looked at him wistfully, but with some unwilling doubt in her wrinkled forehead. It was excellently done, especially as she loved good dinners.

"You are very kind to think of it," she said, "but—don't you think perhaps—that I had better not?"

He smiled indulgently.

"My dear child," he said, "with me you need have no apprehension. I am almost old enough to be your father."

She looked at him with uplifted eyebrows—a look of whimsical incredulity. Sir John felt that after all forty-five was not so very old.

"That sounds quite absurd," she answered. "Yet it is my last evening, and I think—if you are sure that you would like to have me—that I will risk it."

"We will go to a very quiet place," he assured her, "a place where I have often taken my own sisters. You will be wearing your travelling dress, and no doubt you would prefer it. Shall we say at half-past seven?"

She rose from her carriage.

"I will take a carriage," she said, "and fetch my things."

"Let us say the Cafe' Maston, in the Boulevard des Italiennes, at half-past seven then," he decided. "I shall be waiting for you there, and in the meantime, if you will help yourself—pray don't look like that. It is a very small affair, after all, and you can pay me back if you will."

She took the pocket book and looked up at him with a little impulsive movement. Her voice shook, her eyes were very soft and melting.

"I cannot thank you, Sir John," she said. "I shall never be able to thank you."

"Won't you postpone the attempt, then?" he said gallantly. "until I have done something to deserve your gratitude? You will not forget—seven-thirty, Cafe Maston, Boulevard des Italiennes."

She drove off in a little fiacre, nodding and smiling at Sir John, who remained upon the Avenue. He too, when she had disappeared, called a carriage.

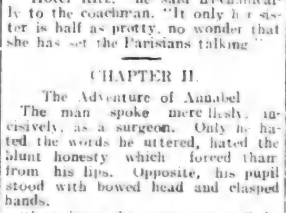
"Hotel Ritz," he said mechanically to the coachman. "It only her sister is half as pretty, no wonder that she has set the Parisians talking."

CHAPTER II.

The Adventure of Annabel

The man spoke mere flesh, incisively, as a surgeon. Only he hated the words he uttered, hated the blunt honesty which forced them from his lips. Opposite, his pupil stood with bowed head and clasped hands.

"You have the temperament," he said. "You have the ideas. Your first treatment of a subject is always correct, always suggestive. But of what avail is this? You have no execution, no finish. You lack only the mechanical knack of expression which is the least important part of an artist's equipment, but which remains a tedious and absolute necessity. We have both tried hard to develop it—you and I—and we have failed. It is better to face the truth."



"Much better," she agreed. "Oh, much better."

"Personally," he went on, "I must confess to a great disappointment. I loosed upon you from the very first as the most promising of my pupils. I overlooked the mechanical imperfections of your work, the utter lack of finish, the crudeness of your drawing. I said to myself, 'this will come.' But it seems that I was mistaken. You cannot draw. Your fingers are even now as stiff as a school girl's. You will never be able to draw. You have the ideas. You are an artist by the Divine right of birth, but whatever form of expression may come to you at some future time it will not be painting. Take my advice. Burn your palette and your easel. Give up your lonely hours of work here. Look somewhere else in life. Depend upon it, there is a place for you—waiting. Here you only waste your time."

She was silent, and in the gloom of the dimly lit apartment he could not see her face. He drew a little breath of relief. The worst was over now. He continued tenderly, almost affectionately.

"After all, there are great things left in the world for you. Painting is only one slender branch of the great tree. To-night all this may seem hard and cruel. To-morrow you will feel like a freed woman. To-morrow I shall come and talk to you again—of other things.

NO ALUM

A man of infinite tact and kindness, he spoke his message and went. The girl, with a little moan, crossed the room and threw open the window.

She looked steadfastly out. Paris, always beautiful, even in the darkness, glittered away to the horizon. The lights of the Champs Elysees and Place de la Concorde, suggestive, brilliant, seductive, shone like an army of fireflies against the deep cold background of the night. She stood there with white set face and nervously clenched fingers. The echo of those kindly words seemed still to ring in her ears. She was crushed with a sense of her own terrible impotency. A failure! She must write herself down a failure! At her age, with her ambitions, with her artistic temperament and creative instincts, she was yet to be denied all coherent means of expression. She was to fall back amongst the ruck, a young woman of talent, content perhaps to earn a scanty living by painting Christmas cards, or teaching at a kindergarten. Her fingernails dug into her flesh. It was the bitterest moment of her life. She flung herself back into the little bare room, cold, empty, comfortless. In a momentary fury she seized and tore in pieces the study which remained upon the easel. The pieces fell to the ground in a little white shower. It was the end, she told herself, fiercely. And then, as she stood there, with the fragments of the torn canvass at her feet, some one caught upon her skirt, the door was thrown open, and a girl entered humming a light tune.

The newcomer stopped short upon the threshold.

"Anna! What tragedy has happened, little sister? No lights, no supper, no coffee—and, above all, no Mr. Courtlaw. How dreary it all looks. Never mind. Come and help me pack. I'm off to England."

"Annabel, are you mad? To England! You are joking, of course. But come in, dear. I will light the stove, and there shall be some coffee presently."

"Coffee! Bah!"

The newcomer picked her way across the floor with daintily uplifted skirts, and subsided into a deck chair of stretched canvas.

"I will not rob you of your coffee, most dutiful of sisters!" she exclaimed. "I have had adventures—oh, more than one, I can assure you. It has been a marvellous day—and I am going to England."

Anna looked at her sister gravely. Even in her painting smock and with her disarranged hair, the likeness between the two girls was marvellous.

"The adventures I do not doubt, Annabel," she said. "They seem to come to you as naturally as disappointment—to other people. But to England! What has happened, then?"

Already the terror of a few hours ago seemed to have passed away from the girl who leaned back so lazily in her chair, watching the tip of her patent shoe swing backwards and forwards. She could even think of what happened. Very soon she would be able to forget it.

"Happened! Oh many things," she declared indolently. "The most important is that I have a new admirer."

The wonderful likeness between the two girls was never less noticeable than at that moment. Anna stood looking down upon her sister with grave perturbed face. Annabel lounged in her chair with a sort of insolent abandon in her pose, and wide-open eyes which never flinched or drooped. One realized indeed then where the differences lay; the tender curves about Anna's mouth transformed into hard sharp lines in Annabel's, the eyes of one, truthful and frank, the other's more beautiful but with less expression—windows lit with dazzling light, but through which one saw—nothing.

"A new admirer, Annabel? But what has that to do with your going to England?"

"Everything! He is Sir John Ferringhall—very stupid, very respectable, very egoististical. But, after all, what does that matter? He is very much taken with me. He tries hard to conceal it, but he cannot."

"Then why," Anna asked quietly, "do you run away? It is not like you."

Annabel laughed softly.

"How unkind!" she exclaimed. "Still, since it is better to tell you, Sir John is very much in earnest, but his respectability is something altogether too overpowering. Of course I knew all about him years ago, and he is exactly like everybody's description of him. I am afraid, Anna, just a little afraid, that in Paris I and my friends here might seem a trifle advanced. Besides, he might bear things. That is why I called myself Anna."

"You—you did what?" Anna exclaimed.

"Called myself Anna," the girl repeated coolly. "It can't make any difference to you, and there are not half a dozen people in Paris who could tell us apart."

Anna tried to look angry, but her mouth betrayed her. Instead, she laughed, laughed with lips and eyes, laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks.

"You little wretch!" she exclaimed weakly. "Why should I bear the burden of your wickedness? Who knows what might come of it? I shall permit nothing of the sort."... Annabel shrugged her shoulders.

"Too late, my dear girl," she exclaimed. "I gave your name. I called myself Anna. After all, what can it matter? It was just to make sure. Three little letters can't make a bit of difference."

"But it may matter very much indeed," Anna declared. "Perhaps for myself I do not mind, but this man is sure to find out some day, and he will not like having been deceived. Tell him the truth, Annabel."

"The truth!"

There was a brief but intense silence. Anna felt that her words had become charged with a fuller and more subtle meaning than any which she had intended to impart. "The truth!" It was a moment of awkwardness between the two sisters—a moment, too, charged with its own psychological interest, for there were secrets between them which for many months had made their intercourse a constrained and difficult thing. It was Annabel who spoke.

"How crude you are, Anna!" she exclaimed with a little sigh. "Sir John is not at all that sort. He is the kind of man who would much prefer a little dust in his eyes. But heavens, I must pack!"

She sprang to her feet and disappeared in the room beyond, from which she emerged a few minutes later with flushed cheeks and dishevelled hair.

"It is positively no use, Anna," she declared, appealingly. "You must pack for me. I am sorry, but you have spoilt me. I can't do it even decently myself, and I dare not run the risk of ruining all my clothes. Listen! What's that?"

There was a sharp tap at the door. The words seemed to die away on Annabel's lips. The old look of terror for a moment convulsed her face. Anna, seeing it, caught her by the arm.

"Annabel, what is the matter?"

They were face to face in the middle of the room, Anna on her way to open the door. But her sister interposed.

"Don't answer it, Anna! Come!"

The gesture was one of entreaty. Anna found herself perforce obeying it. The two girls stole away into the inner room. Annabel softly locked the door, but remained kneeling at the keyhole. They were scarcely concealed before the outer door opened, and the shrill voice of Marie, the eldest daughter of the concierge, commenced a torrent of expostulations.

"But you see! It is as I told you, monsieur. The room is empty. The young mademoiselle has been here and gone. She packed her boxes in one-half hour and departed for England. It was a loss, but what matters? Such rooms let easily—monsieur can see for himself the beautiful light, the view too."

A man's voice interposed—coarse and strident, the voice of an Englishman speaking the most abominable French.

"I wonder whether you are telling the truth, girl!"

Marie was justly indignant. Her shrill voice grew shriller.

"But what does monsieur suppose? Is it for such insults that I have climbed all these stairs and admitted monsieur here? Well, it is over. Monsieur will be so good as to descend at once."

The unseen man pointed apparently to the door, behind which the girl was cowering.

"There's another room there! How do I know that she isn't hiding? If what I guess is true, she'll be none too anxious to be dropped upon just yet."

FAREWELL PARTY

Their Friends Make Presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henderson, North Erin.

On Wednesday, March 11th, about 150 of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henderson, North Erin, gathered at their home for the purpose of making them a farewell presentation prior to their departure for Alberta. Mr. Wm. Walwin, who was selected to act as Chairman, explained the purpose of the gathering and then called upon Mr. Dougal Reid, who read the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. Henderson and Family.

Dear Friends and Neighbors:

It is with deep regret that we have learned of your intention to remove from our neighborhood. For many years you have been valued and highly esteemed residents in our community and your removal from amongst us will leave a void that cannot well be filled. During your sojourn amongst us you have earned by your kind and obliging manner and your ever ready willingness to oblige your friends the lasting gratitude of us all and we cannot let you depart without at least showing you in a small way the high regard in which you and your family are held by us. We, therefore, beg of you to accept these slight tokens of our esteem. you, Mr. Henderson, this secretary and chain, Mrs. Henderson this dinner set, Harold this chain, William jr. this chain, Ivan this watch and chain, Miss Hazel this sunburst and Master Joseph this purse of gold. We trust that your lives may be long spared to enjoy the blessings of health and prosperity, no matter where your lot may be cast, and we assure you that all of you will ever have the good wishes of your old friends for your future happiness.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors and friends.

Mr. Angus Conley and Mr. Jos. R. Carroll made the presentations to Mr. Henderson and Mrs. Jas. Hilliard and Mrs. Dougal Reid the presentation to Mrs. Henderson. The presentations to the members of the family were made by Geo. Walwin, Wm. Harkies, Lily and Gordon Carroll. Mr. Henderson spoke briefly and feelingly in acknowledgment of the thanks of the family. Short speeches were afterwards made by a number of his neighbors, who expressed their appreciation of the qualities of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson as neighbors and their regret at their removal from the neighborhood. The remainder of the night was spent very pleasantly in dancing and other amusements, splendid music being furnished by the Dyer Bros. orchestra. Mr. John Cannawin, of Orangeville, officiated as floor manager. Refreshments were served about midnight and the festive gathering was brought to a close well along in the wee hours of the morning. As neighbors Mr. Henderson and family stood high in the esteem of the community and their loss will be keenly felt by the people of North Erin. They left on Tuesday for their future home at Taber, Alta., where Mr. Henderson has secured a section of land.

Ritchie wants to show you their range of Suits and Coats for spring.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Wm. Rutledge recently lost a valuable cow through what was at first thought to be indigestion, but which Dr. R. Stubbs diagnosed to be some hard sharp pointed substance like a nail, perforating the lining of the stomach and coming in contact with the heart. After suffering for about two weeks, the animal was slain, and an examination proved that the Dr. was right in his diagnosis of the case. It was found that the head of the nail, not the point had pierced the lining of the stomach and come in contact with the heart. Considerable difficulty was experienced in pulling the nail out as the lining seemed to have grown tight around it. This was certainly a clever diagnosis of the young "vet," who is the only son of Dr. Stubbs, Veterinary Inspector of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. He is proving himself a chip of the old block. The Dr. graduated with honors a year ago after a brilliant course at the Toronto Veterinary College, having at the end of his first year won the Dr. Smith Scholarship from a class of 96 who wrote. He commenced the practice of his profession here after graduating a year ago. Last fall he erected a fine large hospital stable with modern improvements. It is supplied with water from a windmill, and will be lighted with acetylene gas. He has his office and dispensary in this building. We bespeak for him a highly successful career in his chosen profession.

—Mr. Geo. W. Hepton will hold an auction sale of horses, cattle and pigs on lot 13, 6th line, Amaranth, on Monday.

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

Mrs. Clements, 13 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Mr. Thos. Scarland returned home Monday evening after enjoying a week's vacation.

Mrs. A. Smith is visiting friends in Tottenham.

Mrs. (Dr.) Thomas, who has been visiting at Creemore, is expected home on Wednesday.

We are glad to see Mr. Jno. McHugh walking around again. While still a little stiff, his long confinement has not dampened his ardor nor spoiled his appreciation of a good joke.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of Mr. Thos. McCort, but trust that the spring will find him his usual self again.

"The Black Bearded Barbarian," was the subject of an illustrated lecture given by Rev. J. Burkholder in Knox Church last Wednesday evening to a large and appreciative audience. The story of McKay of Formosa will have a deeper significance to those who were fortunate enough to be present.

"The White Oak Tavern," presented here last Friday under the auspices of Warnock L.O.L. proved a great success, both dramatically and financially. The various members of the Club were uniformly good, but Dr. Stubbs (Buckeye), was in a class by himself and certainly "got the 'plause."

Miss Lillian Macintyre is leaving this week for Stirling, Ont., to take a position as teacher in the High School.

Mrs. W. G. McCormack, of Toronto, spent Sunday and Monday with Mrs. McGarvin and Mrs. Wilcox, John St.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Clark, of Southampton, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, First St.

Mr. H. A. Duke, County Master of Dufferin, attended the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge meeting in Guelph last week.

Mr. R. H. Robinson arrived home from Florida on Monday night. He reports a splendid time during the month he was away.

Mr. Wesley Lane, of Toronto, and Mr. Joyce McConnell, of Alton, visited their grandmother, Mrs. Ann McConnell, Prince of Wales St., last week.

Mrs. C. C. Bradley, of Detroit, Mr. Frank Holt, of Toronto, Mr. John Groat, of Oshawa, and Mrs. Tout, of Yale, Mich., attended the funeral of the late John Crago on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Boker, of Montreal, are visiting the latter's uncle, Mr. John McKim, and other friends in town. Mr. and Mrs. Boker will leave shortly on a trip to Germany.

Mr. T. A. Dawson "Lakeview Farm," Bronte, formerly of Melville Cross, was a visitor at the monthly fair last Thursday. Mr. Dawson was on the lookout for a couple of good farm laborers and succeeded in picking up the men he wanted.

High School Convocation.

Orangeville High School will hold its annual Convocation in the Opera House on Friday evening, March 27th. An important feature of the programme will be the presentation of "The Merchant of Venice," under the auspices of the Literary Society. The students are practising hard and promise an excellent production of the old Shakespearean favorite. All seats reserved. Admission 25c. Plan of hall opens at Banner Office at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

—The Women's Institute held a delightful social meeting at Mr. Geo. A. Leighton's on Tuesday night.

—Mr. Geo. Nicholson, the well-known John St. florist, is in Lord Dufferin hospital with pneumonia. He is improving now and an early recovery is expected.

—Mrs. Robert Irwin, West Broadway, entertained her Sunday School class to a dainty tea and handkerchief shower one evening recently. The affair was in honor of Miss Gertrude Torrance, who is leaving Orangeville shortly.

—Police Magistrate Crawford, of Brampton, held court in Alton last Thursday and fined four of the villagers $20 apiece and costs for being drunk in a local option municipality. It cost each of the offenders $25.80 for their fun.

—A charge against John Hubbard for being drunk and disorderly on Broadway was vertilated by P. M. Pattullo on Saturday and then adjourned until next Monday. Gil Hackett, from whom Hubbard says he got the liquor, will also be tried on Monday.

—Rev. J. R. Bell, of Laurel, gave an excellent report of the recent Ottawa social congress, in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday morning. The address contained a mine of suggestive information on the child problem, the rural problem, commercialized vice, co-operation and other social and economic questions.

—Three young men named Lewis May, Wm. Lackey and Geo. Langtree were arrested by Chief Marshall on Sunday night for disorderly conduct in a house in the East Ward. They appeared before P. M. Pattullo on Monday. The magistrate remanded them until next Monday. Whiskey was the cause of the disturbance.

—A cloudless sky gave citizens who were interested a splendid opportunity to view the eclipse of the moon Wednesday night of last week. The eclipse commenced about nine o'clock and shortly after eleven o'clock about nine-tenths of the surface of the moon was obscured. This was the time of greatest shadow. The eclipse ended about 1.45 a.m.

—After partly hearing the evidence of the plaintiff, Mrs. Maxwell, in the Maxwell vs. May horse case, at a special sitting of the County Court on Tuesday, Judge Fisher suggested that the parties get together and come to a settlement. This they managed to do, C. H. Smith, who bought the horse at Mrs. Maxwell's sale, agreeing to give her a chattel mortgage on his driving horse as security for the payment of his note. A. A. Hughson for plff.; J. L. Island and Geo. Robb for deft.

—Two girls spent Friday in town soliciting subscriptions for Maclean's Magazine, which they purported to represent. They were willing to match quarters, take half dollars or dollars for the magazine. Their actions, as described by eye-witnesses, were anything but ladylike and they should have been run out of town. One of them entertained a crowd of men in Tom. Hewson's blacksmith shop, pursuing one of her victims upstairs and chasing another down the lane back of Broadway. They raked in considerable money, but we have not heard that any of the subscribers have received magazines.

GUELPH TO ORANGEVILLE

Royal City Council Wants Hydro Electric Railway Connection

On Monday night Guelph City Council passed a resolution requesting the Ontario hydro-electric commission to inquire into the cost of constructing and operating a hydro-electric railway from Guelph city to Orangeville, passing through the townships of Eramosa and Erin and the villages of Hillsburg and Erin. The population of the municipalities that would be served is sufficient, the resolution states, to provide revenue for a profitable railroad, which would be of great economic value to the country through which it passes. The project is of vital concern to Orangeville and our Town Council and Board of Trade should take immediate steps to look after the town's interests. An electric railroad from Guelph to Orangeville would naturally continue east of here probably by way of the Hockley Valley and have a Georgian Bay terminus at Collingwood. This would give Orangeville and its tributary country much needed railway connection both east and west.

Baptist Choir Musicale

All too few people took advantage of the treat offered by the Baptist church choir on the evening of Wednesday, March 11th, when that body, assisted by other local talent, charmed an audience for a space of two hours. Those who were present had good reason to congratulate themselves on an evening pleasantly and profitably spent.

The choir, numbering some fifteen voices, under the baton of its leader, Mr. Percival Harding, vindicated its claim to a foremost place among the singing bodies of Orangeville. Wisdom was displayed in confining the choral work to the better class of simple anthems, the limited number of voices thus being placed under no undue strain. Unstinted praise is due Mr. Harding for the precision of attack, careful shading and splendid balance maintained throughout the selections rendered by the choir. Miss B. Harding made an efficient organist, ably supporting the singers without becoming too prominent.

Including a short opening selection, five numbers were given by the choir. They were as follows: "Gloria Patri," Hartsburg; Hymn Anthem, "Diadem," Handel; "Praise God the Giver," Fillmore; "Lovest Thou Me?" Solly; "Praise Ye the Lord," Beasley.

Assisting in the evening's program were Miss Emma King and Miss Hazel Patterson, whose piano duets are always appreciated; Miss Bell and Mrs. Robinson in a vocal duet entitled "Rock of Ages," very finely rendered; Miss Wright and Miss Lathwell in piano duets, well received; Mr. J. E. Jessop in a vocal solo, "Jehovah," sang under difficulties, but much appreciated; Mr. William Haslam in a violin selection "Traumerei," accompanied by Miss Myrtle Shaw at the piano; Mr. Ross Macpherson in a vocal solo, "Bendemeers' Stream," a setting of Moore's poem by that name, which was excellently rendered and displayed fine tonal quality and perfect enunciation; Messrs. Harding and Faulkner in instrumental duets on the banjo and guitar, somewhat novel in Orangeville; and Mr. Percival Harding in a solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple" (Knapp-Crosby). The last mentioned number revealed the excellent quality and range of Mr. Harding's voice, and was sung with pleasing confidence, receiving an insistent demand for an encore, which was acceded to.

"White Oak Tavern."

The Old Caledon Dramatic Club scored a big success with their melodrama "White Oak Tavern," which they presented in the Opera House here on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Charity Society. Considering the impassable condition of the roads and the amount of sickness in the town at the present time, the entertainment attracted a large audience. There were over 300 people present and all speak in terms of praise of the performance. We regret that lack of space makes it impossible to give an extended report of the programme.

Wrestling in Opera House

Local lovers of wrestling were treated to a sensational exhibition of the manly art on Thursday night last in the Opera House, when Oscar Wasson, champion of the Western States, met Charlie Fraser, heavyweight champion of Canada, in a catch-as-catch can wrestling bout. The first bout was to be the best two falls out of three, no set time, with 15 minutes rest after each 20 minutes of wrestling, but after 17½ minutes of heavy gruelling, the bout was declared a draw, as each man had a hold that could not be broken. The 15 minutes' rest was followed by the second round, during which Fraser got a strong toe-hold on Wasson which was broken after a sharp struggle. Eighteen minutes later Fraser inflicted hard punishment on Wasson with the terrible scissors-hold finally getting a fall to his credit. The scissors-hold proved too much for Wasson, who had the bout postponed until the following night in order to recuperate after the trying ordeal. At this juncture Fraser sent out challenges to all comers to wrestle him, he guaranteeing to throw any local man three times in ten minutes. Another exhibition was given the following night in which Fraser was declared the winner.

—Angus Norris, an East Garafraxa farmer, sold a local buyer 22 pigs for $440 yesterday.

—Geo. Leflar, lot 23, Mono-Amaranth-townline, got his foot caught in the fly-wheel of a gasoline engine on Friday. The limb was broken and mangled so badly that the doctors were obliged to amputate at the knee. The unfortunate man is suffering greatly from shock, but otherwise is doing as well as can be expected.

SPRING BLOOD IS WATERY BLOOD

How to Get New Health and New Strength at This Season.

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in overheated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the schools, taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions, while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only banish spring weakness, but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism, and other diseases due to bad blood.

Mrs. Freeman Leslie, Grenwich, N. S., writes: "We have found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the very best family medicine there is. I was completely run-down and could not sleep or do my work. I was very nervous and the least sound startled me. I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they soon brought me back to the best of good health. They also cured my husband when he was suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism."

If you are ailing this spring you cannot afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hospital Notes

The hospital is well fitted at present and the patients are all doing nicely.

A committee visits the Hospital every week and the institution is thoroughly inspected. It is a pleasure to be able to state that everything is always found very satisfactory. Miss Barclay is a very efficient superintendent and has a capable staff of assistants.

Seed Sowers Sale

The Seed Sowers Mission Band of St. Andrew's Church is holding a Sale of Homemade Cooking and Boston Baked Beans on Saturday next, March 21st, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Life of Christ

In St. Andrew's Church on Thursday night, instead of the usual week night topic, the pastor will commence a series of illustrated addresses on the Life of Christ. Rev. G. W. Tebbs is very kindly lending his valuable set of lantern slides on that subject.

Sewing Class

Owing to previous engagements the Instructor for the Sewing Class arranged for by the Women's Institute will be unable to commence as previously advertised. The first and second lessons will be given on Wednesday, April 1st, and Thursday, April 2nd, in the old Council Chamber in the Opera House. All wishing to join the Sewing Class are requested to meet at the home of Mrs. Wm. Gillespie, Zina St., at 8 o'clock p.m. on Saturday, March 28th, for instructions. Full course of ten lessons for $2.00 or single lesson 25c.

A Successful Sale

Mr. W. J. McCague, of Relessey, held a splendid auction sale on Friday, March 6th. There was a large attendance of interested farmers, many of whom came from considerable distances. Stock brought excellent prices. Horses sold for $150; milk cows, from $60 to $80; sheep, $12 to $14 each. The hogs alone brought $600, eight of them being brood sows that sold for $400. Fowl seemed to be in good demand, for geese sold at $3.75 each and a gander for $7.25. The proceeds of the sale, including 4 horses and colt and 8 yearling cattle, sold previously, amounted to $3,700.

Davis-Buchanan

A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, 5th line, west, Caledon, on Wednesday, March 11th, when Mary Elizabeth Buchanan, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Buchanan, was united in marriage to Joseph Davis, a well-known West Caledon farmer. Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Alton, was the officiating clergyman. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father. She wore cream silk with an overdress of shadow lace. The only guests present were the members of the bride's and groom's families. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold pendant set with pearls, with peridot centre and drop. She was also the recipient of many useful and costly gifts. The happy couple left on the 6.10 train for Galt, Toronto and other points. On their return they repaired to their future home, lot 24, 5th line, Caledon, where they start out in life accompanied by the hearty good wishes of a wide circle of friends.

Death of John Crago

Mr. John Crago, a respected citizen, passed away quite unexpectedly at his home on First St., early on Sunday morning. He was in his usual health until late Friday afternoon, when he became dangerously ill while down town and had to be taken home in a rig. Two doctors were with him on Saturday, but their efforts proved unavailing. The end came very suddenly about 8 o'clock Sunday morning. His death was caused by hemorrhage of the stomach. Mr. Crago, who was 66 years of age, was born in Cornwall, Eng., and came to Canada when a mere boy, his parents settling in Ontario county a short distance from Whitby. He moved to Dufferin county about forty years ago, taking up his residence on lot 4, con. 1, Amaranth. He subsequently moved to lot 6 in the same concession, where he lived until he came to Orangeville about a year ago. Mrs. Crago (nee Charlotte Washington) died in July 1904. The members of the family are one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Lightle, Toronto, and five sons, Geo. W., Selkirk, Man., Albert in Montana, Arthur in Amaranth and William and Joseph, of Orangeville. Mrs. Catherine Deacon, of Dyke, Iowa, and Mrs. C. C. Bradley, of Detroit, are the surviving sisters. The late Mr. Crago was a genial, companionable man and a good neighbor. He was well thought of by all who knew him and his demise will be keenly regretted. He was a skilful musician and for many years was one of the standbys of Orangeville Citizens' Band. He was a member of the old Citizens' Band organized under the leadership of Mr. Eri Whaley. He frequently attended camp at Niagara with the 36th Regiment band. Messages of regret and sympathy were received by the family from Mr. Whaley, his old bandmaster, and Mr. T. F. E. Clarridge, bandmaster of the 36th. The late Mr. Crago was an enthusiastic Mason and one of the old members of Harris lodge. He was buried with Masonic honors, the service of the Order being read by Dr. T. A. Carson, Master of Harris Lodge, assisted by Revs. W. M. Morris and G. W. Tebbs. Rev. G. W. Robinson, pastor of the Methodist Church, conducted the burial service. The pallbearers, all brother Masons, were Messrs. J. J. White, J. S. Robertson, D. McPherson, Wm. Braiden, D. B. Brown and A. E. Annis. A lyre from the 36th Regiment band, a square and compass from Harris Lodge, a wreath from the sons and a pillow from the daughter were among the floral tributes. Interment took place in Greenwood cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. J. Morrison

Mrs. Morrison, wife of Jeremiah Morrison, landlord of The Dufferin House, passed away on Tuesday morning after a lingering illness. Her death was caused by anaemia. She was in her 49th year and is survived by her husband, two sons, George and Charles, and a daughter, Miss Daisy. The funeral will take place to the Forest Lawn Cemetery this afternoon.

Mrs. Francis Durkin

Mrs. Francis Durkin, an esteemed resident of Amaranth township, fell asleep at her home near Bowling Green about one o'clock on Saturday. Death followed a severe illness due to pneumonia. Mrs. Durkin, whose maiden name was Sarah Philp, was born near Bowmanville nearly seventy-five years ago. She came as a bride to Amaranth and for the last forty-eight years lived in the neighborhood in which she died. The family were looking forward to the celebration of their parents golden wedding, but the uninvited guest prevented this. Mrs. Durkin was converted when only fifteen years of age and united with the Methodist church, of which she was a consistent member up to the time of her death. Her daughters are Mrs. Wm. Irwin, Mrs. Benj. and Mrs. Wm. Bradley, of Orangeville, Mrs. A. C. Beemer, of Princeton, Eveline, in Regina, and Minnie at home. The sons are, John, at home and Thomas, who died when seventeen years of age. The interment, which was largely attended by the people of the neighborhood, took place in the Union Cemetery at Grand Valley on Monday afternoon. The pallbearers were Thos. Hinton, Hugh Fennell, Thos. Bennett, Geo. Gier, Geo. Lomas and John Simpson. There were many beautiful flowers covering the casket. The Rev. John S. Stevenson, B.A., B.D., of Laurel, conducted impressive services at the house and grave.

WM. ALGIE'S WILL.

Alton Manufacturer Left an Estate of $87,000.

The will of the late William Algie, proprietor of the Beaver Woollen Mills, at Alton, has just been admitted for probate. The document is a very brief one containing only one page of typewritten matter. The two sons of the deceased are not mentioned in the will at all. Deceased left property amounting to $87,'09, of which $48,929 is personalty and $37,960 realty. The mills are splendidly situated and the water power by which they are operated is a valuable one. The stock on hand is valued at $39,155 and the equity consists of lots Nos. 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, valued at $35,000; a portion of lot 23, valued at $2,800; and lot 5, $160. All of the above property is equally divided among the widow and four daughters of the deceased, Mrs. Dorrington, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Mason and Miss Phoebe Algie, with the exception of a legacy of $500 which is bequeathed to Miss Margaret Moore, forewoman of the mills, for faithful services.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

Sale Register.

Councillor Geo. W. Hepton is holding an Auction Sale of horses, cattle and pigs on lot 13, 6th line, Amaranth, on Monday next, March 23rd. The sale will begin at one o'clock and will be on the usual terms. See posters or advt. for full particulars. Geo. McAlister, Auctioneer.

List and all particulars will be found elsewhere in this issue or may be seen by consulting posters. Geo. McAlister, Auctioneer.

THOSE WRESTLING BOUTS

A Novice Tells How the Performance Looked to Him.

An exhibition of wrestling, given in the Opera House on Thursday night of last week, brought a goodly number of the sports of Orangeville to see the gladiators of the mat go through a series of serpentine contortions. Some went out of mere curiosity, some to see the wriggling and the writhing, and others to hear the cracking of joints and wishbones in various parts of the wrestlers bodies, while under the terrible strain. On this occasion the audience was not a capacity one, but was very varied, ranging from the street arab to the professional gentleman. The fun was an hour late in starting, but while it lasted there was not a dull moment. Two local victims were secured for a preliminary bout, which was pulled off without any serious damage being done. Then came the big event. It had been whispered abroad that a man's ear would be twisted off with the toe-hold, and therefore everyone was on the tip toe of excitement when the two hustlers were introduced to the audience as champions of the Western States and of Canada, respectively. At the blowing of an imaginary whistle the battle started. An impromptu mat, made from an ordinary carpet, size about 10 ft. by 9 ft., had been tacked to the stage floor. A few bags had been laid, very sparsely, under the carpet, in such a way that in places there were no bags at all. It was only a few seconds until the Western man cried "nuff," and then proceeded to extract a carpet tack from his anatomy, after which a thorough search was made, that disclosed tacks in abundance with points up. Then the gruelling started afresh. It was to be a wrestle to a fall. The imaginary line around the mat proved of little use, for on several occasions, after a vicious "bunny hug," little-toe hold or some other stunt, the perpetrator was chased by the victim into the wings for revenge. After 17½ minutes of hauling and mauling, introducing groans and gasping for precious breath, and after many escapes from violent death by strangulation, the bout was declared a tie, and a tie it surely was, for legs and arms, toes and fingers were mixed together in much confusion, necessitating a careful withdrawal of the combatants from each other. At this juncture a fifteen minutes' respite was allowed for them to cool off, and before the time was up the audience clamored for a renewal of the exhibition. Fiercer and more full of lust for battle the gladiators returned to the mat. After five minutes of grips, bumps, somersaults, and various kinds of holds, the Canadian champion got a vicious toe-hold on his opponent, who writhed and wriggled in full enjoyment of the pain. Eighteen minutes later the deadly scissors-hold was inflicted on the Western champion by the Canadian, putting the aforesaid wrestler completely "hors de combat," ending the wrestling for the evening. Before the audience departed, the winner approached the footlights and sent out cheery challenges to all comers, guaranteeing to throw any man three times in ten minutes, promising not to hurt the accepter of his challenge. Another wrestling bout was held the following night, the preliminaries being a couple of boxing turns by local boys.

Warden Rutledge, Reeve McCabe, of Albion, Engineer Wheelock and the engineers of the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. inspected the C.P.R. subway at Cedar Mills and the G.T.R. crossing on the No. 25 side road of the township of Albion. The subway is so low that it is impossible to take a load of hay or threshing machine through it. The crossing is also in a dangerous condition. The railway officials promise to go into the matter and endeavor to effect a condition satisfactory to the county.

We Promise You Relief from All Stomach Troubles- Or Your Money Back

We honestly believe we have the best remedy in the world for indigestion and dyspepsia. We urge you to try it at our risk. If it doesn't relieve you—as we feel sure it will—we'll give back your money without a word. You know us—your family druggist. You know we wouldn't dare recommend anything we didn't know about, nor dare to break a promise. Therefore, when we recommend any remedy it is because we believe it to be better than any other to relieve the ailment for which it is made, and when we prove our faith in it and our sincerity toward you by promising to give back your money if it doesn't relieve you and in every way satisfy you, you have no possible excuse for doubt or hesitation.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets

are, we honestly believe, the best remedy made for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all other Stomach Ills

We Know They're Good

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, in addition to other ingredients, contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two great digestive aids used by the entire medical profession. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check the heartburn and distress, stimulate a healthy secretion of the gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert it into rich red blood, and thereby into flesh, bone and muscle. They relieve stomach distress promptly, and, used regularly for a short time, tend to restore the stomach to a comfortable, easy-acting, healthy state. They aid greatly to promote regular bowel action.

Delays Are Dangerous

Don't neglect indigestion, for it frequently leads to all sorts of ills and complications. The pain and discomfort is not the most unfortunate part. The fact that when the stomach is not acting right, the material needed to repair the wastes that are constantly taking place in the body is not being given to the blood either in the proper condition or fast enough is far more serious. Nothing will cause more trouble than an unhealthy stomach. The blues, debility, lack of strength and energy, constipation, biliousness, headaches and scores of other serious ailments result from the failure of the stomach to properly do its work.

You Risk No Money

Our willingness to have you use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets entirely at our risk proves our faith in them. We always sell them this way, and it is because we know that they have greatly benefited scores of sufferers to whom we have sold them. There's no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. You needn't sign anything. Your word is enough for us. We know that when they help you you will consider it money well spent even if they had cost you ten times as much. If they don't help you, the money you paid for them is yours, and we want you to have it.

Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores—the World's Greatest Drug Stores. In convenient boxes—three sizes: 25c, 50c, $1.00

MORE ARMY REMOUNTS WANTED.

If the communication received by the Standard-bred Breeders, while assembled in Toronto at their annual meeting, ever materializes into financial government assistance, the light horse industry of the country should assume a more promising nature. Not that the breeders of the light horses have been undergoing a retrograde session; they have been prospering, and the automobile has been having its innings too, but conditions now augur well for a return to the horse by many of those who have had their pleasure from the machine and still hanker for the horse. Nothing would delay this return more than a lack of interest in light horse breeding. If they are still produced along most improved lines and the country is well stocked with horses of the right kind, wealthy people of the towns and cities will be quicker to pick them up for their own use, than were there only a mediocre class to be had, and their example will be copied by less prosperous people.

It will be harder for the government to bonus Standard-breds and Hackneys than it is in the case of Thoroughbreds, but if the same care and attention be exercised in this particular as has been with the Thoroughbred horses, there need be no conflict arising between bonused horses and the regular imported and breeder. The aim, however, is to breed and produce army remounts throughout Canada, and it should tend to create a demand which must be met by the breeders of light horses.

McLaughlin Motor Cars

In considering the purchase of a motor car it is most essential that you consider the motor installed in your car. A most important feature is to satisfy yourself on its fuel economy, ability to get the most miles out of a gallon of gasoline, and smooth and silent running at all times.

Intensely significant, therefore, is the over-head-valve motor, the big feature of McLaughlin-Buick construction. It is an engine that is trustworthy and reliable, and will save you from 15 to 20 per cent. in operating cost.

No other motor ever built has attained the same high standard of durability and consistency the McLaughlin-Buick over-head-valve engine has made an every day occurrence.

After many severe and prolonged road tests which we have put this motor through, we are satisfied that our guarantee to give more power and mileage than any other engine of similar dimensions made anywhere else in the world, is not overdone.

In competition with many of America's best known automobiles, to determine the amount of fuel consumed while travelling under most versatile conditions, the superiority of the over-head-valve motor has been proven times innumerable.

When you buy a McLaughlin-Buick you buy service and reliability

HANCEY—ROBINSON NUPTIALS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson, Mono, was the scene of a happy wedding on Wednesday of last week, when their second daughter, Gertrude May, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Joseph A. Habcey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hancey, of Tossorontio. The ceremony, which took place at five p.m., was performed by the Rev. Geo. Coulter, of Mansfield. The bride, who was given away by her father, was charming in her gown of white satin trimmed with shadow lace and pearls, her only ornament being the groom's gift, a lovely necklace set with pearls and amethysts. Her veil of brussel's net arranged in mob cap effect was held in place with a coronet of lilies of the valley; her bouquet was of cream roses with lilies of the valley, centred with a cala lily. The only attendant was the flower girl, Miss Bernice McDowell, a niece of the bride. She was dressed prettily in white silk and carried a white satin bo-peep crook to which a bouquet of cream roses was attached. The groom's gift to her was a gold locket and chain. The wedding music, Lohengrin's wedding march, was played by Miss Ethylene Latimer, a cousin of the bride. After the congratulations a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. The happy young couple left later in the evening for their home in Essa carrying with them the good wishes of a large community. The bride's going-away suit was of navy serge and she wore a hat to match. The many beautiful gifts show the high esteem in which the bride is held.—Alliston Herald.

ON PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Ambassador James Bryce, in University and Historical Addresses, has this paragraph on the art of public speaking: "Always have something to say. The man who has something to say, and who is known never to speak unless he has, is sure to be listened to. Always know before what you mean to say. If your own mind is muddled, much more will the minds of your hearers be confused. Always arrange your thoughts in some sort of order. No matter how brief they are to be, they will be better for having a beginning, a middle and an end. At all hazards, Be Clear. Make your meaning, whatever it is, plain to your audience. In controversial speaking, aim to anticipate your adversary's argument. Reply to his jests seriously and to his earnestness by jest. Always reflect beforehand upon the kind of audience you are likely to have. Never despise those whom you address, whatever you may think of their intellectual attainments. Be sparing of literary ornament. As respects humorous anecdotes . . . even the best stories lose their charm if dragged in by the neck. Never, if you can help it, be dull. Remember the importance of delivery. Be sure you are heard. Do not shout. Vary your pitch and tone. A speech seems twice as long if delivered in a monotone. Never read from manuscript if you can avoid it. Finally, never weary your audience."

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

To Mr. John Lindsay and Family.

Resolved—That as a Loyal Orange Lodge we give expression to our feelings of regret in view of the bereavement that has befallen us in the death of our esteemed brother, the late Harold Lindsay, whom God in his infinite goodness and wisdom has taken to the Grand Lodge above. As a member of our Order he has ever proved himself a true and worthy brother, always willing to offer assistance and aid to a distressed brother and ever proving himself to be possessed of the virtues of Love, Fraternity and Fidelity. His life showed that he felt it to be his imperative duty to consistently comply with the sacred obligations of our Lodge. He has been removed from our midst, and we bow in humble submission, knowing that the Divine Master cannot err. We extend to you and your greatly beloved family our heartfelt sympathy and condolence in this the hour of your sad bereavement, and can fully assure you that your sorrow is to a great extent our sorrow, and as you weep in loneliness you have our kindest Christian regard and brotherly sympathy.

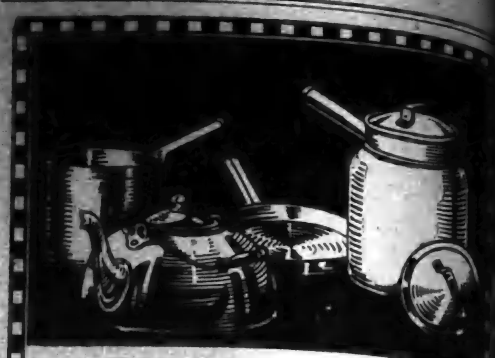
A RACE WITH THE STORK.

While moving on Thursday last from Hanover to the George Procknow farm on the 6th concession of Brant, which he recently purchased, Mr. Alex. Kieswetter discovered that he was about to become the father of a new child on the way over and not caring to have the infant born on the highway, he whipped up the horses and a sensational race with the stork took place down the concessions. People who took to the ditch as the frantic driver brushed by little guessed that the birthplace of a future citizen depended upon the success of that wild rural flight. Lashed into foam, the steeds finally wheeled into the Procknow farm and the race was won, for Mrs. Kieswetter had hardly landed in her new home when the world was enriched with another son.—Bruce Herald.

THEY HELPED HER WONDERFULLY



What Mrs. H. Best Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Alberta Woman Voices the Sentiment of the Women of the West That Dodd's Kidney Pills are Woman's Best Friend.

Retlaw, Alta., March 16th. (Special).—"Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully." So says Mrs. H. Best, a highly respected lady living here. And Mrs. Best expresses the sentiment of thousands of women in Alberta. Like most women Mrs. Best does not care to talk about her troubles, but she does wish others who have suffered as she has to know that they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. "I found them entirely satisfactory. They helped me wonderfully," she says, "and I give you my full permission to tell the public what they have done for me."

Women who suffer in silence can be cured just as silently. The keystone of woman's health is the Kidneys. If they are kept strong and healthy, they keep the blood pure, and pure blood means good health all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy Kidneys and good blood. That's why they are known as woman's best friend.

Mr. Gibson was driving a colt in a cart along the 12th concession, when the animal took fright and upset Mr. Gibson over a culvert into a ditch.

MAKES OLD PEOPLE STRONG AND WELL

We want to get the news to all old people about Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion, a remarkable new food-medicine which we firmly believe is the best remedy ever made to overcome the weakening, debilitating effects of increasing old age. It helps to rebuild wasted tissues, strengthen the nerves, and give new energy and a lively feeling to the body. It contains no alcohol or dangerous drug. It may not make you feel better for a few days, but if you do not feel much better and stronger before you have taken a quarter as much as you have of other medicines that have not helped you, we will gladly give back your money.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion contains pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites which, though they have long been endorsed by successful physicians, are here for the first time combined. The result is a real body, nerve and blood-building food medicine that we believe is superior to anything else in overcoming debility, weakness and liability to disease, and to tone and strengthen the nerves and enrich the blood. You who are weak and run-down—you who are often troubled by various cold weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. It is a sensible, pleasant-tasting aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health. If it doesn't help you, come and tell us and we will give back your money without a word. That is how much faith we have in it. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. T. F. & T. J. Brown, Druggists, Orangeville.

THE BANNER

THE BANNER, MARCH 26th, 1914.

FREE DRAINAGE SURVEYS.

Farmers! Have you a field on your place that is too "wet, cold and sour"? Drainage will reclaim it and make it one of the best fields on the farm.

Drainage does four things. First it removes the surplus water and makes it possible to cultivate and seed about three weeks earlier in the spring than on the same land when undrained. Secondly it makes the land from ten to fifteen degrees warmer than if not drained, and this warmth germinates the seed properly and gives a good stand of grain. Thirdly, it lets plenty of air down to the roots of the plants, which is necessary for satisfactory growth. Fourthly, it makes the soil more porous, and this in turn causes the soil to store up more water for the use of crops in time of drouth.

Frequently the increase of crop in one year pays for the drainage, and seldom or never does it take longer than three years, so that drainage pays from 33 per cent. to 100 per cent. per annum on the money invested.

Have you difficulties in drainage? The Department of Physics of the Ontario Agricultural College will assist you on application. They will make you a complete survey of the area to be drained, or run a single line of drain, and when done furnish you with a finished map showing location of drains, grades, sizes of tile, etc.—a detailed guide for the thorough drainage of the land in question. No charge is made for the services of these drainage advisers, nor for maps, only the applicant pays the travelling expenses in connection with his survey, amounting usually to not more than a couple of dollars.

Drop a card to the Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph, for the regular application form.

The Hydro-Electric Railway

Discussing the proposed hydro-electric railway from Guelph to Orangeville, the Guelph Mercury states :—

"The line now suggested was part of the People's Railway proposals, and is so important that the wonder is that it was not taken up in connection with the Hydro power line from Hespeler to the Georgian Bay. Possibly it was felt that one ambitious scheme was enough to handle at a time. Instead of the fact that we have taken up the one line being a reason why we should not now take up another, it is possibly the very reason why we should do so. While the surveyors are in this district, as they are at present, their services could be utilized in running this second line. It is understood they are running two lines to Arthur and the Georgian Bay, and why not here as well.

It is thought that the conformation of the country—all hill and hollow between Guelph and Erin—would make the construction of a level road difficult, or if the road followed the contour of the country, it would be difficult of operation. However, as the cost of these surveys is assumed by the Hydro Power Commission, the people of the district interested have every reason to favor the making of such a survey now. It is believed that the construction and operation of these railways will never cost the municipalities a cent, as the earnings will meet the outlays for those purposes. Besides, these Hydro radials will provide a means of communication hitherto vainly hoped for. The people of the Erin and Orangeville district are just as vitally interested in securing the improved means of transportation to be offered by such a railway as are those of Guelph.

A Skating Rink.

Editor of The Banner.

Dear Sir :—I have been waiting patiently to see whether anyone would make a move in the town towards supplying a positive necessity of which our young people especially have been deprived. I think it is the general opinion that no town of our size, with its most probable growth in the near future, should be without a Skating Rink. It was unfortunate that the old one was appropriated to other uses so near to the winter when it was too late to do anything towards providing another. I think however that we should do something SOON. We ought to begin at once, as there is always so much time taken up in the selection of sites, estimations, and awarding of contracts, apart from the inevitable delays in building, that it is usually a "rush" matter at the end of the summer, and consequently an ill constructed affair. I would suggest, Sir, that a meeting of citizens be called, say on Tuesday, March 31st, in the Library, or other building, to discuss the matter, but an expression of opinion in your paper in next week's issue would help considerably in what I think the majority of our citizens believe to be much needed, and a scheme with which they are cordially in sympathy.

Yours Faithfully,
GEO. W. TEBBS.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

A GOLDEN WEDDING

Happy Gathering at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, First St.

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, First St., on Monday, the occasion being the celebration of their golden wedding. The important event was fittingly marked by a very happy family reunion, which was attended by the members of their family and a number of out-of-town relatives. Among those who were present were Miss Annie Clark, of Orangeville, the only daughter; Mr. E. C. Clark, of this town, the oldest son, Mrs. Clark and their little daughter; Mr. J. B. Clark, manager of the Bank of Hamilton in Southampton, and Mrs. Clark; ex-Mayor Johnston Lindsay, of Orangeville, a brother, and Mrs. James Carberry, of Brampton, sister of Mrs. Clark, and a number of nephews and nieces, including Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Carberry and Mrs. L. Brown, of Brampton; Mrs. R. R. Barber, of Georgetown; Mr. T. C. Lindsay, Miss Minnie Lindsay and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lindsay, of Shelburne; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lindsay, of Grand Valley; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Neelands, of Hornby; Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Thompson, of Hamilton, and Mr. Fred Kilpatrick, of Toronto. Rev. G. W. Robinson, pastor of Orangeville Methodist Church, and Mrs. Robinson were also among the guests. Mr. Robinson presided at an elaborate "wedding dejeuner" and also officiated as toastmaster. Congratulatory addresses were made by the chairman and a number of the gentlemen present. Congratulatory letters and telegrams were also read from friends in New York, Regina, Owen Sound, Toronto, Brampton, Lucknow, Southampton and elsewhere.

A large number of friends attended the reception, which Mr. and Mrs. Clark held in the evening. The bride and groom of fifty years ago received their guests at the entrance to the drawing room and were assisted by their daughter, Miss Annie Clark, and their sons, Messrs. E. C. and J. B. Clark. The room was prettily decorated with flowers, yellow being the dominant color note. The flowers in the reception room were yellow daffodils, roses and tulips, many of them gifts expressive of the good wishes of friends. The tea room decorations were yellow and white. The table was covered with a lace table cloth and decorated with yellow duchesse satin ribbon. In the centre stood a pretty silver basket trimmed with yellow baby ribbon and filled with yellow tulips and narcissi. Mrs. Dahl poured tea and Mrs. Robt. Ritchie served ice cream, Mrs. E. C. Clark, Mrs. J. B. Clark, Southampton, and Mrs. A. E. Carberry, Brampton, assisting.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark, who have been esteemed residents of Orangeville for upwards of forty years, were married in Albion township near Tullamore. Mr. Clark comes of an old Caledon family and was born on lot 18, Centre Road, in that township. Mrs. Clark was born in Albion in the Tullamore neighborhood. Mr. Clark was in the grain business in Orangeville for many years but of late years has been living retired. His oldest son, E. C., is now engaged in the grain and wool trade and is one of the best-known of Orangeville's younger business men. The Banner joins their many friends in extending to Mr. and Mrs. Clark its hearty good wishes and congratulations.

Peel Liberals Select Candidates for Commons and Legislature

Prominent Party Men Address the Convention on Leading Issues.

Peel County Liberals held a well attended Convention in the Town Hall in Brampton on Saturday. There were perhaps 400 party stalwarts present from all parts of the riding. Considerable enthusiasm was manifested and the tone of the meeting would seem to indicate that the Peel Liberals are in good fighting trim. Mr. Benjamin Fetch, the county president, occupied the chair. Nominations for the House of Commons were as follows :—W. J. Lowe, Snelgrove; Prof. J. F. Brown, Meadowvale; Mr. Jas. A. Pearson, K.C., Toronto; Mr. W. H. Dawson, Brampton; Mr. William Porter, The Gore. The choice of the Convention was Mr. W. J. Lowe, of Snelgrove, who was Richard Blain's unsuccessful opponent at the last Federal election. Mr. Blain's majority on that occasion was 316. Mr. Lowe received a rousing reception upon rising to accept the nomination. Mr. A. H. Milner, of Brampton, was selected as the candidate for the Legislature. In acknowledging and accepting the party standard, Mr. Milner stated that the result of the bye-election last autumn was very gratifying from a Liberal standpoint. On that occasion the party has secured a majority of 24 in Brampton, something that it had never succeeded in doing before.

The meeting derived additional importance from the presence upon the platform of such prominent Liberals as Dr. D. B. Neeley, M.P. for Humboldt, Sask.; Mr. W. F. Carroll, M. P., Cape Breton; Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture in the Alberta Legislature, and Mr. Wm. Proudfoot, M.P.P.

Dr. Neeley, who was the first of the outside speakers called on stated that even if the trade agreement of 1911 had been defeated, the principles that underlay that treaty would never be defeated so long as there are in Canada the progressive people that are found on the farms of this country. Mr. Carroll declared that he stood for reciprocity, whether it came under that name or any other. Touching on the naval issue the speaker maintained that the Senate's action in wanting this question submitted to the people was justified.

Hon. Duncan Marshall delivered an eloquent address, abounding in apt and racy illustrations. He declared that the present Government at Ottawa had made two records unequalled by any Government—it had done nothing for the people of this country and had broken more promises than any other Government ever did in the same length of time. He described the Government as having no respect for constitutional government. Canada, he claimed, was more indebted to President Wilson for benefits than to its Prime Minister, who was in the hands of the special interests.

Mr. William Proudfoot, who was the last speaker, referred to events that had taken place in the Legislature earlier in the week. The Opposition had done everything it could to prevent the Government rushing a bill through to whitewash one of its supporters. This urgency, he said, was not surprising, because this gentleman had on a previous occasion exerted himself to whitewash the Provincial Secretary.

This Stomach Remedy Remarkably Successful

You know us—your home druggist. You know we wouldn't guarantee any remedy to relieve indigestion or dyspepsia, or money back, unless we felt the utmost confidence in that remedy. Therefore, when we offer you Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets with this proof of our faith in them, it leaves you no room for hesitation or doubt.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the fact that they contain, among other things, Bismuth and Pepsin, two ingredients endorsed by the medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of stomach ills. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check heartburn and distress, stimulate the secretion of gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert it into rich, red blood. In a short time they tend to restore the stomach to a naturally comfortable, easy-acting, healthy state. They also benefit the bowels.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00. T. F. & T. J. Brown, Druggists, Orangeville.

Royal Arch Meeting.

Prince of Wales L.O.L. No. 320 held a successful Royal Arch meeting on Tuesday evening, March 17th. The meeting was fairly well attended, considering the soft condition of the roads. Four members were advanced to the mysteries of the degree. L.O.L. No. 320 has made good progress this winter, having held one Scarlet and two Arch meetings. There is a possibility of another Arch meeting being held in the near future. Numerous speakers gave addresses during the evening, the most important perhaps being that of Rev. A. E. St. Dalmas, who spoke on Home Rule.

An Institute Lecture.

The illustrated lecture on mission work on the Island of Ceylon, given in Grace Church on Wednesday evening of last week by Rev. Mr. Tebbs, rector of St. Mark's Church, Orangeville, was indeed one of the most entertaining and instructive lectures that the people of the town have had the privilege of listening to for some time.—Arthur Enterprise.

A PUBLIC MEETING

Guelph to Orangeville Hydro-Electric Railway Will be Discussed on Monday Night

A public meeting will be held in the Orangeville Opera House on Monday night next, March 30th, for the purpose of discussing the proposed Guelph to Orangeville hydro-electric railway. Mayor Island will preside and Mr. G. B. Ryan, of Guelph, and other speakers will discuss the railway project. Citizens of all classes should make it a point to attend this meeting and inform themselves thoroughly on this important question. An electric railway may mean much to the future prosperity of Orangeville and surrounding district. Farmers in the surrounding townships will also find it well worth their while to attend the meeting. The speaking will begin at 8 o'clock.

The Show is open to all horses, the bona fide property of the exhibitors. Stallion pedigrees registered or recognized by the National Live Stock Records, Ottawa, must be produced at time of entry. Entrance fee for stallions, $1.00. Standard bred stallions and mares and all teams are to be shown in harness. Handsome badges will be given to the premium winners.

The Secretary, Mr. A. E. Annis, will be at his office on Broadway on the morning of the Show to receive entries. Judging will start at 2 o'clock. Admission, gentlemen 15c; ladies free.

The Bachelor's Socks.

An old bachelor bought a pair of socks, in which he found the following note :

"I am a young lady of twenty, and would like to correspond with a bachelor with a view to matrimony." The name and address were given. The bachelor wrote and in a few days received this reply :

"Mamma was married twenty years ago. Evidently the merchant who sold the socks didn't advertise or he would have sold them long ago. Mamma handed me your letter and said perhaps I might suit. I am eighteen."

HILL & CO.

ONE OF FIVE BIG STORES

THE BIG STORE, ORANGEVILLE

OUR MILLINERY OPENING

This event, which took place on Wednesday of last week, was the most successful of any we have yet held and entirely satisfactory in every particular. We thank all, who by their presence and patronage, assisted us in making it such. We are now abundantly ready for brisk business and from day to day are adding new novelties. The department has never been in a better position than now to give you the maximum of style and satisfaction at the minimum cost.

More New Goods
For the Housefurnishing Department

We have recently added to our stock in this department over 2000 yards of Floordil Cloths and Linoleums, and over $2,000 of Rugs and Carpets. This makes a magnificent stock from which to choose and every dependable quality, coloring and pattern is represented. We can give you exactly what you want and, at the same time, save you money. We'll be glad of the opportunity of showing you through this Department whenever you can spare the time.

New Window Shades

50 dozen, with or without lace and insertion, all colors—a splendid collection at the closest prices possible.

The Newest in Dress Goods

This Department is fairly bristling with the finest selection of Dress Fabrics we have ever gathered together. Many of the finest lines are shown in exclusive Dress Suit lengths that you will not see duplicated elsewhere, and as they are imported direct from British Manufacturers, the prices are the lowest they could be sold anywhere. (See window display.)

Visit all Departments! WE CAN AND WILL SAVE YOU MONEY

FARMERS' ATTENTION! Some of you at least will require some kind of seed, such as Common Red Clover, Mammoth Clover, Alsike or Timothy Seed. In past seasons, with very little effort, we sold a pile of good seed. This season we are better prepared than ever with "Government Standard" brands which comply with all the provisions of "The Seed Control Act."

BUY GOOD SEED AT RIGHT PRICES. WE HAVE IT.

WE WANT UNLIMITED QUANTITIES OF PRODUCE.
No one in the Produce business will pay you Higher Cash Prices.

HIDES WANTED

I am prepared to pay the following prices for Hides :—

No. 1 Beef Hides, 12c and 13c per lb.
No. 1 Horse Hides, mane and tail on, $4.00 to $4.50.
No. 1 Calfskins, according to size, 75c to $1.50.
Sheep Skins, present take off, 60c to $1.35.
Clean Horsehair, 35c to 40c a lb.
Cake Tallow, 6½c a lb.
Clean old rubber boots and shoes, 4c to 6c per lb.

Farmers will be able to realize better prices for their hides by carefully observing the following method :—

1. Stick the throat lengthwise.
2. Cut from base to left horn, in direct line by left eye to nose; then across between the horns and skin the face.
3. Cut from sticking place to under lip and skin the cheeks. Cut into the spine just back of the horns and sever the spine; then cut hide around the base of horns and sever the head.
4. Cut from the throat along the centre of the belly to base of tail.
5. Take off dew-laws; then split up inside of leg to knee. Cut through the knee joint; then strip back forelegs, taking off the foot. Hind legs should be treated in the same manner.
6. Split from hock to belly on all four legs.
7. Then skin both sides of belly and carefully sever the tail-bone, and start the hide at base of tail and remove by pulling and use of knife, as carefully as possible.
8. Spread hide out flat and cover with salt thoroughly.

This is the method followed in the great slaughter or packing houses of Chicago and also in all the leading slaughter houses east, west and south of Chicago. The value and popularity of hides that are taken off in this way is not only due to the excellent manner of flaying, but to the absence of cuts and jagged, useless pieces that are usually found on country hides.

Two interesting debates were held on Saturday, March 7th. The juvenile debate: Resolved that History is more useful than Geography," was taken by the affirmative, Frank Turner and Norman Parks and the negative by Marion Patterson and Lillian Rayfield. The negative won by a couple of points. The senior debate: Resolved that it would be to the interest of Canada to prohibit foreign immigration," was well handled by the affirmative, Ralph Brown and Mr. John Spence, and the negative by Mr. Fred Thompson and Wall[illegible]. The affirmative won by a [illegible] margin.

The last debates of the season were held last Saturday. The juvenile debate: Resolved that a man can gain more from reading than travel," was upheld by Vernan Buchanan and Chrona Lundy and the negative was taken by Violet Chapman and Clifford Marshall. The senior debate "Resolved that newspapers do more harm than good," proved very interesting. It was supported by Messrs. Stanley Martin and Norman Rayfield and the negative was taken by Mrs. A. Lundy and Miss V. Parks. The judges were Messrs. John Ledlow and Fred Thompson and Miss Myrtle Marshall. The decision was given in favor of the negative. Next Saturday night will be a National Night. A good program is being provided.

LAUREL.

Oh, Bumble Bee, Oh, Bumble Bee,
how could you be so mean
I'm sorry you invented that poetry machine,
For great events and accidents and the G.O.R.A.B.
Are all ground into poetry by you dear Bumble Bee.

If your spirits bubble over and you grind out other rhymes
Just blame it on the weather, we all do that at times,
But turn them out more frequently, let's have one every week,
So the folks who look for poetry will find just what they seek.

There is rhythm to your verses, and considerable wit
And it doesn't really matter which one of us you hit,
If you do it without malice for you know the only thing,
We hate about a Bumble Bee, is its ability to sting.

Reflections of a TAME BEE.

CALEDON.

The Caledon branch of the Women's Institute will give a Social in the Town Hall on Thursday night the 26th inst, when an excellent program will be given and a good time is expected.

The Caledon Dramatic Club has been engaged to present its clean, bright, entertaining and edifying melodrama "The Old New Hampshire Home," in Science Hall, Alton, on Friday evening, March 27th. This Club has given this play a great number of times now and has always been well received. We wish them success in Alton.

Miss Ellen Quinn, sister of Mr. Thos Quinn, Reeve of Caledon, is at present undergoing treatment in Toronto General Hospital. We wish for a speedy recovery.

Mr. John Gibson had a very successful sale of his stock and implements on Friday last, the amount realized being over $5000. Mr. Gibson is giving up farming and has been engaged as manager of Mr. Pearson's large farm. Mr. Pearson purchased Mr. Gibson's 150 acre farm recently, for the sum of $10,000.

Mr. Thos. McCort, who has been ill of late, is now, we are pleased to say, making satisfactory progress toward recovery.

Miss Velma Armstrong, of Erin, is visiting Caledon friends.

Mr. Patrick Garrity had a very successful wood bee on Friday and on Tuesday, the 17th of Ireland, the youch and beauty of the community tripped the light fantastic till the wee sma hours of the morning.

Quite a number of Liberals from here attended the Convention in Brampton on Saturday when "Billy" Lowe and "Bert" Milner were again chosen as candidates for the Dominion and Provincial houses, respectively.

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health Giving Blood.

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Geo. Burns, Albany, P.E.I., writes: "I was terribly run down and so weak that I could hardly drag myself around. I was so nervous that I was afraid to walk across the floor for fear I would fall. Our family doctor treated me but without success and finally I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Gradually they brought me back to good health and now I am as well as ever I was and have every confidence in recommending these Pills to other sufferers."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAMILLA.

Miss M. Little, of Prince Rupert, is visiting at Mr. Robt. Thompson's.

Mr. Tom Campbell visited Orangeville friends on Sunday.

Mr. Richard Henry is visiting Toronto friends.

Mr. Alex. Scott, of Toronto, who recently returned from a month's trip to Florida, is spending a few days at his home here.

Mrs. Robert Pierson.

Deep sorrow has pervaded the community since the death on Wednesday of last week of Mrs. Robert Pierson, lot 12, 3rd line, east, Mono, a lifelong and highly respected resident of the Glencross neighborhood. The end came after an illness of more than a year's duration, commencing with an attack of pleurisy, which developed into lung trouble. The deceased lady, who was 36 years and 5 months old, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKenna, of the 6th line. Besides her husband she leaves a boy of 9 years and a little girl about 7 years old. These have the sympathy of the whole neighborhood in their trying bereavement. Her parents, one brother, Robert H. McKenna, and three sisters, Mrs. Andrew Moffatt, Mrs. Robert Smith and Mrs. Albert Bagnell, of Froude, Sask., are also left to mourn her loss. The funeral was held from her late residence to St. John's Church Cemetery, 7th line, Mono, on Friday afternoon. Rev. A. J. Fowlie, of Camilla, conducted services at the house and grave. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Robert May, Elora, Hunter White, Jos. W. Pierson, Alex. Still, John Willerton and Irad Allen. Rev. Mr. Fowlie conducted an impressive memorial service in Glencross Presbyterian Church on Sunday night.

Mr. Joseph Hageman.

Mr. Joseph Hageman, who died at his residence, lot 4, 2nd line, Amaranth, on Monday after a protracted illness, was born in Caledon about two miles west of Inglewood almost 77 years ago. He spent his boyhood, was married and followed farming in his native township until middle life. In the spring of 1880 he moved to Amaranth settling on lot 4, con. 2, where he has since resided. His wife, who was Mary McKechnie, a daughter of the late John McKechnie, of Chinguacousy, died in the autumn of 1879. An only daughter, Mrs. Morrow, died in 1903 and a son, Alexander, who works the home farm in Amaranth, is the only surviving member of the family. Mr. Fred. Hageman, and Mrs. McKelvey, of Partland, Sask., and Mrs. Wm. Shipley, of Cheltenham, are brother and sisters. The late Mr. Hageman was a Presbyterian and a Liberal. He was a man of strong convictions, was a good neighbor and enjoyed the respect of the people of his neighborhood. The funeral was held from his late home to the C.P.R. station here yesterday morning. The remains were conveyed by train to Cheltenham, the interment taking place at Boston Mills Cemetery yesterday afternoon. Rev. W. M. Morris held the funeral service at the home on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Jas. Dent

Mrs. Dent, wife of Mr. James Dent, of Inglewood, died at her home on Thursday, March 12th, in her 63rd year. Deceased lady was born in Middleton, Twesdale, England, her maiden name being Thompson. She came to Canada with her husband when about 20 years of age and settled at Credit Forks. Later on they moved to Claude where Mr. Dent kept hotel for a time, afterwards taking the house at Inglewood. Mrs. Dent was a kindly hospitable woman, who had many friends in the community where she resided. She was highly thought of by railway men, who were in the habit of stopping at the Dent House, and a large number of these were present at the funeral to pay a last mark of respect. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, March 16th, the remains being interred in Boston Mills cemetery. Rev. F. Herman, of Caledon East, and Rev. G. W. Tebbs, of Orangeville, conducted the services. The pallbearers were Messrs. Baldock, Despard, Henderson, Walker, Louden, O'Dell, McCannell and McEachren. A number of friends were present from Toronto and Hamilton. Mrs. Dent is survived by her husband and one son, James, who have the sympathy of the neighborhood in their bereavement.

Mrs. J. H. Speers Passes Away

The community was shocked on Sunday morning by the sad news of the very sudden and unexpected demise of Mrs. J. Hutton Speers, following an illness from pneumonia contracted the previous day. Poor health for several months past is said to have been responsible for the sudden taking off.

The circumstances are doubly sad by reason of the fact that, in addition to a husband, six little children are left behind, the oldest but 10 years old and the youngest an infant of seven months. The deceased lady, aged 33 years, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brown, formerly of this town but now residing in the Lloydminster district. She was noted for her exceptional qualities as a wife and mother, and was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances in this district.

The funeral took place from the house to Gardiner Presbyterian Church at two p.m. on Tuesday, and was very largely attended, many being present from the country south of the town where the deceased resided with her husband for a number of years. Rev. W. A. Cameron delivered an able and appropriate discourse from the text, "Be ye also ready," and music for the occasion was provided under the leadership of the choir. The interment took place at the local cemetery.

The floral tributes were many, comprising wreaths, etc., from the following:—Presbyterian Ladies Aid, the fire brigade, parents and brothers and sisters of Mr. Speers, Mrs. J. M. Skelton, Mrs. E. F. T. Brokovski.

Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved husband, and the little children bereft of a mother at such an early age.—Battleford Press, March 12th.

TUMOR IN THE STOMACH

Completely Removed When She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURY, Ont., April 4th, 1913.

"Some years ago, I was sick in bed, and thought I was going to die. I had a growth in my stomach, which the doctors said was a Tumor and they said that the only thing to do was to go to the hospital and have the tumor cut out. I dreaded an operation although both doctors said it was the only cure. I said I would die before being operated on.

At this time, my mother in Alvinston sent me some "Fruit-a-tives" and induced me to try them as she had heard of another woman who had been cured of a similar growth in the stomach by taking "Fruit-a-tives".

To please my mother, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" with the happy result that they cured me. I have not been to see a doctor since and my health is first class.

I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" every time I get a chance and I will be glad to have you publish this letter as some other woman may now be a sufferer from the same trouble and "Fruit-a-tives" will cure her" MRS. A. McDONALD.

BURNED TO DEATH

Charles Wilmott, Founder of Caledon Mountain Trout Club, Lost Life in Woodbine Hotel Fire.

One of the bodies found in the ruins of the Woodbine hotel, Toronto, which was destroyed by fire on Tuesday evening, March 17th, has been identified as that of Charles Wilmot, who planned and supervised the laying out of the famous trout ponds near Credit Forks and was afterwards instrumental in organizing the Caledon Mountain Trout Club, which has one of the finest country club houses and properties in Canada. Wilmott, who lived at Credit Forks for several years, was a frequent visitor to Orangeville a number of years ago. He was a horse fancier and generally drove a stylish roadster. He was a fine looking man, standing fully six feet and weighing upwards of 200 pounds. He was an authority on fish culture, and was a fisheries inspector in Algonquin Park under the Laurier Government. He was 63 years of age and of late years had made his home in Belleville. An all round sportsman, Wilmott spent his money freely following the races, having a good time and exploiting business ventures. He is said to have been staying in Toronto for the past two or three months promoting a fish and fur company. He is survived by a widow, one son and two daughters.

CALAIS TO BAGDAD.

New Route Across the Near East Alters the Map.

It will be possible, in a comparatively short time, to travel by rail (with the exception of the short breaks at Calais and Constantinople) from London to Bagdad, or from the New Babylon to the ruins of the Old. What a wonderful prospect is opened out to the imagination by this latest feat of modern engineering.

The Twentieth Century tourist will soon be able to reach the Holy Land and to traverse some of the most historically interesting country in the world, in comfort, and even luxury. He can cross the Euphrates, pass the alleged site of the Garden of Eden, and traversing Mesopotamia and the Tigris Valley, pass near the ruins of ancient Ninevah, finishing his journey in Bagdad, the city of the Arabian Nights.

The European part of the journey, which terminates at Constantinople, is, of course, nowadays a commonplace of travel. The new railway to Bagdad begins across the Bosphorus at Scutari in Asia Minor. The line is being constructed by German engineers and from German material. The capital, in the form of loans amounting to $50,000,000, has been provided by German banks. The Turkish Government has given guarantees for this amount, having agreed to pay interest upon it, and finally to redeem it. Turkey is also pledged to guarantee a further $50,000,000 to complete the undertaking and to make good any loss incurred in running the railway.

The enterprise may be divided into four sections, the first extending from Scutari through Konia to Adana; the second from Adana to Aleppo; the third from Aleppo to Mosul on the Tigris, and the fourth from Mosul to Bagdad.

From Scutari the railway runs over a populous and fertile plain to Konia. The section stretching from Konia (ancient Iconium, said to be the first place to emerge after the Deluge) to Adana, which includes the crossing of the Tauras Mountains, provides many difficult problems for the engineers. There are numerous deep chasms, and no fewer than thirty-five costly bridges and viaducts of varying dimensions were found necessary to span them. For hundreds of miles the track follows one of the most ancient highways in the world. Along this historic road from the Orient to Europe passed such world famous figures as Xenophon, Cyrus, Alexander the Great, and St. Paul.

After crossing the Taurus range the line descends to the Cicilian Plains and to Tarsus, the birthplace of St. Paul. Once a seaport, it is now several miles inland, and the centre of a busy cotton-growing country. After crossing the plains the engineers were faced by the Amanus range, which was pierced by a tunnel six miles long, emerging at Mosselmieh, whence train can be taken southwards to Aleppo and Palestine, or eastward to Mesopotamia.

Aleppo, in Northern Syria, once a sleepy old-world Eastern city, has been converted into a great railway-building centre. It is the real base of operations for the Bagdad Railway, and huge quantities of railway-building material have been collected there. Locomotive works and repair shops have been erected, as also temporary barracks for the large army of workmen employed in the construction of the line.

During the building of the Aleppo section five hospitals were established, with ten doctors and an equal number of nurses to attend to all cases of accident and sickness among the workers, free of charge. At Aleppo nowadays all is bustle and activity. Trainloads of material arrive daily, over the railway built by the French, from the Syrian port of Tripoli.

Protect Us!

To the question, "What would you do if you found a member of your family unconscious from gas?" a first term high school student replied as follows:

"If I should find a member of my family unconscious from gas I would chaff the arms, loosen the clothing to quicken respiration and press the chest together. If two persons was working over them one would hit them on the head and the others would slap at their feet. If all your other efforts fail, use artificial respiration."

Declined With Thanks.

Speaking of burglars, there is a story of a man who prepared to meet possible burglars by purchasing a small revolver. It was a nice little affair, with "For Burglars" neatly engraved on the butt, and he was very proud of it, but one evening he forgot to take it upstairs to bed with him as usual.

When he came downstairs in the morning he found the house despoiled of all valuables and a note lying beside the revolver: "Thanks, but I always carry my own! The Burglar."

A Cruel Insinuation.

Stern Old Lady — They tell me, madam, your husband is continually smoking dreadfully—

Young Woman (bursting into tears)—I don't believe it, your horrid old thing!

Old Lady (astounded) — What's the matter with the woman?

Officious Bystander — Her husband's dead.

He Had Been There.

Rodrick—Howdy, old man? We are going on a camping trip soon. Did you ever enjoy a camping trip where you had to do your own cooking and sleep beneath the stars?

Van Albert—Nope.

Rodrick—What? Do you mean to say you have never been on a camping trip?

Van Albert—No. I mean to say that I never enjoyed one.

ONE PLEADS GUILTY.

But His Companions Will Fight Charge of Furious Driving.

Kenneth Vaughan, John McKenzie, and Jos. Hall, of Glenelg, were before Magistrates Armstrong and Ennis on Monday evening on the charge of furious driving on the public highway, causing bodily injury to Miss Gertie Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker, on the night of March 3rd, as reported in The Standard last week. The charge was laid under Sec. 285 of the Criminal Code, and is a serious offence, which, if parties were found guilty, were liable to a term of two years in prison. Mr. W. D. Henry, who was counsel for the complainant, Mr. Frank Donaldson, cousin of Miss Walker, announced that if the young men would plead guilty the charge would be reduced to that of Sec. 7, Cap. 17, of the Provincial Statutes, and by paying a fine and the costs of the case no further action would be taken. Joe Hall agreed to this lenient proposal, pleaded guilty, and paid a fine of $10.00 and costs, in all $17.95. Vaughan and McKenzie refused to accept this proposition, so the magistrates committed them for trial, and the case will be tried before a County Judge, or a jury in Owen Sound, the date having not yet been decided upon. In the meantime they gave their bond for $500 each, as also did the father of each of the young men, as a guarantee of their appearance at court. Messrs. W. H. Wright, of Owen Sound, and P. McCullough are counsel for the defendants. Great interest has been excited in the case, and the old council chamber was packed to the doors on Monday evening. Miss Walker is still in a serious condition as a result of the injuries she received.—Markdale Standard.

Varicose Veins and Itching Piles

Usually Arise From Same Cause—Relief and Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids that medical science has been able to compound. So much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not long in telling his friends when he has found an actual cure. This accounts for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This letter tells of relief from the suffering of varicose veins by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Many suffer from this trouble not knowing the comfort to be obtained by the use of this great soothing ointment.

Mrs. R. J. Evans, 187 Munro street, Toronto, writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years. I have been troubled with varicose veins, and find it the only thing that gives relief. For every purpose when a soothing, healing ointment is needed there is nothing so good as Dr. Chase's Ointment." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Concrete Fence Posts Last Forever

THEY never rot away in the ground. They stand the hardest knocks and never have to be replaced, for they are practically everlasting. They are easily and cheaply made and are the most satisfactory of all fence posts.

Concrete Drain Tile Cannot Decay

Concrete drains do not decay and are cheaper, because they do not crumble and stop up drains, hence they need no digging up or relaying.

Let us send you this free book, "What the Farmer can do with Concrete." It shows you how to make concrete fence-posts and will save you many dollars when doing other building 'round the farm.

65 YEARS AGO.

Remarkable Changes Have Taken Place in City of Guelph.

The last sixty-five years has been productive of remarkable changes in the city of Guelph, and while a few of the churches and big buildings had their origin about that period, it requires a keen memory to keep track of the Guelph of 60 and 65 years ago—an ordinary life-time. As affording some general idea of the Guelph of olden times it may be mentioned that the International Journal, in September, 1854, published a description of the town, which, though in some particulars not quite correct, and in some respects partial in its mention of manufactures and buildings, may be worth reproducing here. It says: Guelph, commonly pronounced Gwelf, lies 14 miles north of Galt, and nearly 100 miles from Goderich on Lake Huron, to which there are daily stages over fine roads. Guelph was founded by Galt, the Canada Land Company's Agent or general superintendent, about 20 years ago, and in 1850 the population was 4,399. The houses are scattered over a large and rolling surface, and contrary to the usual order in Canadian cities and towns, many of the streets radiate from a central, open space, as the streets in Washington, D.C., radiate in all directions from the Capitol. The river Speed flows past the town, affording by a gradual fall of about 30 feet, a valuable water privilage for mills or other machinery. One gentleman, Frederick George, Esq., who came to the country a few years ago, as a farmer, has now upon the Speed, a flour mill with four run of stones, to which workmen are preparing to put in an addition of four pairs more. On the opposite side of the Speed, and connected with this mill by platform and railway, there is a distillery, capable of using nearly 200 bushels of grain per day, and adjoining this there is a piggery containing 200 sleek-looking "porkers." The same proprietor has on his premises a saw mill, a tannery, and a building used for a foundry, which are leased to tenants. Besides these he has about 1,200 feet of land fronting on either side of the Speed, with sufficient water power to drive the machinery in any building that may be erected on the premises for manufacturing purposes. The dam across the river is built of stone, and is amply secured from accident. There are two other grist mills in the town, owned by Mr. Wm. Allan, and Mr. Jas. Presant; a distillery by Mr. Allan; a brewery by Mr. Williams, and another by Mr. Hodgert, and five malt kilns, owned by different individuals. There are three foundries in Guelph. The establishment of Mr. John Watt gives employment to over 60 men. The machine shop is in a large three-storey stone building, the first and second stories of which are used for manufacturing and general machine work, the third for preparing patterns, etc., and the attic or half-storey is used as a pattern loft. In an L or wing of the main building, is the moulding and casting room; the blacksmith work being done in an adjoining building. Steam engines and boilers, mill work, stoves and agricultural implements, are manufactured at this establishment. The Foundry and Tinware Manufactory of Smith, Matthewson & Co., is devoted to stoves, agricultural implements etc., and is a well arranged establishment. The other foundry is that of Mr. A. Robertson, devoted to general castings and machinery. The tannery of Mr. John Harvey is very excessive, and turns out annually about 5,000 sides of sole leather, besides upper leather and kipskins. Mr. Gow has a large tannery in operation, and there are three others in the suburbs of the town, owned by Mr. Jackson, Mr. Clark and Mr. Horning. A fanning-mill manufactory is carried on by Mr. James Mays, where fanners capable of cleaning a bushel of wheat per minute, are made and sold for $25 each. There is a chair factory in the town, carried on by Mr. Allen, and a number of furniture manufactories, some of which are aided by steam or water power, and use the most approved machinery for expeditious work. Over the door of the ware-room of one of these establishments, we noticed, on a sign in large lettere: "Boston Rocking Chairs," but whether that offered for sale was the genuine article or only an imitation, we did not inquire. In the suburbs of the town, there is a woollen factory in operation, by Messrs. Campbell & Co. Thorp's hotel is a good house and well conducted. The Grand Trunk Railway will pass near it, and will be opened to Toronto within a year, and the Galt branch of the Great Western will be extended in a few months to the town. The "Wellington," by William Hood, is a commodious hotel; and we notice the "Farmers' Arms," by Wm. Underhill, the "Railroad Inn," by Wm. Temple, and "Mechanics' Arms," by Thomas Ingraham, etc. A new hotel, of large size, has been erected, and is ready for a tenant, it is built of stone, with narrow doors, narrow windows, etc., and has altogether too much of the stiff, straight jacket appearance for the modern taste and fancy of travellers. Were a stranger in search of a nunnery he would as likely direct his steps to the new hotel asto the convent on the hill, for they are as near alike, externally, as can be conceived. However, travellers will not quarrel about the exterior of the hotel if the table d'hote, and other essentials, come up to their reasonable ideas of comfort. Guelph has a tri-weekly, and three weekly papers, and is an intelligent, social, hospitable, and enterprising community.

The limits of the town having been considerably enlarged, and it being expected that this would be the last council under the existing arrangements, before the regular incorporation, the election for councillors in January, 1855, was very hotly contested, as it was thought very probable that the members of the council this year would have a very fair chance of election under the new law, when the head of the corporation would be the mayor, instead of the reeve. On the day of nomination, therefore, a large crowd assembled, and great excitement prevailed, each of the candidates being very popular, and the difficulty with most of the electors appearing to be whom they should select. The nomination took place at the court house, on January 1st. Mr. S. H. Gerrard nominated Messrs. J. Harris, J. Watt, J. Pipe, J. Smith and P. Gow, who were seconded by Mr. George Pirie. Mr. J. W. B. Kelly nominated Messrs J. Harris, J. Watt, Wm. Stevenson, Robt. Scott and W. S. G. Knowles. All these gentlemen went to the poll, but after about an hour Mr. Scott retired. About three o'clock on the second day Mr. Stevenson also retired, having polled in the two days 56 votes. At the close of the poll the votes stood as follows:—Harris, 182; Gow, 178; Watt, 176; Pipe, 169; Smith, 148; Knowles, 140, showing a remarkably close run. Messrs. Harris, Gow, Watt, Pipe and Smith were therefore declared elected, and at the first meeting of the council, on January 16th, Mr. John Smith was chosen reeve.

The members of the township council for this year were, Mr. T. Hood, reeve, Mr. W. Whitelaw, deputy-reeve, Mr. G. Shortreed, Mr. M. Sweetnam, and Mr. R. Cooper. The meetings of the council were held at Blyth's hotel, the sum of £15 being paid for the accommodation.—Guelph Herald.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS YOUR BEST FRIEND

A BEATITUDE.

Blessed be childhood, which brings down something of heaven into the midst of our rough earthliness. These eighty thousand daily births, of which statistics tell us, represent, as it were, an effusion of innocence and freshness, as it were, not only against the death of the race, but against human corruption and the universal gangrene of sin. All the good and wholesome feeling which is intertwined with childhood and the cradle is one of the secrets of the providential government of the world. Suppress this life-giving dew, and human society will be scorched and devastated by selfish passion. Supposing that humanity had been composed of a thousand millions of immortal beings, whose number could neither increase nor diminish, where should we be, and what should we be! A thousand times more learned, no doubt, but a thousand times more evil. There would have been a vast accumulation of science, but all the virtues engendered by suffering and devotion—that is to say, by the family and society—would have no existence. And for this there would be no compensation.

Blessed be childhood for the good that it does, and for the good which it brings about carelessly and unconsciously by simply making us love it and letting itself be loved. What little of Paradise we see still on earth is due to its presence among us. Without fatherhood, without motherhood, I think that love itself would not be enough to prevent men from devouring each other,—men, that is to say, such as human passions have made them. The angels have no need of birth and death as foundations for their life, because their life is heavenly.—Amiel's Journal.

Then Miss J. M. Godin Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

And Her Kidney Disease and Female Weakness Disappeared—She is Now a Strong, Healthy Woman.

Mizonette, Gloucester Co., N.B. Mar. 23. (Special).—"I have been suffering from the Kidneys ever since I was a child," says Miss J. M. Godin, of this place. "When I grew to womanhood I was told I was suffering from female weakness, so I tried several kinds of medicine, spending a good many dollars for nothing.

"Last winter I became so weak I was on the point of giving up my work. I could not sleep at night and could hardly get up the stairs without having palpitation of the heart and feeling quite exhausted.

"Reading of symptoms of Kidney Disease in Dodd's Almanac, I soon found out my case was similar, so I sent at once for four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I began to feel a change at the very beginning, for I slept well the very first night. Those four boxes did me more good than all the medicine I had taken before, and I have remained strong ever since. I am now as well as one.

All women who suffer should look to the Kidneys. They are the mainspring of health. Keep the Kidneys strong by using Dodd's Kidney Pills and they will take care of the rest of the body.

EGG STANDARDS.

List of Trade Designations and the Ages Corresponding.

With the high price of the really new-laid egg comes the plea for the standardization of eggs since the terms used by storekeepers are hopelessly misleading. What is regarded as a new-laid egg in one district might be looked upon as a mere cooking egg in another. A "fresh" egg may have attained the respectable age of three months, but their is nothing to convey to the purchaser this all-important fact.

To designate the egg of commerce, a correspondent has drafted the interpretation he places upon the five terms that are used to designate it.

New-laid.—Three to five days old, in accordance with the season of the year, and in other respects as laid down above. These alone are recommended for boiling;

Breakfast.—In all respects the same, save that as they are a few days older, there is a slight shrinkage and the bright appearance has gone. For poaching or frying these are excellent;

Fresh.—Not preserved. Good eggs for cooking, but nothing more. Usually foreign and inferior native supplies, in which the value has been lost by delays in marketing.

Cooking.—A varied class, including "pickles," often very doubtful indeed. Faith is necessary for their consumption; and Eggs.—Upon these the curtain may be drawn. A scrap-heap for the other classes.

Another expert has remarked that, whilst "new-laid" is the trade term for the egg newest from the nest, fresh would be a fitter term. But an egg is not necessarily fresh because it is new-laid. Everything depends upon the way in which it has been stored.

But when eggs are cheaper, we may not be quite so particular!

Who Is It?

Any number of persons may play the game called "Who is it?" One is selected to stand or sit in front of the others, who have arranged themselves in a half circle. The one selected sits with his back to the rest; then one of those in the half circle touches the chosen one on the back, and all together they ask, "Who is it?" The one on the centre then turns around and tells the name of the one he thinks touched him. The one named asks, "Where shall I go?" The chosen one designates a place at some distance, so that while the person named is going to the place and back the rest will have a good chance to hide. If the person named did touch the one in the centre he must go, but if he was not the one then he says to the leader, "Go yourself," and he is the one to go. The last person caught stands in front as the chosen one in the next game.

Curious Cradles.

"The Lapland babe's cradle," said a man who has traveled, "is its mother's shoe—its mother's snowshoe. This snowshoe is covered with skin and stuffed with soft moss. When so disposed the Lapland mother can hang her baby to a tree by the thongs.

"The Indian baby wears a nose ring and a veil, and its cradle is a basket swung from its mother's head.

"But the strangest cradle of all is the New Guinea baby's. The mothers of New Guinea bury their babies in the soft white desert sand up to the waist. This keeps them out of mischief. It is the only cradle they ever know."

Ancient Money.

In Biblical days silver and gold coins were struck of such weight that one of them represented the value of a particular animal. Thus the word kesitah (used in Genesis), translated "pieces of money," means literally a lamb. The Latin pecunia, from which comes our word pecuniary, comes from pecus, a general name for sheep and the smaller animals. In early times coins bore figures of a horse, a bull or a hog, together with the names of the animals pictured. Afterward, as values changed, the figures upon the coins no longer bore representations of their value in cattle, but figures representing a rose, an eagle, etc.

Brussels Sprouts.

Wash the sprouts carefully, removing any discolored leaves. Put in boiling salted water, cook for twenty minutes, drain and place on a hot serving dish. Meanwhile mix four tablespoonfuls of butter with two tablespoonfuls of flour, add a little broth or water and stir well until it comes to the boiling point. Season with salt, pepper and the juice of two lemons, blend thoroughly, pour all over the sprouts and serve quickly.

Two Strings.

He frowned in perplexity on hearing once more that she was not at home.

"I wonder, Jimmy," he said bitterly, "if your sister realizes that I have treated her to three taxi rides and four concerts this month?"

"You bet she realizes it," said the small boy, grinning. "That's why she's keeping her engagement to Joe Johnson a secret."

Rules for Avoiding Indigestion.

Chew your food, quit overeating, quit washing the food into the stomach with liquids, quit eating the wrong combinations of food. Fermentation is not digestion; fermentation causes gas. Whenever you have gas you know that your digestion is not good.

Some Names.

Goose, Gosling and Jocelyn as surnames are corruptions of a word which originally denoted the Goths. The first Mr. Gander was an individual called "the wolf," while the original Mr. Duck was a "doughty" man.

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich.—"I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache. I got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes and before I did dusting I would have to lie down. I so poorly that my folks thought I going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong."—Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work.

In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family, on meagre wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, women should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which women are prone, and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

A SERIAL STORY

ANNA, The Adventuress

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

CHAPTER II.—continued.

"And what business of monsieur's is it if there is another room there?" Marie demanded. "He asks for Mademoiselle Pellissier, and I tell him that she is gone, gone! It is so difficult to understand? Those rooms beyond were not even let to her. They are let to another tenant. If monsieur pleases."

Monsieur was apparently bundled out. The outer door was closed. Steps were heard descending the stone stairs. Anna looked with grave eyes at the girl who was still on her knees by the key-hole, and whose face was blanched with terror.

"Is it you, Annabel?" she asked, in a low tone, "who have bought these lies from Marie?"

Annabel rose slowly to her feet. Her knees were still trembling. The hunted look remained in her eyes. She had had a shock.

"There was no buying," she answered. "Marie was always our friend. I told her if any one came for me—that I had left. I do not wish to be worried just now."

"Who is that man?"

"I do not know!"

"Nonsense. Who is he?"

"Indeed I do not know," Annabel persisted. "He is the friend of some one I loath, some one of whom I am afraid. There are several of them. They pester me to death."

"You are going to England to escape from him?"

"Partly—yes!"

"Why? What is he to you? What harm can he do you?"

Annabel, mercurial, inconsistent, a strange mixture of coward and fatalist, began to recover herself. She rose to her feet. The footsteps of Marie and her companion had died away.

"None," she declared, "none whatever. I am so easily upset, but I hate to be bothered. Please go on with my packing. I have so little time. Don't crush my crepe de chine, whatever you do. I shall have to take your trunk. Sorry, but you won't be going away just yet, shall you?"

"You have told me all that you intend to?" Anna asked.

"Don't be melodramatic. There is nothing to tell."

Anna continued her task in silence. With deft fingers she created order out of chaos. Soon the trunk, portmanteau and hat box were ready. Then she took her sister's hand. It was as cold as ice.

"Annabel," she said, "I have never asked you for your confidence. We have lived under the same roof, but our ways seem to have lain apart. There are many things which I do not understand. Have you anything to tell me before you go?"

Annabel laughed lightly. Already she was almost herself again.

"My dear Anna! As though I should think of depressing you with my long list of misdeeds."

"You have nothing to tell me?"

"Nothing!"

So Annabel departed with the slightest of farewells, wearing a thick travelling veil, and sitting far back in the corner of a closed carriage.

Anna watched her from the windows, watched the carriage jolt away along the cobbled street and disappear. Then she stepped back into the empty room and stood for a moment looking down upon the scattered fragments of her last canvas.

"It is a night of endings," she murmured to herself. "Perhaps for me," she added, with a sudden, wistful look out of the bare high window, "a night of beginnings."

CHAPTER III.

Anna? or Annabel?

Sir John was wholly unable to understand the laugh and semi-ironical cheer which greeted his entrance to the smoking room of the English Club on the following evening. He stood upon the threshold, dangling his eye-glasses in his fingers, stolid, imperturbable, mildly interrogative. He wanted to know what the joke against him was—if any.

"May I inquire," he asked smoothly, "in what way my appearance contributes to your amusement? If there is a joke I should like to share it."

A fair-haired young Englishman looked up from the depths of his easy chair.

"You hear him?" he remarked, looking impressively around. "A joke! Sir John, if you had presented yourself here an hour ago we should have greeted you in pained silence. We had not then recovered from the shock. Our ideal had fallen. A sense of loss was amongst us. Drummond," he continued, looking across at his vis-a-vis, "we look to you to give expression to our sentiments. Your career at the bar has given you a command of language, also a self-control not vouchsafed to us ordinary mortals. Explain to Sir John our feelings."

Drummond, a few years older, dark, clean-shaven, with bright eyes and humorous mouth, laid down his paper and turned towards Sir John. He removed his cigarette from his lips and waved it gently in the air.

"Holcroft," he remarked, "in bold language, and with the usual limitations of his clouded intellect, has still given some slight expression to the consternation which I believe all may say is general amongst us. We looked upon you, my dear Sir John, with reverence, almost with awe. You represent to us the immaculate Briton, the one Englishman who typified the Saxonism, if I may coin a word, of our race. We have seen great and sober-minded men come to this unholy city, and become degenerates.

GILLETT'S EATS LYE DIRT CLEANS-DISINFECTS

We have known men who have come here for no other purpose than to prove their unassailable virtue, who have strode into the arena of temptation, waving the—the what is it—the white flower of a blameless life, only to exchange it with marvellous facility for the violets of the Parisienne. But you, Ferringhall, our pattern, and erstwhile Sheriff of London, a county magistrate, a prospective politician, a sober and an upright man, one who, had he aspired to it, might even have filled the glorious position of Lord Mayor—James, a whisky and Apollinaris at once. I cannot go on. My feelings overpower me."

"You all seem to be trying to pull my leg," Sir John remarked quietly. "I suppose you'll come to the point soon—if there is one."

Drummond shook his head in melancholy fashion.

"He dissembles," he said. "After all, how easy the descent is, even for the greatest of us. I hope that James will not be long with that whisky and Apollinaris. My nerves are shaken. I require stimulant."

Sir John seated himself deliberately.

"I should imagine," he said, shaking out a copy of "The Times," "that it is your brain which is addled."

Drummond looked up with mock eagerness.

"This," he exclaimed, "must be either the indifference of an utterly callous nature, or it may be—yo gods, it may be—innocence, Holcroft, we may have been mistaken."

"Think not," that young man remarked laconically.

"I will put the question," Drummond said gravely. "Ferringhall, were you or were you not dining last night at a certain restuarant in the Boulevard des Italiennes with—la petite Pellissier?"

Now indeed Sir John was moved. He sat up in his chair as though the question had stung him. The "Times" slipped through his fingers. His eyes were bright, and his voice had in it an unaccustomed timbre.

"It is true," he said, "that I was dining last night at a restaurant in the Boulevard des Italiennes, and it is true that my companion was a young lady whose name is Pellissier. What of it?"

There was a shout of laughter Sir John looked about him, and somehow the laugh died away. If such a thing in connexion with him had been possible they would have declared that he was in a towering rage. An uncomfortable silence followed. Sir John once more looked around him.

"I repeat, gentlemen," he said, in an ominously low tone, "what of it?"

Drummond shrugged his shoulders.

"You seem to be taking our little joke more seriously than it deserves, Ferringhall," he remarked.

"I fail to see the joke," Sir John said. "Kindly explain it to me."

"Certainly! The thing which appeals to our sense of humour is the fact that you and la petite Pellisier were dining together."

"Will you tell me," Sir John said ponderously, "by what right you call that young lady—la petite Pellissier? I should be glad to know how you dare to allude to her in a public place in such a disrespectful manner!"

Drummond looked at him and smiled.

"Don't be an ass, Ferringhall," he said tersely. "Annabel Pellissier is known to most of us. I myself have had the pleasure of dining with her. She is very charming, and we all admire her immensely. She sings twice a week at the Ambassador's and the Casino Mavis—"

Sir John held up his hand.

"Stop," he said. "You do not even know what you are talking about. The young lady with whom I was dining last night was Miss Anna Pellissier. Miss Annabel is her sister. I know nothing of that young lady."

There was a moment's silence. Drummond took up a cigarette and lit it.

"The young lady, I presume, told you, that her name was Anna," he remarked.

"It was not necessary," Sir John answered stiffly. "I was already aware of the fact. I may add that the family is well known to me. The two aunts of these young ladies lived for many years in the dower house upon my estate in Hampshire. Under the circumstances you must permit me to be the best judge of the identity of the young lady who did me the honour, as an old family friend, of dining with me."

Like most men who lie but seldom, he lied well. Drummond smoked his cigarette meditatively. He remembered that he had heard stories about the wonderful likeness between these two sisters, one of whom was an artist and a recluse, whilst the other had attached herself to a gay and very brilliant little coterie of pleasure seekers. There was a bare chance that he had been mistaken. He thought it best to let the matter drop. A few minutes later Sir John left the room.

He walked out into the Champs Elysees and sat down. His cigar burnt out between his fingers, and he threw it impatiently away. He had seldom been more perturbed. He sat with folded arms and knitted brows, thinking intently. The girl had told him distinctly that her name was Anna. Her whole conduct and tone had been modest and ladylike. He went over his interview with her again, their conversation at dinner time. She had behaved in every way perfectly. His spirits began to rise. Drummond had made an abominable mistake. It was not possible for him to have been deceived. He drew a little sigh of relief.

Sir John, by instinct and training, was an unimaginative person. He was a business man, pure and simple, his eyes were fastened always upon the practical side of life. Such ambitions as he had were stereotyped and material. Yet in some hidden corner was a vein of sentiment, of which for the first time in his later life he was now unexpectedly aware. He was conscious of a peculiar pleasure in sitting there and thinking of those few hours which already were becoming to assume a definite importance in his mind—a place curiously apart from those dry-as-dust images which had become the gods of his prosaic life. Somehow or other his reputation as a hardened and unassailable bachelor had won for him during the last few years a comparative immunity from attentions on the part of those women with whom he had been brought into contact. It was a reputation by no means deserved. A wife formed part of his scheme of life, for several years he had been secretly but assiduously looking for her. In his way he was critical. The young ladies in the somewhat mixed society amongst which he moved neither satisfied his taste nor appealed in any way to his affections. This girl whom he had met by chance and befriended had done both. She possessed what he affected to despise, but secretly worshipped, the innate charm of breeding. The Pellissiers had been an old family in Hampshire, while his grandfather had driven a van. The fact itself was nothing to him, but it placed the girl very far apart from the young ladies of Hampstead and Balham, whose fathers and brothers had been his associates. He believed in her firmly. This club gossip and chaff to which he had been subjected was annoying enough, but ridiculous. He chose a fresh cigar, and strolling along under the trees, here and there touched with the lurid brilliancy of the electric lights, gave himself up to the rare luxury of imaginative thought.

As in all things, so his thoughts came to him deliberately. He pictured himself visiting her in this shabby little home of her aunt's—she had told him that it was shabby—and he recalled that delicious little smile with which she would surely greet him, a smile which seemed to be a matter of the eyes as well as the lips. She was poor. He was heartily thankful for it. He thought of his wealth for once from a different point of view. How much he would be able to do for her. Flowers, theatre boxes, carriages, the "open sesame" to the world of pleasure. He himself, middle-aged, steeped in traditions of the City and money-making, very ill-skilled in all the lighter graces of life, as he himself well knew, could yet come to her invested with something of the halo of romance by the almost magical powers of an unlimited banking account. She should be lifted out of her narrow little life, and it should be all owing to him. And afterwards! Sir John drew his cigar from his lips, and looked upwards where the white lights flashed strangely amongst the deep cool green of the lime trees. His lips parted in a rare smile. Afterwards was the most delightful part of all! . . . .

If only there had not been this single torturing thought—a mere pin-prick, but still curiously persistent. Suddenly he stopped short. He was in front of one of the more inviting of the cafes chantants—opposite, illuminated with a whole row of lights was the wonderful poster which had helped to make Alcide famous. He had looked at it before without comprehension. To-night the subtle suggestiveness of those few daring lines, fascinating in their very simplicity, the head thrown back, the half-closed eyes—the inner meaning of the great artist seemed to come to him with a rush. He stood still, almost breathless. A slow anger burned in the man. It was debauching, this—a devilish art which drew such strange allurements from a face and figure almost Madonna-like in their simplicity. Unwillingly he drew a little nearer, and became one of the group of loiterers about the entrance. A woman touched him lightly on the arm, and smiled into his face.

"Monsieur admires the poster?"

As a rule Sir John treated such advances with cold silence. This woman, contrary to his custom, he answered.

"It is hateful—diabolical!" he exclaimed.

The woman shrugged her shoulders.

"It is a great art," she said in broken English. "The little English girl is very fortunate. For what indeed does she do? A simple song, no gesture, no acting, nothing. And nay her. Monsieur is going inside perhaps?"

But Sir John's eyes were still riveted on the poster, and his heart was beating with unaccustomed force. For just as though a vague likness is sometimes borne swiftly in upon one, so a vague dissimilarity between the face on the poster and the heroine of his thoughts had slowly crept into his consciousness. He drew a little breath and stepped back. After all, he had the means of setting this tormenting doubt at rest. She had mentioned the address where she and her sister had lived. He would go there. He would see this sister. He would know the truth then once and for all. He walked hastily to the side of the broad pavement and summoned a fiacre.

LADIES' OUTFITTER

An Interesting Event.

It is a pleasure to record the following details of the baptism of Miss Murial Jane Jordan, grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hughson, of Orangeville. The little lady, who is on a visit to her father's parents, Major J. B. Jordan, V.D., and Mrs. Jordan, of Herne Hill, London, Eng., was taken to the Church of St. John, Great Staanmore, Middlesex, where her great, great grand-parents and succeeding generations have lived and worshipped for nearly a century. Here the Vicar, the Rev. Stuart Bernays, son of the late Rev. L. J. Bernays, who performed the marriage ceremony for Miss Jordan's grandparents, very kindly consented to officiate at the special service as a mark of respect to the memory of such old and respected inhabitants of the village. We think the event shows the ties which bind together the Mother Country to its Colonies, and is one of the links which keys together the British Empire. The Misses Tolman, of Stanmore, very kindly presented Miss Jordan with a beautifully decorated cake for her christening.

Mr. Edward Russell Jordan arrives after his visit to London, England, by the Cunard liner "Andania," due the 4th of April, and stays in the country until next fall, when he returns to the Old Country to bring back his wife and family to Canada. Mrs. Jordan, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hughson, of Orangeville, has already greatly improved in health by the sea voyage, change of climate and scene.

A Farewell Gathering.
